identity of the Special Agents (SA) and the nature of the interview. [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] was shown a copy of a DMV photo of BRUCE IVINS and was asked if she had seen him walking around the Detrick Plaza Apartment complex. She did not recognize IVINS. She asked how old he was and then asked if he walks slowly and stooped over. She recalled seeing an individual on two separate occasions walking through the apartment complex parking lots. She saw the individual on April 22 around 3:00pm or 4:00pm walking in the front parking lot from the area of West 7th Street toward the northernmost apartment building. She described him as being in his 60's, walking stooped over, wearing blue jeans and a long sleeve shirt. She saw the same individual a few weeks ago walking through the rear parking lot toward the northernmost apartment building. On that occasion she saw him with a female carrying groceries. [redacted] recalled another occasion seeing the same individual walking East on West 7th Street.

[redacted] advised she would contact the SAs if she saw the individual. Later that day, [redacted] contacted the SAs via telephone and stated she saw an individual walking slowly. The individual was wearing light colored blue jeans, a darker blue long sleeve shirt and dark cheap-looking sneakers. Around 4:00pm or 4:15pm, the individual walked through the front parking lot toward the apartment complex entrance where he stood for a few minutes. The individual then walked back toward the northernmost apartment building. [redacted] was unable to see which unit the individual entered.

Whenever I watch soccer and see people go down, I always wonder if 1) they're really hurt; 2) they just got their bell rung for a moment and then they'll get up; 3) they're completely faking and just want an opponent to get a card. I watched the men's world cup and saw a guy get a red card for a play, and when the replay was shown on TV it was clear that the guy on the ground was never even TOUCHED by the other player, that he completely took a dive and was rolling around, moaning about something that never happened. I think I like the attitude in baseball, which is you never show pain, never grab where it hurts. (I've heard that some professional soccer teams or national teams actually practice "diving." That's disgraceful.

I've been thinking more and more about retirement. As for the other matter, it's just made life absolutely miserable. A couple of years ago they suggested that because I was having mental/emotional/psychiatric problems that I could have been knowingly involved. Very depressing. Did you ever notice how people talk about the "Funny Farm" and the "Loony Bin," but they don't talk about the "epilepsy farm" or the "arthritis bin?" My psychiatrist - I met with him today - described the whole thing as "Kafka-esque." That's so appropriate.

I don't think there's much anybody can do. I search emails and documents, trying to find things, trying to help, and look what

Dear [REDACTED]

Things are very stressed here all over with work issues, family issues and the investigation, which somehow seems to periodically (and nauseatingly) get pointed in my direction. Other than chemicals, there's nothing much to turn to. You asked recently if there were anything you could do, and actually there is - be a kind, wise heart with a listening ear, be someone who reads my emails and see how my life is going or not going. I told you I don't get much support here [REDACTED] The DOJ actually introduced in front of the jury an email from me [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] However, the FBI has pulled EVERYBODY'S email to and from everybody else and has gone over them with a fine-tooth comb. They've pulled out mine to question my sanity. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] I couldn't believe they'd ask that, then ask if I had had very intimate personal contact with certain people. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] They accused me of diluting, altering or adulterating an important preparation of anthrax material. The grand jury was also very accusatory. I'm fortunately taking a lot of medication for depression, but that's only helping some. I also have to use a lot of caffeine in the morning, and then alcohol and sleeping pills at night. Do you realize that if anybody gets indicted for even the most remote reason with respect to the anthrax letters - something as simple as not locking up spore preps to restrict them from only people in our lab - they face the death penalty? Playing any part, even a minor part such as providing information about how to make spores, or how to make them in broth, how to harvest and purify that could wind up putting one or more hapless persons on death row. Not pleasant to think about.

In one of your recent emails you said that it would all be over soon. If they indict someone, that means that innocent people are going to get dragged through the mud by both the defense and the prosecution as the pre-trial and trial procedures move forward.

The FBI knows about my psychiatric woes and my family situation.

Source Reporting:

CHS, who is in a position to testify, provided the following information pertaining to United States Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID) employee BRUCE IVINS:

IVINS has not been in the hot suite for some time; however, IVINS is very anxious to re-gain access to the hot suites at USAMRIID. IVINS has already approached the USAMRIID [redacted] pursuant to this desire. [redacted]

b6
b7C
b7D

[redacted], IVINS [redacted] wants to come back as a contractor and work part-time "in the hot suite." IVINS's consuming desire to re-enter the hot suite is perplexing [redacted]

[redacted]

[redacted] IVINS, possibly under the influence of Valium, was observed slumped in his chair in his office. IVINS was not moving or doing anything.

[redacted] IVINS's speech was slurred and his response was not coherent.

This behavior was brought to the attention of [redacted] who relayed that [redacted] had noticed IVINS's peculiar behavior as of recent. [redacted] received an email or note from IVINS's which was incoherent. Since these episodes, IVINS has relayed to his co-workers that he has recently changed his medication and feels better.

b6
b7C
b7D

[redacted] IVINS was very anxious to regain entry into the hot suite. [redacted]

IVINS is aware that the FBI was in the [redacted] suite and had taken items from the freezer in there. IVINS has done "a lot of whining" about the FBI being in the B5 suite. IVINS's continues to "stir the pot" [redacted]

It is the general opinion of IVINS's co-workers that based upon his long term depression, as well as, his previous sloppy/frantic work in the hot suite, he is a safety issue.

IVINS does not use written protocols, and when asked to show others how to make spores, IVINS flies through the process my memory, and when asked how to repeat a step or guidance IVINS will not say the same thing twice. IVINS does not want other people to learn his craft.

Prior to the most recent interview with the FBI, IVINS continually said how he could not wait to retire, yet when persons were assigned to him to learn his role with the understanding that IVINS would teach them how to do it [make spores], IVINS has out and out refused to teach them or has given them such incomplete or hurried steps/procedures/instructions that it makes it impossible for those persons to learn IVINS's trade.

After the recent events, IVINS was given the opportunity to take administrative leave, which was viewed by his coworkers, as the opportunity to fulfill his retirement desires. Instead of taking administrative leave, IVINS took sick leave which was initially believed to have been from the day after his most recent FBI interview to the start of the New Year. However, IVINS was back in the office within a couple of weeks. CHS opined IVINS has no intention of retiring, otherwise he would of trained those persons, and would have simply taken administrative leave.

Prior to IVINS's most recent FBI interview, IVINS was reluctantly assisting others in documenting a standard operating procedure (SOP) pertaining to the shaker-flask method of growing spores; [REDACTED]

b6
b7D

CHS re-iterated that the day after IVINS's interview with the FBI, IVINS [REDACTED] [REDACTED] indicating he was going to take leave until the first of the year; however, CHS recalled IVINS was in the office earlier that morning. [REDACTED] IVINS came into his office to see what was missing, he became upset, and he left to go back home. CHS opined it was very likely that IVINS saw the subpoena return on his desk; however, CHS had no idea as to why he left it there or even if he really saw it.

Since his last interview with the FBI, IVINS has on occasion spontaneously declared at work, "I could never intentionally kill or hurt someone." [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] [A copy of the this e-mail will be placed in the 1A along with the interview notes.]

IVINS "has always been very opinionated when it comes to politics and political issues." IVINS followed current political issues and was more toward the left [REDACTED] but over the course of time [REDACTED] believed that IVINS moved toward the center on his political stances. When [REDACTED] was asked if IVINS had any obsessions [REDACTED] replied that IVINS hated fraternities and sororities, and was against abortion and the death penalty. However, after [REDACTED] drown her children IVINS changed his stance on the death penalty. [REDACTED] didn't recall seeing the American Family Association (AFA) Journal in the office, but indicated that IVINS would frequently bring in papers and magazines into the office. [REDACTED] read [REDACTED] a quote from one of IVINS' e-mails regarding how the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) stances impede on the ability to fight terrorism the and asked [REDACTED] if IVINS ever talked about these issues with [REDACTED] which IVINS had not.

IVINS "does hold grudges" and if someone would hurt his feelings he would try to get even. An example of this was when [REDACTED] colored the lenses of a pair of safety glasses on IVINS' desk with a sharpie, he didn't talk to either of them for several weeks. IVINS hated the New York Yankees and thought people from New York were elitist and didn't like them much. [REDACTED] was asked if she remembered a sign that was hung on [REDACTED] door that said 'FBI Rat' and if [REDACTED] had any ideas who may have put it there, to which [REDACTED] responded that it was either IVINS or [REDACTED]

IVINS rarely talked about his family but when he did he talked about family vacations that he had taken when he was a kid. IVINS had talked about a vacation that they had which went through Trenton, New Jersey. [REDACTED] recalls IVINS describing one of his brothers as crazy with which he has no contact and the other as living somewhere in North Carolina.

_____ if someone were to prepare a sample for the FBIR the same individual would have also prepared the label for the tube, _____ _____ indicated that IVINS is a good researcher. _____ opined that any decent microbiologist would not make a mistake in preparing a sample for the FBIR that would not be representative of the sample.

IVINS asked _____ if his samples had morphological variants similar to the ones present in the evidentiary material. _____ never grew out RMR-1029 (Dugway spores) out to observe the morphological variants in order to compare these spores to the evidentiary material. FBIR samples were coded so _____ didn't know which samples were submitted by which researchers.

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Things slowed down and there wasn't a lot of work in the lab in the latter part of 2001, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] can think of no reason for IVINS to be working long nighttime hours in the August to October 2001 time-frame. There was not much work going on in IVINS' lab at the time and the only study being conducted was the guinea pig strain study, which may have required entry into the suites to check on the animals. However, checking the animals would have only taken approximately 30 minutes.

[REDACTED] indicated that in the 2001 time-frame it was common for IVINS and other anthrax researchers to refer to the Ames strain as such.

[redacted] After the meeting, [redacted] provided the following information:

According to IVINS, he had been away for detox/substance abuse treatment. He used to go to his room and drink vodka in combination with Lunesta, Ambien, or Unisom until he blacked out. Then, he drank more when he woke up and sometimes would call in sick to work.

Sometimes IVINS would wake up with car keys in his hand. One time he fell and bloodied his nose, and [redacted] [redacted] interpreted from IVINS that the drinking went along with his depression, circa the mid 1990s.

When IVINS was in this "state" he would send off emails to people. [redacted]

[redacted] Additionally, while IVINS was in his "state," [redacted]

[redacted] IVINS reported he had a blood alcohol level of 0.3 to 0.4. The hospital put him in touch with a substance abuse counselor. He then went to an outpatient service at Suburban Hospital and next, an inpatient treatment at Massi.

[redacted] relayed that it sounded like IVINS was going to AA, his psychologist, and seeing someone named [redacted] whom he connected with at FREDERICK HOSPITAL.

[REDACTED] of which he acted like he didn't remember very much. Additionally, he didn't remember telling the FBI that [REDACTED] did it [mailed the anthrax letters]. [REDACTED] noted that IVINS seemed to forget a lot of things.

[REDACTED] asked IVINS a question along the lines of: could "the other BRUCE" have mailed the letters? [REDACTED] didn't recall him saying "no," nor did he take offense to the question. It seemed to [REDACTED] as if he had thought of that before.

IVINS told [REDACTED] that his attorney told him that with his dealings with the FBI, sometimes IVINS plays a puppy that wants to appease, and sometimes he plays junior-detective. IVINS has spent over $100 thousand dollars from his retirement fund, on his attorney. The next time IVINS has to testify, he will have to have a proffer. According to IVINS, the JAG on post wont allow anyone to talk to his attorneys.

IVINS relayed that the way the FBI was treating him made him go over the edge, especially around November [2007]. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

In IVINS's last interview [with the FBI] he was told the materials in the letters had colony morphology variance. The way that [REDACTED] lab did it was to pick a single colony so they wouldn't have the morphology variance. One would have to swipe over a plate to get the morphology variance. IVINS claimed his microbiology background taught him to always pick a single colony.

IVINS talked about the submissions that [REDACTED] IVINS made to the [FBI anthrax] Repository. He claimed that the first submission was fine, however, someone threw it away; and the second submission is where the morphologies were seen.

IVINS spoke about the polygraph he took [for the investigation] and that he passed some questions but failed the one about taking stuff from work.

On June 27, 2008, [redacted] SSAN [redacted]
[redacted] telephone number [redacted]
[redacted] was interviewed by Postal Inspectors [redacted] and [redacted] at Fort Detrick, Maryland. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents, reminded of the existing non-disclosure agreement, and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] was informed that the focus of the investigation was on [redacted] BRUCE IVINS. [redacted] stated [redacted] cannot imagine that IVINS could be the anthrax mailer and described IVINS as a serious researcher who was goofy and sometimes annoying. IVINS had been more distracted in the last few years and blames the ongoing investigation for this behavior. [redacted] admitted IVINS was unusual, but qualified this by saying a lot of researchers are unusual and he is generous but annoying.

[redacted] has not collaborated with IVINS on projects [redacted] [redacted] has always been stable, remaining borderline amicable with an air of being a "stay out of my face kind of thing."

[redacted]

[redacted] did not see IVINS [redacted] until [redacted] came to work at the UNITED STATES ARMY RESEARCH INSTITUTE OF INFECTIOUS DISEASES (USAMRIID) in [redacted]

[redacted] was asked about an Apple computer IVINS lost sometime around 2002. [redacted] stated that the loss of a computer was a rare event. Additionally, IVINS does not use Apple computers.

[REDACTED] was shown a redacted email dated November 19, 2005, subject: New Thoughts and theories on the Anthrax Letter Attacks, from KingBadger7@aol.com (known to interviewers as IVINS) to IVINS' USAMRIID email account. The email laid out the USAMRIID work history of [REDACTED]. The email attempts to construct a scenario where [REDACTED] could have conducted the anthrax mailings. [REDACTED] found the email interesting and understood the content of the email, but stated it did not bring any new memories to mind. (The email is included in the attached 1A.)

[REDACTED] was shown charts representing USAMRIID keycard access records for [REDACTED] hot suite usage for the period surrounding the attacks. [REDACTED] that all of the scientists were busier after the anthrax mailings and terrorist attacks of 9/11 but cannot remember if IVINS was busier throughout 2001. [REDACTED] then added that IVINS might have been in the lab more prior to the anthrax attacks. Additionally, [REDACTED] stated [REDACTED] does not know how the spores could have been dried in the hot suites. (The charts are included in the attached 1A.)

[REDACTED] was asked about IVINS relationship with [REDACTED] specifically regarding an assertion from [REDACTED] that IVINS was essentially [REDACTED] technician. [REDACTED] stated that were not "buddy-buddy", but could not support that assertion. [REDACTED] does remember hearing of an incident where [REDACTED] lost [REDACTED] temper and got mad at IVINS, but could provide no other details.

[REDACTED] does not remember ever hearing IVINS mention New York or New York City.

[REDACTED] was asked for and provided several photocopied documents which were created (photocopied) in the 2000 and 2001 timeframe. (The original photocopies were given to SA [REDACTED] for inclusion into a laboratory submission, duplicates are included in the attached 1A.)

Synopsis: To set forth lead for [REDACTED] to locate and interview specified individuals and obtain requested information.

Details: By way of background, on the afternoon of 07/10/2008, Special Agents of the AMERITHRAX Task Force received information that Bruce Edwards Ivins, DOB: 04/22/1946, SSAN: 280-44-5449, of [REDACTED] Frederick, Maryland, had threatened to kill an unspecified number of his co-workers at the United States Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID), Ft. Detrick, Frederick, Maryland. Ivins made the threat during a group therapy session on the evening of 07/09/2008. During the session, Ivins discussed suicide. However, when asked if he had a plan, Ivins stated that he had a plan, a "bulletproof" vest, he was going to have [REDACTED] get him a Glock model semi-automatic handgun and he had a list of people he was going to kill. Ivins stated he was tired of the investigation and that killing certain co-workers would take care of it.

Due to the aforementioned comments, and believing Ivins to be a danger to himself and others, the therapist contacted the Frederick (MD) Police Department on 07/10/2008. Based on this information, an involuntary commitment order was

Details: On April 30, 2008, 15 pair of womens underwear were submitted to the laboratory for semen identification. [ref: 279A-WF-222936-1556] The underwear were collected from a trash cover conducted April 21, 2008, at the residence of Bruce Edwards Ivins. Surveillance identified Ivins discarding the items in the trash. [ref: 279A-WF-222936-1555]

Since their submission, the laboratory has identified semen on 14 of the 15 pair of underwear. DNA profiles were also extracted from the underwear and await a known DNA profile for comparison.

On July 2, 2008 a Grand Jury directive was issued for a DNA sample from BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS. Since IVINS is represented by

On July 12, 2008, a United States District Court, District of Columbia, search warrant was executed at Sheppard-Pratt Health Systems, Room TE-225, 6501 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Maryland, occupied by BRUCE EDWARDS IVINS, DOB 04/22/1946, SSN 280-44-5449. Prior to arriving, Reporting Agent made contact with Sheppard-Pratt security to coordinate the logistics of the search warrant. Reporting Agent arrived at the Sheppard-Pratt security office at approximately 10:30am. At approximately 10:55am, PI [redacted] faxed a copy of the search warrant and affidavit signed by U.S. District Judge, Richard W. Roberts, to the security office. Reporting Agent provided a copy of the signed search warrant to security staff.

At approximately 11:30am, security officers [redacted] and [redacted] escorted the Reporting Agent to the second floor of 6501 North Charles Street. IVINS was observed walking around in the common area of the unit with other patients. [redacted] and [redacted] approached IVINS and escorted him to his room on the same floor, TE-225. The Reporting Agent identified himself and provided IVINS with a copy of the signed search warrant. IVINS stated he could not talk to me without his attorney. At approximately 11:35am, Reporting Agent executed the search warrant with the assistance of the security officers. IVINS was informed that a search warrant was being executed on him, his room, and his personal effects maintained therein. IVINS immediately emptied his pockets onto the bed and began removing his clothing. IVINS was advised not to remove his undershirt and underwear. IVINS was provided his glasses, at which point he read the search warrant. When asked if he understood what we were looking for, IVINS stated "yes" and mentioned the "EP" paperwork and his therapist, [redacted]. I few seconds later, IVINS stated something to the effect of, "there is no list, I don't have a list here, at home or at work, my family does not have a list." IVINS' personal effects, room and adjoining bathroom were searched. IVINS' wallet contained a minimal number of items, including: credit cards, drivers license, business cards, a small amount of currency and a post-it note with telephone numbers. No items were seized pursuant to the search warrant. At the conclusion of the search, IVINS asked if I wanted to search under the bed, IVINS was advised the bed was bolted to the floor. IVINS then stated, "do you see these slots (pointing to the sides of the bed), these are for when they have to

After exiting the room, Reporting Agent observed IVINS manipulating a phone card in his right hand and walking towards the common area telephones. Hospital staff advised that IVINS was talking on the telephone earlier that morning and overheard him talking about psychiatric hospitals. They could not recall how many times he used the telephone that morning.

A copy of the search warrant is maintained in a 1A envelope.

Writer affirmed that what was provided in the Frederick City Police report was generally what he had heard as true. Writer suggested that since the report mentioned guns, that [] check to see what weapons were registered to Ivins, as well as, interview some co-workers to get a sense of their concern leading up to Ivins committal.

[] indicated that he had recently learned that Ivins was involved in a spill in the laboratory circa May 2008, in which he did not follow proper protocol and simply left his mess, and went home to shower. [] commented that he was amazed that Ivins was still working there after such an event (i.e. he should of been fired). [] indicated he would look into getting Ivins's security clearance pulled as well.

[] and [] indicated throughout there concern for the safety of Ivins's co-workers and their duty to provide them with that safety. By the conclusion of the meeting [] and [] were able to attain a [] statement to the Frederick Police Department, which writer read and no noteworthy information was gleaned than what was already known to writer, as well as list of firearms that were registered to Ivins. The meeting concluded as [] and [] felt more confident that with [] statement that they could show that the information pertaining to Ivins's homicidal threat towards his co-workers was indeed first hand information, as well as Ivins's ability to purchase new firearms.

Later in the day, after discussions between the AUSA [] and SSA [] writer re-contacted [] to provide additional law enforcement information. Writer affirmed that the FBI had seized Ivins's Glocks (both the 40 cal and 9mm) and a 22 caliber handgun pursuant to a search warrant executed circa 11/2007 and predicated upon more recent events had seized a bullet proof vest and a quantity of ammunition from his residence. Writer also advised that through follow-up interviews it had been determined that Ivins sought to attain another Glock from [] to carry out his homicidal intentions. Also, that [] had recently purchased a [] was told to the best of our knowledge those Glocks were still with [] in [] Writer advised [] that this information was law enforcement sensitive and that no one, to include Ivins, has been charged with any crime. IVINS: (I grew up in Cincinnati, Ohio, area, and there are LOTS of German and Irish Catholics there. At one time the KofC was considered the "Catholic Masons." Catholics couldn't use the YMCA, so they had "Friars' Clubs." The Black sorority model sounds neat. I remember that decades ago, Jewish students had to form their own fraternities and sororities, since they weren't permitted in other GLOs.)

IVINS: When my wife and I lived near Chapel Hill NC for a couple of years (while I was working at UNC), the area was actually considered "Mission Territory" because there were so few Catholics. Most of them were associated with the university. We went to the Newman Center for mass, and both played the guitar for one of the Sunday services. (I don't sing because I can't carry a tune in a bucket, but my wife has a lovely voice.) We had great priests, wonderful extracurricular activities, a fantastic community overall. Chapel Hill has rightly - in my belief - been called the "Southern Part of Heaven." People in the area were intelligent, friendly, not bigoted> From an admittedly male chauvinist pig outlook (Sorry!!!! Please forgive me!!!) the coeds were beautiful. I knew [redacted] personally and she had a great personality, fine sense of humor, and an IQ of about 10,000. Also Kappa, of course, and also very good-looking. The only thing I didn't like about the area was the summer heat and humidity.

b6
b7D

IVINS: I know that certain people fit in with certain other people. Diversity can be good, but some diversity (poor hygiene, swearing like a sailor, bigotry, backstabbing other people, etc.) can be something that would make a lot of people cautious about associating with them very much. I don't think that because one is Jewish, or of Asian ancestry, not very athletic, that they should be automatically denied admission into a quality GLOs. I do realize that certain GLOs are almost exclusively Jewish, or Black. I also know that there are some GLOs (Sigma Sigma Sigma comes to mind) that are made fun of because they have a lot of heavy members. At the University of Cincinnati, Sigma Nu was supposedly the "Nerd" fraternity, but I thought the guys in it were great. If I hadn't lived off campus in an apartment with 3 other guys, I would have suicide pledged Sigma Nu.

IVINS: (A blindfold is NOT, NOT, NOT hazing! I've heard of Bachelorette parties where the participants "Pin the Macho on the Man." Is that hazing? No way. Silliness can be bonding. Working together for a common cause is bonding. I hope you didn't have to change your whole ritual so that blindfolds were totally forbidden during the formal ritual. I would think that when a pledge has her big sister (or whoever) take off her blindfold, it can be a breathtaking, beautiful experience. Besides, I didn't think that the burned pledges were blindfolded during the cigarette burning anyway. What about trust walks? What about pinatas on Cinco de Mayo? Can't some common sense be used? You know when you're being whisked away early in the morning that you're going somewhere, you and the other pledges are feeling a bonding in the silliness, and you'll be rewarded with breakfast. Any time somebody wants to wake me up at 5:30 and take me to IHOP, I'm ready.)

IVINS: I dunno, by the time I was in school, hazing just wasn't done. I think probably because public schools didn't paddle anymore and physical punishment was frowned on - which means kids don't grow up with the mixed message that adults can paddle but kid's can't...I imagine it was different when you grew up though - did you ever witness it (or receive? You were probably a good kid :-)) I only got paddled once when I attended Catholic elementary school - I don't think it much worked (and the result is I'm now protestant - haha.)

Wow...here I am, a non-Greek, being "pro-Greek" and agreeing with you about hazing!!!! I bet that members who witnessed both the "old" and the "new" ritual think that the old one was much better. It would have been a binding, beautiful experience, one in which, both symbolically and in reality. pledges/new members come into the Light and the Knowledge. The new one you talked about seems almost like a bunch of people who like each other living in the same building. Your ritual should be a special, bonding experience, and simply walking into a room with your eyes open, closed, or blinking, just doesn't seem to hold the same mystery or power. BTW I think this is privileged, but didn't they call Big sisters and Little sisters Didaska and Mathe. (Sorry about my non-Greek abilities!)

I saw a youtube "trust" project where they blindfolded a young woman at a Christian camp and had her stand on a board. They pretended to raise the board, then dumped her off it. She lay on the floor crying. It was very sad, and I know that if it had been a college sorority, it would have made the national news. So much for fairness in media. I actually wrote about it in Greek Chat.com under the name Goldenphoenix.

Did you ever go to a cursillo/de colores weekend? (I can't remember if you said that before). I attended a youth version of one and the trust walk/blindfold was really integral to the experience. But, no one accuses churches of hazing. I think people form a stereotype of what they expect then look for the evidence to support the theory. My only experience with a trust walk was being an obstacle in one! It was at the Newman Center at the University of Cincinnati. I had just had an operation to repair my ankle, and was on crutches, so I sat on the floor, and people got guided around me, over my crutches. It was neat to watch how important both trust and responsibility are. That's why I think that it's a good thing in GLOs and other organizations. I agree that if it's hazing for a non-GLOS, then it should be hazing for a GLOS. Maybe, hopefully, Kappa and other GLOs can chart a course that reasonable people would not consider to be unacceptable. The key word is "reasonable." If you can do it in church camp, at a bachelorette party, etc., then a GLOS should be able to do it.

If you want me to get you the youtube video, I can probably look it up, but it should be findable if you go to my Goldenphoenix posts.

(My congratulations to all of you. If Kappa has something going on this summer (like donating books), I'd love to hear about it, provided it's in the area.

IVINS: (I know! I've been at Ft. Detrick since 1980. I've seen a lot of things. But did you ever stop to think of all the things that Laura Ingalls Wilder (Little House on the Prairie) saw? Kerosene lamps, electricity, radios, automobiles, airplanes, television, phonographs, jet planes. What a life!!!!!!)

I love the proverb "May you live in interesting times" I think it is meant to be a bit of a curse, but I find it exciting. Having come of age just on the beginning of the internet era I am curious to see where it all goes - I imagine it will be as transformative as the industrial age was to agrarian society.

Are you principally in software, hardware, program-building, or what?

IVINS: Dick Cheney scares me. The Patriot Act is so unconstitutional it's not even funny is dreadful. What happened to rights, freedoms and liberties? I'm voting for Obama!
Hope your week is going well!!!
- Bruce

Double Standard

Please check out this "Trust Fall" video - the first young woman, especially. She's terrified and winds up weeping afterward. Had this been a GLOS, the "hazing story" would have been splashed all over front pages of newspapers across the country. But since it's just a religious youth group, nothing happens. Talk about a double standard with respect to hazing and GLOs....

Details: On 07/14/2008, a trash cover was conducted at the residence of Bruce Edwards Ivins, [REDACTED] Frederick, Maryland. Among the items recovered from the trash cover were several small pieces of paper containing what appeared to be screen names of e-mail addresses. The partial screen name "BRUCEIVI" was found on one such piece of paper. Also recovered was a piece of paper containing the e-mail account "Stanfordhawker@yahoo.com". Also contained on that piece of paper was the phrase "killkathrynprice," the password for the above mentioned e-mail account. [REDACTED]

During the course of the investigation, members of the AMERITHRAX Task Force have learned that Ivins has a history of using multiple screen names and e-mail accounts when interacting with individuals. Ivins also has a history of using fictitious names, addresses and other information to register for e-mail accounts. Ivins, in the past, has been known to use Yahoo!, America Online (AOL) and other e-mail accounts.

Based on the above mentioned information, a web search was conducted for the term "BRUCEIVI" on 07/15/2008. The search returned a link to a youtube.com posting of a video clip of season 1 of "The Mole." Also posted on the link are multiple web log comments by an individual using the screen name "bruceivi." The comments were posted as follows:

bruceivi (1 week ago)
[REDACTED] had a great chance to Kill [REDACTED] that would go down as the primo moment in reality TV. After the fake fainting he'd say, [REDACTED] do you know what a mole is? It's a blind useless, animal that humans hate. And do you know what we do to moles? We kill them!"

bruceivi (1 week ago)
With that he should have taken the hatchet and brought it down hard and sharply across her neck, severing her carotid artery and jugular vein. Then when she hits the ground, he completes the task on the other side of the neck, severing her trachea as well. The "Blind" mole is dead and Steve is a hero among heroes! I personally would have paid big money to have done it myself.

Maybe something really dreadful will happen to [REDACTED] If so, she will richly deserve it! The least someone could do would be to take a sharp ballpoint pin or letter opener and put her eyes out, to complete the task of making her a true mole!

bruceivi (1 week ago)
Put the next 3 comments from bruceivi together.

bruceivi (1 week ago)
Sorry if my comments offended people. This occurred several years ago. It was meant as a macabre twist to a pretty lame reality show.
