Dear [redacted]

I have already apologized to your mother for the delay in responding to your request for assistance in writing a term paper on D.B. Cooper, but let me also apologize to you for not replying sooner. There were many reasons, some of which are valid; others not so excusable. I hope that this belated letter will mollify not having had a quicker return to your well-written letter.

Thank you for choosing such an interesting and still unsolved case to research. D.B. Cooper is still an open case and unless it is solved, will remain so until well into the twenty-first century when the subject of the case would have passed away naturally. We still do some investigation regarding it; however, almost every logical angle has been addressed without success. Around the anniversary date, numerous leads are received from throughout the world. This results from an increase in publicity given by the media. We attempt to follow all logical leads, most of which have been previously considered or are fabricated.

Inasmuch as the case is still open and pending, it is against our policy to discuss any details with non-law enforcement personnel beyond what we have already revealed to the press. I have included a brief synopsis of the events that lead up to the last sighting of the individual known as D.B. Cooper. This is probably a fictitious name only used for ticket and manifest purposes by the hijacker. I have also included four different photographs of the artist conceptions as created by interviews of other passengers and the flight crew. As you can see, there was quite a variance in how he was described.

Dear Sir:

This letter is with regards to the episode of a Dan Cooper who hijacked an airplane and extorted $200,000.00 in 1971. In 1971 I had a [redacted] working for me by the name of [redacted] In July of 1971 he turned in his equipment and quit his job. At the time he quit he stated and I quote... [redacted] b6 b7C

Whenever I read that the hijacking took place I immediately thought of [redacted] He was in his late twenties, athletic, and not quite as thin as the composits make him to be. In any event [redacted] was an ex-serviceman and I beleive had Parachute experience. He was very intelligent and crafty enough to have pulled off a job like that. He was crafty enough to have used his own name...knowing full well that the authorities would never think that a criminal would use his own name. b6 b7C

He's the type that would fly over the area several times and knowing full well the terrain. I don't know if he is your man...but he is worth investigating.

When he worked for me he lived in Metropolis, Illinois. He not longer resides there. The only thing I remember about him was that [redacted] in Metropolis. I always kept pictures of all my [redacted] but two years ago I cleaned out my files and his files were thrown in the trash. One thing for sure...if [redacted] left home in August or September of 1971 and [redacted] never heard from him again....he surely would be in the bottom of the lake with all the money. b6 b7C

All these years...every time I would see the T V program relating to Dan (D.B.) Cooper I would intend to write you about [redacted]..but never did until now. He may be your man and yet he may not be. It is worth your looking into. b6 b7C

Dear

This is an attempt to convey the news of a very sad experience of the last [redacted] months. On the [redacted] disappeared and has not been heard from since that night. We believe he was under tremendous emotional pressure and that perhaps it could be likened unto a "nervous break-down" (?) b6 b7C

I will try to be concise, and yet try to help you see that [redacted] was not himself before his disappearance. The end of April [redacted] left home (at [redacted] i.e., [redacted]); he lived in the [redacted] This lasted about a week. The police [redacted] and, because [redacted] At the end of the [redacted] In so many words, [redacted] Although [redacted] has been a typical, [redacted] I think you would agree with me that this was not a [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] not far from our place. After the [redacted] and got out of the car. He never returned to the car. At 1:30 in the morning [redacted] called me and told me they [redacted] I had to go and pick them up. I reported it to the police and [redacted] is on a nation-wide missing person's list, but the police give me little hope of finding him. (100,000 men every year "disappea: I don't feel it was premediated as he had on old clothes, no coat, little money, and he took literally nothing with him; he had [redacted] couldn't believe it) b6 b7C

I said [redacted] was under tremendous pressure; he was not in fellowship with the Lord at the time; he and I were divided because I could not agree with his decision regarding [redacted]--I felt it was wrong. I'm sure his decision to [redacted] caused him guilt; there was a court trial coming up on July 1st for [redacted] benefit ---at this time we could have been fined $200.00. In May [redacted] ---which I'm sure most of you will agree is not in line with your concept of [redacted] He became a completely different person. With his background and his experience with the Lord (previous), I believe it became simply too much for him to cope with ---and he just disappeared. b6 b7C

At the present time I am attending the University of Washington full time, working two nights/week 3-11:30 at Northwest Hospital and trying to keep the home together. I am working on my [redacted] (4 quarters left); starting this quarter I have a [redacted] which pays my tuition and $200./month plus $43./per child. Since the Lord made provis in this way, I believe this is what He would have me do rather than just going to work full-time. b6 b7C

In closing, I would like to say we will be most grateful for your prayers. Only God knows where [redacted] is, and only God can speak to his heart. I will be most grateful for your prayers for [redacted] neither is open to the things of the Lord ---but [redacted] is quite antagonistic. Everything is very difficult to understand. However, I still believe that God has a purpose for everything which comes into our lives, therefore, I will also appreciate your prayers for me as well. b6 b7C

Dear [redacted]

We are in receipt of correspondence from Congressman Butler Derrick concerning your [redacted] who has been a missing person since [redacted].

b6
b7C

The Social Security Administration will not release information to law enforcement, however, there is a possibility that through the following procedure, information may be released directly to the family.

Write a letter to your [redacted] and put it in a sealed envelope with his full name and social security number. Also, write a letter to the Social Security Administration and seal in a separate envelope. Give your [redacted] complete name, date of birth and social security number. Advise them who you are and that you wish to contact your [redacted] and the reason you wish to contact him. Put both envelopes together in another envelope and give to the Social Security Administration. They will then make the determination if the letter will be forwarded on to your [redacted]

b7C

In the meantime, while you are working through the Social Security Administration, it would be a great deal of help if you could advise us if your [redacted] was ever fingerprinted (for any reason), and if he served in any branch of the armed forces. Dear [redacted]

b6

We received your letter of October 21, 1977 requesting the evidence that we used to make our determination of the fact of death for [redacted]

Our decision was made on the basis of a Sheriff's Report. We also received a report from the Investigative Division at our Central Office. This report stated that the following agencies had been contacted: Federal Bureau of Investigation; Passport Office; Department of State; Bureaus of Records and Statistics, Department of Health, New York City and all boroughs; Bureau of Vital Records, Albany, New York, and the Registrar of Vital Statistics, Sacramento, California.

We did not receive evidence from these agencies. We received a report from our Investigative Service saying that these agencies had been contacted and the results proved to be negative. The law permits us to make a decision for Veterans Administration benefits only. The decision we made is not binding on any other agency.

We hope that this answers your question.

Sincerely yours,

[redacted]

Dear [redacted] b6 b7C

I mailed some information to you yesterday; I have kept so much paper work that probably I can reconstruct the 17 years [redacted] and I were married. Fortunately, or unfortunately, I really do not remember very much accurately.

I wanted to ask you to please not discuss with the [redacted] anything which I write you regarding my feelings. I do not want them to be hurt anymore. I have maintained a relationship with them all through these years [redacted] have never communicated with me; in fact, I would appreciate if you could obtain [redacted] addresses' for me) They [redacted] were involved with most of the information which I mailed to you. b6 b7C

I told you yesterday I was very angry when I received your letter dated January 24, 1973. In it you wrote: [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] Do you still believe what you wrote? What did you base [redacted] on? What do you know about [redacted] which would make you write that? I believe everything can be in the [redacted].....because God allows us to screw up everyday! But I think that precludes the statement that everything will work out as God so desires; I cannot believe the last 25 years have been as God so desires. Maybe in your life, but not in mine! ☺

By the way, I'm no longer angry at you! I should have been courteous enough to answer your letter, but I probably would have written something for which I would have had to apologize! ☺

I'm also curious.....do you expect to find the same [redacted] you played football with???? That might sound "trite", I do not mean it to be. (Have you heard of the book: "Men are from Mars, and Women are from Venus"? Well, that's why I ask these strange questions!) I have had 25 years to analyze these experiences, so, I guess I wonder if you ever picture [redacted] as some one who abandoned his family? While it is true, we do not know what happened, and that is what you want to find out, these questions come to my mind. Especially, after visiting [redacted] in 1993; I didn't feel they comprehended what [redacted] and I had gone through.....but were just more interested in what happened to their friend [redacted] b6 b7C

I am going to close for this time.....you will no doubt receive many more "strange" letters from me along with stuff I gather from the different file cabinets and boxes! Hang in there!!!!!

with Christian love,
and much gratitude for your prayer support,

Dear Congressman Derrick:

Reference is made to your correspondence dated July 28, 1976, concerning the above subject.

Upon contacting the Social Security Department in an attempt to trace [redacted] through this means, we received the following quote; b6 b7C

> A strong humanitarian purpose is not deemed to exist" (C7376 (a).

Needless to say, this law seriously hinders law enforcement in its' attempt to locate missing persons through Social Security.

Social Security will, however, release information directly to the family, therefore, we have written [redacted] advising him of the steps to take in requesting information from Social Security as a relative of the missing subject. b6 b7C

Federal Bureau of Investigation

Subject: D.B. Cooper Skyjacking Case - Most Probable Location of Cooper's Remains.

Honorable Director Freeh:

This no doubt sounds somewhat unusual, but partner and I collected and comprehensively analyzed all of the available information on the Cooper case as a hobby and professional challenge. In doing so, using our over 70 years of combined law enforcement and investigative experience, we concluded with at least ninety-percent certainty that D.B. Cooper's remains were scattered by wildlife on one of the islands shown on the enclosed maps, after he free-fell to his death.

b6
b7D

Our investigation included interviews with the case agent; and and expert parachutist. They both agreed that Cooper's chances of a survival landing were next to impossible under the conditions that existed, and estimated Cooper's free-fall drift to be about one mile to the northeast of where he jumped. From this information and other data, we believe he most likely landed on Government Island.

b6

We further concluded that all of the money went into the Columbia River and decomposed, except for the partially decomposed $5,800 found on a bank of the Columbia in February 1980.

readily admitted in and that that find was proof that they had searched the wrong areas near the Lewis River in 1971 and 1972. Although the Fort Lewis Army troops did find two other unrelated bodies during those searches.

b6
b7C

My partner lives in the Washington, area, which prompted our review and analysis of this case. He had planned to search Governement Island, as he had done on other islands, but discontinued his efforts for several valid reasons. One being the marijuana growers who protect their illegal crops with booby-traps, as explained in the enclosed newsclipping, in addition to maps of the target search areas.

b6
b7C
b7D

In that he decided his searching could be too hazardous, we decided to apprise the Bureau of our comprehensive conclusions for whatever value they might be to solve this case.

We also believe that a law enforcement search may reveal other crimes, evidence, or bodies like found in 1971 and 1972 in the Lewis River areas, in addition to the well-publicized marijuana crops and booby traps. And with the Oklahoma City bombing revealing the explosives threat in our nation, the booby-traps might be of more than casual interest.

My partner wishes to remain anonymous at this time to protect his privacy and serene life-style at age [redacted] Also, during his [redacted] b6 b7C b7D

But if his identity were to be protected with certainty, I'm sure he would agree to an interview to corroborate what I have presented, and possibly more.

As a point of interest, [redacted] and I came to our own independent opinions that Cooper's dark, or black, attire indicated that it was a service uniform, such as worn by bartenders, limousine drivers, et al. In addition, from all of the data, and the entire event, my own assessment of Cooper is that he was a loner casino worker from Las Vegas, a compulsive gambler, and hopelessly in debt to loan sharks who had given him a time-period ultimatum to pay up or else. Of course, we will never know unless his remains are found and identified. b6 b7C

If any of this is of interest, please do not hesitate to have one or more of your agents contact me at any time for all of the pertinent details. I have volumes of documentation, but the critical data can be fully explained in less than two hours.

I have also enclosed copies of some of my identification cards as evidence of my past activities, positions and status.

Wishing you and the Bureau the best of success in your investigation and prosecution of those responsible for the tragic Oklahoma City bombing.

Most sincerely

Marijuana 'gardens' raided

8-16-94

Narcotics experts hack through blackberry bushes on the Columbia River's Government Island to find and uproot 80 plants

By NANCY McCARTHY
of The Oregonian staff

By air and by sea they approached Government Island on Monday, men in green sheriff's uniforms, men in camouflage, men in the dark blue jump suits of the bomb squad.

As the National Guard helicopter hovered over the island in the Columbia River, narcotics and bomb experts approached in two boats.

In fields where cattle once grazed, authorities seized 80 marijuana plants, some chicken wire and a package of fertilizer.

National Guardsmen spotted three marijuana "gardens" as they flew over the 6-mile-long island near the Glenn Jackson Bridge and directed those who arrived by boat to the growing areas. Men armed with machetes climbed up steep, rocky hillsides and hacked their way through 12-foot-high walls of blackberry bushes surrounding the plants.

"Once we get under those trees, we don't know what we'll find," said Sgt. Brian Martinek, a member of the Multnomah County sheriff's special investigations unit.

Three weeks ago, a caretaker alerted them to the plants. The caretaker's tractor had hit an explosive and flown into the air, and sheriff's deputies feared the marijuana patches were booby-trapped. But they found no explosives Monday.

Usually Martinek and his team of sheriff's deputies work indoors, ferreting out grow operations in basements, closets and barns. But at least once a year, they jump in the sheriff's River Patrol boat and head for Government Island to look for dope.

They're rarely disappointed.

Most of the island, except for the eastern tip, is owned by the Port of Portland. It is public land, but its location — accessible only by boat — is isolated from public view. That makes it ripe for growers looking for a good place to hide their potentially profitable produce.

"We call this a 'rip-and-run' operation," Martinek explained as raiders uprooted plants. "If it's a significant grow, we would do a surveillance on the place."

An earlier cursory examination by helicopter showed that growers had tunneled through the blackberry bushes, cleared a few of them and planted marijuana in their place. This wasn't a rich marijuana field tended regularly.

The plants seized Monday by Martinek's team and authorities from the Port of Portland, the city of Portland and Oregon State Police — about 15 persons in all — were about six weeks from harvesting. None yet had the sticky buds — the flowers that generate the marijuana "high."

But the healthy, strong plants, which stood 3 feet to 16 feet high, were well on their way to maturity. Between 1 and 1.5 pounds of marijuana for every 3 to 4 feet of plant eventually could have been produced, Martinek estimated.

On the street, buds are selling for "Those taller ones would have had a heck of a bud on them," Martinek said. "They were planted in growing cups, like they do in an indoor operation, to give them a good start.

Chicken wire was wrapped around some of the plants. Discarded nearby were 12 plastic containers, probably used for watering, and a small bag of fertilizer.

No one knew who cultivated the crops, but they figured the gardeners, who watered the plants by hand and fertilized via plastic bags, were unsophisticated.

"The pros set up a watering pool and a drip system that waters the plants automatically. Then they get the heck out of there and don't come back very often," said Sgt. Timothy McLain of the Oregon State Police. McClain is a member of the Portland Airport Interagency Narcotics Team.

After four hours of hiking the beaches, climbing the rocks and hacking blackberry bushes, the authorities jumped back in their boats and headed for still another grow operation. In a field of blackberry bushes near Northeast 182nd Avenue and Sandy Boulevard, they found 80 more plants.

They counted the day a success.

"If we got only three plants, it would be worthwhile," said George R. Schneider, a River Patrol officer for the sheriff's office. "If we didn't do this, we would have plants all over, and I would prefer not to see

[redacted] worked in a restaurant in Florence and at the age of [redacted] recalled [redacted] having coffee at the restaurant where she was employed. There was always talk around the restaurant regarding [redacted] and his knowledge of Cooper. He always paid for his coffee, 10 cents a cup at the time, with a $20.00 bill and described in detail how Cooper could have gotten away. During the time of the hijacking there was allegedly an airline strike and the airline utilized independent workers to unload the aircraft which made it easier for Cooper to escape. [redacted] indicated how the hijacker stood on the bridge and threw money over the bridge with pre-recorded serial numbers, and then walked away with the rest of the money. [redacted] claimed to have been a expert in parachuting during World War 11 and may have retired from the military. [redacted] would have been in his [redacted] when she lived in the Florence area and was telling these tales, and people had told her of the large amount of money in $20.00 bills he had in a trunk at his house. b6 b7C

On 11/1/1995, Chriss Mathieson, Chief of Police, Florence, telephonically advised that he is unfamiliar with [redacted] however, one of the deputies indicated that [redacted] is a known "local resident" who has spun many tales regarding his involvement with investigative agencies to include the FBI, CIA, and other federal and states agencies. He feels there is no credence in information [redacted] would be providing regarding Cooper. b6 b7C

[redacted] is a white male, residence [redacted] Florence, [redacted]. He was issued Oregon driver's license [redacted] listing his date of birth as [redacted] sex male, height 5'10", weight 150 pounds. b6 b7C

No further investigation is being conducted by the Portland Division.

LINN COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE
Albany, Oregon

This is Detective [redacted] [redacted]. The date is January fifth, nineteen ninety-six. The time is twelve fifty-five p-m. We're currently at the Linn County Courthouse in the polygraph room. Present in the room with me is [redacted] birthdate is [redacted] and his [redacted], her birthdate is [redacted] They both reside at [redacted] [redacted] Albany. Home phone number is [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] You both are aware that we're tape recording this? b6 b7C

Yes.

Uh-huh.

And do you have any objection to that?

No.

Okay. Uh, now bear in mind that we are tape recording, so uh, try to keep your hand gestures down to a minimum and explain you know?

Oh yeah.

Right. What are we here to talk about today?

Okay. We're here to talk about D-B Cooper. A friend of mine back in nineteen sixty-one. I lived in Yreka, California, well, sixty, it was sixty actually when I lived there, in nineteen sixty I met this guy. Had just gotten out of the service he said and I thought he said he was from Los Angeles, now I'm not sure about that, he was from Los Angeles, we had parties together and stuff, he was always there at the parties, never drank, much, occasionally, uh, he was older than we were, I was [redacted] at the time, and we figured, I figured at the time he was five, six, seven years older than I was and what we find out now he could have even been older, but like I say he was at different parties with us and he never joined in with us on anything, you know he stood back and watched us, laughed, joked, you know he was that kind, but he was not a rough and tough guy. He was not a fighter or you know, bragged about fighting like we did, see we was pretty into that stuff, that's what made him so different see, he was, you know, more grown up than we were, you know, but he still hung around with us and he lived there at uh, at Yreka in the [redacted] [redacted] and one day I went to get my check and I was walking by and he went with me, I think we went to the post office to get our checks and uh, we got to talking and uh, he cashed his check and b6 b7C b6 b7C

he wanted to uh, he was telling me that uh, well he ca, everytime he got his check every week, the one thing that you know, he made sure he got was a crab louie, he had to have this crab louie, that was his reward you know, every week, and then he told me he had so much money for rent, so much money for this and you know, then he was just about broke then, you know, but he had everything laid out pretty much there, but he, so we went in one of the restaurants and now I can't remember which restaurant, whether it was in the hotel or the little restaurant down the street, and sat and I think I just had coffee and he had his crab louie whichever restaurant was it and that's when I asked him, you know, uh, where you from and I remember it was a big town and I thought Los Angeles and uh, you know, I asked him where his relatives, you know, who, you know, his dad, mother, he said that uh, he was [redacted] and that the people that [redacted] him were older people, they were quite a bit older, they were way up there and they never seen eye to eye on anything and they wanted him to be something else and he didn't want to be this, whatever they wanted him to be, so he just left them, he said he didn't care about them, you know, he had nothing in common with them, cause they were older people and he didn't really care about even finding his mother and dad, he had no idea who they were, and that's all I can remember right there, then

b7C

He was drawing unemployment

b6
b7C

Yeah, he, well that's what he told me, he was drawing unemployment out, what I gathered from the service, I was drawing because I worked, you know in the saw mills and then in the winter, and this was kind of in the winter time, towards it, I think, because I remember at the time he was different dress than we were, we were in the black leather jackets and levis like and uh he wore turtleneck sweaters a lot, and I always got the impression that he was in the air force for some reason because of the turtleneck sweaters, I don't know why, whether they're, cause I was never in the service, so I didn't, you know, know that much about the service and we never talked much about the service

And he said he was a paratrooper.

Yeah, well, that's what he said, in the service he was a paratrooper and that's what he did and I don't know how long he'd been out of the service, drawing, I always thought drawing the unemployment he much have just got out in the, in the, in with that year or something, I don't know, uh, cause I'm not really sure if that's where he, you know that's what he told me, that's all I know is what he told me, and then we went on and uh, me and my wife went back together in the meantime, in uh,

DB Cooper-21159

This was the previous wife. b6 b7C

Yeah, a previous wife, we went back together in Dec, around December and moved back to Oregon and uh, let's see, we partied with him then and stuff and then, you know, I knew him good enough to talk to him, I liked him, he was the kind of guy that he just grew on you real, you know, he was just a good guy, as far as you know, and considerate, he was always considerate to the women and everything, but you never seen him with that many women, he went with a couple of them, but uh, uh, he was no, you know, the other type like the rest of us were,

Or a loner.

He was a little more of a loner, but reserved, but yet, would stay in the middle of us, you know, and laugh and set back and watch us a lot, and then so we come back in the first part of December, I come back up and that's the last time I seen him, well I've got pictures and stuff of him now, with the dates on them, in sixty-one the girl that went with him and everything, or was with him, you know, and the boyfriend, her boyfriend and then we didn't see him again until nineteen seventy-one, it was in July of nineteen seventy-one, he called from Canada, right on the border of Canada, I believe Langley and I'll tell you why I believe Langley, but uh he called and wanted to know if uh, me and my wife wanted to go to Reno with him and his girlfriend, he wasn't married, we never knew him to be married, it was his girlfriend, and we said sure, come down, so we set a date I remember and he came down right after that to pick us up in the airplane, he flew from Langley to Albany in the airplane and got a taxi, I think from the airport and came to our house on [redacted] b6 over in south Albany, I lived there at the time and we was all in b7C the room there getting ready to go and it was in the morning like before ten o'clock I believe somewheres in there and we had a baby-sitter, woman to baby-sit that we had gotten for the kids cause I had five kids and they were, her and women were all, you know, telling the baby-sitter what remember what to do and you know, this and that, he'd been it the bathroom and he come out and he stood in the doorway and it was one of his favorite sayings all the time, well let's get the show on the road and then he'd go oh, oh, oh, he had a voice, if he was in back of you talking, when you turned around and seen who was talking to you, you'd think that the guy was bigger than what he was, he was about five ten to five eleven, maybe six foot, he wasn't taller, much taller than I was at about the same and I was about five eleven, but he had a voice when he was excited, especially or laughing, you could really hear that deep, you know, he, he and he, you'd look at his mouth especially his mouth cause it was small, but that big a voice coming out of that small mouth, I always remembered that, and when he called me up on the telephone from Canada, I knew right away who it was because he had a, that much of, I thought a distinctive voice, but the other ones I've talked to said they didn't never catch it, but I, I do and uh, so like I say he said let's get this show on the road, we got in my car, went out to the Albany airport and got in the plane, he went in and filed a thing on the flight plan, I guess you call it, and we flew from there to Klammath Falls and it seems that we stopped in Klammath and ate or got a sandwich or something there, and I think he gassed up, I'm not sure, then we went from Klammath to Reno and it was starting to get dark as we was approaching Reno, that's why I thought we stopped, because we must have killed some more time cause knew that it would probably get dark around eight o'clock or something at night and he was, you know, flying the plane and uh, like I say it was starting to get dark and he handed me the map and he said uh, something about we should pass a lake and then we should see the lights of Reno, and I looked down at the map and I said well there's a lake here but it's dried up well no, I said yeah the lakes here, and when I looked out I could see what looked to be like a lake, but it was all dried up and he thought well, then I don't know I said well it's what it looks like and, and he didn't evidently have time to you know, take his eyes off the plane of something to look at the map real good, but then all, cause that's when I thought oh my God it's getting dark and you know, there's no lake, there's no Reno, we kept a going, we kept a going, and I'm scared of heights anyway, I'm scared to death, so I remember that and then all of a sudden he had this beeper or something that went beep, beep told him to turn and I said well the map says this and he said well my beeper, I got to go by it, I said okay, do whatever you got to do, so we made the turn I remember and went for another five, ten minutes, nothing and then all of a sudden we seen the water, you know, real light, we could tell it was a lake, a big lake there of some kind and then we went by it and then we see the lights of Reno and that's when he got on the, on the C-B or whatever they carry in there and called in and they brought us in on radar, so we flew on in to there and it was say nine o'clock at night, somewheres in there, dark, we took the cab from the airport to Reno, we got us a room, we went up and ate, he won fifty dollars there on the dime jackpot standing in line, I remember that, and we gambled that night, probably I would say till two, three o'clock in the morning, maybe later, got up the next morning, went to the airport, got a cab went to the airport, and uh, it could have been later, cause the women were real sleepy so we could have gambled, I don't know how long we gambled but we went back to the airport, got in the airplane, he did all his thing about the flight plan and all this, we got out on the runway and was taxying down the runway, if, at whatever miles an hour, you know just starting to taxi, he said I feel a vibration, he said do you feel a vibration I said no, let's just go, let's get out of here, you know, let's get this over with, I want to get back home anyway, I said it feels fine to me and uh, so he turned to the women in the back and uh, he said do you guys feel any vibration and they said yes, it's vibrating bad back here and then he said oh, oh, oh you guys just want to go back and gamble some more, I said well let's go he said no, I got to go back and have this checked, so he turned the plane around, took it back to the wherever he took there and they run it in and had them work on it and look at it and in the meantime we went inside and I think we was gambling, I don't remember, we did something in there and come to find out it was a stuck valve and so that held us up for another couple hours and they got the stuck valve fixed and then we took off, cause I remember taking off out of Reno, going over that mountain there was big hill there or something, and we was, to me we wasn't fifty feet from over the top of that sucker, but from there seemed like we went to Redding or somewheres down around Redding and came back up, because I remember going over, well that's, anyway we stopped in Yreka, Yreka, California, we stopped there, got a cab, went to Yreka, that's where we all knew each other, see and he kind of wanted to see if there was anybody there he knew and we kind of did too, see cause we hadn't been back there in ten years, we ate and did this and that and then we went and got back in the plane and is why I know that uh, well everytime we would gas up, you know, we had to, he always stressed the point that it was hot, the hot, you know the heat was so hot, and full of gas with four people in that little bitty plane and I think it was a sesna one twenty-five, I'm not sure, it was a small plane, just two, the people, you know pretty close in the backseat when they sat back there and when we took out of Yreka, I didn't think we was gonna make it there, because you come right to the end of runway, it was a short runway and he knew that and he knew the runway and he said you know, it looked like we might go off, you know, plop off the end, but we got, you know he had everything full power and all this gas and oh god, I was, anyway we made it and then we was flying over wherever we was flying over the rocks, what'd you say that place was where the big rocks?

[redacted] Castle Craig. b6 b7C

Castle Craig just out of Redding, cause I remember that we was right on top of them and how pretty it was and I thought man if we hit in there you know what would happen you know, and then later we flew a little further and it was all forest I remember, all trees, everywhere you could see was just trees, and I said man, I said what would you do if that engine quit right now, what would we do, we'd go down wouldn't we, yes, he said yeah, and he said here, he said he looked out and he said see those two big trees over there, he said uh, we'd fly right into those two big trees, shear off the wings and then we would go down, that would slow us down and then we'd fall down and you know, probably not get hurt, oh Jesus criminy, but nothing ever happened, you know, just get me home, so we flew on home and there at the airport, like I say it was getting close to evening then, it wasn't dark, but I think it was probably here it got dark around nine in, I think in July, somewhere

When you got back to Albany. b6 b7C

When we got back to Albany. Uh, we got out of the plane, and I said well you guys come on, I had my car there, I said well come on to the house and we'll talk a while and then you can take off, he said no, he said uh, there's a certain area I want to fly over that I can look over on the way back, and I you know, want to do it while it's daylight, and we shook hands and everything and he got out and they went back to, back to Canada, he lived right on the border he said, in fact when we was talking there he, I said uh, well where you know, I just started this new job, so I, you know, we was planning on going to Canada, you know, sometime and I said yeah we're gonna come up there someday, he said well come on up I live right on the road, he said the next town after you hit Canada right there, and the only one I can figure out is Langley, because that's where the airport is, that's where he flew the airplane out of, cause he says it's right on the, as you go through, he said just drop right in and you'll be right there, I mean you got to go through my town anyway where I live, right on the border, well I've never been to Canada, so I really didn't pay much attention to him, that's all I remember of that part of it, that, you know, if we come up, but then I thought everything was fine, the girlfriend he had with him was real meek, real quiet, never said too much, she was in her, I would say [redacted] to early [redacted] maybe, uh, small, built nice, uh, light, light brown hair, I would say, kind of blondish, but more kind of brown, a quiet, she was real quiet, and uh, where was I at b6 b7C

Do you recall her name? b6 b7C

No I don't.

Okay.

Now I might be able to get that later, I don't know, but I doubt whether my ex-wife would know the name. Uh, okay, now I know where I'm at now, uh, okay that was in July, a few months later, it wasn't, now, this time he come down in seventy-one, it was July, I know that, there was no highjacking there, or we'd have talked about it, him being a pilot and all this stuff, so a few months later, it wasn't very long later when he called me from Portland, said he was in Portland, said him and his girlfriend had broke up and I thought man that was strange they got along good, you know, there was no arguing or fighting amongst them, you know, when we was together, of course she never said much, so I don't know what was going on between the two of them, so uh, he said him and his girlfriend had broke up and that he was in Portland and I said oh, and he said uh, is what I need to know, he said, if I come down that way, can I stay at your place a few days, I said well sure come on down, he said, well I got some business to take care of and then I'll be down and I said okay, and there was no laughing, talking, joking or that, he was really serious, you know, it was just like to me, like he was depressed, I don't know, you know, he just, cause he was the type of guy we always joked, you know, and he said I'll be down, and I said fine, yeah, you can stay here, come on down we look forward to seeing you and hung up and uh, never heard from him since, never

b7C

Never, never did show then?

Never showed and we lived in the same house for fifteen years.

And he was trying to think back of when he got that phone call and uh, he, he said that he had gone to work at [redacted] on the swing shift and that uh, so he would have been home in the early afternoon.

See the thing of it was I never answer the phone in my house cause I had four girls and one boy that always answered the phone and the wife, so I never answered the phone, and the phone was never one of my things, but that day I was sitting in my chair, I remember, I, at the time, thinking about it later, I didn't know whether it was night or day, you know when it was, but I knew everybody was gone, so later I got to thinking, well it was on a Wednesday, nobody would be gone

You mean be home?

Nobody'd be home, if I and I, and I went back and figured out I was on swing shift so I'd have been sitting in that chair getting ready to go to work around, I think I went to work at three thirty, was my time and I always went early, so I would have been sitting there and nobody was there when the phone rang and when he called, so I was thinking, he could have even called, if that was him, he could have even called from the airport, cause in reading the stuff and everything he had an hour to kill, but I can't figure if, if he called me, why I would answer the phone in the evening on a Wednesday night and nobody'd be there, if it'd have been on the Tuesday then it'd been different, it could have been he called on a Tuesday, that's why nobody was there, it's more likely then would have been gone then, but not Wednesday, so that's just something there, I don't know, see I can't really get the time of day he called but I know I was sitting in the chair and nobody's home.

What was his name? b6 b7C

Am I supposed to tell you?

It would help.

[redacted] Okay, now we, I called the girlfriend that knew him and she, what she'd say his?

She said either [redacted] might be his middle name. b6 b7C

Middle name, see I never knew his middle name

But she wasn't sure.

was [redacted], could be his middle name.

Go ahead.

And let's see, where was we at,

Well the reason you went in to explaining about the airplane and how well he handled it, just

Oh yeah, he knew what he was doing with airplanes.

Cause he seemed to know what he was doing

He knew everything, I mean

Do you know if the plane belonged to him or did he

No, he rented it, cause he said, I remember now I got to thinking again at the time this happened on that indicator thing, he said he was glad he didn't take this other plane because it didn't have an indicator, it just had a radio, I guess, but evidently he couldn't get radio contact with uh, Reno where he was flying right there, or something, I don't know if he even tried, but I remember him mentioning if he wouldn't have had that indicator he was glad he got the plane with the indicator in it, I remember that, because that told us to turn, so that's

b7C

You, you said you first met him in about nineteen sixty-one in Yreka?

Sixty, it was sixty.

Sixty, I mean, I'm sorry.

Sixty-one's when the pictures I got and everything.

Okay. Uh, and he was unemployed supposedly?

Yes.

Do you have any idea what he did during the day time when you were working?

No,

none of us know what he did.

He, he thought maybe he could have kind of been the handy man around the hotel there and pay his rent that way.

That's where he stayed at, but we don't know

But, but he's not sure, that's where'd he see him, you know.

Now he told me what he did in Langley and for some reason I, it always was in my head that he either worked in a, a mine something to do with driving a truck in a mine or a mill, I don't know, but down there he never worked in the mills, so I don't know what, it was one, something like that, down in something it seemed like, or something, he told me what he did

b7C

Do you know why he was in Yreka?

No, I have no idea.

He never talked about that?

Uh-huh, (indicating "no").

Okay.

Yeah, is all I know the, the picture I got of his friend here, was his good friend that she claims, they were really close, he was from Medford and she went up there once with him to meet the boyfriend, her boyfriend's uh, sister, and she members that when they pulled in to either Ashland or Medford, she can't remember which place it was, it was just across the border, that there was a lot of logging trucks around and that's all she, one was parked underneath of a something, and she remembers that, but she don't remember which town it was in, she just remembered the logging trucks, that's why when I asked her what he did for a living, the other guy, and she said thought he was a logger, but she wasn't sure,

Okay, who are these other people we're talking about now? b6 b7C

Okay, the guy, the other person that I got the picture of is his, [redacted] friend.

Okay.

A close friend, the girl, [redacted] introduced this girl to this other guy and they all three ran together there for a while, but she never went with [redacted] and I asked her, I said well why didn't you ever go with [redacted] and she said well he never asked me, this is what last night she told me b6 b7C

Okay, so you have some pictures of who,

Yeah, I got pictures.

Why don't you go ahead and pull them out and tell me who they are?

Okay. Set this one up to look at, but, I had this one blown up, I could have had it blown up farther, but I didn't, cause I didn't know, I was gonna blow the face up bigger, okay, here's the girlfriend, and here's him in a swimming suit and he was an excellent swimmer.

This is [redacted] here? b6 b7C

Yeah, now this is the other picture of him and this is his friend.

Is it okay to write on these pictures?

Yes, yeah go ahead.

And what was the friend's name?

It's on the back.

Oh, okay.

She wrote it, [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] b6 b7C

Yeah.

Okay.

If we have to I can get that from the,

[redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] okay and this is [redacted]

This is Dwynell Lake?

Yeah.

D-W-Y-N-E-L-L?

Yeah.

Actually, now it's Lake Shastina.

Oh, okay. Now I recognize it.

I, it's, see I, years ago well, I went to Yreka way after that, they were all there, kind of weird.

Yeah. b6 b7C

I had moved there in sixty-five.

Now, see here on the pictures I'd like to tell you, see these, his hair is high here, okay, now when he came to Yreka, when I met him, he had the shorter hair, like this on the sides and he combed it flat, I had him do this, see the the way I combed mine?

Hmm-mm.

And I was always doing that, I said hey, you want to look nice for the girls, get that pomp in it, uh

But otherwise, he, he combed it more like the sketch that they had,

More flat, you know, he had just

His hairline is, is more down than they have on the sketch. b6 b7C

Okay, this is nineteen ninety-six, why has it been so long for you guys to come forward with this, what, what's happened to make you talk about this?

Okay, what happened in the meantime

Well actually I told him to

Yeah, it was

I told him it would be worth checking out

A few years, I, see like I say, I was into my job, I was a titanium welder and it was all new and we was all getting into that, in fact I was the first to start you know, help the write the book on welding titanium, Hmm.

So I was really into my work all the time and I had five kids, never, and I mentioned to my other wife a few times, well boy you know that sounds like [redacted] and finally I seen after a few years, seen the picture cause see I don't remember none of the run around airplanes looking for him, cause I was on swing, I think that's why, it was long hours a lot of time, and then I somehow got a hold of a book and seen the picture and I kept looking at it and I think man, you know, but I didn't have a picture of [redacted] at the time, from just what I can remember that you know, the mouth, the shape the head and and the dark eyes that he had, you know, he had the dark piercing eyes and I said god darn, you know and this, and then I read more books on it and stuff and got a little more information, but me, in the meantime me and my wife broke up and we had a, big battle and I went to California for a year and b6 b7C

That's how he met me. b6 b7C

That's how I met her and then I come back here in nineteen eighty something.

Eighty-eight

Eighty-six.

Eighty-seven.

Eighty-six, eighty-seven.

Eighty-seven. b6 b7C

And uh,

We came back up here.

just kind of you know, things,

That's when we got married.

and then I, I quit my job, retired and just lately I, in fact what got it going, I was down talking to my relatives.

Honey you didn't quit your job, you, you,

That's what I said

You got, took a medical retirement.

Yeah, well that's retirement.

You're not working anymore anyway.

No, I'm not working.

Yeah.

And I got to talking with them down there real heavy on it and boy the more I thought, thought about it, I thought well you know, I'm retired now, I'll look into it, so, I got a hold of my, uh, I was talking to my brother and he said well, yeah, [redacted] used to go with uh, his wife's uh b6 b7C

Sister.

Sister-in-law.

Oh that's right.

So I called him and wanting to know what, [redacted] my brother knew and he remembered a little bit about him, he said I never really liked him, of course [redacted] tough, you know, he'd whip anybody into place he thought, you know he was that kind, but uh, and then I called back another day and asked uh, talked to [redacted] his wife and uh, she give me, she says well why don't you call this [redacted] cause she knew [redacted] her sister, that's her sister, she said why don't you call [redacted] and she could probably tell you something, so I called her, she said hell yeah, I got pictures of him and everything here, she took a lot of pictures at that time, b6 b7C b6 b7C

so I said well send me some, I want to see, remember what that guy looked like you know, and when I got them, then I, then I said man there's you know, to me there's something, there's just too much stuff at the same time, at the same uh,

Well

b7C

Never hearing from the guy and

To your knowledge, anybody that uh, you used to run around together in your group, has anybody had any contact with him

since seventy-one?

See, I had heard from her family and stuff, tried to find out whatever she could of anybody that seen, cause she's still got a, uh, her mother's still in Yreka, her mother still lives there, and I said you find out what you can, if anybody seen him and she said she hasn't, nobody's, as far as she knows none of what she's come up with, that, she has more pictures, she has a picture of him out in Dwynell Lake way, way out, she said, that man was one hell of a swimmer, that's, that much she knew about him, now, when her, okay, now this is in Los Angeles, this picture was taken in Los Angeles, those two guys and her went to Los Angeles, uh, they left Yreka and she still don't know why they went to Los Angeles, they drove clear to Los Angeles, went on this beach, that's where she took the pictures, she said they was there not over two hours and [redacted] evidently was driving, the, the other guy owned the car, [redacted] never had a car, [redacted] was driving, they switched off you know, and [redacted] said I've got to get out of here, he said there's too much traffic down here for me, aw this and that, so they headed back, she said, I said well don't you know why you went down or what was the reason, she said no, she said, I can't think, I said was there any other people around like there might have been a drug deal or something they went down to get some drugs or something and uh, she said not that she knew of, and she said there was no drinking going down, no drugs, she wasn't on, you know, there was no drugs involved, so why they went down, she still don't know.

Yeah.

She has no idea.

What's [redacted] last name?

b6
b7C

Now that's something I'll have to call her back and get.

Okay. b6 b7C

If she's remarried now, but she's been in Klammath Falls for the last fifteen, twenty years.

She lives in K Falls now?

Yeah, yeah.

Yeah, she's been there.

I've got the number and uh, I've got the number in Vancouver of the girl that he went with, [redacted] sister-in-law, she lives in Vancouver, I've talked to her, she can't remember much cause she was just getting a divorce from her husband and she said that, you know, she was in real bad shape, she was looking for attention and her and [redacted] went together for a while and she, and the first thing she said that [redacted] was a, a guy that treated her better than any guy's ever treated her b6 b7C

Hmm-mm.

And then I think is what happened, that her and her husband went back together and that left [redacted] hanging. b6 b7C

Yeah.

My brother told me he said he talked to [redacted] after, the day after [redacted] and the sister-in-law broke up, that [redacted] told my brother [redacted] that they had a big fight that night and he went up there and [redacted] said well I think he slept with her, but anyway, he had left two cents on the table and left. b6 b7C

(Laughing) As a tip. b6 b7C

(Laughing) As a tip, now,

(Laughing) You don't know if that true's or not?

No.

Okay. Is that pretty much, essentially what you wanted to talk about?

That's pretty much it, right there.

Okay, this will conclude this taped interview. The time is one twenty-four. We'll continue for a moment longer. The uh, current time is one twenty-five. Go ahead.

Okay, when I met [redacted] there was a saying that uh, he always said that I've always said to my kids, uh, you know, joking with them and playing with them is uh, shake the hand of the man who shook the world, and I've always said that and my kids

b7C

But you learned it from him?

I learned it from him, yeah, he always said that and I, and then he'd go oh, oh, oh in that deep voice.

And, oh, and uh, he did not add that uh, the reason he always said let's get this show on the road is that he had previously ran away with the circus,

He either was in the circus when he came to town or something to do with the circus and my brother said the same thing, something about a circus, that he was travelling, he thought in a circus to get from place to place, but he had nice clothes, you know his clothes are, he always looked, looked good, he always kept himself up nice.

Okay, is that all?

I guess that's it, we'll probably remember something else.

Okay, this will conclude the tape, the time is uh, one twenty-seven.

Facts of complaint

On 2/16/1996, [redacted], TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY telephonically contacted writer with information concerning possible identification of suspect in Seattle's NORJAK case 164A-81. The complainant stated [redacted] owns two sport shops in Texas, one in Weatherford, Texas by the name of [redacted] and the other sport shop is located in Hurst, Texas by the same or a similar name. Complainant further explained [redacted] has acted strangely and has extensive knowledge of aviation and parachuting. He went on to say at one time [redacted] mentioned to him he had been an aviation supervisor and a representative for [redacted] in Dallas, Texas. Complainant stated he has information through the TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY that [redacted] originally came into the state of Texas in 1981 and previously held a driver's license in either the state of Colorado or California at that time. [redacted] has Texas driver's license number [redacted] and complainant indicated driver's license photos from 1986 and current photo are available. Complainant felt these photos could resemble D.B. COOPER of Seattle case 164A-81. Complainant pointed out when a license is renewed in the state of Texas, the thumbprints of the licensee are taken and maintained.

The above information is provided for whatever action is deemed necessary.

This report was mailed to the Salem RA on 1/11/96. I have read the interview of the "witness" and am not sure why he thinks [redacted]" could be D.B Cooper. Unless someone sees something more significant in the info or unless [redacted] came up in the D.B. Cooper case, I suggest this be serialized into that case for documentation purposes.

[redacted] said that [redacted] graduated from high school in Claremont, California, in 1969, but also attended high school in Chevy Chase, Maryland, for a short period of time. [redacted] is a psychologist from Ashland, Oregon, who taught briefly at Stanford University in California. [redacted] has political views which lean to the extreme left.

[redacted] is described by [redacted] as having been a antiwar radical in the late 1960s, who is still very politically active. [redacted] periodically runs for political office in the Santa Fe, New Mexico, area but never wins these elections. According to [redacted] feels that violence is a legitimate means of achieving political change and has stated so on several occasions. [redacted] has claimed to have been involved with political movements in the United States, such as the Black Panthers and the American Indian movement. [redacted] believes that [redacted] has contributed money to these organizations in the past.

b7C

According to [redacted] revealed his involvement in the hijacking of a northwest orient airlines flight, and told [redacted] that he is D.B. COOPER. [redacted] told [redacted] this approximately 6 1/2 years ago. On several occasions, since then, [redacted] has spoken about the hijacking, however, has not provided [redacted] with any details about the incident.

[redacted] believes that at least some of the money which was obtained by the hijacker ended up in a safe deposit box in a bank in Deming, New Mexico. [redacted] states, as her basis for this belief, the fact that [redacted], during a time of extreme financial need, made a telephone call and asked permission to take money from the safe deposit box. Although, [redacted] never told [redacted] that he was calling to ask permission from the leaders of the group behind the hijacking incident, she feels this is probably what he was doing. Several days later, [redacted] returned to their home stating that he had been able to obtain $14,000 in cash. [redacted] did not see the cash. b6 b7C

On one of the occasions when [redacted] spoke of his involvement with the hijacking incident, he told [redacted] that he had been chosen by a group, who had decided to commit this crime, because he was young, in good physical condition and had never been fingerprinted. The purpose of the crime was to obtain money for a war chest which the group was accruing. [redacted] told [redacted] that he did not personally profit in any way from this act. [redacted] told [redacted] that he was approximately 19 years old at the time and had been trained by this group at a paramilitary camp in northern California. It was at this location that [redacted] was taught to parachute and was given extensive physical training. The name D.B. COOPER was chosen by [redacted] and the other group members because his initials are, in fact D. B. and the name COOPER was chosen arbitrarily. b6 b7C

As far as [redacted] knows, [redacted] has never had any involvement with the United States military and she does not know if [redacted] actually knows anything about parachuting. b6 b7C

After the hijacking incident, [redacted] hid in various mental institutions, because he is a manic depressant and has a bipolar personality. According to [redacted] has good control of these disorders, however, can exhibit classic symptoms when he chooses to, because he truly has these disorders and knows a lot about them. [redacted] claims that [redacted] would go to an institution where psychologically troubled people are cared for and exhibit the manic depressant symptoms and be allowed to stay at these institutions until he could be evaluated. Eventually, he would always be released. b6 b7C

Several months after the hijacking, [redacted] ended up at the Navajo Indian reservation in the four corners area in northwest New Mexico, where he stayed for several years and was involved in marijuana smuggling. Again, [redacted] has no proof or detailed information which would serve as a basis for her belief in this part of [redacted] story. b6 b7C

[redacted] in 1978 in Deming, New Mexico, where he was residing with his mother, who is now deceased. [redacted] has resided in New Mexico, with [redacted] ever since then. b6 b7C

[redacted] is aware of two arrests of [redacted] The first of these was for criminal trespass in Sedona, Arizona. [redacted] could not remember the year that that occurred. The second was in the fall of 1978 in Deming, New Mexico, for aggravated assault. Also, [redacted] believes [redacted] was detained in Oklahoma City by the FBI for making statements during an interstate flight, during which he made statements to the effect that he had a weapon and that he felt like hijacking the airplane. [redacted] does not know if [redacted] was actually arrested for this but she does recall being told by [redacted] that the flight was forced to land in Oklahoma City because of his statements.

He recalls that it was a cold day that D. B. COOPER parachuted from a commercial airliner. He believes every paratrooper recalls that day. He does not believe that D. B. COOPER survived the jump. He believes on November 24, 1971, he was driving a bus for MTC.

[redacted] white male, date of birth [redacted] [redacted] hazel eyes, white hair, 5'9", 175 pounds, Minnesota driver's license number [redacted], voluntarily appeared at the Minneapolis Office of the FBI. [redacted] was advised that the interview was requested as a result of a telephone call received by the television program "America's Most Wanted" following their airing a segment on D. B. COOPER. [redacted] was advised that he had been identified as a suspect in the airplane hijacking performed by D. B. COOPER because of his resemblance to the artist's conception and the fact that he resided in both Seattle, Washington, and Minneapolis. [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and provided the following information. [redacted] was advised that the interview was voluntary and that he was free to leave at any time. b6 b7C

He was born in [redacted], on [redacted] and stayed in Minneapolis until May 16, 1966, when he entered the Army (regular Army Number [redacted]. While in the Army, he obtained his basic training at Fort Leonardwood, Missouri. He was then transferred to Fort Gordon, Georgia, and then was transferred to Mainz, Germany, where he received his airborne training. He then served a tour in Vietnam and was stationed at Phouc Vinh with the 101st Airborne. He then returned to Fort Riley, Kansas, and then Fort Bragg, North Carolina, where he was honorably discharged on [redacted] He has done no civilian skyjumping. He has no pilot training. He has received no special training in civilian-type planes. While he was a paratrooper in the Army, they jumped out of C-130s and C-141s. b6 b7C

After his discharge, he returned to Minneapolis and attended the University of Minnesota. He also worked at the post office and drove a city bus for the METROPOLITAN TRANSIT COMMISSION (MTC). Facts of complaint

C believes [redacted] is identical with D.B. COOPER and provided the following background information:

b7C

S was born in 1924 as Duane L. Weber. At some point in time, he was sent to San Quentin prison and released in approximately 1946. Sometime between 1946 and 1965, he was sent to federal prison under an unknown name in Colorado. From approximately 1965 to 1968, he was in the Kansas State prison, inmate number W12019, under the name of John C. Collins.

C stated that [redacted] would relate stories of crimes that he and [redacted] [redacted], had committed together. In the early 70s, S was diagnosed with a liver disease that had killed his mother. C believes that it was at this time that S and [redacted] planned the hijacking in that S was expected to die and had nothing to lose.

In approximately 1978, S was talking in his sleep and was upset about having left fingerprints on the stairs. C did not understand this and S explained he was having nightmares about prison.

C stated that in approximately 1990, she found a parking slip from the early 1970s from the Seattle area. She asked S why he was saving it and then he threw it away.

C stated that S had destroyed all photographs prior to the late 70s. They later found a full-body photograph of subject wearing a plaid jacket that experts have told her was taken between 1965 and 1972. C stated that when they found the old photograph, S stated that [redacted] had taken the photograph just before "the big one". In this photograph, C stated that it is very apparent to anybody who knows S's build that he has something under his jacket and C believes that it was possibly a backpack or something. b6 b7C

C stated that she has in her possession a tie tac and cuff links that S had from prior to [redacted] C has learned from books that D.B. Cooper was wearing a stick pin which C stated has been described as very similar to the tie tack she has in her possession. She described the tie tac as being gold with a pearl in it. b6 b7C

In the early 80s, C and S were on a trip to Columbus, Georgia. S pointed out a house that he and [redacted] had lived in, and an area where they used to "jump". C questioned this in that S was not known to be a skydiver. S responded that anybody can join the service during war times. C believes he was possibly in the Korean war. b6 b7C

In 1990 he was diagnosed as manic depressive and was on medication. Sometime after that, S began jumping around his hospital room screaming, "Let's get the fucking show on the road. Where's the road, Joe?" C has learned from a book that this and other statements that S made during this time are similar to things D.B. Cooper said during the hijacking.

Very shortly before S's death on 3/28/95, he told her that he was actually Dan Cooper. C was aware that S had used aliases in his earlier life so did not put much thought into this at the time, until about a year later when she was encouraged by friends to read, "D.B. Cooper, What Really Happened" by Max Guenther. C advised that after she read this book, she was 100% convinced [redacted] was identical with subject D.B. Cooper. C stated that there are things in the book that could not have been known by [redacted] prior to the book being published but that he had relayed to her years prior. Additionally, she believes that the person referred to as [redacted] is actually [redacted] in that she spoke of identical incidents as S had relayed to her about his life when he was [redacted] b6 b7C

Also, just prior to S's death, she mentioned that S had never told her how he injured his leg. He told her that he injured it during the "big one".

C advised that she has viewed photographs of the composite drawing of D.B. Cooper and does not think they are identical but sees enough similarities in the composite alone to warrant further investigation.

C stated she has a lot more information and evidence to relay but would like to speak with somebody who is familiar with the case.

Information Concerning

Synopsis: Anonymous complainant telephonically furnished information relating to identity of D. B. COOPER.

Details: On 11/25/96, 1:35 p. m., unfemale telephonically contacted NK Division and furnished the following information.

She said she had known this information for about ten years, and that only a handful of people know this information about the true identity of D. B. COOPER. She said she was motivated to call in by a recent newspaper article portraying COOPER as some kind of folk hero. She said COOPER was no folk hero. He was an experienced pilot and sky-diver, but was also a drug smuggler. She is opposed to drugs and wants to set the record straight about COOPER.

She said she did not know COOPER personally, but knows from others in a family that she associated with until recently that he used the name JOHN and [redacted] He lived in Florida around 1985 or 1986 and travelled with [redacted] based there and [redacted] travelled with him. b6 b7C

He and [redacted] in NJ in 1986. He subsequently lived in Texas, in or near Austin, and in 1987 was reported to have died in a small plane crash in 1987 or 1988 in Texas, while smuggling drugs from Mexico. [redacted] supposedly was taken to the crash site at that time. b6 b7C

Facts of complaint

C advised that during the 1950s, she was acquainted with S, and has not seen him since that time. She knew him when he resided in the New Jersey area, but was last known to be residing in Colorado. When she heard the story regarding the D.B. Cooper case, C and others use to joke around that it was S because that is the "perfect crime" that S had spoke about for years.

Sometime later, a book was published by an unrecalled author who indicated that he learned from airline records that the person who hijacked the plane was originally booked as [redacted] b6 b7C

This past Sunday, C saw the composite sketch of D.B. Cooper and indicated this person appears identical with S. C advised she has photograph of S from her wedding party (in the 50s) that she is going to forward to writer.

UNI search conducted and revealed subject is now residing in the Seattle area. He was noted in two Seattle files, [redacted] and [redacted] Review of both files was conducted. The NORJACK file only contains only a record check sheet from 12/80 with nothing to indicate what had warranted the record check. The [redacted] was reviewed and a handwritten notation indicated S had posed as D.B. Cooper to obtain money b6 b7C

WHATEVER HE DID. HE NEVER OFFERED TO TELL ME. LATER ON AFTER WATCHING THE D.B. COOPER STORY ON "UNSOLVED MYSTERIES" AND READING MAX GUNTHER'S BOOK ABOUT D.B. COOPER. I STARTED THINKING MAYBE HE COULD BE D.B. COOPER, HERE'S SOME CIRCUMSTANCES I FOUND OUT.

AT THE TIME OF THE HIJACKING [redacted] LIVED AT. 805 PARKER ROAD APT 53 SUMNER WA 98390 b6 b7C

HE WAS WORKING FOR NWA AS A FLIGHT ATTENDANT.

DURING THE HIJACKING D.B. COOPER ASKED FOR SOME BOURBON AND WATER. (I HAVE SOME OF KENNY'S BOURBON WHISKEY BOTTLE COLLECTION)

KENNY LOOKED SIMILAR TO THE COMPOSITE DRAWING OF D.B. COOPER. HIS PHYSICAL SIZE AND AGE MATCHED THE DESCRIPTION OF HIM BY THE STEWARDESSES.

KENNY WAS A PARATROOPER AT THE END OF WORLD WAR II.

KENNY WAS A BACHELOR.

HE LAST LIVED AT 18406 OLD BUCKLEY HIGHWAY
BONNEY LAKE WA 98390
WHICH HE BOUGHT IN 1973.

HE WAS A COLLECTOR OF COINS, STAMPS AND PLATES WORTH AROUND $50,000. HE SENT FOR THEM AND PAID BY MONEY ORDERS.

HE HAD FRIENDS IN LONGVIEW WA WHICH WAS NOT FAR FROM THE LANDING SPOT AFTER THE JUMP. SO HE KNEW THE AREA.

I HAVE PREPARED A GOOD COLLOGE OF SEVEN 8X10 PICTURES OF SEVEN DIFFERENT MEN WHICH COULD BE SHOWN TO THE STEWARDESSES. [redacted] b6 b7C SAID SHE WOULD NEVER FORGET THE FACE

Synopsis: To provide Jacksonville with enclosures needed to conduct interview in Pace, Florida. Also to set lead for Los Angeles and military record checks in St. Louis.

Administrative: Re telcall 1/13/97, between Pensacola SSA [redacted] and Seattle SA [redacted] b6 b7C

Enclosures: Enclosed for Jacksonville and Los Angeles is a synopsis of captioned crime and description of typical lead information. Also enclosed is one artist's rendering of subject Cooper. Additionally enclosed for Jacksonville are various documents provided by [redacted] b6 b7C

Details: For information of Jacksonville, [redacted], Pace, Florida, telephone number [redacted] has repeatedly contacted the FBI in Portland and Seattle concerning her belief that [redacted] deceased [redacted] Duane Loren Weber, date of birth 6/18/1924, SSN 293-14-8862, also known as John Carson Collins, date of birth 6/18/1924 or 11/13/1928, SSN 587-18-0349, was subject Cooper. [redacted] has repeatedly told Portland and Seattle FBI Offices that [redacted] confessed to being Cooper prior to his death in 1995. Following his death, false identification was found concealed in his vehicle which included a Florida driver's license under the name of John Carson Collins, date of birth 11/13/1928, a Social Security card under the name John Chalk Collins, Jr., SSN 587-18-0349, and a photocopy of an Honorable Discharge from the U.S. Navy under the name John Claudian Collins dated 9/27/1951, as well as other documents. b6 b7C

FBI — SEATTLE

Open sub file for Duane Loren Weber

Duane Weber would have been 47 in 1971, within the age range for Cooper.

An FBI record, number 3552803, was located by FBI Ident and uploaded into the automated system. It was noted that Weber was apparently not incarcerated in November 1971.

[redacted] has detailed information that warrants some evaluation. [redacted] also advised that although she was not [redacted] to Duane Weber in 1971, [redacted] at that time was [redacted] [redacted] did make frequent references to Weber and advised that they had committed certain unnamed crimes together. A TransUnion inquiry concerning [redacted] SSN determined that [redacted] San Bernardino, California, was using SSN [redacted] as of January 1993. b6 b7C

Due to the fact that the U.S. Attorney's Office, Seattle, has not yet advised that this matter would not be prosecutable at this late date, it is requested that the below leads be undertaken to include/eliminate Weber. A large volume of tips continue to be provided to Seattle as a result of various recent news rebroadcasts of the Norjack case. Very few of these warrant followup of this nature.

[redacted] indicated that she has had contact with Pensacola SA [redacted] concerning this matter. b6 b7C

LEAD (s):

Set Lead 1:

JACKSONVILLE

AT PACE, FL

Using enclosed materials and outline provided by Seattle conduct detailed interview of [redacted] and set out appropriate leads to include or eliminate subject Duane Loren Weber as being subject Dan Cooper. Emphasis should be on determining Duane Weber's true identity, background, and whereabouts on 11/24/1971. b6 b7C

Set Lead 2:

LOS ANGELES

AT SAN BERNARDINO, CA

Locate and interview [redacted] San Bernardino, California, SSN [redacted] concerning her knowledge of Duane Loren Weber, his activities, and whereabouts in November 1971. Interview [redacted] and determine if [redacted] of Duane Weber and obtain information concerning Weber's background and whereabouts in November 1971. Ask [redacted] about any comments possibly made by Weber to her concerning captioned case, military training, or jump training. b6 b7C

Set Lead 3:

ST. LOUIS

AT ST. LOUIS, MO

Conduct appropriate liaison with U.S. Military Records Center and ascertain if Duane Lauren Weber, date of birth 6/18/1924, SSN 293-14-8862, or John Carson Collins, date of birth 6/18/1924 or 11/13/1928, SSN 293-14-8862 or 587-18-0349, ever served in the U.S. Military. If military records are located, obtain training abstract and ascertain if subject ever received jump training.

In 1964 or 1965, [redacted] and Weber moved to Overland Park, Kansas, where Weber again became involved in the insurance industry. During a business trip to Springfield, Missouri, Weber was arrested for stealing some credit cards from a woman he met at a night club. Weber was found guilty of this offense and spent three years confinement at Jefferson City, Missouri. b6 b7C

[redacted] advised that she first learned Weber's true identity after his arrest on the credit card violation. Prior to this arrest and conviction, she thought Weber's true name was John Collins. She remained at Jefferson City during Weber's three years of confinement working as a waitress at a country club. In early 1969, Weber was released from custody and the two returned to Boulder Colorado where they originally met. Weber was unsuccessful finding work at Boulder in the insurance industry and briefly worked as a bellhop at the Harvest House. [redacted] viewed a composite sketch of D. B. COOPER and stated that Weber did not favor this individual. She described Weber as having been 6' 4" and 225 pounds, taller and heavier than COOPER. [redacted] never knew much about Weber's background but recalls him saying that he was from Akron, Ohio and that his grandfather had founded Sherwyn-Williams paint company. Weber on occasion mentioned that he had been in the Navy and talked about various boats. Weber never mentioned skydiving and to the best of [redacted] knowledge, had never parachuted. She noted that Weber always smoked Pall Mall Gold cigarettes and that he never smoked Raleigh filtered cigarettes. b6 b7C

[redacted] recalled that during 1963 or 1964, Weber went to Seattle, Washington for an unknown reason. Weber had asked [redacted] whether she wished to accompany him to which she refused. [redacted] ended up going to her sister's house in Phoenix, Arizona while Weber went to Seattle. [redacted] remembers little about Weber's trip to Seattle other than that he brought her back some silk flowers. This was the only trip she recalled where Weber went to Seattle. b6 b7C

[redacted] was surprised to hear that Weber had died in 1995 noting that she had not been in touch with him for many years. Regarding the possibility that Weber was D. B. Cooper, she advised that Weber was not daring enough to pull off a feat like skyjacking. She knew for certain that while [redacted] Weber, he never committed any crimes as notorious as skyjacking with his criminal activity limited to petty crimes. AN AP RELEASE APPEARED ON NOV. 24th IN OUR LOCAL PAPER WITH 1973 DRAWINGS FROM FBI FILES OF A MAN KNOWN AS "D.B. COOPER", WHO COLLECTED $200,000 FROM A BOEING 727 HE HIJACKED 11-24-73, THEN HE APPARENTLY PARACHUTED OUT OF THE PLANE OVER THE CASCADE MOUNTAINS OF SOUTHWESTERN WASHINGTON.

THE MAN'S PICTURE BEARS A STRIKING RESEMBLANCE TO [redacted], WHO SOLICITS DONATIONS BY MAIL FOR AN ORGANIZATION [redacted] AFTER A CONVERSION EXPERIENCE HE CLAIMS HAPPENED ON AN AIRPLANE. THE ORGANIZATION IS CALLED "FOOD FOR THE POOR INC." INFORMATION ABOUT IT IS ON THE REVERSE SIDE OF THE ENCLOSED TWO SHEETS, ALONG WITH PARTS OF THE ARTICLE I SAW. [redacted] LITERATURE STATES THAT "FOOD FOR THE POOR" FUNDS MISSIONARIES, PARTICULARLY IN HAITI. [redacted] STATES IN HIS SOLICITATION MAIL THAT HE USED TO BE A BUSINESSMAN, BUT HIS CONVERSION EXPERIENCE LED HIM TO DISAVOW MATERIALISM. [redacted] HAS BEEN THE SUBJECT OF A NUMBER OF ARTICLES IN RELIGIOUS PUBLICATIONS. A NON-RELIGIOUS, SECULAR ARTICLE IS ENCLOSED HERE.

b6 b7C

UNFORTUNATELY, I DID NOT SAVE THE ORIGINAL LITERATURE, WHICH COULD SHOW YOU THE RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN THE 1973 SKYJACKER AND [redacted] BUT YOU CAN SEE THE RESEMBLANCE YOURSELF, IF YOU FOLLOW UP ON THIS LEAD. "FOOD FOR THE POOR" IS BASED IN DEERFIELD BEACH, FLORIDA, I BELIEVE; THE RETURN ADDRESS ON LITERATURE IS FROM THERE.

FBI: Skyjacking case still

Tips on D.B. Cooper still trickling in after a qua

By GEORGE TIBBITS
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE — It's been 25 years since he took that big step out of a Boeing 727 at 10,000 feet, yet tips on D.B. Cooper still trickle in.

One of the most daring or dumbest criminals ever remains at large, having either flouted the laws of society or been foiled by the law of gravity.

"It's still a pending investigation," says Seattle-based FBI agent Ray Lauer, who adds that the case will stay open "probably forever."

The FBI here still stores 60 volumes of interviews and other documents telling how Cooper hijacked a jetliner, demanded and received $200,000, then jumped from the plane over the Cascade Mountains of southwestern Washington and into legend.

AP Photo

This is a 1973 file photo of a drawing of D.B. Cooper, who became a legend when he jumped out of an airliner with $200,000 in ransom money 25 years ago.

TEXT:
Tee-putting while wondering what ever happened to Bob Impaglia...

It isn't often that the sport of the privileged becomes the province of the underprivileged. But just such a serendipitous meeting will occur Nov. 12 at Doral Resort and Country Club when the Pompano Beach-based charity Food for the Poor holds its benefit golf tournament.

This will not be just another charity tournament. Food for the Poor is one of the largest providers of charity goods and services to the island of Haiti. Because of the current U.N. naval embargo of that island, Food for the Poor is one of the few remaining lifelines for the impoverished residents of Port-Au-Prince and the outlying regions of Haiti.

Food, medicine and medical supplies are exempt from the embargo. Money raised by the tournament will go toward purchasing those and other materials that can be shipped into Haiti after clearance from the State Department.

Ordinarily, we steer clear of endorsing charity events, but, given the current state of affairs in Haiti, this one is worthy of support. Ferdie Mahfood, founder and director of the relief organization, sees to it that any money raised by Food for the Poor finds its way into the hands of the people who need it. In the coming months, the people in Haiti will be needing more help than ever.

A group of generous benefactors has offered us a matching gift of up to $400,000, provided we can match the gift by December 31st, and use the money to help the orphans of the Caribbean and Latin America. With your help we can do it.

This means thousands of orphans will receive the life-saving food, clothing, bedding and supplies they need to survive. While these children have no family of their own, we can show them what it is like to be a part of the family of God.

Directions:

Detach one or both checks that you wish to match.

If you wish to give a different amount, fill in the blank check with the amount you are led to give.

December 1996

[redacted]
South Bend, IN [redacted]

b6
b7C

Dear [redacted]

b6
b7C

God has blessed us with a wonderful Christmas gift and I had to share this fantastic news with you. Food For The Poor has been promised $400,000 from a group of generous benefactors. The gift is critical because we need over one million dollars to help 50 destitute orphanages. However, in order to receive this gift, we must meet three conditions:

1) We must raise an additional $400,000 from concerned friends like you to match this gift dollar for dollar.

2) The money has to be used to help abandoned children and orphans in the Caribbean and Latin America.

3) Most importantly, we must raise all the matching funds by December 31 or we will lose this remarkable opportunity.

This is a chance for you to double the value of your gift...and double the help you give to orphans and abandoned children this Christmas. Your gift will go twice as far to give the most helpless of God's poor children what they really need for Christmas - food, clothing and other essential items.

Your matching gift of $25 or $50 will show all of these abandoned orphans God's love and care through over, please

your compassion. For, when you send a gift to help them, you are really giving it back to God, who gave us the most precious gift of all - His Son, our Savior.

However, if we don't find the money to match this gift, we'll lose this opportunity. That is why I pray you will consider writing a check today so we can meet this urgent deadline.

I only wish you could personally see the beautiful faces of the children ... children like María at Father López's orphanage in El Salvador.

Like the other children Father López cares for, María is a victim of El Salvador's war. Her world was a peaceful, happy place until her parents died and she lost everything.

Even now she wakes up in the middle of the night, calling out for her mother. But I told María how people like you help, because we are all one family in Christ, caring for each other. "Even though you lost your parents, you still have a family who cares very much about you," I said. "Just as Jesus does."

Sadly, all 50 orphanages have children who have suffered as no child ever should. Their stories are similar, as are their needs. Your gift, matched dollar for dollar, will go far in helping these orphans.

Sheldon is shy and quiet, a victim of parents who are drug addicts. His thin body needs lots of food. When he came to the Living Water orphanage in Trinidad, he was severely malnourished. And, the orphanage is down to their last bag of rice and beans.

Little Glen Roy was found in his dying mother's arms at an abandoned airport in Grenada. Roma, his new "Mom," is so poor she has only two diapers for Glen Roy. She begged me for diapers and baby food for him and the other orphans she took under her wing.

 next page, please

DB Cooper-21255

In Haiti, Annie was abandoned by her mother. Too poor to feed her, her mother walked off, leaving Annie alone in the street. Annie is barefoot and her clothes are threadbare. She receives love at the orphanage, but little else. They can't afford decent clothing for her and the other children.

Sharlene is another child you will help through your gift. She is only five years old, but old enough to remember how she was neglected. At the Maxfield Park Home in Jamaica, her bed is a crib with peeling lead paint. There are no blankets. No sheets.

You are such an important part of Food For The Poor, I don't know how I can help all these orphans without you. I promised the 50 orphanages food, baby blankets, diapers, clothing and shoes, sheets and other essentials they need. These poor children are so hungry and destitute that a hot, nutritious meal means more to them at Christmas than toys.

It will be a great loss to the children and the orphanages we need to help if we don't match this gift of $400,000. That's why your gift this holiday season is so crucial.

I've enclosed two Matching Gift Checks made out to Food For The Poor for two different amounts. Here's what I need you to do.

Help us match the gift by sending an amount that matches one or both of these checks, or fill in the enclosed blank Matching Gift check for the amount you are led to give.

Remember, your gift for these poor orphans will be doubled in value through this remarkable matching gift opportunity. We'll be able to help thousands of orphans ... María in El Salvador ... Sheldon in Trinidad ... Glen Roy in Grenada ... Annie in Haiti ... Sharlene in Jamaica ... and many, many more.

over, please

DB Cooper-21256

I really need to hear from you by December 31 to meet the conditions of the matching gift. This is your chance to make your gift double in size and give directly to those who need you the most - abandoned children and orphans of the Caribbean and Latin America. I don't want to let the children down. I know you don't want to either.

I am pleading with you, please help the orphans this Christmas. Every dollar you give means another orphan will be fed, sheltered and clothed. I know whatever you give comes from the heart and that is the true spirit of Christmas.

A servant of the poor,

b7C

P.S. If you give by December 31, your gift will be matched dollar for dollar. The children need you to provide them with food, clothing and other essentials. Please give whatever you can to this extraordinary matching gift opportunity.

P.P.S. With this letter, you will find a small gift from me ... a bookmark with my favorite poem written on it. The poem is "I am there." The words are a great comfort to me as God tells us that He is always with us. Please use it in your bible or your favorite book. And remember, no matter what, God is always there.

Contributions are tax deductible under IRS section 501(c)(3).

A GIFT OF SECURITY

Many children have no place to sleep at night.

Your Gift of Security will provide cribs, blankets, sheets and linens to Sharlene and other orphans to be tucked safe in their beds.

Your Christmas gift . . . and the help you give to orphans . . . will double in value this year because of our matching gift opportunity.

Make a poor child happy this Christmas through your gift. Please send your check today.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS OF LOVE

Every time I hug an orphan,
I am reminded of God's love for them,
and our obligation to care for them.
Orphans like Maria and Juanita desperately need a Christmas gift from you.

DB Cooper-21258

A GIFT OF HAPPINESS

The orphanages are overwhelmed by the urgent needs of children.

Your Gift of Happiness will give Sheldon and others a home with food, love and learning in which to flourish.

A GIFT OF LIFE

Many children are abandoned, neglected and hungry.

Your Gift of Life will give Glen Roy and other orphans baby formula, food, diapers and other baby essentials

A GIFT OF DIGNITY

Many children are naked in the streets because they have no clothes to wear.

Your Gift of Dignity will give Annie and other orphans shoes and clothing to cover themselves.

DB Cooper-21259

Since its inception in 1982, Food for the Poor has shipped over $156 million worth of relief and developmental materials to the poor of the Caribbean.

Food for the Poor begs the support of both individuals and churches throughout the U.S. and abroad in order to reach the least of our brothers and sisters in Christ's name.

Your tax-deductible gifts are used to meet the urgent needs of the poor.

[redacted] social security number [redacted] of [redacted] Pace, Florida [redacted], telephone [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview. [redacted] believes [redacted] deceased [redacted] was D.B. Cooper and provided the following information: b6 b7C

DUANE LORIN (WEBER), date of birth 06/18/1924, SSN 293-14-8862, also known as JOHN CHALK COLLINS, JR., date of birth 11/13/28, SSN 587-18-0349 was born in Willoughby, Ohio. He died of Polysystic Kidney Disease on 03/28/1995 in Pace, Florida. While confined to a hospital bed at the West Florida Regional Medical Center, Pensacola, Florida, he confessed [redacted], [redacted] that he was Dan Cooper, alias D.B. Cooper. b6 b7C

In 1990, [redacted] said she found a blue parking ticket from the early 70s from the Seattle/Tacoma area. She asked WEBER why he was saving it and he threw it away.

[redacted] said that WEBER had destroyed all photographs of himself prior to the late 70s. She later found a full-body photograph of WEBER wearing a plaid jacket. When she inquired about the photograph, WEBER replied that [redacted] had taken the photo right before the big one. [redacted] believes that WEBER has something on underneath his jacket in the photograph. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that WEBER would often relate stories of crimes that he and [redacted] SSN [redacted] had committed. She said WEBER told her that he went to prison in Colorado for a crime planned and committed by [redacted] who might have been a Navy careerist. He was stationed in the Seattle or Portland area during 1971. [redacted] believes that he is the reason that [redacted] and WEBER might have been in the area when the crime was committed. [redacted] believes that [redacted] may have been an accomplice. She feels [redacted] will not talk if she finds out that WEBER is deceased. b6 b7C

WEBER [redacted] for approximately four years. [redacted] may live in Georgia, north of Atlanta. Her last known telephone number was [redacted]

In the early 80s, the WEBER'S lived in Mobile, Alabama. They took a trip to Columbus, Georgia. WEBER pointed out a duplex house and told [redacted] that's where he use to live. In addition, he also pointed out a field and said that's where he use to jump. She said to him that he was never in the army. He replied that anybody can join the service during war times. She believes he may have served during the Korean war. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that WEBER had a securities license and that he sold insurance for Pyramid Life Insurance from 1961 - 1967. As an insurance salesmen, he avoided working in states that required fingerprints for the sale of insurance. On several occasions, [redacted] said that he could not be fingerprinted because if he did, he would spend the rest of his life in jail. In approximately 1977, WEBER had a nightmare. He awakened [redacted] screaming I left my fingerprints on the aft foot stairs (phonetic). He later explained that he was having nightmares about prison. b6 b7C

In the late 70s or early 80s, WEBER was arrested for driving under the influence in Fort Collins, Colorado. He may have been fingerprinted.

WEBER use to tell [redacted] that he had something named after him, but he would never say what it was. One day, while driving past the airport in Denver, Colorado, he pointed at a Boeing aircraft and told her that they called the stairs Cooper Vein. Reflecting back on the moment, [redacted] believes that the aircraft stair's is what was named after him. b6 b7C

WEBER'S [redacted] Moreno Valley, California [redacted] telephone [redacted] told [redacted] that DUANE WEBER was imprisoned in Colorado and Illinois. He also told her that WEBER received a bad conduct discharge from the military on May 30, 1942. She did not know which branch of the military issued the discharge. She said [redacted] is in possiession of a letter received from DUANE WEBER, post marked on March 23, 1943 from an artillery camp called Camp b6 b7C

Sibert. [redacted] also stated that the family had a business (possibly a Sherwin-Williams paint store) which had a contract with Boeing Aircraft during World War II. [redacted] believes WEBER may have acquired his knowledge about Boeing Aircrafts during this time frame. In addition, [redacted] owned property in Tacoma, Washington.

[redacted] said when WEBER wanted to get rid of things, he would throw them over bridges into large bodies of water. In the late 70s or early 80s, WEBER made a trip to Seattle via Interstate 5. Upon his return, she recalls reading in the paper that money from the D.B. Cooper case had been found along a waterway boarding Interstate 5. She told WEBER about it, and he replied, that the money was worthless. b6 b7C

WEBER was left handed and smoked Winston cigarettes. He had a habit of saying, don't be ascared, replacing the word (afraid) with (ascared). Also he use to frequently place his left hand at his croutch, and say, let's get this fucking show on the road.

WEBER owned a Chevy Astro Van, vehicle identification number 1G8CM1528GB245006. Prior to his death, he told [redacted] to check the van throughly. [redacted] checked the van and found nothing. She sold the van to [redacted] (LNU), of [redacted] Pensacola, Florida [redacted] on 06/01/1995. Two weeks later, [redacted] returned a wallet which they found in the van to [redacted] The wallet contained several pieces of identification. (See photos contained in 1A envelope) In August or September of 96, [redacted] spoke with [redacted]. She asked [redacted] if they had found any money in the van. [redacted] replied if they had found any money, they would have turned it over to the police. [redacted] believes they found something of value in the van because they are now living above their means. b6 b7C

[redacted] has in her possession a 10K Gold-filled Girard-Perregaux Gyromatic watch which WEBER had [redacted] She believes the crime could not have been committed without a watch. In addition, she has a tie tack/pin which she says is similar to the one described in books as having being worn by D.B. Cooper. See photo enclosed in 1A envelope. b6 b7C

[redacted] said that [redacted], of Atlanta, Georgia, telephone [redacted] was WEBER'S oldest and dearest friend. She feels that if he confided in anyone about his past, it would be [redacted].

[redacted] provided copies of various Federal and State income tax returns. Also, she provided a copy of DUANE WEBER and [redacted] [redacted] a copy of a commutation of sentence from the State of Missouri, a Certificate of Birth, a handwriting sample, and numerous photos and pieces of identification.

[redacted] social security number [redacted] Pace, Florida [redacted], telephone [redacted], was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the purpose of the interview. [redacted] believes [redacted] deceased [redacted] was D.B. Cooper and provided the following information: b6 b7C

DUANE LORIN (WEBER), date of birth 06/18/1924, SSN 293-14-8862, also known as JOHN CHALK COLLINS, JR., date of birth 11/13/28, SSN 587-18-0349 was born in Willoughby, Ohio. He died of Polysystic Kidney Disease on 03/28/1995 in Pace, Florida. While confined to a hospital bed at the West Florida Regional Medical Center, Pensacola, Florida, he confessed [redacted] [redacted], that he was Dan Cooper, alias D.B. Cooper. b6 b7C

In 1990, [redacted] said she found a blue parking ticket from the early 70s from the Seattle/Tacoma area. She asked WEBER why he was saving it and he threw it away.

[redacted] said that WEBER had destroyed all photographs of himself prior to the late 70s. She later found a full-body photograph of WEBER wearing a plaid jacket. When she inquired about the photograph, WEBER replied that [redacted] had taken the photo right before the big one. [redacted] believes that WEBER has something on underneath his jacket in the photograph. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that WEBER would often relate stories of crimes that he and [redacted] [redacted] SSN [redacted] had committed. She said WEBER told her that he went to prison in Colorado for a crime planned and committed by [redacted] who might have been a Navy careerist. He was stationed in the Seattle or Portland area during 1971. [redacted] believes that he is the reason that [redacted] and WEBER might have been in the area when the crime was committed. The following investigation was conducted by SA [redacted] on 04/22/1997 at Pensacola, Florida. b6 b7C

[redacted] social security number [redacted] Pensacola, Florida [redacted], telephone [redacted] advised that he and [redacted] [redacted], social security number [redacted] bought a 1986 Chevy Astro Van from [redacted] on 06/01/1995. b6 b7C

Approximately one week later, as he was cleaning and deodorizing the van, he found a wallet containing several pieces of identification. The wallet was found in the rear of the overhead compartment. [redacted] called [redacted] and told her he had found a wallet in the van. He said she became very excited when he told her what he had found. [redacted] returned the wallet to [redacted] Upon arriving at her house, he observed her walking around her yard brandishing a hand gun at some construction workers who were working nearby. He returned the wallet and left. b6 b7C

[redacted] said [redacted] called several times after he had returned the wallet. She wanted to know if he had found anything else in the van. He told her that he had not found anything other than the wallet which he had returned to her. [redacted] refused to believe him. She insisted that he found something else besides the wallet. [redacted] told her not to call him [redacted] anymore. b6 b7C

[redacted] curiosity was peaking after [redacted] told him that [redacted] [redacted] might be D.B. Cooper. He said he checked the headliner and pulled the carpet back to see if the van might have contained any money. The van was completely void of any money. [redacted] is having the headliner replaced and the upholstery cleaned in the van. During the process, he is going to have the panels removed and he will check the van thoroughly for anything peculiar. He agreed to contact the writer if he found anything. b6 b7C

Enclosed for Las Vegas is FBI Latent Section airtel dated 12/13/71.

Details: For the information of receiving offices, [redacted] Pace, FL, has provided certain specific and detailed information concerning her belief that [redacted] deceased [redacted] Duane Loren Weber, aka John Carson Collins, DOB 06/18/1924 or 11/13/1928, SOC #293-14-8862, was subject Cooper. Her belief is based in part on Duane Loren Weber's dying declaration and subsequent investigation she conducted. Additional details are available through above-referenced serials.

On 02/10/1997, [redacted] residing at [redacted] San Bernardino, CA, telephone [redacted] was interviewed by the Los Angeles Division. [redacted] of Duane Loren Weber and information provided by [redacted] indicated that [redacted] and Duane Weber, [redacted] participated in assorted criminal acts. Additionally, [redacted] was believed to have been [redacted] to Weber on [redacted] the date of the hijacking by subject Cooper. During the 2/10/1997, interview, [redacted] advised that she had been [redacted] from Weber a year earlier, in [redacted] Enclosed for Los Angeles are copies of tax returns filed [redacted] Duane Weber for the tax year 1971, as well as a sworn statement signed by Duane Weber [redacted] stating that [redacted] Additionally, [redacted] has likely had several conversations with [redacted] (LNU) since that time concerning her knowledge of Weber's activities. These conversations may have been recorded by [redacted] (LNU) and Seattle is attempting to obtain copies of these taped conversations, if existing. b6 b7C b6 b7C b6 b7C

St. Louis Division has been previously provided U.S. Navy records concerning the Dishonorable Discharge of Duane Lorin Weber, Serial Number 283-56-96. Investigation has determined that Weber may have also subsequently served in the U.S. Army under Serial Number 356-98-905. Weber apparently received CWS training at Camp Sibert, AL, and was assigned to Company D, Second Division.

Seattle is attempting to combine any remaining evidence in this case that may exist in the Las Vegas or Portland Divisions. In particular, FBI Laboratory Q1, which was returned to Las Vegas on 12/13/1971, is needed.

CRIME ABOARD AIRCRAFT - HIJACKING
OO: SEATTLE

Synopsis: A check on 6/27/97 by the Las Vegas Division of the FBI, Las Vegas, Nevada, failed to locate any evidence retained by Las Vegas and the Las Vegas investigative file has been destroyed, with all evidence returned to Seattle. No receipts or dates were located to verify the dates of these actions.

Details: Lead Covered.

On 6/27/97, SA [redacted], Las Vegas Division, caused a search of the Las Vegas field office, and determined that no files or evidence were located pertaining to NORJACK, at this time. b6 b7C

[redacted] [redacted] VCMO, Squad 5, confirmed the OO Seattle file was not retained and that the Las Vegas file, LV 164A-60, has been destroyed per Bureau regulations. b6 b7C

On same date, [redacted] [redacted], advised that no record of NORJACK evidence was located in Las Vegas and that it was probably returned to Seattle when the statute of limitations had run. No receipts or evidence returned documents were located in the Las Vegas Division. b6 b7C

Synopsis: Report information provided by a caller.

Details: On 11/11/1997, Portland received a telephone call from [redacted], date of birth [redacted], Fantastic Sams, (Rogers Square) [redacted] Portland, Oregon, work number [redacted] [redacted] pager number [redacted] [redacted] related the following story: b6 b7C

Last week a man came in to have his hair cut. He took a liking to the woman [redacted] who cut his hair. He encouraged [redacted] to leave everything and come with him. He stated that his name was D.B. Cooper and paid with a one hundred dollar bill. This man has returned to the shop periodically and on one occasion made such a scene that they called the police. The man left before the police responded. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that the man came to the shop one time when they were closed and she did not let him in. He wanted to leave a message for [redacted] made him write it down and shove the note under the door. The man wrote on the back of a business card. The note stated, "I need to confess my sin," contained telephone number [redacted] and it was signed D.B. Cooper. The man was described as 5'10" to 6', nice build, approximately 60 years of age, shaved head (which he had asked to have done there), mustache and beard, athletic looking and dressed in outdoors type clothing. The workers in the shop attempted to discourage this man from coming around so they did not engage him in conversation to determined if he claimed to be the D.B. Cooper from the highjacking many years ago. In fact [redacted] stated that most of the younger hairdressers did not recognize the name D.B. Cooper. The man just stated his name was D.B. Cooper and wrote it on the note pushed under the door. [redacted] [redacted] advised that she had thrown the note away, but upon reflection decided to retrieve it and call the Portland FBI Office. b6 b7C

DEAR GOOD SIR;

I HOPE YOU CAN FIND IT IN YOUR HEART TO HELP ME OUT. I AM TRYING TO EITHER DISPROVE OR PROVE WHETHER [redacted] [redacted] WAS D. B. COOPER. A SIMPLE WAY WOULD BE FOR THE EYE WITNESSES TO VIEW A LINE UP OF 8 X 10 PHOTOS AND SAY "YES THAT'S HIM!" THE EYE WITNESSES ARE GETTING OLDER. THERE'S NO TELLING WHEN THEY COULD PASS AWAY. I'VE CONTACTED [redacted] [redacted]. I SENT HER THE 8 X 10'S BUT SHE WAS VERY RELUCTANT AND DIDN'T SAY IF ONE OF THE PICTURES WAS D. B. CAPT [redacted] SAID HE DIDN'T GET A GOOD LOOK AT D.B. BUT ONE WRITER ([redacted]) WROTE THAT CAPT [redacted] HAD SAT DOWN BY HIM AND EVEN DESCRIBED HIM. I HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO FIND [redacted] [redacted] IF YOU KNOW WHERE SHE IS NOW WOULD YOU LET HER KNOW I WANT TO WRITE OR TALK TO HER. IF NOT THAT WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO SEE HER, IF I SENT YOU THE 8 X 10 PHOTO'S? MAYBE THE OTHER TWO ALSO? PLEASE LET ME KNOW. PH [redacted] BEFORE 9 AM OUR TIME.

Title: NORJAK;
CAA - Hijacking

Synopsis: To outline status of requested DOJ statute of limitations and venue review and highlight significant leads currently outstanding.

Details: Following a comprehensive review of investigation possible in this case at this date, the following steps have been taken:

Statute of Limitations and Venue Issue

Previous opinions from the Seattle U.S. Attorney's Office and DOJ from 1976 (serial 6841, Sub JJ and DOJ letter dated 8/11/1975 - attached) indicate that this was a capital offense and thus not subject to a statute of limitations.
It is this opinion that has been used as a basis for the case remaining pending. In addition, Portland filed a "John Doe" indictment in 1976, just prior to the tolling of a normal five year statute. It was apparently the opinion of the Seattle USA's Office and DOJ in 1976 that subject COOPER was not sufficiently identified to present such an indictment. Portland decided at the last minute to file an indictment apparently as a fail-safe.

The investigative file for this case has always resided in Seattle.

On 4/24/1998 SA [redacted] requested that Seattle AUSA [redacted] [redacted] request a DOJ review of A) If this matter would be prosecutable now or in the future pursuant to the capital offense opinion, B) the validity of the "John Doe" indictment returned in Portland in 1976, and C) the likely venue (Seattle or Portland) for a prosecution should a subject be identified. b6 b7C

Significant Pending Investigative Efforts

Seattle continues to get a fair number of tips concerning this case. Although the majority are quickly eliminated, perhaps one per month requires follow up. Of these, about four/five per year require leads be set to other Divisions.

The only significant outstanding lead at this time involves a deathbed confession of an individual who claimed to be COOPER (DUANE LORIN WEBER Sub 1055). This lead is being pursued.

It is likely that any identification of COOPER at this date will result from either a spontaneous confession or application of newer investigative technology. In this regard, two steps were undertaken:

1. The DNA Unit was contacted and agreed to perform an unknown subject analysis on the numerous cigarette butts left by COOPER on the aircraft that day. They believed it likely that DNA could be recovered. Unfortunately, it was discovered that this evidence had been destroyed years earlier in Las Vegas.

2. Leads were set out for the Latent Fingerprint Section to perform automated analysis of the 70 latent fingerprints recovered from the hijacked Northwest Airlines aircraft in 1971. These Latents will be processed through a variety of FBI and state AFIS systems that did not exist until a few years ago.

There are additional investigative steps possible which involve considerable manpower. It is suggested that these be held in abeyance pending the receipt of the written updated DOJ opinion.

Dear Ms. Pflaumer:

Pursuant to recent conversations between AUSA [redacted] and SA [redacted] concerning the statute of limitation concerns connected with this case, I am enclosing record of two communications with your office from February and April of 1976. Both of these were previously faxed to AUSA [redacted] on April 24, 1998. b6 b7C

As you are aware, from time to time this investigation continues to garner significant media attention, even though the hijacking occurred in November of 1971. It remains the only unsolved skyjacking in U.S. history. The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) continues to receive numerous inquiries and occasional tips which necessitate significant investigation to include or exclude an individual as a possible subject. Although over the years there has been a system developed to streamline the review of these potential suspects, nevertheless, significant investigative resources are expended, not only by the Seattle office of the FBI but numerous offices throughout the United States. It is, of course, the policy of the FBI that any pending investigation, if prosecutable, will continue to be pursued to the fullest extent possible until such time as prosecution becomes unlikely or a deceased subject is identified. In light of the passage of 26 years since this crime, we believe an updated review of the statute of limitation and venue issues is necessary.

This crime was considered a capital offense at the time and an opinion was rendered by DOJ that no statute of limitation existed. As you may recall, a "John Doe" indictment was nevertheless returned by Federal Grand Jury in Portland, Oregon, in November of 1976, shortly before the expiration of the normal five-year statute. From the enclosed documents, it appears unclear if this "John Doe" indictment is legally valid.

We would appreciate if your office would obtain a written opinion from the Department of Justice (DOJ) concerning the current prosecutability of an individual, if identified, for this crime. We would also appreciate if this written opinion expressed by DOJ could include the expected venue for any prosecution (Western District of Washington vs. District of Oregon).

Please direct any response or questions you may have to Special Agent [redacted] at telephone number (206) 667-0171. b6 b7C

RE: NORJACK

Per our telephone conversation this date, the Laboratory Division, Latent Fingerprint Section (LFS) will make every effort to complete the requested latent print examination in the referenced case by the following dates:

June 12, 1998--Comparison of any latent prints on memo and resume submitted with Seattle EC 6/18/97 and previous latent prints with available prints of DUANE LOREN WEBER

June 19, 1998--Comparison of any unidentified latent prints on memo and resume with elimination prints to be submitted by Seattle Division

June 26, 1998--Comparison of suspect prints generated as a result of automated searches of previous and/or current latent prints

July 2, 1998--Comparison of unidentified latent prints on memo and resume with previous latent prints (if feasible)

Obviously, there could be unforeseen circumstances that will prevent the LFS from meeting these target dates, but in the event that appears likely, you will be immediately advised of the situation by Fingerprint Specialist [redacted] or me.

b6

You will be telephonically advised of any positive results as soon as that information becomes available and of the results of each completed stage of the examination.

Results of Examinations:

Nineteen latent fingerprints of value were developed on Q65, a resume. No latent prints of value were developed on Q64, a hand printed memo.

Five latent fingerprints developed on Q65, have been identified as elimination fingerprints of [redacted] b6 b7C

The remaining currently reported latent fingerprints were compared with the submitted fingerprints of [redacted] [redacted] without effecting an identification. Clearly and fully recorded inked impressions of the entire tip, side and lower joint areas of the fingers of this individual are needed for a conclusive comparison. b6 b7C

The currently reported unidentified latent fingerprints, as well as the unidentified latent fingerprints and latent impression (fingerprint or palm print) previously reported in connection with this case, are not the fingerprints of DUANE LOREN WEBER, FBI #3552803. No palm prints are available here for this individual for comparison with the previously reported latent palm prints and latent impression.

Re: News article from Associated Press dated 11/25/96

November 4, 1998

Federal Bureau of Investigation
915 Second Ave. Room 710
Seattle, WA 98174

Dear Sir or Madam:

I am doing a study of the D. B. Cooper hijacking that may or may not have been successful, and there are a number of questions that are quite puzzling to me, and probably many other folks also, and I'm hoping your office might be able to supply some insight.

My questions have to do with a few things that were not made clear in the news articles, and perhaps there are reasons for the omissions, or maybe no one thought they were important.

The first inquiry has to do with the type of conveyance used to carry the money. If it was some sort of a satchel with a handle or a heavier hand-bag or zippered bag, and he bailed out with two chutes on, he would be traveling at free-fall speed of about, what, sixty miles an hour or so? He would never be able to hold on to the bag when the chute popped open. If he were carrying the money in a package, he would have lost it.

The article also said that there were two pilots and a flight attendant aboard, when the plane took off from Seatac Airport. All of the passengers and two flight attendants deplaned there as part of the deal, and the money and four parachutes were put aboard. Now the Boeing 727 requires a three-man crew—what happened to the flight engineer? Did Cooper not know he was up there? Did he get off with the passengers? If not, there were five people aboard not four. In addition, the B-727 is a difficult aircraft to operate without a flight engineer that operates all of the systems.

Cooper had asked for four parachutes. Has anyone figured out why he wanted four chutes?

Another question that's troubling me; where did you get four parachutes late at night? That's a hard thing to find during daylight hours!
I'm assuming they were military—almost had to be.

DB Cooper-21328

I am hopeful you'll be able to shed some light on these thoughts. I certainly understand that your department has more than its share of tasks to perform without fooling around with these kinds of requests, but I'm an old man trying to put a story to bed, and I could use a little help.

I agree with [redacted] who inherited the case when it happened. He had long maintained that Cooper either landed in the Columbia River and drowned, or died in the mountains. What's more, I can only speculate as to what actually happened, but I would certainly appreciate any assistance you may be able to offer that would help me to build a story. b6 b7C

Synopsis: Prosecutive update received.

Reference: SE 164A-81 Serial 9300

Details: Referenced EC advised that an updated prosecutive opinion from DOJ concerning any statute of limitations issues was requested from Seattle AUSA [redacted] in April, 1998. b6 b7C

On 1/28/1999 AUSA [redacted] advised that he has spoken with appropriate DOJ officials. These conversations have caused him to conclude that "the statute of limitations is infinite" in this matter. AUSA [redacted] further advised that a written legal brief will be forthcoming to this effect. This is consistent with prior opinions from DOJ and the United States Attorneys Office. b6 b7C

The continuing need to automate at least the list of suspect names in this file was also discussed in April, 1998. It was determined that this task would be held in abeyance pending the USA's review, or time available by the support staff. Since April, it is estimated that this list has needed to be manually searched by SA [redacted] at least 8-10 times as a result of calls from other Divisions. As there are over 1100 names, considerable Agent time was required to perform these searches, and the result is imperfect. These inquiries continue. NORJAK manual indices are incomplete and not easily accessible. It was estimated by Squad 5 rotor that one workday would suffice to automate these names. b6 b7C

Although additional requests of the LAB may be made in the near future concerning this case, most of the calls received continue not to warrant setting investigative leads.

Dear [redacted]

b6
b7C

Have read the accompling article and have concluded from the facts stated in the article that D.B. Cooper did not jump. There are some facts that tell me this. He knew the plane had an rear stairs that would lower in flight, this indicates that he knew the plane. I contend that he walked off the plane while everyone was in the Cascade mountain looking for him.

If he knew about the rear stairs, he could have known about a hiding place in which to stay until later when he just walked off, or else when the plane landed in Reno and was allowing to turn around, he just walked down the stairs. No one was looking for him!!

Sincerely

Twenty-five years after his big jump, D.B. Cooper's legend flies high

By GEORGE TIBBITS
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — It's been 25 years since he took that big step out of a Boeing 727 at 10,000 feet, yet tips on D.B. Cooper still trickle in.

One of the most daring — or dumbest — criminals ever remains at large, having either flouted the laws of society or been foiled by the law of gravity.

"It's still a pending investigation," says Seattle-based FBI agent Ray Lauer, who adds that the case will stay open "probably forever."

The FBI here still stores 60 volumes of interviews and other documents telling how Cooper hijacked a jetliner, demanded and received $200,000, then jumped from the plane over the Cascade Mountains of southwestern Washington and into legend.

He hasn't been heard from since, although $5,880 of his loot was found by a boy playing on the banks of the Columbia River in 1980.

A few taverns and restaurants mark the anniversary of the nation's only unsolved skyjacking case. And now and then someone calls the FBI with a tip or suggestion.

"Surprisingly, yeah, we still get quite a few of them," Lauer says. "They tend to come in spurts, when they might get two to four in a week, then might not get any more tips for several months."

The FBI dutifully checks them out.

Wherever Cooper is, it's a safe bet his skydiving days are over: If he survived, he'd be 70 or older now.

On Nov. 24, 1971, the night before Thanksgiving, a man in his mid-40s wearing dark glasses boarded a Northwest Orient Airlines plane in Portland.

He bought a ticket under the name Dan Cooper — a law enforcement official later erroneously referred to him as "D.B." and the initials stuck — and took seat 18F in coach. He ordered a bourbon and water and handed flight attendant Flo Schaffner a note.

He apparently lacked a strong criminal presence; the busy Schaffner stuck the paper in her pocket, thinking it was a mash note, according to an account published in Northwest's 1986 corporate history, "Flight to the Top."

Not until takeoff did she bother to read the message: "Miss, I've got a bomb, come sit next to me — you're being hijacked."

Fellow cabin attendant Tina Mucklow Larson recounted how she and Schaffner relayed dozens of messages from Cooper to the cockpit — including his demands for $200,000 in used $20 bills and four parachutes.

He had no unusual characteristics, Larson recalled. He wore a dark suit, dark tie, white shirt and the sunglasses, which he never took off, and chain-smoked.

He also had a black briefcase, which he opened for Larson, showing her a couple of red cylinders, wires and a battery.

He collected the money, provided by the airline, during a stop at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, where the 36 passengers and two flight attendants were released. Larson and the two pilots remained on board. Cooper demanded the plane be flown to Mexico, agreeing to a refueling stop at Reno.

Just after takeoff, Larson said, Cooper asked how to lower the rear stairs of the 727, the only jetliner equipped with that feature. He then told her to go to the front of the plane and pull the first-class curtain shut.

About 40 minutes after takeoff, the cockpit's stair signal light flashed on. When the jet landed in Reno, the stairs were down and Cooper was missing, along with the money and two parachutes.

Such an exit would be impossible today: Cooper's lasting contribution to aircraft design is the "Cooper Vane," a latching device on Boeing 727s that prevents the tail stairway from being lowered in flight.

Cooper dove into a freezing rainstorm at 10,000 feet, wearing only a business suit and loafers. The temperature was 7 below zero, not counting a wind chill factor estimated at minus 70 because of the plane's speed of 200 mph.

Ralph Himmelsbach, the FBI agent assigned to the case before his retirement in 1980, has long maintained Cooper was a bumbler and a fool.

If the cold didn't kill him, if he withstood the powerful turbulence, Cooper was still parachuting into dense forest at night, at the onset of winter, with no food or survival gear.

"It was a bad place to land, and it is doubtful we would ever find the body," Himmelsbach said in a 1991 interview. "This was a desperate act you wouldn't expect from a normal man in his mid-40s. This was something you would expect from somebody who had nothing to lose."

Himmelsbach believes Cooper either landed in the Columbia and drowned, or died in the mountains and the money was washed out.

An extensive search turned up no traces. Nine years later, Mount St. Helens erupted and blanketed much of the area with ash.

Each year, celebrations are held at restaurants named D.B. Cooper in Salt Lake City and San Jose, and at a little bar in Ariel in southwestern Washington where, legend has it, Cooper paid an anonymous visit.

Dear Special Agent Pasenelli:

As the nation prepares to celebrate the upcoming anniversary of D.B. Cooper's infamous skyjacking, I thought I would throw my hat into the ring now in hope the information that I am about to relate to the Bureau will, perhaps, receive more closer scrutiny then if I had waited until after the media showcases the legendary event. Furthermore, if this letter contains the "smoking gun" you are looking for, the Bureau will have sufficient time to investigate the case in time to "shock" the nation on Thanksgiving Day.

In the enclosed color copy of page [redacted] in the [redacted] Oregon State College (now Oregon State University) yearbook, do you see Dan Cooper? I do! If we analyze the Cooper Drawing and description in the 11-25-96 Tacoma News Tribune's article, you will find remarkable similiarities. [redacted] is quite similar, his dark suit and tie with white shirt brings out his preference of dress style. The shape of his head, protruding jaw, small mouth, and ears are also quite similar. b6 b7C

I first met [redacted] in [redacted] when we took geology courses together. In order to receive a Business degree at OSC, it had to be in combination with a Science minor since the University of Oregon had long established its Business Administration program and had grabbed its share of prominence in the state of Oregon. I saw [redacted] frequently in [redacted] when we would get together over a cup of coffee and compare our notes before and after examinations. I saw him less frequently in [redacted] He graduated in the Spring of [redacted] with a degree in [redacted] and left Corvallis with a firm job offer with hopes of establishing himself in the business world. I haven't seen him since, although I inquired about his whereabouts in 1989 when paranoia overcame me to determine if he was still alive. Keeping in mind the finding of $5,880 of marked bills on the banks of the Columbia River in 1980 was sufficient evidence to believe Dan Cooper perished when he parashooted into the wilds; I was discouraged to learn from the Oregon State University Alumni Association that contact with [redacted] was a matter of record until 1984. However, the fact that he was living in an apartment in 1984 might suggest that after [redacted] years of pursuing his dreams in the business world that he probably stumbled a time or two and his marriage ended in divorce. I checked out the Mountain View, California street address a few months ago with the postal directory and it appears to be bonafide. b6 b7C

This is what I know about [redacted] Yes, he smoked cigarettes. Brand unknown. He drank coffee. He was married and living off-campus with his wife. I don't recall mention of any children. He hailed from Portland, Oregon. He was an enlisted U.S. Air Force Korean War veteran and received VA GI Bills financial assistance as was I. What I am about to say about his job in the Air Force may or may not be correct since almost [redacted] years has elapsed since I first met him and the Dan Cooper skyjacking may be influencing me to make the right connection. I believe [redacted] said he was a Loadmaster crew member in cargo aircraft. I was an Army personnel clerk and continued my Reserve obligation for 8 years as was required at that time for draftees. I don't recall [redacted] ever mentioning he was an active reservist although it is certainly a possibility. b6 b7C

[redacted] was a nice friend but we didn't socialize. And I believe he was a good student. He took great interest in his studies and was quite gifted in his [redacted] skills. What would [redacted] age be today? About the same as mine..... 63 or 64. This fact alone maybe where I miss the boat!! But, then again, I am not very good at establishing ages. And young airline cabin attendants may also experience a problem in this regard when the eyes are covered by sunglasses. b6 b7C

This is about all I know about [redacted] I've been in complete denial over a quarter of a century and am happy to get this "monkey" off my back. (No pun intended!) b6 b7C

If I can be of further assistance, please feel free to contact or visit me. I live at [redacted] Orting, Washington [redacted] If the Oregon State College yearbook has any value to you, I will lend my copy to the FBI. b6 b7C

NORTHWEST BRIEFLY

Snow, ice still play havoc with Spokane-area power

SPOKANE – Snow and ice continued to hit electric companies when they were down Sunday, and keeping thousands of people in the Spokane area without power.

"It's real frustrating because we no more than get a line back up than another tree comes back down," said Dave Clinton, Inland Power and Light Co. assistant manager for operations and engineering.

Sunday was the sixth day where aftereffects of an early winter storm could still be felt. Since last Monday when the storm first blew through the Northwest, at least six people have died in the state, including three in the Spokane area.

Inland Power had 2,500 customers Sunday in rural Eastern Washington without power, but by the afternoon that number increased to 3,000.

Washington Water Power still had 20,000 customers without power, down from 25,000 Saturday. About 500 customers in the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, area were still without power Sunday.

Saturday night 301 people stayed in six emergency shelters, said Peggy Berkaana, Executive Director of the Inland Northwest chapter of the American Red Cross.

Since Tuesday, 8,000 meals have been served.

D.B. Cooper is still missing, and the legend lives on

25 years since most famous hijacking

By George Tibbits
The Associated Press

It's been 25 years since he took that big step out of a Boeing 727 at 10,000 feet, yet tips on D.B. Cooper still trickle in.

One of the most daring – or dumbest – criminals ever remains at large, having either flouted the laws of society or been foiled by the law of gravity.

"It's still a pending investigation," says Seattle-based FBI agent Ray Lauer, who adds that the case will stay open "probably forever."

The FBI still stores 60 volumes of interviews and other documents telling how Cooper hijacked a jetliner, demanded and received $200,000, then jumped from the plane over the Cascade Mountains of Southwest Washington and into legend.

He hasn't been heard from since, although $5,880 of his loot was found by a boy playing on the banks of the Columbia River in 1980.

A few taverns and restaurants mark the anniversary of the nation's only unsolved skyjacking case. And now and then someone calls the FBI with a tip or suggestion.

"Surprisingly, yeah, we still get quite a few of them," Lauer says. "They tend to come in spurts, when they might get two to four in a week, then might not get any more tips for several months."

Cooper drawing

Wherever Cooper is, it's a safe bet his skydiving days are over: If he survived, he'd be 70 or older now.

On Nov. 24, 1971, the day before Thanksgiving, a man in his mid-40s wearing dark glasses boarded a Northwest Airlines plane in Portland.

He bought a ticket under the name Dan Cooper – he was later erroneously referred to him as "D.B." and the initials stuck – and took seat 18F in coach. He ordered a bourbon and water and handed flight attendant Flo Schaffner a note.

The busy Schaffner stuck the paper in her pocket, thinking it was a mash note. Not until takeoff did she bother to read the message: "Miss, I've got a bomb, come sit next to me – you're being hijacked."

Fellow cabin attendant Tina Mucklow Larson recounted how she and Schaffner relayed dozens of messages from Cooper to the cockpit – including his demands for $200,000 in used $20 bills and four parachutes.

He had no unusual characteristics, Larson recalled. He wore a dark suit, dark tie, white shirt and the sunglasses, which he never took off, and chain-smoked.

He also had a black briefcase, which he opened for Larson, showing her a couple of red cylinders, wires and a battery.

He collected the money, provided by the airline, during a stop at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, where the 36 passengers and two flight attendants were released. Larson and the two pilots remained on board. Cooper demanded the plane be flown to Mexico, agreeing to a refueling stop at Reno.

Just after takeoff, Larson said, Cooper asked how to lower the rear stairs of the 727, the only jetliner equipped with that feature. He then told her to go to the front of the plane and pull the first-class curtain shut.

About 40 minutes after takeoff, a stair signal light flashed on. When the jet landed in Reno, the stairs were down and Cooper, the money and parachutes were missing.

Such an exit would be impossible today: Cooper's lasting contribution to aircraft design is the "Cooper Vane," a latching device on Boeing 727s that prevents the tail stairway from being lowered in flight.

Cooper dove into a freezing rainstorm at 10,000 feet, wearing only a business suit and loafers. The temperature was 7 below zero, not counting a wind chill factor estimated at minus 70 because of the plane's speed of 200 mph.

Ralph Himmelsbach, the FBI agent on the case before his retirement in 1980, has long maintained Cooper was a bumbler and a fool.

If the cold didn't kill him, if he withstood the powerful turbulence, Cooper was still parachuting into dense forest at night, at the onset of winter, with no food or survival gear.

"It was a bad place to land, and it is doubtful we would ever find the body," Himmelsbach said in a 1991 interview. "This was a desperate act you wouldn't expect from a normal man in his mid-40s. This was something you would expect from somebody who had nothing to lose."

Himmelsbach believes Cooper either landed in the Columbia and drowned, or died in the mountains and the money was washed out.

An extensive search turned up no traces. Nine years later, Mount St. Helens erupted and blanketed much of the area with ash. If hikers or hunters have stumbled across Cooper since, they've kept his secret.

First lady applauds Thai anti-prostitution program

Hillary Clinton visits school in Thailand

By Grant Peck
The Associated Press

MAE CHAN, Thailand – First lady Hillary Rodham Clinton visited a school Sunday that discourages poor families from selling their daughters into prostitution and said that girls must decide their own futures.

The first lady is visiting the rugged hill country of northern Thailand before joining President Clinton on the first state visit to the country by an American president since 1969.

Her trip focused attention on Thailand's most tragic social problem – the sale of girls into the country's flourishing sex trade.

Hillary Clinton was greeted at the airport in Chiang Rai, 500 miles north of Bangkok, by townspeople, school children and representatives of the province's 600,000 tribespeople waving paper Thai and U.S. flags.

As she walked past umbrellas and colorful banners, young women threw flower petals in her path. A dozen silk-clad dancers and a traditional orchestra performed for her.

The first lady toured the Mae Chan Wittaya Khom school, part of a program that has trained about 1,200 girls to become gem cutters, textile workers and nursing assistants.

The training begins after their mandatory purchased by middlemen and resold to the garish brothels of Bangkok and elsewhere. Many die of AIDS.

The first lady then visited Chor Pa Kha, a met seven girls from the project and sat down for a chat with villagers in a thatched-roof hut.

The project, Thai Women of Tomorrow, [illegible] stand why it is important for young women to have the skills needed to find jobs and support themselves and their families," Clinton said.

"This project is an example of how to help protect young girls and women against exploitation and abuse. You are examples and pioneers for young women around the world looking for the opportunity to decide for themselves what is best for themselves and their families."

The project was founded in 1993 by Chakrapand Wongburanavart, dean of social sciences at Chiang Mai University. The U.S. Agency for International Development gave $300,000 to start the project.

Chakrapand's counselors try to persuade parents to let their girls learn skills that will earn about $200 a month, a tenth of what some prostitutes make.

Girls can be sold for $1,000 and send remittances home to their parents. Having a daughter as a prostitute can mean the difference between poverty and a new home, motorcycle and status.

Though some parents are ashamed of having sold their girls, others celebrate the birth of daughters for their potential earning power. Some claim ignorance of the horrors awaiting the girls.

The girls are often chained, beaten, drugged, denied food and raped by pimps before joining the ranks of Thailand's estimated 500,000 to 700,000 prostitutes.

Boys are also sold, but the vast majority of victims are girls serving Thai men or foreigners on so-called "sex tours."

Boorda note cited medals

By James Risen
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON – In a note written before his suicide in May, Adm. Jeremy Boorda, then the Navy's top officer, indicated that he was deeply concerned about recent criticism of the service and "couldn't bear to bring dishonor" to sailors over questions about whether he had improperly worn combat decorations.

The suicide note, published for the first time in the December issue of Washingtonian magazine, is consistent with the official description of the contents provided by the Navy immediately after the 57-year-old chief of naval operations took his life. It suggests that Boorda felt he was under enormous pressure – in addition to the questions over the medals.

"To my sailors," he wrote, "I couldn't bear to bring dishonor to you. ... For those who want to tear our Navy down, I guess I've given them plenty to write about for a while. But I will soon be forgotten."

The Navy had declined to release the text of the note. It is included as part of a Washingtonian article by Nick Kotz, a free-lance writer. The article noted that the Navy faced intense scrutiny during Boorda's two years at the top, including scandals involving sexual harassment and wrongdoing at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Facts of Complaint

On 2/1/99, a Washington State Patrol Officer telephonically contacted the Seattle Office of the FBI and advised he had been contacted by C and C advised that she had met an individual at Borders Books in Seattle who she thought looked like "D.B. Cooper" (subject of NORJAK case, SE 164-81). The only information she furnished on this individual was that he currently does [redacted] for $9.00 an hour in the Seattle area. C further advised S has cell phone number of [redacted]. The WSP officer advised this woman had sounded like a "bit of a flake" but he was sure the FBI still ran down all the leads on the D. B. Cooper case so he decided to furnish this information.

FBI:

I saw the enclosed article regards "D.B Cooper". His name is really [redacted] ?? b6 b7C

I reported this to the Mpls. F.B.I. 25 years ago.

[redacted] was a milk customer of ours when he operated the [redacted] Store here in Sioux Falls. The store "mysteriously" burned. b6 b7C

[redacted] was a paratrooper. Fearless. I was also a paratrooper. I really didn't like doing business with him because he was poor pay. b6 b7C

I really believe he did jump out of the plane with the money, but the plane was traveling to fast and at to high an altitude. He couldn't survive.

~~You might as well close the case.~~

Tips trickle in 25 years after D.B. Cooper's skyjacking

11-25-96

FBI checks reports, keeps case open

By GEORGE TIBBITS
Associated Press

SEATTLE — It's been 25 years since he took that big step out of a Boeing 727 at 10,000 feet, yet tips on D.B. Cooper still come in. One of the most daring — or best — criminals ever remains at large, having either flouted the laws of society or been foiled by the law of gravity.

"It's still a pending investigation," says Seattle-based FBI agent Ray Lauer, who adds that the case will stay open "probably forever."

The FBI here still stores 60 volumes of interviews and other documents telling how Cooper hijacked a jetliner, demanded and received $200,000, then jumped from the plane over the Cascade Mountains of southwestern Washington and into legend.

He hasn't been heard from since, although $5,880 of his loot was found by a boy playing on the banks of the Columbia River in 1980.

A few taverns and restaurants mark the anniversary of the nation's only unsolved skyjacking case. And now and then someone calls the FBI with a tip or suggestion.

"Surprisingly, yeah, we still get quite a few of them," Lauer says. "They tend to come in spurts, when they might get two to four in a week, then might not get any more tips for several months."

The FBI dutifully checks them out.

You're being hijacked

Wherever Cooper is, it's a safe bet his skydiving days are over: If he survived, he'd be 70 or older now.

On Nov. 24, 1971, the night before Thanksgiving, a man in his mid-40s wearing dark glasses boarded a Northwest Orient Airlines plane in Portland.

He bought a ticket under the name Dan Cooper — a law enforcement official later erroneously referred to him as "D.B." and the initials stuck — and took seat 18F in coach. He ordered a bourbon and water and handed flight attendant Flo Schaffner a note.

He apparently lacked a strong criminal presence; the busy Schaffner stuck the paper in her pocket.

Not until takeoff did she bother to read the message: "Miss, I've got a bomb, come sit next to me — you're being hijacked."

Fellow cabin attendant Tina Mucklow Larson recounted how she and Schaffner relayed dozens of messages from Cooper to the cockpit — including his demands for $200,000 in used $20 bills and four parachutes.

He had no unusual characteristics, Larson recalled. He wore a dark suit, dark tie, white shirt and the sunglasses, which he never took off, and chain-smoked.

He also had a black briefcase, which he opened for Larson, showing her a couple of red cylinders, wires and a battery.

He collected the money, provided by the airline, during a stop at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, where the 36 passengers and two flight attendants were released. Larson and the two pilots remained on board. Cooper demanded the plane be flown to Mexico, agreeing to a refueling stop at Reno.

Missing with parachutes

Just after takeoff, Larson said, Cooper asked how to lower the rear stairs of the 727, the only jetliner equipped with that feature. When the jet landed in Reno, the stairs were down and Cooper was missing, along with the money and parachutes.

Cooper dove into a freezing rainstorm at 10,000 feet, wearing only a business suit and loafers. The temperature was 7 below zero, not counting a wind chill estimated at minus 70 because of the plane's speed of 200 mph.

Ralph Himmelsbach, the FBI agent assigned to the case before his retirement in 1980, has long maintained Cooper was a bumbler and a fool. If the cold didn't kill him, if he withstood the powerful turbulence, Cooper was still parachuting into dense forest at night, at the onset of winter, with no food or survival gear.

Meteorologist Chris Jensen said no more snow is expected until after Thanksgiving, except for a light dusting Tuesday. But it should stay chilly, with high temperature in the teens and 20s and lows from zero to 10 above.

As of 6 p.m. Sunday, Sioux Valley Southwestern Electric of Colman had restored power to about 1,300 customers, leaving 1,200 customers without electricity, said company spokesman Martin McGrane.

The outages were scattered, but large numbers of homes were without power between Trent and Garretson and in the Humboldt and Hartford areas, he said.

Slippery roads kept state troopers busy Sunday morning, as at least 30-40 motorists slid into ditches. Troopers handled more than two dozen accidents over the weekend, none serious.

Also Sunday evening, Northern States Power Co. had one South Dakota outage and [illegible] should have power by this evening, he said.

McGrane wasn't certain when all of Sioux Valley Southwestern's customers would have power. The freezing rain that fell in the days before the snow storm caused about 400 electric poles to snap.

"A lot of them just splintered — there was a lot of weight in this ice," McGrane said. "They snapped like a baseball bat."

Sioux Valley Southwestern called in about 100 workers from other electric cooperatives in South Dakota and surrounding states to assist its 16 lines workers, he said.

Many customers realize bad weather and occasional power problems come with the territory, McGrane said. "That's true for most people, however, we're starting to notice a little change in mood. [illegible] caught using alcohol, drugs or tobacco anywhere at any time would face discipline, instead of just during the season.

"We will give them plenty of opportunity to change their behavior, but there will be firm consequences," Smith said.

Students and parents give the proposed policy mixed reviews. Some like the message it sends, while others think the administration refuses to trust students.

The policy allows students a chance to cut their suspensions if they and their parents participate in counseling sessions.

"Parents need to be a significant part of the solution," Smith said.

School board President Roger Risty says an incident this fall where football players were caught partying provided the catalyst to strengthen the policy.

"All kids who participate in an activity are required to sign a statement that they are drug- and alcohol-free during the season. We are now extending that year-round," he said. "Some kids told us they signed it just so they could play."

Evidence exists that substance abuse is increasing in the school system, Risty said.

Research indicates that at least two-fifths of high school students used prohibited substances five or more times:

- Sixth grade: 2 percent.
- Seventh grade: 7 percent.
- Eighth grade: 20 percent.
- Freshmen: 40 percent.
- High school: 44 percent.

"It showed kids' patterns of use were well established by the end of their ninth-grade year and then stayed about the same," Smith said. "They are well on their way at the end of the eighth grade."

Parents and students see the proposed plan as a mixed blessing.

Donalene Spars' daughter, Gretchen, is a junior at Washington High School who participates in cheerleading, concert choir and tennis.

"As a parent, I sign that activity slip that my child signs," Spars said. "She is a representative of

ARMED AND DANGEROUS

Synopsis: To set lead for Special Projects Section to conduct aging of original composites of subject Cooper.

Enclosures: Enclosed for the Special Project Section are two color copies of a composite sketch prepared by the Exhibits Section, Administrative Division, dated 1/2/1973, one depicting subject in dark glasses. Also enclosed is a synopsis of captioned event to include subject's physical description and age as of the date of the hijacking, 11/24/1971.

Details: Above-referenced telcalls with SSA [redacted] b6 b7C Special Projects, has indicated that aging of these photographs should be possible. A review of the case subfile concerning this sketch has determined that the original sketches were maintained by the Exhibits Sections under Bureau file number 164-2111. These sketches, although not the first prepared by the Exhibits Section for this case, were determined to be the best likeness of subject Cooper.

DOJ and the Seattle U.S. Attorney's Office have recently reaffirmed that the statute of limitations in this crime is infinite due to hijacking being a capital offense in 1971. Captioned matter remains the only unresolved hijacking in U.S. history. It is anticipated that the original sketch and aged sketch will receive nationwide media attention as several networks, including ABC and the Discovery Channel are apparently planning to once again run presentations on this case.

Re: SE 164A-81, 02/23/1999

Facts of Complaint

Complainant called to advise that he was a co-conspirator in the D.B. Cooper skyjacking incident. The complainant knows where the remaining $184,000 from the heist is located (allegedly in close proximity to the Mt. Ranier area) and is willing to arrange for its return. The complainant stated that he was closely associated with the main subject, Cooper (allegedly a false name), and that he was the person that was to pick Cooper up at the prearranged landing sight after he jumped from the plane. The complainant claimed that the idea for the skyjacking was, in fact, his. 11 no

After the skyjacking, the complainant recovered the bag with the stolen money, took out approximately $16,000 and then buried the remaining funds. He spent part of the money in Carbonado, Washington, with some acquaintances, who were subsequently arrested when the money was traced to the skyjacking. Due to his acquaintances' arrests, the complainant abandoned approximately $5,800 on a riverbank in the Portland, OR area, and then fled to Nevada and left the money buried. He has returned to the location

The complainant advised that he also previously spoke with SA [redacted] (now retired) regarding having information, but never provided him with all the details, for fear of being prosecuted. The complainant now believes that the statute of limitations has expired and wishes to assist the FBI in retrieving the stolen money and hopes to create a documentary film regarding the crime. b6 b7C

The complainant alleges to be the [redacted] of former U.S. Senator Frank Arini. The complainant claims his attorney is [redacted] telephone number [redacted] (When contacted, [redacted] was unsure if he was representing [redacted] and advised he would re-contact FBI to confirm if he is indeed his attorney of record.) b6 b7C

  The skyjacker who maybe got away

The original jumping skyjacker, Cooper boarded a Northwest Orient flight for Seattle on Thanksgiving Eve in 1971. Once aloft he threatened to blow up the plane and demanded $200,000 and four parachutes. After his demands were met, Cooper ordered the 727 to take off and then jumped from the rear of the plane somewhere over Washington state. Despite exhaustive searches, Cooper's body was never found and his whereabouts are unknown.

Extra credit: The hijacker actually called himself Dan Cooper; a law officer mistakenly described him to the press as "D.B." and the name stuck.

[redacted] recently related the following story to the unknown male:

[redacted] has recently become concerned about his health and believes that he is dying. Because of this belief, [redacted] has been providing family members with information he apparently wants them to know prior to his death. b6 b7C

[redacted] recently called [redacted] to his home and showed her a key to a safe deposit box in New York. [redacted] told [redacted] not to be afraid and to remember to take the key when he is gone. b6 b7C

[redacted] asked [redacted] why he told her not to be afraid. [redacted] then told [redacted] that he is D.B. Cooper. He went on to explain that when he is gone, the key to the safe deposit box would be the key to her future. [redacted] did not know who D.B. Cooper was. b6 b7C

[redacted] then talked with [redacted] regarding this conversation and was laughing at [redacted] because of his concerns that he is dying. [redacted] explained to [redacted] that she doesn't believe that [redacted] is dying and thinks he is losing his mind. [redacted] asked [redacted] about [redacted] assertions that he is D.B. Cooper. [redacted] told [redacted] simply that [redacted] is not losing his mind. b6 b7C

[redacted] noted that the family was always somewhat poor, but suddenly there seems to be money all over the place. b6 b7C

When [redacted] related this story to the unknown male, she still did not appear to know who D.B. Cooper was. b6 b7C

C stated that he is a retired Boeing [redacted] and was lately going through old paperwork. C stated that he came across a note he made to himself, back in the 1970s after the D.B. Cooper hijacking, and the note had information on it he wanted to pass along. C stated that he cannot remember who gave him this information, that that individual knew a guy that did a lot of parachuting in Issaqua, and was into night jumps, and looked like D.B. Cooper. The individual told C that he knew this individual, and that [redacted] possibly had an AP license, but was not sure. [redacted] supposedly went to live on the East Coast. C had no further information regarding [redacted] and is trying to remember who gave him this information approximatley 30 years ago.

Facts of Complaint

C advised that she was at the Oregon University Dental School in Portland on Wednesday, October 27, 1999. She saw an individual who resembled D.B. Cooper. After this male left the dentist office, C asked the dentist what that individual's name was. The dentist stated his name was [redacted]. C told the dentist that this individual looked just like D.B. Cooper. The dentist agreed that this individual did look like D.B. Cooper. C advised that there is a listing for a [redacted] in the phone book at [redacted] in Oregon. C advised that the male was at least [redacted] years old but possibly older.

Facts of complaint

On March 22, 2000, Complainant telephonically contacted the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the San Diego division to relay the following information:

Complainant stated that a message of two men talking about the whereabouts of D.B. Cooper was inadvertently left on the business answering machine. Complainant stated that the men were highly educated, and she believes that the FBI should listen to the tape. It speaks of D.B. Cooper and hijackings.

Title: NORJAK;
CAA - Hijacking

Synopsis: Reference telecal to SA [redacted] 6/9/2000. To set lead for forwarding to Laboratory of human skull allegedly found on a bank of the Columbia River. b6 b7C

Details: For the information of Omaha, on June 8, 2000 Seattle was contacted by [redacted] Pierce County SO concerning a human skull that might be related to captioned case. [redacted] advised that he had received a fax from the Police Chief in Cozad, Nebraska who related the following: A female resident of Cozad, name unknown, has recently died. Family members had long ago discounted a story she had related about finding a human skull along the Columbia River in Washington State in the mid-1980's. However, a inventory of her residence by family members recently located a nearly intact human skull. b6 b7C

Captioned case involves the hijacking of a Northwest Airlines flight between Portland and Seattle on 11/24/1971. The subject jumped from the aircraft carrying $200,000 in ransom money and two parachutes in southern Washington State. This case remains the only unsolved aircraft hijacking in U.S. history. In February, 1980 a portion of the money was found deposited along the Columbia River.

It is unknown as to the specific location from where this skull was retrieved, and if this evidenced remains that could have come from captioned case, or merely ancient remains or those from an unrelated death.

Enclosure(s): One skull, one bone, and one rock, packaged under separate cover.

Details: The enclosed items were obtained by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] from Cozad, Nebraska, Police Chief Mark Eaves. These items were turned over to Eaves by [redacted] who found them while cleaning out the home of [redacted] Elsie Rogers, of Cozad, Nebraska. b6 b7C

It is believed Rogers found the skull and other items in the early 1980s while vacationing on the Columbia River in Washington state, and had kept these items in her residence up until her death. It is requested this skull be analyzed since it was recovered in the same river that money from captioned skyjacking was found, and there is a possibility it is the skull of subject, D. B. Cooper.

Synopsis: [redacted] date of birth [redacted] SSN [redacted] appeared at the Seattle FBI Office. [redacted] is the subject of previous Serials 9165 and 9317.

Details: [redacted] currently residing at the [redacted] Tacoma, Washington, and holding Nevada Driver's License No. [redacted] appeared at the Seattle FBI Office. [redacted] had previously contacted the FBI on numerous occasions concerning captioned case. Following one such contact in 1991 (see Serial 9165), [redacted] was deemed not to be credible. b6 b7C

[redacted] advised that he had previously not provided complete information to the FBI, as he was afraid of being prosecuted. [redacted] related that in November of 1971, he was employed in a logging camp near Carbonado, Washington, where he worked with an individual, whose name he does not recall, whom he believes was Cooper. [redacted] said he came to this conclusion since this individual disappeared from the logging camp at approximately the same time he heard of the hijacking. [redacted] said that in the summer of 1972, he returned to an area near this camp, described as approximately four miles off of Highway 165, between Buckley, Washington, and Carbonado, Washington, where he found the skeletal remains of an individual and pieces of a parachute hanging from a tree. [redacted] advised that this skeleton had a black briefcase handcuffed to his wrist. [redacted] said he removed the skeletal remains, briefcase, and parachute from the tree; removed $10,000 to $15,000 in cash in $20 bills from the briefcase, buried the remains, and discarded the parachute nearby. [redacted] advised then, he went into the town of Coronado, where he spent some of the money at the general store and gave some of it to some young females there, whom he believed were later questioned by the FBI. After noticing what he b6 b7C believed to be numerous law-enforcement vehicles in the area, [redacted] became scared and drove towards Portland, stopping in the area of Woodland, Washington, where he buried a quantity of the money in the Columbia River bank, inside a fire pit. [redacted] does not recall exactly where he buried this money, but said he noticed lots of logs and an empty beer can. [redacted] believed he may have wrapped the money in plastic. [redacted] said he returned to the Carbonado area in approximately 1976 and revisited the location where he had buried the remains and money. [redacted] said he again saw remnants of the parachute he had discarded at that time. b6 b7C

[redacted] admitted he has read numerous books on captioned case and could not explain why he had waited this long to come forward, other than being afraid of possible prosecution. It was noted by SA [redacted] that [redacted] facts concerning the discovery of the remains and their condition, as well as the briefcase, did not correspond to known facts in the case. Further, it was noted that the location described by [redacted] is on the north side of Mt. Rainier, and the location [redacted] claimed to have buried the money, near Woodland, Washington, was actually down-stream from where money was actually located in February of 1980. b6 b7C

Based on the above and prior contacts with [redacted] it is recommended no further investigation be conducted concerning his story. [redacted] was told to return to the site at which he claimed to have buried the briefcase and retrieve one of the remaining bills for verification of his accounts. b6 b7C

SUBJECT: Forensic Case SI 679, FBI 00615033 GX, Seattle WA

Material submitted consists of one human cranium and one animal bone. The cranium is well preserved, lacking soft tissue and apparently is filled with soil. The cranium is complete except for the right zygomatic arch area and six teeth. These missing materials appear to have been lost perimortem or not recent post-mortem, although the broken margin of the right malar shows some evidence of more recent fracture.

The sex of the individual is difficult to determine reliably because of the attributes presented. Metric analysis using Fordisc 2.0 indicated female sex, although the cranium is very robust.

Morphologically, the skull presents some characteristics of Asian ancestry, to include Native American populations, and metric analysis with Fordisc 2.0 was inconclusive but indicated some possible Asian ancestry.

The chewing surfaces of the teeth show extreme wear. Such extreme wear is unusual for a modern individual but is expected in the dentition of an individual of archeological context.

The cranial sutures show minimal closure. This information coupled with observations on the extent of dental formation, dental eruption, and general skeletal development suggests an age at death of likely between 25 and 35 years.

In summary, this cranium presents characteristics suggesting an archeological origin. It likely represents an individual of American Indian ancestry and considerable antiquity.

TO: Federal Bureau of Investigation,
Suite 400, Crown Plaza Building 1500 Southwest 1st. Avenue Portland, Oregon 97201-5828

Please respond to the following questions.

1). Ref: The DB Cooper Case. Where in Clark County was the money found?
Reason for asking the question.
If DB made a night time water jump and drowned, by determining where along the Columbia River where the money was recovered in Clark County, I would be able to bring in a trained cadaver dog and look for the bone fragments remains of the "DB Cooper" case. Possibly locating more evidence for your agents.

What kind of parachute was he jumping? A PCMark111/or Delta? I know it was a specially made competition chute. During this time period the only new Comp chutes were the Paracommander Mark models and the Deltas. I don't believe the squares or strato clouds were made yet.

I need this information to figure glide/drop ratios. (I used to be a [redacted] with USPA). b6 b7C

Winds were reported from the west at 25MPH. A delta chute has a forward glide rate of approx. 18-25MPH. A PCM111 12MPH glide ratio. Under canopy from 7,000 feet gives "DB" 6.30 minutes of glide time at 35MPH. (With the wind in his back). If he jumps over amboy and splashes down near CAMAS, figuring water current speed, water temp, weight of chute, harness, suspect, money, he'll drift 1/2 mile unless snagged underwater.

2). Does the FBI hire support K-9 Search staff? For finding evidence and victims?
KSA, [redacted] in the state of Oregon. I have documented more types of searches and [redacted] USA. [redacted] b6 b7C

SUBJECT: RECOVERY OF THE SKYJACKED MONEY IN THE "DB COOPER" CASE - LATE NOV '71

Confirming our phone conversation of 5-25-00, I will leave Las Vegas on 6-14 by bus arriving in the early morning hours of Friday, 6-16. I will call you on 6-16 to arrange a meeting with the FBI at your local office to schedule our trip into the mountain for the recovery. Once I'm to the location it will unearthed within 15 minutes.

I will honor your request to not advise the local press until after the trip or at your advice.

My requests are simple and I believe quite reasonable:

1. Transportation into the mountain (1 to 2 Hours)
2. A written statement from the FBI assuring me of immunity from prosecution
3. A written statement that I will be allowed to make a movie camera account of the recovery. An advisor/agent will be coming with me to Seattle. He can record the events on camera. If this can be done, I will accept someone of your choice to do it. The only requirement I have is the movie is solely my property when the trip is completed.

Facts of Complaint

Complainant (C) advised that he knows the location of money and other evidence from the "D.B. Cooper" skyjacking investigation. C claims that he was a co-conspirator in the skyjacking and has since re-located where he buried money and other items. C advised that the items are buried near a Champion Lumber Company logging road that leads into the Golden Lakes area near Mount Ranier National Park, WA. C is willing to provide corroborating information regarding his locating the buried items approximately two years ago. C had previously spoken with the interviewing agent and provided similar information (see serial 9317 in captioned case number). C re-stated that he previously had not come forward with the information for fear of being prosecuted. C believes

Title: NORJAK

Synopsis: Request Bureau and Attorney General authority for the offering of a $100,000 reward for specific evidence leading to the resolution of this case. This was discussed between Seattle SAC Charles E. Mandigo and Section Chief Andreas Stephens on 8/18/2000

Details: To summarize, this case involving the 11/24/1971 hijacking of Northwest flight 305 has remained the only unsolved hijacking in U.S. history. Seattle has processed well over 1100 subjects over the years and virtually every other field division has also expended significant investigative resources. Other than a small portion of the $200,000 ransom money being recovered along the bank of the Columbia River, near Vancouver, Washington in February, 1980, no trace of the unidentified subject has ever been found. A recently updated prosecutive opinion received from the Seattle USA's office and DOJ has continued to indicate that a statute of limitations does not apply in this matter. At the time of this crime, airplane hijacking was a capital offense in the United States. This hijacking, due to its singular nature, certainly contributed to the acceleration of sweeping changes in U.S. airport security and thus had a direct and long lasting impact on the traveling public.

The hijacking of Northwest 305 continues to garner media attention. Seattle continues to receive numerous media inquiries (about fifty in the past year alone). Pursuant to recent requests from the National Press Office, Seattle cooperated in the new production of a special on the History

SE 164A-81-9350

Channel, a U.S. News & World Report story, and another soon to be filmed production titled "The Ultimate Ten" to be shown on the Learning Channel. In most of these media inquiries, the issue of a reward is invariably raised.

Previous Rewards Offered

A $25,000 reward offered by Northwest Airlines in the early 1970's was later withdrawn after the airlines was fully reimbursed by its insurer, Royal Globe Insurance. A Seattle area newspaper offered a $5,000 reward for one of the NORJAK $20 bills until the offer was terminated in 1976. There has been no FBI sponsored reward ever offered.

Timing and Benefit of Offering a $100,000 Reward Now

As this case nears its 30 year anniversary, it is likely that any associates or family members of the unknown subject (as well as the subject himself, if alive) are in their seventies. With the passage of this amount of time it is possible that any such person might be now motivated by such a reward to come forward to resolve this matter. Additionally, it is expected that this approaching anniversary will be the appropriate time to make best use of likely additional media interest. It is undoubtedly in the best interests of this case not to discourage any person with positive and direct information from contacting the FBI due to press accounts of a reward no longer being available.

To avoid generating large quantities of "looks like" leads, any reward should be specific as to direct evidence or knowledge that could resolve this case. Additionally, it is anticipated that the fact of the existence of a reward, if approved, will be provided to those inquiring, not contained in a press release. It is unlikely that Northwest Airlines would wish to participate in a new reward at this time due to current public relations considerations.

If someone were to come forward with information that resolved this case, Seattle would, in any event, very likely be able to justify the payment of a significant cash payment after the fact. Approval of a reward now would enable Seattle to use this fact as an investigative tool as this anniversary date approaches.

Dear [redacted]

Your May 19th communication to the Department of Justice in which you inquired about the investigation of the D. B. Cooper airliner hijacking was referred to the FBI for response.

This matter remains the subject of an ongoing FBI investigation and, as such, I am precluded by longstanding FBI and Department of Justice policy from commenting on specific aspects of the case. I can tell you, however, that while there is no standing, posted reward in this case, the FBI has a mechanism in place which permits us to make payments from time to time to individuals who provide us with information which enables us to resolve certain investigations.

We are unable to determine from the information you provided the exact nature of your inquiry regarding a [redacted] If you have information concerning this individual which you believe may concern a matter involving a violation of federal law falling within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI, or if you have information which you believe pertains to the D. Mystery skull will return to Northwest

FBI analysis showed it's not D.B. Cooper's

By GREGG HERRINGTON
Columbian staff writer

A skull discovered in an attic in Nebraska last June and briefly suspected of belonging to the infamous 1971 airplane hijacker D.B. Cooper is coming back from whence it originated: the Northwest.

But it's anybody's guess who will ultimately end up with the skull, unearthed in Klickitat County near the Columbia River in the early '80s and stored in the attic of a Cozad, Neb., home.

The skull was examined last summer at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington., D.C., where scientists concluded that it in no way could belong to the man who hijacked a Northwest Airlines plane and parachuted out over Cowlitz or Clark County with $200,000 in cash.

There are at least two reasons: It's the wrong sex and way too old.

The skull has been returned to the FBI lab in Washington, D.C.

That Thanksgiving Eve 1971 crime is the nation's only unsolved skyjacking. The male perpetrator, widely presumed to have died in the jump, never was found, although $5,800 of the cash was discovered in the sand along the Columbia River nine years later. But that's another story.

As for the skull from Klickitat County, Smithsonian scientists determined it belonged to an American Indian woman who lived and died long before airplanes were even invented, the FBI says.

Last week, the Seattle FBI office said it will be getting the skull back from the FBI lab to dispose of as it sees fit. Ray Laurer of the agency's Seattle office said the skull might go to the Klickitat County Sheriff's Office in Goldendale, not far from where it was found by Elsie Rodgers of Cozad during a trip through the area in the early '80s with her husband.

She brought it home and put it in a box in her attic. After she died in May this year, family members discovered it and notified authorities. At some point, as word spread among police and the press of the skull's discovery in Nebraska, someone in authority speculated aloud that, gee, it might belong to the highjacker known as D.B. or Dan Cooper.

Well, that got the attention of TV networks and other media for a few days, until authorities said it appeared to be far too old and the wrong sex. Now, that's the final scientific conclusion and the Smithsonian has sent it back to the FBI.

The only question remaining is where the skull will end up once it is shipped back to Washington state.

"Given that we no longer need it, we will determine whether to give it to the (American Indian) people or the sheriff," said Laurer. "If they (Indians) want to claim it, they'd have first priority."

He said both the Yakama and Umatilla nations have history in the area.

NOVEMBER 4, 2000 REF: D. B. COOPER

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
SUITE 400
1500 SOUTHWEST 1ST AVENUE
PORTLAND OR 97201-5828

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

I HAVE SEEN THE RE-ENACTMENT OF THE "SKY JACKING" BY THE MYSTERIOUS "D. B. COOPER" A NUMBER OF TIMES OVER THE YEARS.

EACH AND EVERY TIME I SEE THE ARTIST'S SKETCH OF THE PERPETRATOR, I AM REMINDED OF A MAN WHO LIVED HERE IN COLUMBUS YEARS AGO.

HIS NAME: [redacted] NR b6 b7C

HE WAS LIVING IN COLUMBUS, OHIO DURING AT LEAST PART OF THE 1960'S. HOW LONG BEFORE OR HOW LONG AFTER, I DON'T KNOW.

HE WAS MARRIED TO A WOMAN BY THE NAME OF [redacted] DURING SOME OF THIS TIME BUT I UNDERSTAND THEY WERE DIVORCED. b6 b7C

AS I INDICATED, THE ARTIST'S SKETCHES RESEMBLED HIS FACIAL FEATURES. HE WAS ABOUT 6'2" OR SO AND PROBABLY WEIGHED ABOUT 180 TO 190 LBS.

HE HAD SEVERAL HUNDRED PARACHUTE JUMPS TO HIS CREDIT AND WAS A PILOT. HE HAD SERVED IN KOREA AS A SMALL PLANE RECONNAISSANCE PILOT. HE WAS VERY KNOWLEDGEABLE ABOUT AIR CURRENTS, PLANES SPEEDS, AIR AT CERTAIN ALTITUDES, ETC.

HE WAS A DETERMINED TYPE AND SOMEWHAT FORWARD. HIS I.Q. MOST LIKELY WAS NOT TOO HIGH, PROBABLY 140-150. HE WAS A VERY CONFIDENT TYPE PERSON WHO MIGHT UNDERTAKE THE TASK OF HIGHJACKING A PLANE. HE WOULD HAVE MADE PLANS SIMILAR TO THOSE IMPLEMENTED IN THE INCIDENT. HE WOULD BE VERY NEARLY THE CORRECT AGE.

SOMETIME DURING THE 1960'S, PROBABLY DURING THE LAST HALF, HE MOVED TO CALIFORNIA. I HAVE NO IDEA WHAT HE DID THERE NOR DO I KNOW HOW LONG HE MAY HAVE STAYED. I DON'T KNOW WHERE HE MAY BE NOW.

IT IS ALSO POSSIBLE THAT HE COULD HAVE HAD HELP FROM A FRIEND BY THE NAME OF [redacted] [redacted] WAS A PILOT TOO. HE WAS INTELLIGENT, QUIET, AND QUITE METICULOUS ABOUT b6 b7C

ANYTHING HE UNDERTOOK. HE WAS A LICENSED PARACHUTE RIGOR AND HE TOO HAD MADE HUNDREDS OF JUMPS.

IF "COOPER" HAD ANY HELP ON THE GROUND [redacted] WOULD HAVE BEEN AN IDEAL ACCOMPLISE. [redacted] ACQUIRED A POSITION WITH THE [redacted] DURING THE LATER 60'S. b6 b7C

BOTH OF THESE MEN WOULD HAVE HAD "THE GUTS" TO NEGOTIATE SUCH A SCHEME. AND AS FAR AS I KNOW, NEITHER HAD A CRIMINAL RECORD, WHICH WOULD MAKE IT MORE DIFFICULT FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT.

I CANNOT SAY THAT I KNOW THAT EITHER ACTUALLY HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THE INCIDENT, BUT AS I SAID EARLIER, THE SKETCHES AND THE WAY THE SKY-JACKING WAS PERPETRATED, REMINDS ME VERY MUCH OF [redacted] b6 b7C

[redacted] WOULD HAVE BEEN BORN ABOUT [redacted] AND [redacted] ABOUT [redacted] OR SO.

Facts of Complaint

[redacted] prefaced his complaint by stating he is in poor health and wished to "clear his conscience". He then asked if the FBI was still looking for D.B. Cooper. He provided the following information:

Back in the 1970's he knew a man named [redacted] no identifying data known. [redacted] and the complainant were "fishing buddies" in Kelso, Washington. On one occasion when he visited [redacted] at his place in Kelso, the complainant noted that [redacted] had shaved his beard and his face (and body) was covered with scratches. Complainant joked that [redacted] looked just like D.B. Cooper (now that he had no beard). [redacted] did not react to this statement.

Facts of Complaint

[redacted] called to report that about two years after the 1971 skyjacking, he and three friends were fishing on Rife Lake near Mossy Rock, Washington. He advised that he hooked a box about fourteen inches square, tied in both directions with what appeared to be white nylon rope. As they attempted to pull the box into the boat his line broke and the box sunk to the bottom of the lake. At that point by the lake, the shore line consists of a cliff and other land that is very rugged. [redacted] reported that one of his friends noticed what appeared to be a parachute in a tree by the cliff. The next day he went to the Lewis County S.O. and reported what they saw. He stated that they just ignored him or didn't take him seriously.

'D.B. Cooper' pilot dies; William Scott never talked much about 1971 skyjacking

By Susan Gilmore
Seattle Times staff reporter

For 30 years, William "Scotty" Scott said little about the world's most famous skyjacking, shunning assorted authors and movie producers who came knocking at his door.

Mr. Scott piloted the Northwest Orient Airlines jet hijacked by the infamous "D.B. Cooper" on Thanksgiving Eve 1971. He died of prostate cancer Sunday at his home in Green Valley, Ariz., taking to the grave much of what he knew about that fateful night, said his wife, Frances.

"When he came home that night," she said, "he told his family about it, and that was the end of it. He was a very quiet man. Very reserved."

Only in recent years had he begun to talk about the skyjacking that perplexed the FBI and continues to rivet those who think Cooper may have survived the jump of 10,000 feet into the blackness of a storm over Southwest Washington.

Her husband was convinced Cooper died in the leap, said Frances Scott. "He felt he jumped into Lake Merwin (Cowlitz County) and got tangled up in dead trees and died," she said.

On the 25th anniversary of the heist, Mr. Scott spoke to a local pilots club; 200 people showed up, said his wife.

Mr. Scott was the captain of the Boeing 727 when a passenger under the name of Dan Cooper boarded in Portland for the short flight to Seattle. Midway, he passed a note to a flight attendant, saying he had a bomb and demanding $200,000.

DB Cooper-21552

When the plane landed in Seattle, the other passengers were evacuated, and the FBI gave the skyjacker the ransom money and the four parachutes he had requested.

Cooper then ordered the pilot to fly toward Mexico, but he jumped from the plane somewhere near the Columbia River. Despite years of searching, all that has been found is $5,800 unearthed along the north bank of the Columbia.

Mr. Scott never saw Cooper. "He was intent on flying the plane and being able to get people out of there alive and save the aircraft for Northwest," said his widow.

Little by little, she said, her husband had begun to talk about it the past few years. "It was good for him," she said. "In later years, he'd get mad at authors. Scotty would say, 'No, that's not the way it happened.' They weren't there; he was."

I presume this is still an open case as neither I nor any [redacted] If it is not still an open case, would you please advise when the case was closed and the reasons it was closed?

Some [redacted] believe there is a resemblence between him and the infamous D.B. Cooper. This idea surfaced again recently with the publication of an article dated 7/24/00 by U.S. News and World Report. While I do not believe that there is a resemblence (in either appearance or facts that I believe to be true about both persons), I was interested to read that the FBI had compared [redacted] fingerprints with some prints found on the plane.

Synopsis: To transmit recovered possible parachute to the Laboratory for analysis. For reference, the BUfile is 164-2111.

Package Copy: Being forwarded under separate cover is one apparent parachute (1B23) recovered from a bank of the Columbia River.

Details: The above apparent parachute was recovered by [redacted] [redacted] a resident of Washougal, Washington. [redacted] advised that in August 2000 he was in the Reed Island area of the Columbia River with his family digging in the sand. This item, which appears to be a parachute canopy, was recovered buried along the waterline. [redacted] provided this item to the FBI on August 2, 2001. It was noted that the canopy is still very wet and contains a large quantity of sand. During the review in Seattle small green markings were noted on the canopy. b6 b7C

As Seattle has no facility to properly dry an item this size, it was packed in paper and is being provided in a wet condition.

Of note, in February 1980, $5800 in currency identified with this hijacking was recovered from the Tena Bar area of the Columbia River, just south of Vancouver. A flow study commissioned by the FBI at that time determined that the money had likely been naturally deposited in that location and had probably flowed down the Washougal River or one of its tributaries. The Washougal River empties into the Columbia immediately down river (west) from Reed Island.

SENT 8-22-01 2:30PM VIA FEDEX 4193 1877 7227 POF

The parachutes utilized during this event are described as follows:

1. Backpack #1 : 28 foot, white nylon canopy, rip-stop material, material 1.1 ounce weight, flat circular military, non-steerable, white shrouds; harness was civilian luxury type, soft tan. Backpack was Navy type 6, sage green nylon.

2. Chest pack #1 : 24 foot, white nylon canopy, white nylon shrouds - 14' length model T-7A. Container was olive drab green, 10" x 14" x 6". "Norm D" inscribed on container.
