~~Summary~~

Victims, [REDACTED] LILLIE BELLE ALLEN, deceased, all colored, report that LILLIE BELLE ALLEN was shot and killed by a group of white individuals at York, Pa., on 7/21/69. They stated that some of the group shooting at them appeared to be "troopers." Investigation at York, Pa., reflects racial disturbance broke out between group of Negroes and a group of white individuals on 7/17/69. On 7/20/69 a car containing Negroes is alleged to have driven through a white neighborhood; when leaving, Negroes concealed in the trunk of the vehicle sprayed the area with gunfire. On 7/21/69 victims drove on the same street, and when seeing a group of white individuals, one with a gun, the driver became frightened and stalled the motor in turning the car around to leave the area. LILLIE BELLE ALLEN got out of back seat to driver front seat and drive the car away when gunfire broke out which resulted in her death. Victims state one of the group had on matching grayish parka shirt and was wearing a white helmet. When seen, he was pushing a motorcycle. In view of his clothing, they felt he may have been a "trooper." Police in the community were wearing white helmets during the disturbance, and most were wearing bullet-proof vests as protection against sniper fire. AUSA, MDPa., feels no further investigation needed as investigation indicates individual referred to by the victims as a "trooper" was dressed different than the policemen at the time, and police apparently took no part in the shooting of the victim.

"Lillie Belle was sitting [redacted] and said she was going to try to get us out of there. She got out of the car and while standing by the front door she was shot. The first shot hit Lillie Belle and after the first shot, several more shots were fired at the car. No one else was hit by any other shots. Lillie Belle was taken to the hospital in York, Pa. and died approximately 1 1/2 hours after arrival at hospital.

"The shooting continued for at least 20-30 minutes. They would ~~cease~~ fire for a few seconds and then start firing again.

"When the shooting stopped for the last time I saw an red Army type truck drive up near our car. Two men in uniform approached our car. There was a third individual who remained in the truck. These individuals were dressed like policemen. They stopped the firing and called for an ambulance. The ambulance transported Lillie Belle to the hospital. We followed in the car part way. The car had the back window shot out, right rear tire shot, right wing glass shot out and several bullet holes in the trunk and right rear door.

[redacted] continued to the hospital.

"A detective from the York Police Department took statements from the four individuals involved.

However I told him I would not leave unless we had some protection. He arranged for a police escort back [redacted] before we left the hospital we learned from a doctor that Lillie Bell had passed away.

"The following morning, July 22, 1969, we went to the hospital to make arrangements for funeral services for Lillie Bell. The hospital directed us to Chapman's Funeral Home in York where we made arrangements to have Lillie Bell's body shipped to Aiken, S. C.

"That afternoon we came [redacted] and learned that a detective from the York Police Department had been to talk to us and left his card for us to come down to the station to talk to us. We went to the police station and talked to a Negro detective who told us that they were going to continue the investigation to determine what had happened.

"We left York, Pa. that afternoon (7/22/69) at approximately 4:30 P. M. and arrived back in Aiken, S. C. at approximately 8:30 A. M. on Wednesday (7/23/69).

"We came to the FBI Office in Columbia, S. C. today in order to tell our story for whatever assistance it might be. We are also concerned over the outcome of the investigation in York, Pa., why it happened and any other information that can be made available to us. We were not sure of what we could do about this situation, but thought perhaps the FBI could help us.

[redacted] York City Police Department, furnished the following information when interviewed:

A racial disturbance commenced in York, Pa., on July 17, 1969. This was mainly a disturbance between a group of Negroes and a group of white individuals. As a result of the gang incidents, the police department attempted to seal off two areas of town. One of the areas was around the 300 block of South Penn Street which is predominantly a colored section. The other area was around North Newberry Street, north of West Philadelphia Street, which is predominantly a white section of town.

On July 21, 1969, the department received information that a colored woman had been shot on North Newberry Street at approximately 9:15 p.m. The original information received was that she had been shot by a group of white individuals who resided in the area.

[redacted] stated that his department is not making a separate investigation of this incident; however, he is working with [redacted] of the Pennsylvania State Police in a joint investigation. He stated that no reports are being made by his department.

[redacted] stated there were reports that on July 20, 1969, an automobile occupied by Negroes traveled through the Newberry Street area, and at one point, the trunk opened up. When the trunk opened, Negroes who had been concealed therein sprayed the area with gunfire as the vehicle sped off. He understands there were white people wounded at this time; however, he has not been able to locate any reports of these injuries.

On July 21, 1969, LILLIE BELLE ALLEN, the colored female who was shot, was riding north on North Newberry Street with [redacted]

At this point, LILLIE BELLE ALLEN got out of the back seat behind the driver, to get in the driver's seat and drive the vehicle out of the area. As she reached the front door of the vehicle, gunfire broke out from the group, and she fell to the ground wounded in the right chest. She later died of this wound at the York Hospital.

b7C

[redacted] stated that all officers of the department are issued light blue crash-type helmets which they were wearing during the disturbance. Also, most officers were wearing bullet-proof vests as protection against sniper fire which was constantly being aimed at them.

[redacted] Pennsylvania State Police (PSP), furnished the following information when interviewed:

As a result of the recent racial disturbances in York, Pa., he is presently assigned to investigate some of the more serious matters that took place during the disturbances. One of the matters he is investigating is the murder of LILLIE BELLE ALLEN which happened on July 21, 1969. This investigation is being conducted under PSP Incident #H7-87357. To date, no report has been written in this matter and it is still under investigation. His investigation to date has disclosed the following facts:

On July 21, 1969, at approximately 9:15 p.m., LILLIE BELLE ALLEN was a passenger in a vehicle [redacted]

[redacted] Also passengers in this vehicle were [redacted]

LILLIE BELLE ALLEN was sitting in the back seat on the extreme left-hand side of the vehicle.

As the vehicle approached the Western Maryland Railroad tracks on North Newberry Street, [redacted] observed a gang of white individuals who were armed with guns and expressed fear that they would be shot. [redacted] turn the vehicle around; however, in [redacted] stalled the motor. At this point the vehicle was facing West on the railroad tracks and at the extreme Western side of the street. LILLIE BELLE ALLEN at this point, got out of the vehicle to come to the front seat and take the wheel when gunfire broke out striking her in the right chest. She later died of this wound at 9:50 p.m., at the York Hospital.

The bullet which was removed from her body was taken to the laboratory of the PSP at Harrisburg, Pa., where it was determined that it was only a portion of a rifle slug from a shotgun and from the appearance of the slug, it was evident that it had ricocheted from another object into her body.

The gunfire was allegedly caused by a gang of white youths from the North Newberry Street area who had a confrontation with a gang of Negro youths on July 17, 1969.

At this point in the investigation, he has not interviewed any of the other persons who were in the vehicle but has concentrated on attempting to learn the identities of the individuals who were in the white gang firing on the stalled vehicle. This investigation has developed the fact that on July 20, 1969, an automobile containing Negroes had driven down North Newberry Street and as it reached the area of the Western Maryland Railroad tracks, the trunk of the vehicle had suddenly opened and some Negroes in the trunk had sprayed the area with gunfire as the vehicle sped off. He understands that some white persons were injured by this gunfire; however, he does not know their identities.

[redacted] believes that this incident had the residents of the North Newberry Street area rather jumpy and when another vehicle occupied by Negroes turned around at the tracks and a Negro woman got out of the vehicle, the gang in the area believed they would be shot at from the trunk of this vehicle. He bases this part on the fact that the majority of the shots hitting the vehicle hit it in the right rear, particularly in the area of the trunk.

His investigation has determined that there were no city or state policemen in the immediate area where the vehicle was shot at and the closest officers were at the intersection of North Newberry and West Philadelphia Streets. Also, all PSP on riot duty in York, Pa., at the time were issued and wearing crash-type helmets, light blue in color. Most of the policemen after the first day or two of the disturbance, wore bullet proof vests as a protection against the sniper fire which they were constantly running into.

On August 5, 1969, the facts of this case were discussed with Assistant U.S. Attorney, Middle District of Pennsylvania (AUSA, MDPa.) CARLON O'MALLEY, who stated that in his opinion there was no need for further investigation. From the facts developed, the only thing that indicated a law enforcement officer was present in the white gang responsible for the shooting of LILLIE BELLE ALLEN was that an individual was wearing matching grayish pants and shirt and was wearing a helmet. This individual was not wearing a bullet proof vest as were the officers on the nearby corner and his helmet was different from that of either the PSP or the York City Police. Furthermore, this individual was not observed to be taking any action with the gang but when last observed, was actually walking away from the vehicle in which the victim was riding and had his back to the vehicle.

NOTE:

During shooting allegedly between blacks and whites in a racial disturbance, victim was shot and killed on 7/21/69. We did a preliminary investigation at request of Department as it was alleged that a "trooper" had been involved; however, investigation indicated policemen apparently took no part in shooting of victim. CRD now requests they be advised of any local prosecution arising out of shooting of victim.

The following is the result of a limited investigation:

[Redacted] the Detective Division, York Police Department, York, Pa., was contacted on December 30, 1969.

[Redacted] advised that his department in conjunction with the Pennsylvania State Police, York, Pa., is still continuing its investigation of the incident in which LILLIE BELLE ALLEN was fatally wounded by gunshot during racial violence at York, Pa., in July 1969. He said that there had been many people in the vicinity of the shooting, and it had not been possible to ascertain who might have shot her, and unless a witness comes forth and volunteers information as to who may have shot her, it is going to be nearly impossible to determine just who did shoot her. He said that so far no one among the numerous people questioned on this matter would admit seeing who had fired the shot at Mrs. ALLEN and other individuals with her in her car at the time of the shooting.

He said that he would be happy to advise of any new developments in this case as they might come up.

The following is the result of a limited investi- b7C gation.

[Redacted] York
Police Department, York, Pa., was advised on February 2, 1970, that investigation in this matter was at the specific request of Jerris Leonard, Assistant Attorney General, Civil Rights
Division, U. S. Department of Justice.

[Redacted] stated that his department was still investigating the incident in which Lillie Belle Allen was shot during racial violence at York, Pa., during the summer of 1969. He said that this investigation is a joint investigation with the Pennsylvania State Police but to date, no breaks in this matter have developed which would lead to the identity of the person or persons who shot Mrs. Allen.
He advised that he would be happy to advise of any new developments in this matter as they might occur.
