Enclosure(s): Enclosed for Washington Field/AMX-2/NVRA, are one (1) original and two (2) copies each of FD-302's documenting interviews of [REDACTED] on 07/28/2008, 07/29/2008 and 08/01/2008.

Details: Referenced serial requested Philadelphia to locate and interview the manager of the apartments located at [REDACTED] and obtain any background information regarding [REDACTED]. Also, locate and interview [REDACTED] and obtain information regarding [REDACTED] knowledge of the youtube.com postings and any contact/association with Bruce Edwards Ivins.

On 07/28/2008, while in the process of developing background information on [REDACTED] and prior to having conducted the interview, Philadelphia was advised of the urgent necessity to interview [REDACTED] that evening. Given the urgency of the situation, Philadelphia did not interview the manager of the apartment building in which [REDACTED] resides -

On 07/12/2008, agents and task force officers of the FBI Washington Field Office conducted searches of [redacted] registered under the names of BRUCE EDWARD IVINS [redacted]. The searches were authorized under the directorate of search warrants issued by U.S. Magistrate Judge Deborah Robinson, District of Columbia, and were conducted of: a red Dodge passenger van, bearing vehicle identification number (VIN) [redacted] a blue Saturn four door sedan, bearing VIN [redacted] and a blue Honda Civic 4 door sedan, bearing VIN [redacted].

At approximately 6:48 a.m. SA [redacted] SA [redacted] and Postal Inspector [redacted] met with SA [redacted] and SA [redacted] at the search site located at [redacted]. SA [redacted] provided PI [redacted] the keys for what SA [redacted] believed to be all three (3) of the named vehicles. The Dodge van and the Honda Civic were parked in the driveway of the residence of BRUCE [redacted] IVINS, [redacted] and the Saturn was parked in the parking lot of Ft. Detrick, U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases (USAMRIID), south of building 1425, off of Randall Street.

Upon arrival at the residence, the red Dodge van, Maryland license plate: [redacted] was parked on the north side of the asphalt driveway. The vehicle was unlocked. SA [redacted] verified the VIN# of the vehicle. SA [redacted] documented the vehicle's odometer reading as 123,530 miles. Photographs and a sketch were taken of the vehicle. At approximately 7:06 a.m. the search began. No evidence was recovered during the search; however, a bb gun and stamps were documented on the administrative log as being present in the vehicle. Neither the stamps nor the gun were seized. SA [redacted] placed a copy of the search warrant on the driver's seat of the van. The doors of the van were closed and left unlocked and the windows were rolled up. The search of the vehicle concluded at approximately 7:33 a.m.

At approximately 7:45 a.m., SA [redacted] SA [redacted] SA [redacted] and PI [redacted] began processing the Honda Civic. SA [redacted] verified the VIN# and SA [redacted] took photographs to document the condition of the vehicle prior to relocating the vehicle to an off-site location for the search. The vehicle was

Anthrax: Handwriting Analysis Refines Investigation Profile

A handwriting analyst has said the person responsible for last fall's anthrax attacks is a white, middle-aged man with a bipolar disorder and a martyr complex and who suffers from sexual dysfunction, the Washington Times reported today (see GSN, April 10).

"At this point, the FBI investigation has been focused on people who have had access to anthrax," said Mark Smith, a handwriting analyst who is familiar with the letters included in the anthrax attacks. "Taking into account the possibility that these characteristics are inherent in the makeup of the perpetrator could greatly reduce the size of the investigation."

The FBI requested Smith's assistance soon after last fall's anthrax attacks, he said. The FBI did not comment on Smith's handwriting analysis of the anthrax letters, according to the Times.

The uniform and pronounced curving of the writing in the anthrax letters indicates that the person who wrote them likely has bipolar disorder, Smith said.

"(The sender) probably wrote these letters on a manic high, triggered by the Sept. 11 attacks," he said.

The style of the writing also indicates that the person behind the attacks could suffer from some form of sexual dysfunction, according to Smith.

"Anything below the baseline, such as the loops in the letters 'y' and 'g,' traditionally gives insight into sexual characteristics," he said. "In the case of the anthrax letters, there's nothing below the baseline. ... It means there is nothing happening in the sexual zone of the writing, which leads me to believe the anthrax sender is sexually dysfunctional."

The use of block letters could indicate the age of the letter sender because it is a style taught to children from the late 1940s to the mid-1960s, Smith said. The use of all capital letters indicates the sender was trying to demonstrate a sense of power, which is connected with a martyr complex, he added.

Investigators have to be cautious when analyzing the handwriting used in the anthrax letters, however, because there was an obvious attempt to disguise the writing, said handwriting analyst Roger Rubin.

"It's very difficult to pierce the veil of personality when somebody could be trying to disguise themselves," Rubin said. "It's like looking at a mask on a person's face and analyzing the mask instead of the person underneath it" (Guy Taylor, Washington Times, March 18).

Hatfill to undergo blood test for FBI

THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Published 8/28/2002

The attorney for Steven J. Hatfill says the FBI has asked the former Army researcher, who has been named a "person of interest" in the government's anthrax probe, to submit blood and handwriting samples to investigators.

"The FBI has asked for a handwriting sample and a blood sample. The neat thing is that Hatfill is the one who had to tell them the kind of [blood] test that they need to be doing," Mr. Hatfill's attorney, Victor M. Glasberg, told The Washington Times yesterday.

Mr. Glasberg said he expects the FBI will be able to determine by tomorrow whether Mr. Hatfill's handwriting matches that on the anthrax letters sent in the fall to media outlets in Florida and New York and to two senators on Capitol Hill. The anthrax attacks killed five persons.

Mr. Glasberg said that if the bureau does not make public its analysis of Mr. Hatfill's handwriting within "about five days," Mr. Hatfill will submit samples to a private handwriting analyst who has offered to examine them.

The FBI declined to confirm whether blood or handwriting samples have been sought. "Any handwriting samples and results of any scientific or forensic examinations are evidence, which we don't discuss," said Chris Murray, spokesman for the bureau's Washington field office, which is leading the government's anthrax probe.

A new suspicious letter appeared this week at the Nashville, Tenn., offices of former Vice President Al Gore.

Jano Cabrera, a spokesman for Mr. Gore, said the letter was received in the mail Monday. It was opened yesterday by office manager Mary Patterson, and white powder spilled when the letter was opened. The room where the letter was opened has been quarantined, and a hazardous-materials team is investigating.

The envelope was postmarked from Tennessee and was stamped on the back with "This letter has not been inspected by the corrections department."

Steve Hayes, Tennessee Department of Correction spokesman, said it is regular policy to stamp letters that haven't been inspected as being sent from a correctional facility. He said the wording the department uses is different from that on the letter.

On Sunday, Mr. Hatfill said he would voluntarily submit a blood test to the FBI to confirm whether he had been exposed or inoculated against anthrax. It was not clear at that time whether the FBI would accept the offer.

Mr. Hatfill told reporters the blood test was his idea and the fact that the FBI had not yet asked him to submit samples indicated the government's unfamiliarity with conducting such a scientific investigation.

Mr. Glasberg said yesterday he wanted the results of any blood work or handwriting analysis to be widely publicized to help exonerate his client. He said he was considering an offer made by Virginia-based handwriting analyst Mark Smith to examine Mr. Hatfill's handwriting.

Mr. Smith in April told The Times that federal law enforcement authorities had solicited his services immediately after October's anthrax attacks. Upon analyzing the letters, he said the person sending them was a white, middle-aged man who suffers from bipolar disorder, a sexual dysfunction and a martyr complex.

The Anthrax Files

14. <http://www.mediapost.com/get/fullstory.html?tag=0402E7D81020E021A75754C0A0640C8B62&sec=&snop=&> 8/4/2008

I found a local policeman in Columbus willing to dig out his file on that 1999 anthrax hoax. There are several similarities with last fall's mailing. For example, one page of the 1999 letter says, in big, bold capitals: "WARNING: THIS BUILDING AND EVERYTHING IN IT HAS BEEN EXPOSED TO ANTHRAX. CALL 911 NOW AND SECURE THE BUILDING. OTHERWISE THE GERM WILL SPREAD."

Last fall's letters are also in bold capitals and use similar language patterns.

In contrast to the 1997 package with fake anthrax gelatin, the 1999 letters each contained a teaspoon of fake anthrax powder (roughly the same amount as of real anthrax in 2001). That's interesting because as of 1997, U.S. bio-defense scientists were working basically only with wet anthrax, while by 1999 some had experimented with making powders.

For example, Mr. Z apparently learned about powders during those two years. His 1999 résumé adds something missing from the 1997 version: "working knowledge of wet and dry BW [biological warfare] agents, large-scale production of bacterial, rickettsial and viral BW pathogens and toxins."

Two outside consultants used by the F.B.I. to examine documents in the anthrax case, Don Foster and Mark Smith, both say they have not been shown the 1997 or 1999 hoax letters. The 1999 envelopes carried stamps, which may have been licked.

It would be fascinating to know whose DNA that is. Perhaps when the F.B.I. is finished defending itself from charges of lethargy, it will check.

The Pursuit of Steven Hatfill

By Marilyn W. Thompson

Sunday, September 14, 2003; Page W06

He says he's a patriot, and some on the front lines of the war against terror sing his praises. But his provocative life and career have kept him at the center of the FBI's frustrating hunt for the anthrax killer.

It couldn't be Steve Hatfill. No way.

Stan Bedlington had known the guy for several years. They were drinking buddies who'd both been involved in anti-terrorism efforts long before the World Trade Center crumbled. Now, suddenly, people were saying that Hatfill could be responsible for the country's first case of domestic bioterrorism, a release of lethal anthrax through the mail that had left five people dead and 17 others infected in the fall of 2001. The FBI had just searched Hatfill's apartment in Frederick, looking for traces of anthrax spores or anything else that might tie the scientist to the attack.

Bedlington hadn't seen Hatfill for a while, but he still had vivid memories of him. They'd first met at a Baltimore bioterrorism conference. Bedlington, a retired CIA agent, had spent six years as a senior analyst with the CIA Counter-terrorism Center. Hatfill was working as a virology researcher at the U.S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases at Fort Detrick, where he'd begun making a name for himself preaching the dangers of a bioterror attack.

Soon they ran into each other again at Charley's Place in McLean, then a favorite hangout for the U.S. intelligence community. Agents and officials from the CIA and Pentagon mingled with private consultants and law enforcement agents. Most were cleared to handle classified information, but after long workdays and a few drinks, the conversation often veered to tales of dark intrigue and, occasionally, into drunken bluster.

Hatfill, who first showed up there with men whom Bedlington recognized as bodyguards for Saudi Arabian Prince Bandar bin Sultan, had plenty of stories to tell.

He bragged about being an ex-Green Beret. He walked with a slight limp and told people it was the result of being shot during combat. In a convincing British accent that he could turn on at will, he described parachute jumps and commando training he did under the direction of the British Special Air Service. He detailed his exploits as a member of the Selous Scouts, an elite counterinsurgency unit of Rhodesia's white supremacist army that became notorious for brutality during that country's civil war. He even recounted a devastating outbreak of anthrax poisoning in the Rhodesian bush in the late 1970s, an event later suspected to be part of an effort by the Selous Scouts to control guerrilla uprisings.

Hatfill was always a little over the top. He once brandished a photo Bedlington considered "a little bit weird" -- an image of Hatfill in a biohazard suit pretending to cook up germs in a saucepan. Hatfill also described how easy it would be for a terrorist to enter the Pentagon in a wheelchair and spray a biological agent. Even so, Bedlington was impressed by Hatfill. He considered him a "superpatriot" committed to improving U.S. preparedness for a biological attack. He mentioned Hatfill to a CIA recruiter as an ideal candidate for a clandestine operations job.

After Hatfill's name surfaced in the anthrax case in the summer of 2002, Bedlington kept wondering: Did he really know

LIFE

His supporters compare him to Richard Jewell, the man falsely accused in the 1996 Atlanta Olympics bombing case, one of the greatest embarrassments in the FBI's modern history.

Hatfill insists he is innocent and, in a lawsuit filed last month, accused Ashcroft and the FBI of engaging in a "patently illegal campaign of harassment" to cover up their own failure to solve the case. The violations of his civil rights and privacy, Hatfill contends in his 40-page lawsuit, "are not honest mistakes. They are the acts of government agents who long ago chose expedience over principle and abandoned any pretense of concern for the constitutional rights of an American citizen."

The FBI, the lawsuit charges, has wiretapped Hatfill's phones, made it impossible for him to work and leaked information about him to the news media "in a highly public campaign to accuse Dr. Hatfill without formally naming him a suspect or charging him with any wrongdoing."

Hatfill's wish is simple, his attorney Thomas G. Connolly said in a press conference announcing the suit. "He wants his life back."

Whether that's possible depends on how the FBI resolves a single question: Who is the real Steven Jay Hatfill? Is he the zealous patriot so expert at preparing U.S. troops and agents for biowarfare that agencies risked security breaches to use his services? Or is he a contemptuous "catch-me-if-you-can" criminal, whose offhand comments to an associate had sent agents in hard hats and knee boots scouring a Frederick mud pit, desperately searching for clues?

The first to die was Robert Stevens, a South Florida photo editor whose blood was swimming with a bacteria that most doctors had seen only in medical textbooks. Cause of death: inhalation anthrax, the most fatal and rare form of the diseases caused by B. anthracis, the anthrax bacteria.

Within two days of Stevens's death on October 5, 2001, doctors discovered a second inhalation anthrax case at a Miami hospital. The victim, Ernesto Blanco, turned out to be a mailroom worker and friend of Bob Stevens at the Boca Raton headquarters of American Media Inc., publisher of the National Enquirer.

Although the letter that sickened them both was never found, Stevens's mail slot tested positive for anthrax contamination.

Soon letters laced with anthrax began turning up in other places, first at the offices of the New York Post and NBC News anchor Tom Brokaw, then, on October 15, at the Capitol Hill office of Sen. Tom Daschle. The letter to Daschle ended with the message: "Death to America. Death to Israel. Allah is Great." At the time, the nation was still reeling from the September 11 attacks on New York and Washington. Many terrorism experts feared another attack, perhaps the release of a biological agent.

Now the country held its breath as others who had come into contact with the letters began to fall ill. The scope of the contamination was astonishing. The letter to Daschle and another to Vermont Sen. Patrick Leahy had rolled through high-speed sorting machines at huge East Coast postal centers, including the Brentwood distribution center in Northeast D.C., where two workers, Joseph P. Curseen and Thomas L. Morris Jr., died of inhalation anthrax. (Brentwood was shut down on October 21, 2001, and has yet to reopen.) Fine anthrax powder — weaponized and lethal — had rained over millions of pieces of mail. Spores surfaced at the U.S. Supreme Court, at Howard University, at the Stamp Fulfillment Services building in Kansas City, Mo., at the U.S. Embassy in Vilnius, Lithuania, at an accounting firm in Mercerville, N.J., at the main post office in West Palm Beach, Fla.

No one felt entirely safe from one of the most deadly germs known to man.

The FBI first began to pursue the obvious, whether al Qaeda operatives were behind the anthrax release. Then investigators received the first DNA analysis of the anthrax spores found inside American Media's offices. The results were startling.

Fort George G. Meade, MD 20755

Sir,

The following information, although unclassified, is extremely sensitive due to its high profile in the media. As such, it is requested that this communication receive limited dissemination.

FBI, Washington Field Office, is requesting your assistance in support of FBI Major Case #184; AMERITHRAX. The AMERITHRAX Task Force investigates the September and October of 2001, series of mailings containing Bacillus anthracis (Ba) spores, the causative agent of anthrax. The Ba-laden letters were mailed to: Editor, New York Post, New York, New York; Tom Brokaw, NBC TV, New York, New York; Senator Daschle, Washington, D.C.; and Senator Leahy, Washington, D.C. Although no letter was recovered, it is believed the American Media Incorporated building in Boca Raton, Florida, also received a Ba-laden letter due to an anthrax-related fatality and extensive building contamination.

As indicated by the statements of the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, Jeffrey Taylor, and FBI Assistant Director, Joseph Persichini of the FBI Washington Field Office, Dr. Bruce Edwards Ivins, date of birth 4/22/1946, SSAN 280-44-5449, was the primary subject of the investigation before his death.

The FBI, in order to complete the investigation despite the death, request information pertaining to Dr. Ivins's Army Knowledge Online (AKO) account. Relevant information would include any and all saved e-mails, files, documents, photographs and any other activities that can be associated with Dr. Ivins's use of the account.

Thank you for your attention and cooperation with this matter. If you have any questions, please contact Inspector in Charge, [redacted]

Respectfully,

John G. Perren [redacted]

[redacted] Detective Sergeant for the Criminal Investigative Division of the Frederick Police Department, was interviewed via telephone. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

b6
b7c

[redacted] was present at Fort Detrick on July 10, 2008, when BRUCE IVINS was taken into custody by the Frederick Police Department for an emergency petition for a psychological evaluation. [redacted] personally examined IVINS' wallet for signs of weapons or contraband. No weapons or contraband was observed.
He described the wallet as being approximately one and a half inches thick and containing a large number of items including: a driver's license, credit cards, business cards, an unknown amount of currency and numerous pieces of paper with what appeared to be handwriting. On July 12, 2008, the interviewing agent executed a search warrant on IVINS and his belongings, documented in 279A-WF-222936-BEI serial 313, at which time a minimal number of items were observed in IVIN's wallet.

On July 31, 2008, Reporting Agent met with [redacted] [redacted] Systems Administrator Frederick County Public Libraries (FCPL), and [redacted] Last Name Unknown (LNU), technical staff employee for the FCPL, at their place of employment, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland. The Reporting Agent advised [redacted] and [redacted] LNU of the FBI's interest in reviewing the hard-drives of two library computers. Reporting Agent displayed a rough sketch indicating the location of the two computers. The computers were located on the second floor of the C. Burr Artz Library, stations #54 and #41. [redacted] stated, station #54 was an express computer, meaning anyone may access the internet at this station without logging on. There is a time limit of 15 minutes at the express stations. After 15 minutes the computer automatically logs the user off. The express stations are intended for use by out-of-townners or people without library cards. The computer at station #41 requires the use of a library card to log on and there is no time limit for this type of station.

A short time later, Reporting Agent asked FCPL Library [redacted] to join the meeting. Reporting Agent listed possible options for [redacted] in order of preference: (1) release the computers to the FBI in order for FBI computer specialists to examine the hard-drives, (2) allow FBI computer specialists to review the computer hard-drives at the library, or (3) have the library technical support staff mirror the hard drives and provide the data to the FBI. [redacted] asked [redacted] LNU their opinions, at which pointed they both stated, they prefer the computers be released to the FBI, in order to remain out of the loop. [redacted] agreed and verbally consented to releasing the computers located at stations #54 and #41.

Reporting Agent observed [redacted] and [redacted] LNU remove the computer towers from stations #54 and #41. The computer towers were taken to their office on the first floor for storage. Reporting Agent advised [redacted] the computer towers would be picked up at a later time and an FD-597 Property Receipt would be provided.

Approximately one hour later, Reporting Agent returned to the C. Burr Artz Library and picked up the aforementioned computer towers. The FD-597 Property Receipt was signed and a copy was

Dr. Bruce Edwards Ivins

As originally published on Thursday, July 31, 2008.

Dr. Bruce Edwards Ivins, 62, of Frederick, died Tuesday, July 29, 2008, at Frederick Memorial Hospital. He was the husband of Diane Ivins, they were married for 33 years.

Born April 22, 1946, in Lebanon, OH, he was the son of the late Thomas Randall and Mary Johnson Knight Ivins.

Dr. Ivins was a scientist for 36 years, at USAMRIID at Fort Detrick. He was a member of the American Red Cross, Frederick County Chapter. He also was a parishioner at St. John's the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church, in Frederick where he was as a musician for many years for church services. Dr. Ivins was a wonderful father to his kids.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his son, Andy Ivins; his daughter, Amanda Ivins; and two brothers, Tom and C.W. Ivins.

A memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, August 9, at St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church, 118 E. Second Street, Frederick. Officiating will be the Rev. Richard J. Murphy. Interment will be private. Reception will be provided at the church parish hall after the service.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to American Red Cross, Frederick County Chapter, P.O. Box 186, Walkersville, MD 21793.

Arrangements are being handled by Keeney and Basford Funeral Home, 106 E. Church St., Frederick. Online condolences may be shared with the family at www.keeneybasford.com.

Born April 22, 1946, in Lebanon, OH, he was the son of the late Thomas Randall and Mary Johnson Knight Ivins.

Dr. Ivins was a scientist for 36 years, at USAMRIID at Fort Detrick. He was a member of the American Red Cross, Frederick County Chapter. He also was a parishioner at St. John's the Evangelist Roman Catholic Church, in Frederick where he was as a musician for many years for church services. Dr. Ivins was a wonderful father to his kids.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his son, Andy Ivins; his daughter, Amanda Ivins; and two brothers, Tom and C.W. Ivins.

A memorial service will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, August 9, at St. John the Evangelist Catholic Church, 118 E. Second Street, Frederick. Officiating will be the Rev. Richard J. Murphy. Interment will be private. Reception will be provided at the church parish hall after the service.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to American Red Cross, Frederick County Chapter, P.O. Box 186, Walkersville, MD 21793.

Arrangements are being handled by Keeney and Basford Funeral Home, 106 E. Church St., Frederick. Online condolences may be shared with the family at www.keeneybasford.com.

[redacted] was interviewed at [redacted] home located at [redacted]. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

b6
b7c

[redacted] stated [redacted] heard of a hit-list created by BRUCE IVINS (BRUCE), [redacted] who in turn heard it from [redacted] BRUCE's psychiatrist. [redacted] had called [redacted] regarding BRUCE. The hit-list supposedly had [redacted] name on it as well as FBI Agents, although no FBI Agents were named specifically. [redacted] could not provide any further information as [redacted] was the only one privileged to the conversation. [redacted] does know that BRUCE had a breakdown at an AA meeting and what he said caused him to be arrested.

[redacted] received a call from BRUCE on July 12, 2008, the Saturday after his meeting, it was around 11:00am or 12:00pm [redacted]. BRUCE told [redacted] "what the agents are looking for, they will never find." The call lasted for approximately 30 to 45 seconds. At the time of the call, BRUCE was a patient at the Sheppard Pratt psychiatric hospital in Baltimore, Maryland and a search of BRUCE's home was underway. That same day [redacted] received a second call from BRUCE on July 14th or 15th asking for [redacted]. [redacted] did not provide BRUCE the address.

[redacted] believed that [redacted] didn't visit BRUCE while he was at Sheppard Pratt. [redacted] heard from [redacted]

[redacted] was upset by this assessment and did not think BRUCE should have been released. [redacted] went to Sheppard Pratt on the day he was discharged and made it clear that BRUCE needed long term care.

After BRUCE left Sheppard Pratt, he was supposed to have follow-up care during the day, and with a new Doctor, not [redacted]. BRUCE wasn't set to have a follow-up until August 11, 2008. [redacted] believed BRUCE's therapist, [redacted] knew BRUCE best. [redacted] seemed to be the only one that could get into his head and understand him. [REDACTED] had even spoken with [REDACTED]

BRUCE was released from Sheppard Pratt on Thursday, July 24th. On Friday, July 25th, [REDACTED] BRUCE was in a good mood and [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] didn't know until Sunday afternoon, July 27th, that BRUCE had been admitted to Frederick Memorial Hospital. [REDACTED] heard from a friend who was driving up Military Road during the early morning hours, Sunday morning, and saw the emergency vehicles. [REDACTED] heard BRUCE had overdosed on Tylenol and Valium, however, [REDACTED] didn't know how much he took. BRUCE had kidney and liver damage and he was going to die. As of the night of July 28, 2008, BRUCE had 24 to 48 hours to live. He had not come out of the coma, [REDACTED] he didn't leave a note. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] provided the Interviewing Agents copies of [REDACTED] message [REDACTED] between [REDACTED] and BRUCE. [REDACTED] stated [REDACTED] did not have all of the communications because [REDACTED] deleted some by accident. [REDACTED] thought that BRUCE was mad at [REDACTED] because of some of the emails. In one of the communications, [REDACTED] indicated that [REDACTED]

KingBadger7: good evening

[redacted] hi

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

b6
b7c

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] no

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] it is!

KingBadger7: I'll let you go. I stayed in bed today - didn't feel very good.
[redacted] sorry to hear that

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] that is strange!

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] indeed!

KingBadger7: Maybe I'll be a greeter at WalMart or something.

[redacted] SOUNDS LIKE A GOOD PLAN

KingBadger7: I can get even more senile and still do my job.

[redacted] just need to smile

KingBadger7: ...and not sleep on the job.

[redacted] you can sleep as long as you smile

KingBadger7: Good idea! Maybe my ashes can be spread into a big smiley face!!!

[redacted] and where shall we spread this smiley face?

KingBadger7: Just not at Fort Detrick. I am soooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooooo tired of working there.

[redacted] HOW MANY YEARS?

KingBadger7: Since 1980.

KingBadger7: Things were fine until [redacted] took over and then [redacted] They are micromangagers, and the latter drive me up a wall.

[redacted] that is always very difficult

KingBadger7: [redacted] had more independence in what they were doing than I did. I had to answer directly to the two men, and [redacted] deliberately wrote in terrible handwriting so that I would have to knock on his door, be invited in, and beg him to translate his gobbledygook.

[redacted] that is awful

KingBadger7: [redacted] told me what experiments to do, then demanded I show him all the results. I was like a highschool summer student to him.

[redacted] that is sad after all those years!

KingBadger7: If it's not important to [redacted] it's not important. He never did anything about [redacted] [redacted] then he did something. Otherwise, he'd shrug it off, since it didn't matter to him.

[redacted] wow! nasty

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: You don't know the half of it!!!! [redacted] He was brilliant, angry, full of rage and violence, but as long as he did [redacted] wanted him to do, it didn't matter what he did to everyone else.

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] I look up lots of people on the internet.

[redacted] what made you think of him tonight?

KingBadger7: THinking about how USAMRIID has gone downhill, thinking about [redacted] about anything or anyone that doesn't directly affect him [redacted]

[redacted] ouch!

when is retirement? are you close?

KingBadger7: During Desert Storm (first one), [redacted]

[redacted] Lovely person to work for!

I retire on 2 SEP of this year. Hooray.

KingBadger7: .

KingBadger7: I can hardly wait.

[redacted]
KingBadger7: Yeah. I think lots of people will be happy to see me go and out of their lives

[redacted] so you have any ideas what you want to do? I think I would like to sleep for a year [redacted] maybe you [redacted] can travel...see the world!!!!

KingBadger7: Well...A lot of people will not want to come to any retirement party. [redacted]

[redacted] They just want me to disappear.

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] that is sad! why would you think they wouldn't want to come to your party

[redacted] besides [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted] REALLY PED at me, probably forever. [redacted]

People at work don't like the vibes I give off. That's why I need new start.

[redacted] why are they mad at you [redacted]

[redacted] what vibes??? are you radioactive ☺

KingBadger7: Things that happened within the last few weeks or months.

[redacted]
KingBadger7: There's this one guy who thinks he's big stuff who goes around and says things to me like, "Hi!, how's the anthrax killer?" HA!!!! He also sent me a letter from Trenton that he thought was funny. I didn't.

Yeah. [redacted] I apologized, but that's not nearly enough.

[redacted] does [redacted] know

KingBadger7: The other guy goes around saying how he's going to punch the FBI in the nose.

I shouldn't bring [redacted] into that part of the conversation. Sorry.

[redacted] ok

KingBadger7: I don't know what [redacted]

[redacted] just wonder if [redacted] is really true it is driving me crazy

[redacted] or was is a misunderstanding in reading an email

[redacted] ugh!

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] then where in the world did this originate?

KingBadger7: That's what makes me feel especially bad about the whole thing. I started an untrue rumor and hurt many people, for which I am truly sad.

[redacted] you certainly seemed adamant about it a few months ago

KingBadger7: It's been so long ago - years - that I can't remember. It may have been just bantering back and forth between me and a bunch of women, with them ganging up on me as usual. Well...I was wrong. [redacted]

KingBadger7: It honestly did get on my nerves when [redacted] at work got on my case about everything.

[redacted] you should have told them that

[redacted] also why in the world would you have [redacted] to me a few months ago if you didn't know for sure that it was true

KingBadger7: Besides, how would I know anything about [redacted] personal life anyway? I wouldn't, so I should never have put 2 + 2 together to get 5.

I once asked why they all made fun of me and ridiculed me so much, and they said it was because I was so easy to make fun of.

[redacted] honesty is very important to me!

[redacted] that is sad you should have told them to stop

KingBadger7: I hope sincere grief and apologies are also important.

KingBadger7: I don't know what caused me to say something in the IM about that. Maybe I just felt so abandoned and betrayed that she no longer wished to even say hi that I decided to say something so cruel and untrue. I don't believe that [redacted]

[redacted] did you ever say anything to the FBI [redacted]
KingBadger7: I'm not allowed to say what conversations came up. Besides [redacted] I can tell you that I never told any investigators that [redacted]

[redacted] ok I just hate a web of deceit

KingBadger7: The bottom line is that [redacted]

[redacted] was such a confidante for so many years, then I got dropped like a hot potato.

[redacted] so you never saw an email between [redacted] about this was all made up?

KingBadger7: I guess a combination of anger, regret, sorry, loss, etc. all contributed to a very poor and cruel decision on my part.

[redacted]
KingBadger7: [redacted] was always pulling my leg about things. When [redacted] came up with the ideas, and [redacted] carried them out.

KingBadger7: Well regardless what [redacted] says, I believe [redacted]

[redacted] sounds like you still have a lot of anger maybe I should chat with [redacted]
then I can close this issue

KingBadger7: I have a lot of sadness. It's about losing [redacted] people I considered friends, and I lost them over my own cruel words. I think that we should just leave the subject at [redacted] being truthful, and me being thoughtless and unkind. I can't apologize enough for that. Just believe [redacted] I wish we could have stayed pleasant confidantes. When I didn't get invited to the [redacted] figured I was on [redacted] bad side. Then when I got the email about [redacted] I was so taken aback I didn't know what to do.

KingBadger7: I hope if you ever found out who said that about [redacted] you told them the truth.

KingBadger7: I think the best thing to do is not to talk to anybody else about the subject, but just tell [redacted] that you believe [redacted] and that I will forever regret my cruel and untrue comments about [redacted] I hope someday [redacted] can forgive.

[redacted] I guess I will always wonder about the real truth ok I have an early meet tomorrow so talk to you later

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: [REDACTED] I'm being lazy.

[REDACTED] lazy is good!

KingBadger7: I'm going to go up soon and read myself to sleep. ☺

KingBadger7: I have to look for a place to work soon.

[REDACTED] that should not be a problem

[REDACTED] you have experience!

[REDACTED] plus aren't you suppose to be a bum for awhile after retirement

KingBadger7: White hat experience - not black hat experience.

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: I remember changing a faucet and plumbing fixture in our bathroom, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] sad that you have so many unhappy memories

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: [REDACTED]

KingBadger7: I'm not made of money. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: Enough grouching. I think I'll go read.
[REDACTED]

KingBadger7: I'm getting in a bad mood just talking about it. Sorry. I hope you have a fine evening. Good night!!!

[REDACTED] bye

b6
b7C

[redacted] then what in the world were you talking about when you told me about [redacted] what was to gain

KingBadger7: [redacted] have a tough time - they have to allow privacy on the one hand - and they can't allow abuse of government property (pornography or chain letters, for example) on the other. We're sort of caught in the middle. Believe me, the 3-letter people have read every keystroke I've ever typed.

[redacted] are you now being honest or just trying to [redacted] I am still puzzled

[redacted] because you said you saw the email

[redacted] oh well I guess someday I will have to talk to [redacted] something just doesn't seem right.... the puzzle pieces don't quite fit together

KingBadger7: Whoa, [redacted] I can tell you right now that 1) I don't know anything about [redacted] and 2) wouldn't have any way of knowing [redacted] I obviously can't sit down and say . [redacted]

[redacted] YOU are the one who said [redacted]

KingBadger7: I would believe [redacted] that would be one thing. But [redacted] was [redacted] you keep avoiding the issue of YOU [redacted]

[redacted] It's hard to forget your disclosure of [redacted] that day

KingBadger7: Remember that walking by somebody's computer and looking to see if you've been called the "black cloud" - which is what they called me, is an instant thing. [redacted]

[redacted] - in an email as I'm walking by, I'm not going to stay STOP! let me read that! So...yes I saw reference to it, but never saw the words that [redacted] would say that you should t

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] so you made it all up??? hmmmmm I still have (printed) the conversation from that day [redacted] best to drop this subject it makes me crazy!

KingBadger7: Plus - in my wonderful mental state - alcohol and pills, and being considered in the "Top Tier" of bad guys in the anthrax attacks, I would put little credibility in what I say. Now I'm sane. Then....well, you saw [redacted]

[redacted] yes id did but when you told me about [redacted] is was not crazy it was quite direct KingBadger7: The whole thing since 9-11 has been a nightmare for me. I grieve for the victims of the plane crashes into the buildings, for the victims in PA and at the Pentagon, for the victims of the anthrax attacks, and for the victims of the Oklahoma city bombing. Such sadness.

KingBadger7: Hi!

KingBadger7: Wonder where [redacted] is?

[redacted] I have no clue

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] possibly

KingBadger7: I didn't see one.

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] I love new things I want a gadget that will clean my house program it in the morning and let it go

KingBadger7: [redacted] have one of those robot sweepers that go everywhere and pick up all the dirt, and when they bump into something, they go in another direction

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] oh well in my next life I am going to be a house cat

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] yup

KingBadger7: Cat - sounds good.

[redacted] sleep all day and hiss at anyone who bothers me..... I love it KingBadger7: Yeah, but the food from the can everyday would get old. Fast!

[redacted] as long as I don't have to prepare it... I would love it

[redacted] I get soooooo tired of cooking

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] ???

KingBadger7: [redacted]

KingBadger7: [redacted]

[redacted] I did?

KingBadger7: Yep! When we were talking about drinking.

KingBadger7: I still don't understand why [redacted] and you got involved, when it was a [redacted] and I would have been fine.

[redacted] you involved us

KingBadger7: Would you like my situation?

KingBadger7: Oh - yeah [redacted] I heard a story in group tonight about blackout behavior - very scary. I sit beside this old guy who always tries to lead the conversation to his Wisdom. ☺

KingBadger7: But I couldn't understand why [redacted] enough to be done with me forever!!!!

[redacted] so if you would have been done with forever, would you have "been fine?"

[redacted] interesting use of words

b6
b7c

KingBadger7: There was no intention for that! Blackouts are terrible, it's not like sleeping, it's doing, then wondering what the *&^% you did the next day. All the meds, as well as the vodka were very effective at blackouts

[redacted] so the rest of us ignorant beings had no clue you were drining or having blackouts what were we suppose to think receive this horrible email and ignore it???

hmmm some friend

On July 30, 2008, Amerithrax Task Force personnel met with [redacted] Frederick County Public Libraries, at his place of employment, 110 East Patrick Street, Frederick, Maryland. Task Force personnel advised [redacted] that they were looking at a subject who used two of the computers within C. Burr Artz Library on July 24, 2008 between 7:15pm and 8:15pm. Task Force personnel requested permission to take the computer towers to review the hard-drives. [redacted] advised that a court order would be needed. The Reporting Agent explained to [redacted] that extenuating circumstances existed, specifically, the individual who used the library computers was dead and it was possible evidentiary information may be stored in the hard-drives. [redacted] understood the exigency of the situation and advised Task Force personnel to return the following day to meet with the library's technical support staff.

During the course of the investigation, members of the AMERITHRAX Task Force have learned that Ivins has a history of using multiple screen names and e-mail accounts when interacting with individuals. Ivins also has a history of using fictitious names, addresses and other information to register for e-mail accounts. Ivins, in the past, has been known to use Yahoo!, America Online (AOL) and other e-mail accounts.

Based on the above mentioned information, a WEB search was conducted for the term "BRUCEIVI" on 07/15/2008. The search returned a link to a youtube.com posting of a video clip of season 1 of "The Mole." Also posted on the link are multiple web log comments by an individual using the screen name "bruceivi." The comments were posted as follows:

bruceivi (1 week ago)

Steve had a great chance to Kill Kathryn that would go down as the primo moment in reality TV. After the fake fainting he'd say, "Kathryn, do you know what a mole is? It's a blind useless, animal that humans hate. And do you know what we do to moles? We kill them!"

bruceivi (1 week ago)

With that he should have taken the hatchet and brought it down hard and sharply across her neck, severing her carotid artery and jugular vein. Then when she hits the ground, he completes the task on the other side of the neck, severing her trachea as well. The "Blind" mole is dead and Steve is a hero among heroes! I personally would have paid big money to have done it myself.

bruceivi (1 week ago)

Maybe something really dreadful will happen to Kathryn Price. If so, she will richly deserve it! The least someone could do would be to take a sharp ballpoint pin or letter opener and put her eyes out, to complete the task of making her a true mole!

bruceivi (1 week ago)

Put the next 3 comments from bruceivi together.

bruceivi (1 week ago)

Sorry if my comments offended people. This occurred several years ago. It was meant as a macabre twist to a pretty lame reality show. burceivi.

Upon further investigation, it was also discovered that an e-mail was sent from the e-mail address kathrynpricefan@hotmail.com to [REDACTED]. The e-mail is dated 07/07/2008 and was signed using the name "Cindy Wood." Cindy Wood is believed to be an alias used by Bruce Ivins. In the e-mail addressed to "Ms. Price," Cindy Wood asks if she is the same Kathryn Price who starred in "The Mole" reality television series. Wood also asks if Price will be making any public appearances in which people could possibly meet her and get her autograph.

Synopsis: Attorneys [REDACTED] and Bruce Ivins reviewed [REDACTED] Grand Jury transcripts.

Details: At approximately 1:30 PM on May 1, 2008, Attorneys [REDACTED] [REDACTED] accompanied Bruce Ivins to the US Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia.

AUSA Kenneth Kohl and IIC [REDACTED] met with the visitors to discuss the ground rules for reviewing [REDACTED] May 8 and May 10, 2007, Grand Jury transcripts.

The Attorneys and Ivins could review the transcripts, but they were instructed not to take notes or make copies of the transcripts.

The transcript review was completed at approximately 5:15 PM. After the review Ivins left the office and AUSAs Kohl, Rachel Lieber and SA [REDACTED] discussed the continued interest by the FBI/USAO to conduct additional interviews of Ivins. [REDACTED] stated that Ivins wishes to continue with additional interviews, but [REDACTED] did not feel it was advantageous for Ivins to submit to another interview. [REDACTED] further stated that Ivins was being self admitted to a State of Maryland rehabilitation facility on May 2, 2008. Ivins would remain in the facility for 28 days. SA [REDACTED] stated that waiting until June to conduct additional interviews of Ivins as well as other potential witnesses were unacceptable. [REDACTED] said they could possibly work out an arrangement for Ivins to be released for one day on May 13th. [REDACTED] would bring Ivins to a pre-agreed location for an interview. SA [REDACTED] indicated this would be acceptable, but if the interview could not be arranged prior to Ivins official release,

During the following time frame, July 11, 2008 through July 16, 2008, Reporting Agent maintained contact with [redacted] for Sheppard Pratt Psychiatric Hospital. The following contacts were made via telephone unless otherwise noted:

On July 11, 2008, Reporting Agent requested information from [redacted] regarding the admission of BRUCE IVINS (IVINS). [redacted] was advised that IVINS was of particular interest in an ongoing investigation and he had made specific threats regarding co-workers and Special Agents of the FBI. [redacted] confirmed that IVINS was a patient at Sheppard Pratt and that he was admitted on July 11, 2008. [redacted] confirmed later that during an inventory of IVINS' personal belongings a wallet was observed. Reporting Agent advised [redacted] that IVINS may have a written "hit-list" and a recipe for suicide in his wallet. [redacted] stated that the recipe for suicide would be of particular concern for the Sheppard Pratt facility. Reporting Agent stated that it was likely a Search Warrant would be served on IVINS in the near future.
