$6,000,000 SECRET HIDEOUT BUILT FOR ROOSEVELT IN MEXICO

Cost More Than the Restoration of the White House in Washington

Here are the Facts: On March 14 (1951) there appeared in the Los Angeles Times (believe it or not) a partial map of Mexico showing a spot known as Punta Penasco. Along with this article were shown pictures of a super palatial hideout which had been secretly built allegedly for Franklin Roosevelt but has luxurious appointments, a private air field, secret subways with access to the sea and readily available from every angle to those in possession of the proper information. The Times refers to it as an imposing palace, which cost at least $6,000,000. No satisfactory explanation has been given concerning the real purpose of this secret hideout.
A logical guess: Could it be that this was to become the super capital of the Western Hemisphere to be ruled over by F.D.R. as per the proposed agreement contained in the secret correspondence between Roosevelt and Stalin?
