Title: [redacted]
JOHN DOOLITTLE - CALIFORNIA (R) - VICTIM;
ASSAULT AGAINST A MEMBER OF CONGRESS - TELEPHONICALLY

Synopsis: Subject interviewed. Deemed not to be a threat.

Enclosure(s): Written statement from [redacted]

Details: On 03/30/2006, writer made contact with [redacted] Grass Valley, California, telephone [redacted]

Writer informed [redacted] that she was aware of a phone call that he placed on 03/02/2006 to Congressman Doolittle's office. In this phone call, he was agitated and asked to speak directly to the Congressman. When he was told the Congressman was not available, he began to get upset and started yelling. One statement he made was, "we are going to shut down your office in four days."

Writer then relayed to [redacted] that on 03/08/2006, Congressman Doolittle's office received an envelope which contained a suspicious powder. Writer asked [redacted] if he had anything to do with that act.

[redacted] vehemently denied knowing anything about the envelope with suspicious power and expressed how he would never commit such an offense.

Writer asked [redacted] if she needed to be concerned that his harassing phone calls would turn into overt threats to the safety of anyone in Congressman Doolittle's office.

[redacted] stated that he only made two phone calls and that he got very frustrated because he was not allowed to speak directly to the Congressman. He has never and would never overtly threaten anyone's safety.

Writer made it clear to [redacted] that he was entitled to participate in the political process by contacting congressional representatives, but that if these contacts turned into threats to anyone's safety or if he mailed powder to a representative's office, that he was then crossing the line into a criminal act. [redacted] confirmed that he understood and agreed with that statement. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that he was not a threat to the Congressman and that he was a patriotic American expressing his displeasure with the Congressman. [redacted] wrote a statement to this effect, which is enclosed.
