Friends,

Below is this week's issue of articles and reports on the malign activities of the Chinese Communist Party.

This week marks the one-year anniversary of the PRC's assurances to the WHO and the rest of the world that there was no clear evidence of human-to-human transmission of COVID-19 (see the WHO's Tweet from January 14, 2020, #7). A year later, as the WHO tried to send a team of international investigators to the PRC (a team that the PRC pre-approved over months of negotiation), that team was denied entry at the last minute when the PRC Government refused to issue their visas. Beijing relented and granted access late this week, when the WHO took the rare step of criticizing the PRC Government publicly.

Thanks for reading!

(U) National Crisis Coordination Center Update: Preventing Violence and Criminal Activity January 2021

1700 17 JANUARY 2021

(U ~~LES~~) This update was compiled by the Joint Inter-Agency National Crisis Coordination Center in the FBI Strategic Information Operations Center. Information is accurate as of 1400 EST on 17 January 2021. The following agencies contributed to the development of this SITREP: ATF, DEA, DOD, DOJ, DHS, US Park Police, and USMS. Responses provided after the cut-off time will be included in the next SITREP.

(U) The information marked (U/~~LES~~) in this document is the property of the FBI and may be distributed within the Federal Government (and its contractors), U.S. intelligence, law enforcement, public safety or protection officials, and individuals with a need to know. Distribution beyond these entities without FBI authorization is prohibited. Precautions should be taken to ensure this information is stored and/or destroyed in a manner that precludes unauthorized access. Information bearing the LES on it may not be used in legal proceedings without first receiving authorization from the originating agency. Recipients are prohibited from subsequently posting the information marked LES on a website or an unclassified network.

(U/~~LES~~) Under FBI policy and federal law, no investigative activity may be based solely on First Amendment activity. The FBI does not investigate, collect, or maintain information on U.S. persons solely for the purpose of monitoring activities protected by the First Amendment. Moreover, the FBI will "maintain no record describing how any individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized by statute or by the individual about whom the record is maintained or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity." (Privacy Act of 1974, section (e)(7))

(U/~~LES~~) DIOG Appendix L further connects the collection of information regarding First Amendment protected activity: the FBI may only collect information relating to the exercise of a First Amendment right if (1) the collection is logically related to an authorized investigative purpose, (2) the collection does not materially interfere with the ability of an individual or a group to engage in the exercise of constitutionally protected rights, and (3) the method of collection is the least intrusive alternative that is reasonable, based upon the circumstances of the investigation. Respondents are reminded that information including tweets, Facebook posts, and "likes" are First Amendment protected speech and "following" and "friending" on social media may be an exercise of the First Amendment freedom of association. The collection of such information therefore requires human review to determine it is pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(U/~~LES~~) Within FBI legal and policy framework, the information reported from field offices in this communication is intended to provide timely information to appropriate law enforcement and/or public safety personnel who are authorized to protect facilities, personnel, and the public from immediate threats of violent and/or criminal activity. This document is meant as a summary of significant investigative highlights and NOT as a comprehensive review of ongoing investigations. The information contained in this communication is FOUO to be incorporated into any formal or informal written document not further disseminated without the authorization of the FBI Headquarters SIOC. Unauthorized use of this information may jeopardize sensitive national security and/or criminal investigations, result in the possible identification and/or physical harm of human sources or create undue notoriety into the FBI's interest of intended targets.

(U) This communication is intended to provide timely information to appropriate law enforcement and/or public safety personnel who are authorized to protect facilities, personnel, and the public from immediate threats of violent and/or criminal activity. It is related to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement investigation or investigative activity. Under FBI policy and federal law, no investigative activity may be based solely on First Amendment activity. The FBI does not investigate, collect, or maintain information on U.S. persons solely for the purpose of monitoring activities protected by the First Amendment.

Boss, [redacted] Sandrea,

I sent on red too. The stuff I added is highlighted in yellow. I deleted a few bullets that were OBE.

Boss - I could not find anything about [redacted] but will get with [redacted] first thing in the AM to see if they have something on that. But I think I was able to add everything else you mentioned during our call.

I should be in by 8 if more is needed!

FBI vetting Guard troops in DC amid fears of insider attack

The Associated Press

January 17, 2021, 10:16 PM

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. defense officials say they are worried about an insider attack or other threat from service members involved in securing President-elect Joe Biden's inauguration, prompting the FBI to vet all of the 25,000 National Guard troops coming into Washington for the event.

The massive undertaking reflects the extraordinary security concerns that have gripped Washington following the deadly Jan. 6 insurrection at the U.S. Capitol by pro-Trump rioters. And it underscores fears that some of the very people assigned to protect the city over the next several days could present a threat to the incoming president and other VIPs in attendance.

Army Secretary Ryan McCarthy told The Associated Press on Sunday that officials are conscious of the potential threat, and he warned commanders to be on the lookout for any problems within their ranks as the inauguration approaches. So far, however, he and other leaders say they have seen no evidence of any threats, and officials said the vetting hadn't flagged any issues that they were aware of.

"We're continually going through the process, and taking second, third looks at every one of the individuals assigned to this operation," McCarthy said in an interview after he and other military leaders went through an exhaustive, three-hour security drill in preparation for Wednesday's inauguration. He said Guard members are also getting training on how to identify potential insider threats.

About 25,000 members of the National Guard are streaming into Washington from across the country — at least two and a half times the number for previous inaugurals. And while the military routinely reviews service members for extremist connections, the FBI screening is in addition to any previous monitoring.

Multiple officials said the process began as the first Guard troops began deploying to D.C. more than a week ago. And they said it is slated to be complete by Wednesday. Several officials discussed military planning on condition of anonymity.

"The question is, is that all of them? Are there others?" said McCarthy. "We need to be conscious of it and we need to put all of the mechanisms in place to thoroughly vet these men and women who would support any operations like this."

In a situation like this one, FBI vetting would involve running peoples' names through databases and watchlists maintained by the bureau to see if anything alarming comes up. That could include involvement in prior investigations or terrorism-related concerns, said David Gomez, a former FBI national security supervisor in Seattle.

Insider threats have been a persistent law enforcement priority in the years after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks. But in most cases, the threats are from homegrown insurgents radicalized by al-Qaida, the Islamic State group or similar groups. In contrast, the threats against Biden's inauguration have been fueled by supporters of President Donald Trump, far-right militants, white supremacists and other radical groups. Many believe Trump's baseless accusations that the election was stolen from him, a claim that has been refuted by many courts, the Justice Department and Republican officials in key battleground states.

The insurrection at the Capitol began after Trump made incendiary remarks at the Jan. 6 rally. According to McCarthy, service members from across the military were at that rally, but it's not clear how many were there or who may have participated in the breach at the Capitol. So far only a couple of current active-duty or National Guard members have been arrested in connection with the Capitol assault, which left five people dead. The dead included a Capitol Police officer and a woman shot by police as she climbed through a window in a door near the House chamber.

Gen. Daniel R. Hokanson, chief of the National Guard Bureau, has been meeting with Guard troops as they arrive in D.C. and as they gather downtown. He said he believes there are good processes in place to identify any potential threats.

"If there's any indication that any of our soldiers or airmen are expressing things that are extremist views, it's either handed over to law enforcement or dealt with the chain of command immediately," he said.

The insider threat, however, was just one of the security concerns voiced by officials on Sunday, as dozens of military, National Guard, law enforcement and Washington, D.C., officials and commanders went through a security rehearsal in northern Virginia. As many as three dozen leaders lined tables that ringed a massive color-coded map of D.C. reflected onto the floor. Behind them were dozens more National Guard officers and staff, with their eyes trained on additional maps and charts displayed on the wall.

The Secret Service is in charge of event security, but there is a wide variety of military and law enforcement personnel involved, ranging from the National Guard and the FBI to Washington's Metropolitan Police Department, U.S. Capitol Police and U.S. Park Police.

Commanders went over every aspect of the city's complicated security lockdown, with McCarthy and others peppering them with questions about how the troops will respond in any scenario and how well they can communicate with the other enforcement agencies scattered around the city.

Hokanson said he believes his troops have been adequately equipped and prepared, and that they are rehearsing as much as they can to be prepared for any contingency.

The major security concern is an attack by armed groups of individuals, as well as planted explosives and other devices. McCarthy said intelligence reports suggest that groups are organizing armed rallies leading up to Inauguration Day, and possibly after that.

The bulk of the Guard members will be armed. And McCarthy said units are going through repeated drills to practice when and how to use force and how to work quickly with law enforcement partners. Law enforcement officers would make any arrests.

He said Guard units are going through "constant mental repetitions of looking at the map and talking through scenarios with leaders so they understand their task and purpose, they know their routes, they know where they're friendly, adjacent units are, they have the appropriate frequencies to communicate with their law enforcement partners."

The key goal, he said, is for America's transfer of power to happen without incident.

"This is a national priority. We have to be successful as an institution," said McCarthy. "We want to send the message to everyone in the United States and for the rest of the world that we can do this safely and peacefully."

FBI moves on alleged members of extremist groups Oath Keepers, Three Percenters

A heavy-metal guitarist, the alleged leader of a Colorado paramilitary training group and two ex-military militia members from Ohio have been charged with allegedly taking part in the riot at the Capitol last week, as the FBI ratchets up its investigation into the role extremist groups played in storming the building.

Jon Schaffer, an Indiana musician, turned himself in to the FBI on Sunday afternoon, officials said. On Jan. 6, Schaffer was photographed inside the Capitol, wearing a hat that said "Oath Keepers Lifetime Member." Schaffer founded Iced Earth, a heavy-metal band, and music fans quickly recognized him as the FBI circulated wanted posters with his face on them.

Schaffer was charged with six counts, including engaging in an act of physical violence. Authorities said Schaffer was among the rioters who targeted U.S. Capitol Police with bear spray.

Also charged in a court filing made public Sunday was Robert Gieswein, 24, of Cripple Creek, Colo. Court papers say that Gieswein is affiliated with an Oath Keepers-related extremist group called the Three Percenters, and that he assaulted federal officers outside the Capitol with bear spray and a baseball bat; "encouraged other rioters as they broke a window of the Capitol building; entered … and then charged through the Capitol building." Gieswein runs a private paramilitary training group called the Woodland Wild Dogs, and a patch for that group was visible on a tactical vest he wore during the attack on Congress, an FBI affidavit said.

Gieswein gave a media interview in which he echoed anti-Semitic conspiracy theories, the affidavit said, and said his message to Congress was "that they need to get the corrupt politicians out of office. Pelosi, the Clintons … every single one of them, Biden, Kamala."

'Trump said to do so': Accounts of rioters who say the president spurred them to rush the Capitol could be pivotal testimony

Also arrested Sunday were Donovan Crowl, 50, a former U.S. Marine, and Army veteran Jessica Watkins, 38. A bartender, Watkins recently told the Ohio Capital Journal that she formed the "Ohio State Regular Militia" in 2019 — a unit of the Oath Keepers, the FBI said — and that the group has appeared at a dozen protests to "protect people."

The FBI said Watkins posted to Parler a photograph of herself in uniform on Jan. 6, writing, "Me before forcing entry into the Capitol Building. #stopthesteal #stormthecapitol #oathkeepers #ohiomilitia."

Watkins and Crowl were among about 10 individuals recorded at the U.S. Capitol wearing combat helmets, ballistic goggles, tactical vests and Oath Keepers patches who "move[d] in an organized and practiced fashion and force[d] their way to the front of the crowd" to lead the siege and break-in, FBI affidavits said.

Lawyers for the four defendants could not immediately be identified.

The Oath Keepers, the Three Percenters, and the Proud Boys, a male-chauvinist group with ties to white nationalism, have drawn particular attention from FBI agents investigating the attack on Congress, as they work to determine whether those groups organized or directed the violence to block certification of President-elect Joe Biden's election victory. Officials have said the Proud Boys in particular are an important focus of the FBI investigation.

"All these extremist groups are being looked at in terms of their participation at the Capitol," acting U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia Michael Sherwin said Friday.

Oath Keepers patches and logos were prominently worn by a number of those in the mob that day. It is one of the largest self-described militia groups in the United States, claiming tens of thousands of members. The group's founder has argued that current and former U.S. military and law enforcement members can adhere to their oath to defend the Constitution "against all enemies, foreign and domestic," while refusing orders or even fighting to resist tyranny.

The Oath Keepers gained a measure of notoriety last summer when its members showed up at Black Lives Matter protests wearing military gear and carrying weapons as a kind of self-declared vigilante force to prevent vandalism. Before that, they appeared at the 2014 standoff at the Bundy ranch in Nevada and the protests in Ferguson, Mo.

A related group, the Three Percenters formed in 2008 and is named after the bogus claim that only 3 percent of the population fought against the British in the American Revolution. The self-described militia group espouses right-wing libertarian ideals and has embraced President Trump and expressed its preparedness "to take back our country from the pure evil that is conspiring to steal our country away from the American people."

The group also has provided security services for various right-wing protests and movements, the FBI said.

Overall, the Justice Department has already charged about 100 individuals, with hundreds more expected to follow, but many of those arrested so far have been what one senior law enforcement official characterized as "low-hanging fruit" — people who revealed themselves as participating in the riot on Jan. 6 through social media boasts.

Watchdog groups have sought to identify a line of men in body armor moving up the Capitol steps

Federal investigators are also accelerating efforts to determine whether the assault was planned and led by groups of people — rather than an impulsive outburst of violence — particularly because some of the men shown on video laying siege to the building were equipped with handheld radios and headsets and at times appeared to work in unison on particular objectives, investigators said.

"There are breadcrumbs of organization in terms of what maybe was taking place outside the Capitol ... with perhaps some type of communication with core groups of people ingressing into the Capitol," Sherwin said.

He said prosecutors have made it a "Tier 1 top priority" to determine "whether there was this overarching command and control and whether there were these organized teams that were organized to breach the Capitol, and then perhaps try to accomplish some type of a mission inside the Capitol." But he cautioned it could be weeks or months before the FBI settles on an answer "to find out the actual motivations of some of those groups."

Gieswein is recognizable in a YouTube video of the riot in which he is allegedly assaulting officers, the FBI said. He is seen wearing a distinctive Army-style helmet marked with orange tape and patches, an armored vest, goggles and a black-patterned backpack, the FBI said.

Gieswein also was recorded watching a helmeted group break a Capitol window with a riot shield and two-by-four plank, climbing through the opening and helping others enter, the FBI said.

He has posted multiple pictures on Facebook flashing hand signs commonly used by the Three Percenters and posing with others wearing the group's clothing and posing in front of its flag, the FBI said.

Even before the riot, the Oath Keepers had garnered attention and alarmed law enforcement officials. Stewart

Rhodes, a former Army paratrooper who founded the group in 2009, threatened ahead of November's election to deploy members to polling places, preemptively accusing Democrats of voter fraud on Alex Jones's online show "Infowars."

Members also demonstrated in Washington after the election in support of Trump. Rhodes, who has predicted the nation's descent into civil war, said allies would not recognize Biden's victory as legitimate, adding in an interview with the Independent newspaper, "We'll end up nullifying and resisting."

Schaffer also attended the pro-Trump march in November with other Oath Keepers, the FBI said, telling a news reporter, "We're not going to merge in to some globalist, communist system, it will not happen. There will be a lot of bloodshed if it comes down to that, trust me ... Nobody wants this, but they're pushing us to a point where we have no choice."

Such messages have been embraced by others arrested in the Jan. 6 attack.

Larry R. Brock, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel, who was charged after identifying himself to the New Yorker as the man photographed carrying zip-tie handcuffs onto the Senate floor, has described himself online as a patriot and savior, according to court documents entered in his case.
Brock, a former A-10 pilot who said he deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan, was fired two years ago from his job with an aviation training company for threatening to shoot "members of a particular religion and/or race," according to a 2018 letter of termination submitted by authorities in his case.

A week before the Capitol attack, he wrote on Facebook that he saw no distinction among the Democrats, the Biden administration and "an invading force of Chinese communists."

He signed off on the post: "Against all enemies foreign and domestic," a reference to his military oath. He included hashtags singling out the Oath Keepers and the Three Percenters.

FBI report warned of 'war' planned for Capitol, contradicting officials claims of no prior threat intelligence

At a court hearing Thursday, when Brock was released to home confinement with limits on his access to firearms and the Internet, his attorney, Brook Antonio II, noted that Brock has only been charged with misdemeanors. Antonio said there was no direct evidence of Brock breaking doors or windows to get into the Capitol or doing anything violent once he was inside.

"It's all talk. It's all speculation and conjecture," said Antonio, who noted Brock's long service in the military, including being reactivated after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks and four tours in Afghanistan.

Before the riot, law enforcement agencies were also increasingly concerned about the Proud Boys. The group's chairman, Enrique Tarrio, had planned to attend Trump's Jan. 6 rally but was arrested when he arrived in D.C. and charged with misdemeanor destruction of property in connection with the burning of a Black Lives Matter banner taken from a Black church during an earlier protest in Washington. He is also accused of felony possession of two extended gun magazines.

Tarrio told The Washington Post last week that his group did not organize the Capitol siege.

"If they think we were organizing going into the Capitol, they're going to be sadly mistaken," he said. "Our plan was to stay together as a group and just enjoy the day. We weren't going to do a night march, anything like that. That's it as far as our day."

Since the attack, Proud Boys leaders have urged members to pull out of pro-Trump protests planned for Sunday and around Biden's inauguration on Wednesday.

Court documents describe Capitol siege

Tarrio said he actively discouraging members from attending planned armed marches next week when Biden is inaugurated. The Proud Boys, he said, are on a "rally freeze and will not be organizing any events for the next month or so."

It is unclear how many Proud Boys devotees will abide by the freeze or if such a shutdown might lessen the FBI's interest in the group. Some federal law enforcement officials have privately described the group as similar to a nascent street gang that has garnered an unusual degree of national attention, in part because Trump mentioned them specifically during one of his televised debates with Biden during the campaign. Other officials have expressed concern that the group may be growing rapidly into something more dangerous and directed.

U.S. authorities on Friday arrested Dominic Pezzola, 43, of Rochester, N.Y., a former Marine and Proud Boys member allegedly seen in a widely viewed video shattering a Capitol window with a Capitol Police riot shield and climbing inside.

In court papers, the FBI cited a witness who told them that the group Pezzola was with would have killed "anyone they got their hands on," including House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-Calif.) and Vice President Pence.

POLICING & POLICY

DC, State Capitols Increase Security In Anticipation Of Violent Protests

The AP (1/16, Baldor) reports the National Guard troops arrived in DC "by the busload and planeload...as governors answered the urgent pleas of U.S. defense officials for more troops to help safeguard Washington even as they keep anxious eyes on possible violent protests in their own states." The AP says the preparations "reflect fears that violent extremist groups are targeting the city in the wake of the deadly insurrection at the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6. The threats range from armed insurgents to possible attempts to plant explosive devices at so-called soft targets. But as Washington begins to resemble an armed camp, with more than 25,000 Guard due in the city by early next week, concerns about violence at state capitals has grown."

Politico (1/16, Seligman) reports Indiana officials this week cited a FBI report from Dec. 29 that "warned...of potential violence from members of far-right militant groups in Minnesota at an event planned for Jan. 17 to protest the election results." However, Politico adds, "It's not clear if the FBI's information is still current, or whether any such rally will materialize."

A front-page Washington Post (1/16, A1, Witte, Craig, Whoriskey, Ruble) article similarly states that the "extraordinary show of security at statehouses that are normally lightly guarded reflected the anxious state of the country ahead of planned demonstrations," but "even as security forces conspicuously raised their profile in cities far from the nation's capital, the exact nature of the threat remained fluid." The Post adds officials "acknowledged they did not know what form the next burst of violent right-wing extremist, white-supremacist, anti-government grievance might take – or where it might strike."

Meanwhile, the Wall Street Journal (1/16, Ailworth, Subscription Publication) says that even as Washington, DC and states increase security ahead of the inauguration, "solo actors may pose a threat in coming weeks as extremist groups are advising followers to avoid large rallies but remain opposed to the incoming administration, according to people who track such groups."

House Committees To Investigate "High-Level" Intelligence, Security "Failures" Prior To Capitol Violence

Politico (1/16, Cheney) reports House Intelligence Chairman Adam Schiff, Judiciary Chairman Jerrold Nadler, Oversight Chairman Carolyn Maloney, and Homeland Security Chairman Bennie Thompson on Saturday announced "an investigation into 'high-level failures' of intelligence and security planning that left the Capitol vulnerable to insurrection on Jan. 6." They wrote, "This still-emerging story is one of astounding bravery by some U.S. Capitol Police and other officers; of staggering treachery by violent criminals; and of apparent and high-level failures – in particular, with respect to intelligence and security preparedness." They also pledged to "conduct robust oversight to understand what warning signs may have been missed, determine whether there were systemic failures, and consider how to best address countering domestic violent extremism, including remedying any gaps in legislation or policy."

Transit Officials Preparing For "Potentially Violent" Inaugural Crowd

Politico (1/16, Snyder, Beasley) reports, "Inaugurals are always crowded affairs with hefty security and complex logistics," but "the riot at the U.S. Capitol building last week has officials from airports, airlines, transit agencies, Amtrak and more preparing for a repeat, as potentially violent protesters crowd into the city for...Biden's Jan. 20 inauguration." Politico highlights that among the precautions being taken, "airlines are banning guns and suspending alcohol service," airports are "creating safe zones" for lawmakers, "and security agencies are calling in extra agents to help keep the peace as Washington, D.C. braces for an Inauguration Day like no other."

Virginia Attorney General Introducing Conviction Integrity Unit

The Washington Post (1/16, Jackman) reports Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring "announced Thursday that he is launching the state's first Conviction Integrity Unit, to identify and overturn wrongful convictions. Such units have been created in dozens of local prosecutors' offices across the country and have participated in hundreds of exonerations, but only a handful of state attorneys general have started them." The Post adds that Herring "said in a news release that his office will eventually have three full-time attorneys and one investigator dedicated to examining possible wrongful conviction cases."

Pennsylvania Police To Collect Traffic Stop Demographics

The Media (PA) Patch (1/15) reports that "in an effort to identify and address any disparities in traffic stop, Pennsylvania State Police are now collecting demographic data regarding stops." State Police Commissioner Colonel Robert Evanchick "announced the department launched a wide-ranging contact data collection program that will run throughout 2021." The Patch says "researchers at the University of Cincinnati will be given the data for analyzation in hopes of identifying potential patterns of racial/ethnic disparities in policing" and "should any disparities be found, the researched will recommend changes to state police policies or trainings." The Patch reports "the independent research team is led by Dr. Robin Engel, a professor of criminal justice and director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) / University of Cincinnati Center for Police Research and Policy."

Registration is now open for the 2021 IACP Officer Safety and Wellness Symposium Online Event and Expo, taking place March 17-19, 2021.

This year's event will feature more than 50 workshops that will focus on a variety of safety and wellness topics. Through our intuitive virtual platform, the symposium will also provide attendees with unique networking opportunities and wellness activities.

The schedule at a glance is now available and the full education schedule will be available soon. To learn more about the Symposium including information about group registration and to register, please visit the IACP website.

COMMUNITY

Wyoming Community Offers Lessons In Good Policing

Wyoming Public Radio (1/16, Hegyi) reports that Moses Lake, Wyoming "has one of the lowest fatal encounter rates in the country despite having rates of violent crime that are somewhat higher than the national average." Chief of Police Kevin Fuhr has "been a cop for about three decades and argues that a good police department begins with hiring the right people and then training the heck out of them." WPR says "his officers go through extensive, annual training in everything from de-escalation techniques to recognizing any implicit biases they have." Robin Engel, research director at the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said: "What you see are strong policies, strong training, and strong supervision and accountability mechanisms."

More States Expanding Eligibility For Vaccines

The New York Times (1/15, Tompkins, Walker, Lee, Ivory) reports that "at least 28 states and Washington, D.C., have begun vaccinating older people, a New York Times survey shows, in many cases marking a shift in earlier plans that had put medical workers and nursing home residents at the front of the line for Covid-19 inoculations." The Times adds that "at least 32 states have expanded their vaccination programs to include critical workers, such as police officers, teachers, grocery store employees and other people at risk of being exposed to the virus on the job. More than a dozen states have said they are expecting to expand their vaccination pools significantly before the end of the month."

France's Privacy Watchdog Bans Drones Used To Enforce COVID-19 Restrictions

The Washington Post (1/14, Noack) reports France's privacy watchdog, known as CNIL, "has banned the use of drone cameras to enforce coronavirus restrictions and for other law enforcement purposes, marking a victory for groups arguing that the pandemic has given rise to excessive surveillance." In a "strongly worded rebuke" released Thursday, the CNIL said "France's Interior Ministry had conducted drone flights 'outside of any legal framework.'" According to the Post, the "decision by CNIL -- which significantly ups the stakes for the French government, as it applies nationally -- comes amid a broader tug-of-war between privacy activists and authorities in Europe over how to police coronavirus restrictions."

US Warns Mexico Against Sharing Confidential Information On Drug Cartels

The Wall Street Journal (1/16, Subscription Publication) reports, "The U.S. warned Mexico it had imperiled the sharing of information on the country's drug cartels by releasing a confidential dossier providing evidence that Mexico's former defense minister was in the pay of drug kingpins, pushing bilateral antidrug cooperation to its lowest point in years."

LAPD Chief Seeks To Increase Confidence In COVID-19 Vaccine

NPR (1/14) reports that the coronavirus "is taking a heavy toll on the some 13,000 employees of the Los Angeles Police Department," according to LAPD Police Chief Michel Moore who notes five officers have died from COVID-19 complications, six officers are currently hospitalized, and over 2,000 LAPD personnel have received a positive coronovirus test. NPR highlights excerpts from Moore's All Things Considered interview, noting Moore "discusses the reasons behind... vaccine hesitancy and what the department plans to do." Moore told NPR "there is a segment that is worried about the safety of it, the efficiency of it and whether it's worth the risks. And we have a task before us here in Los Angeles and LA city and LAPD, is to provide education. And I think that as more education is provided, we'll see more of our people stepping into it. And I believe at the end, 8 out of 10 or more will take the vaccine."

POLICING & POLICY

DC, State Capitols Increase Security In Anticipation Of Violent Protests

The AP (1/16, Baldor) reports the National Guard troops arrived in DC "by the busload and planeload...as governors answered the urgent pleas of U.S. defense officials for more troops to help safeguard Washington even as they keep anxious eyes on possible violent protests in their own states." The AP says the preparations "reflect fears that violent extremist groups are targeting the city in the wake of the deadly insurrection at the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6. The threats range from armed insurgents to possible attempts to plant explosive devices at so-called soft targets. But as Washington begins to resemble an armed camp, with more than 25,000 Guard due in the city by early next week, concerns about violence at state capitals has grown."

Politico (1/16, Seligman) reports Indiana officials this week cited a FBI report from Dec. 29 that "warned...of potential violence from members of far-right militant groups in Minnesota at an event planned for Jan. 17 to protest the election results." However, Politico adds, "It's not clear if the FBI's information is still current, or whether any such rally will materialize."

A front-page Washington Post (1/16, A1, Witte, Craig, Whoriskey, Ruble) article similarly states that the "extraordinary show of security at statehouses that are normally lightly guarded reflected the anxious state of the country ahead of planned demonstrations," but "even as security forces conspicuously raised their profile in cities far from the nation's capital, the exact nature of the threat remained fluid." The Post adds officials "acknowledged they did not know what form the next burst of violent right-wing extremist, white-supremacist, anti-government grievance might take – or where it might strike."

Meanwhile, the Wall Street Journal (1/16, Ailworth, Subscription Publication) says that even as Washington, DC and states increase security ahead of the inauguration, "solo actors may pose a threat in coming weeks as extremist groups are advising followers to avoid large rallies but remain opposed to the incoming administration, according to people who track such groups."

House Committees To Investigate "High-Level" Intelligence, Security "Failures" Prior To Capitol Violence

Politico (1/16, Cheney) reports House Intelligence Chairman Adam Schiff, Judiciary Chairman Jerrold Nadler, Oversight Chairman Carolyn Maloney, and Homeland Security Chairman Bennie Thompson on Saturday announced "an investigation into 'high-level failures' of intelligence and security planning that left the Capitol vulnerable to insurrection on Jan. 6." They wrote, "This still-emerging story is one of astounding bravery by some U.S. Capitol Police and other officers; of staggering treachery by violent criminals; and of apparent and high-level failures – in particular, with respect to intelligence and security preparedness." They also pledged to "conduct robust oversight to understand what warning signs may have been missed, determine whether there were systemic failures, and consider how to best address countering domestic violent extremism, including remedying any gaps in legislation or policy."

Transit Officials Preparing For "Potentially Violent" Inaugural Crowd

Politico (1/16, Snyder, Beasley) reports, "Inaugurals are always crowded affairs with hefty security and complex logistics," but "the riot at the U.S. Capitol building last week has officials from airports, airlines, transit agencies, Amtrak and more preparing for a repeat, as potentially violent protesters crowd into the city for...Biden's Jan. 20 inauguration." Politico highlights that among the precautions being taken, "airlines are banning guns and suspending alcohol service," airports are "creating safe zones" for lawmakers, "and security agencies are calling in extra agents to help keep the peace as Washington, D.C. braces for an Inauguration Day like no other."

Virginia Attorney General Introducing Conviction Integrity Unit

The Washington Post (1/16, Jackman) reports Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring "announced Thursday that he is launching the state's first Conviction Integrity Unit, to identify and overturn wrongful convictions. Such units have been created in dozens of local prosecutors' offices across the country and have participated in hundreds of exonerations, but only a handful of state attorneys general have started them." The Post adds that Herring "said in a news release that his office will eventually have three full-time attorneys and one investigator dedicated to examining possible wrongful conviction cases."

Pennsylvania Police To Collect Traffic Stop Demographics

The Media (PA) Patch (1/15) reports that "in an effort to identify and address any disparities in traffic stop, Pennsylvania State Police are now collecting demographic data regarding stops." State Police Commissioner Colonel Robert Evanchick "announced the department launched a wide-ranging contact data collection program that will run throughout 2021." The Patch says "researchers at the University of Cincinnati will be given the data for analyzation in hopes of identifying potential patterns of racial/ethnic disparities in policing" and "should any disparities be found, the researched will recommend changes to state police policies or trainings." The Patch reports "the independent research team is led by Dr. Robin Engel, a professor of criminal justice and director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) / University of Cincinnati Center for Police Research and Policy."

Registration is now open for the 2021 IACP Officer Safety and Wellness Symposium Online Event and Expo, taking place March 17-19, 2021.

This year's event will feature more than 50 workshops that will focus on a variety of safety and wellness topics. Through our intuitive virtual platform, the symposium will also provide attendees with unique networking opportunities and wellness activities.

The schedule at a glance is now available and the full education schedule will be available soon. To learn more about the Symposium including information about group registration and to register, please visit the IACP website.

COMMUNITY

Wyoming Community Offers Lessons In Good Policing

Wyoming Public Radio (1/16, Hegyi) reports that Moses Lake, Wyoming "has one of the lowest fatal encounter rates in the country despite having rates of violent crime that are somewhat higher than the national average." Chief of Police Kevin Fuhr has "been a cop for about three decades and argues that a good police department begins with hiring the right people and then training the heck out of them." WPR says "his officers go through extensive, annual training in everything from de-escalation techniques to recognizing any implicit biases they have." Robin Engel, research director at the International Association of Chiefs of Police, said: "What you see are strong policies, strong training, and strong supervision and accountability mechanisms."

OFFICER SAFETY & WELLNESS

More States Expanding Eligibility For Vaccines

The New York Times (1/15, Tompkins, Walker, Lee, Ivory) reports that "at least 28 states and Washington, D.C., have begun vaccinating older people, a New York Times survey shows, in many cases marking a shift in earlier plans that had put medical workers and nursing home residents at the front of the line for Covid-19 inoculations." The Times adds that "at least 32 states have expanded their vaccination programs to include critical workers, such as police officers, teachers, grocery store employees and other people at risk of being exposed to the virus on the job. More than a dozen states have said they are expecting to expand their vaccination pools significantly before the end of the month."

TECHNOLOGY

France's Privacy Watchdog Bans Drones Used To Enforce COVID-19 Restrictions

The Washington Post (1/14, Noack) reports France's privacy watchdog, known as CNIL, "has banned the use of drone cameras to enforce coronavirus restrictions and for other law enforcement purposes, marking a victory for groups arguing that the pandemic has given rise to excessive surveillance." In a "strongly worded rebuke" released Thursday, the CNIL said "France's Interior Ministry had conducted drone flights 'outside of any legal framework.'" According to the Post, the "decision by CNIL -- which significantly ups the stakes for the French government, as it applies nationally -- comes amid a broader tug-of-war between privacy activists and authorities in Europe over how to police coronavirus restrictions."

US Warns Mexico Against Sharing Confidential Information On Drug Cartels

The Wall Street Journal (1/16, Subscription Publication) reports, "The U.S. warned Mexico it had imperiled the sharing of information on the country's drug cartels by releasing a confidential dossier providing evidence that Mexico's former defense minister was in the pay of drug kingpins, pushing bilateral antidrug cooperation to its lowest point in years."

LAPD Chief Seeks To Increase Confidence In COVID-19 Vaccine

NPR (1/14) reports that the coronavirus "is taking a heavy toll on the some 13,000 employees of the Los Angeles Police Department," according to LAPD Police Chief Michel Moore who notes five officers have died from COVID-19 complications, six officers are currently hospitalized, and over 2,000 LAPD personnel have received a positive coronovirus test. NPR highlights excerpts from Moore's All Things Considered interview, noting Moore "discusses the reasons behind... vaccine hesitancy and what the department plans to do." Moore told NPR "there is a segment that is worried about the safety of it, the efficiency of it and whether it's worth the risks. And we have a task before us here in Los Angeles and LA city and LAPD, is to provide education. And I think that as more education is provided, we'll see more of our people stepping into it. All,

I think I was able to talk to most of you but I had a couple of things for you if I missed you today:

1) SOS [redacted] started with us today and will be working on [redacted] for 60 days or so as part of a TDY. Please stop by and introduce yourself next time you are in the office.

2) I will be working from [redacted] tomorrow and [redacted] on Wednesday in support of [redacted] There is a chance we may need to extend my schedule to Thursday depending on what happens in the city and surrounding areas.

3) For those in the office tomorrow, please plan to depart the office no later than 4pm and plan for traffic disruptions related to road closures and possible protest activities (they will have an event over at Freedom Plaza during the afternoon). With regards to Wednesday, I highly encourage you to [redacted] if at all possible as there is the potential for significant unrest that day.

4) For those on the [redacted] teams, the ASAC briefings will happen during the 10am hour on Friday. I sent you the invites on red side... please let me know if you have any questions after you take a look.

Thanks gang... Happy first working day of 2021!

Ma'am- The SIR was published by Norfolk and released as (U//LES) to state/local LE partners on 1/5. According to the DI senior rep here at the CP, publication of SIRs does NOT require HQ approval/oversight. SIRs are a local product.

Folks,

As promised, I am attaching a rough draft write-up of the Director's meeting with the Gang of Four tonight. Hope it helps as you prepare for tomorrow's briefings.

DOJ has also asked that we prepare for questions re: our relationship with USCP before and currently.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Jill:

I am the ultimate bearer of bad news this week.

The Hill is springing things on us with no reasonable notice, as you can see from the below. [redacted] also committed to this earlier today without telling us. b7E -13

Given the [redacted] attendance and your other briefings tomorrow, I asked the DD to attend for us. He would like to have you or a CTD DAD back bench him.

There are a few pros to doing these tomorrow and Wed. It will dispense with all Hill requests by COB Wednesday and you guys can focus back on operations full time. It will also fulfill requests received during the D's Gang of 4 call tonight for all House and Senate briefings from the FBI.

Happy to discuss tonight or in the morning. I can't thank you enough for your leadership in ops and with the Hill.

Good evening, NSSE Leads – Thank you for providing the helpful briefing today.

As a follow up, Congressional Leaders and JCCIC are requesting an all-Member briefing for the Senate tomorrow (Tues, 3pm - 4pm ET) and House (Wed – TBD Speaker availability) at the Unclassified level. The request is for the following agencies to brief a five minute overview of your organization's role and preparations for the Inauguration. Q & A will follow.

Boss and Jodi, FYSA.

Boss, you have several conflicts around this time which we need to discuss this AM to determine who is attending what.

FYI. Just heard about this [redacted] No one told us about the invitation until tonight. The Inaugural Committee is looking to expand this morning's briefing to an all member briefing for both the Senate and House.

It sounds like the DD will participate but he may request AD Sanborn to back bench him.

Will follow up with more details as we get them.

I am the ultimate bearer of bad news this week.

The Hill is springing things on us with no reasonable notice, as you can see from the below. [redacted] also committed to this earlier today without telling us.

Given [redacted] attendance and your other briefings tomorrow, I asked the DD to attend for us. He would like to have you or a CTD DAD back bench him.

There are a few pros to doing these tomorrow and Wed. It will dispense with all Hill requests by COB Wednesday and you guys can focus back on operations full time. It will also fulfill requests received during the D's Gang of 4 call tonight for all House and Senate briefings from the FBI.

Happy to discuss tonight or in the morning. I can't thank you enough for your leadership in ops and with the Hill.

Additionally, I am including the [redacted] and OPA guidance should you receive questions on that topic. b7E -1

All, just for awareness, here is OPA's response on questions regarding the FBI bulletin the media has been reporting on:

"While our standard practice is to not comment on specific intelligence products, the FBI is supporting our state, local, and federal law enforcement partners with maintaining public safety in the communities we serve. Our efforts are focused on identifying, investigating, and disrupting individuals that are inciting violence and engaging in criminal activity. As we do in the normal course of business, we are gathering information to identify any potential threats and are sharing that information with our partners. The FBI respects the rights of individuals to peacefully exercise their First Amendment rights. Our focus is not on peaceful protesters, but on those threatening their safety and the safety of other citizens with violence and destruction of property."

We hope you find this information helpful and will let us know if you have any additional questions. Good luck today!!

Matt Zapotosky from the Washington Post here. We're doing a story on security for the inaugural and security in D.C. in the days beforehand. Over the summer, when there was unrest in D.C. during racial justice protests, then Attorney General William Barr had every federal agency mobilized to respond, including the FBI. Will the FBI similarly be mobilized for the inauguration, or sooner? When will that deployment begin, and how many people will be involved? What specifically will your people be doing?

Many thanks,

All,

As we move toward the end of another week – I wanted to take a few minutes to thank each one of you for all that you've done to respond to last week's attack on the U.S. Capitol. I don't need to tell you the gravity of the work that we are doing, but please know all of your hard work to hold accountable those who were responsible for the breach and subsequent violence and criminal activity inside the Capitol has not gone unnoticed – not by me, not by the executives and certainly not by the country. b7E -5

It's often been said that these cases are marathons, and not sprints... Yet we have also asked you to sprint though this marathon and each and every one of you are doing an amazing job. Each intelligence product, subject identification, and subsequent arrest represents another milestone in this race. But we aren't done. With the tips and leads still coming in, as well as the upcoming inaugural activities and State of the Union, we have much left to do and we need you. I need your continued energy, passion, and focus in the days and weeks to come.

The significance of this investigation will be a milestone in the history of the FBI and I couldn't be more proud to stand with you as we do this work together.

Thank you again, and keep up the good work.

All,

As we move toward the end of another week – I wanted to take a few minutes to thank each one of you for all that you've done to respond to last week's attack on the U.S. Capitol. I don't need to tell you the gravity of the work that we are doing, but please know all of your hard work to hold accountable those who were responsible for the breach and subsequent violence and criminal activity inside the Capitol has not gone unnoticed – not by me, not by the executives [redacted] and certainly not by the country.

b7E -5

It's often been said that these cases are marathons, and not sprints... Yet we have also asked you to sprint though this marathon and each and every one of you are doing an amazing job. Each intelligence product, subject identification, and subsequent arrest represents another milestone in this race. But we aren't done. With the tips and leads still coming in, as well as the upcoming inaugural activities and State of the Union, we have much left to do and we need you. I need your continued energy, passion, and focus in the days and weeks to come.

The significance of this investigation will be a milestone in the history of the FBI and I couldn't be more proud to stand with you as we do this work together.

Thank you again, and keep up the good work.

Jill

Subject: IMMEDIATE RESPONSE REQUIRED: COVID-19 Vaccine Vote
Importance: High

All,

You have been identified as someone who is currently actively engaged and present on the street or in the command posts, to includes PVCA-NC3 (command posts, inauguration-related events and response, and priority investigations in support of PVCA).

As such, you are eligible to receive a COVID-19 vaccination through a limited supply identified by HRD. Those who are interested in voluntarily receiving the vaccine and can commit to receiving it this Saturday (1/16) or this Sunday (1/17) at Walter Reed Medical Center (location subject to change) need to use the voting buttons to vote "yes" as soon as possible and no later than 2400 this evening.

Please note, by selecting Yes, you are affirming you are 1) voluntarily agreeing to take both doses of the vaccine, 2) working as part of the highlighted activities, 3) and available to receive the vaccine this Saturday or Sunday (January 16th or 17th)

Please note this is a fluidly evolving situation, and this won't be the only opportunity.

As mentioned yesterday, we are also currently aware that the Fairfax Inova Health System is offering vaccinations to front-line essential worker groups in Northern Virginia, and there may be other local sources across the metro area. Vaccine registration can be completed here.

Thank you,
CTD FO

Onks, Sherri E. (DO) (FBI)

Ma'am,

Updates in red and yellow!

- (U//~~LES~~) On January 6th, the FBI activated a digital medial tip line which is now open to the public. As of January 14th at 1400, the FBI has received over 137,000 Digital Media Tips (DMT).
  - (U//~~LES~~) As of January 13th at 2400, the FBI has also received over 13,500 (13,746) additional, non-digital tips.
- As of January 14th at 1700, we have identified [redacted] subjects in our investigation of the attack on the Capitol

Let us know if there's anything else you need,

While you're on email, the ADIC and USA are doing another media briefing at 1pm and they're having a prep call at noon. If you can't make it, I've let know they'd like to get someone from to participate in the prep.

Hey, Boss!

This is likely regarding the media call at 1, right?

The DD's Office pinged me a bit ago and said the TTX you're at is running an hour behind so you wouldn't be back until at least 1—based on that we reached out to Brown's Office and told them we didn't think you'd be able to make the 1PM and asked them if EAD Brown would want to cover it.

Do you want us to walk that back?

Background: On 6 January 2021, pipe bombs were discovered at the Republican National Committee (RNC) and Democratic National Committee (DNC) headquarters buildings. Review of U.S. Capitol Police video footage indicates both bombs appear to have been placed by POI1 the evening of 5 January: the DNC device at 7:48pm, and the RNC device at 8:14pm. POI1 was observed in the vicinity of the RNC and DNC wearing a gray hooded sweatshirt, face mask, Nike Speed Turf sneakers in black/grey/yellow colorway, and carrying an as-yet-unidentified backpack.

Hi FBI,

We are planning a story about the FBI's preparations for Jan. 6.

Our understanding is in the weeks leading up to Jan. 6, FBI domestic terrorism agents wanted to issue a bulletin to the JTTFs given the information they had gathered about the potential for violence at the Capitol. They asked leadership to issue one. Our understanding is Jill Sanborn didn't want to, and consulted with John Brown, who also agreed not to issue the bulletin. The agents had sources telling them that individuals were going to potentially commit acts of violence on Jan. 6. In the end, the FBI "looked at needles, not the haystack," an official tells me.

Does the FBI want to comment?
