CITIZENSHIP PARLEY OPENS HERE SEPT. 17

1,200 Are Expected At Conference

The seventh annual National Conference on Citizenship, sponsored by the Justice department and the National Education association, will open a three-day meeting here in the Statler hotel on Sept. 17, the newly established "Citizenship day."

The special day, created by the recent Congress, will commemorate the signing of the Constitution on Sept 17, 1787.

More than 1,200 delegates, representing about 800 public and private groups, are expected at the conference, which will have as its theme, "The Constitution and the Citizens." Honorary chairman of the conference will be Vice President Barkley, who has served three preceding years in the same capacity.

The conference will hear messages from Attorney General McGranery and Mrs. Sarah C. Caldwell, president of N.E.A., at the opening session. Other speakers during the meeting will include Justin Miller, chairman of the board and general counsel of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.
