Call: 6:00 p.m.

SAC Hood of the Los Angeles Division telephonically advised at this time that he had received information from a newspaper man that the man which killed Siegel was a .30 caliber carbine and that nine two-inch long shells had been used, two of which hit Siegel. These shells hit him in the head and one went right through his eye and his eyelid was found about ten feet away from Siegel. The gun was fired about fourteen feet away from where Siegel was sitting and the killer rested the gun in the cross of one of the trellises by the window.

At this time SAC Hood of the Los Angeles Division called regarding this case.

Mr. Hood advised that a .45 machine gun was apparently used. Nine shots were fired, five of which hit Siegel. Both of his eyes were shot out. One of the bullets burned the coat of Allen Smiley who was sitting next to Siegel and who is being held as a material witness. Mr. Hood stated that Siegel, Virginia Hill, her brother Charles Hill, her secretary Gerry Mason and Smiley had been at the beach near Santa Monica and had returned to Virginia Hill's home not long before the shooting occurred.

Mr. Hood also advised that Luella Parsons reported in her newspaper column this morning that George Raft flew to Paris last night. It was suggested that there is a possibility that Raft and Hill might have been on the same plane. Mr. Hood was advised that inquiries along this line would have to be very discreet.

Mr. Hood stated that [REDACTED] is in New York on a jewel case where he picked up one [REDACTED] and is going to take him back with him, to testify in this case. Mr. Hood also stated this might cause [REDACTED] to lose his job in view of so many recent killings.

Mr. Hood further advised that he had received information from San Diego that [REDACTED] had just recently returned to San Diego from Las Vegas [REDACTED]

SAC Hood of the Los Angeles Division telephonically advised at this time that he had received information from a newspaper man that the gun which killed Siegel was a .30 caliber carbine and that nine two-inch long shells had been used, two of which hit Siegel. These shells hit him in the head and one went right through his eye and his eyelid was found about ten feet away from Siegel. The gun was fired about fourteen feet away from where Siegel was sitting and the killer rested the gun in the cross of one of the trellises by the window.

At this time SAC Hood of the Los Angeles Division called regarding this case.

Mr. Hood advised that a .45 machine gun was apparently used. Nine shots were fired, five of which hit Siegel. Both of his eyes were shot out. One of the bullets burned the coat of Allen Smiley who was sitting next to Siegel and who is being held as a material witness. Mr. Hood stated that Siegel, Virginia Hill, her brother Charles Hill, her secretary Gerry Mason and Smiley had been at the beach near Santa Monica and had returned to Virginia Hill's home not long before the shooting occurred.

Mr. Hood also advised that Luella Parsons reported in her newspaper column this morning that George Raft flew to Paris last night. It was suggested that there is a possibility that Raft and Hill might have been on the same plane. Mr. Hood was advised that inquiries along this line would have to be very discreet.

Mr. Hood stated that [REDACTED] is in New York on a jewel case where he picked up one [REDACTED] and is going to take him back with him, to testify in this case. Mr. Hood also stated this might cause [REDACTED] to lose his job in view of so many recent killings.

To summarize information in Bureau files concerning the amours of the late Benjamin "Bugs" Siegel. Siegel had affairs with numerous women, including [redacted] and Virginia Hill. However, there is no evidence that he was involved in the commercialized prostitution racket.

Danton Walker, in his column under dateline June 26, 1947, stated, "The White Slave angle will figure in the 'Bugsy' Siegel slaying, resulting in some red faces around Broadway."

DETAILS

On April 13, 1947, [redacted] with alias, accompanied by [redacted] left Los Angeles, California, for New York City. En route they were joined by Benjamin "Bugs" Siegel and an unidentified blond woman. While in New York City, they resided at the Sherry-Netherlands Hotel. The United States Attorney at Los Angeles declined prosecution of [redacted] and Siegel, pointing out that the alleged immoral relations of the parties were merely incidental to their travel in interstate commerce. (Bureau file 31-67897) S

BUGSY SLAYING LAID TO TWO N. Y. GUNMEN

Police Hint Jealousy Motive;
Suspects Have Long Records

Information pointing to two known New York hoodlums as the slayers of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel in a Beverly Hills home was learned exclusively by the Examiner last night.

The gunmen were said to be in the employ of a New York gangster.

Siegel was killed when a "squirt" of nine bullets crashed through the window of 516 North Linden Drive, Beverly Hills, the house leased by Virginia Hill, wealthy divorcee now in Paris. Siegel had a gold key to the mansion.

TIPPED OFF

The two men, Las Vegas authorities believe, were tipped by a third "character" who had been "talking" Bugsy in the Nevada city.

The night Siegel left for Los Angeles, they said, this "character" made a protracted long distance telephone call. The next night Bugsy lay dead with two bullets in his head.

One of the gunmen was described as a former member of the Lucky Luciano mob. He served three years in a Federal penitentiary for theft, dodging and impersonating an officer. He was released last May.

The other was described as a "free lance gunman," who was frequently arrested in New York on a variety of charges ranging from homicide to petty random violations. He finally was sentenced to Federal prison for selling untaxed liquor and was released in 1938.

Police believed jealousy was the motive for the slaying, asserting Siegel was said to have paid attention to the New York gang leader's girl.

$10,000 PAYOFF?

Payoff for the killing, according to the Examiner's information, was $10,000.

The two hoodlums were given the task some time ago but were sentenced to prison before they could accomplish their mission. After being released they immediately took up where they left off.

Police believe the two left town, either by fast car or plane, immediately after the slaying.

One of the two slayers came to Los Angeles a year ago. He established himself in Hollywood and was mixed up in various underworld circles while he waited for his partner to arrive. (Other developments in Siegel case on Page 2.)

169

Siegel One of Formidable Criminals in New Underworld of N. Y., Hollywood, Mian

By Westbrook Pegler

Bugsy Siegel, murdered in a revival of the quaint old machine gun process of the Capone era, had become one of the most formidable criminals of the new underworld of Hollywood, New York, Miami and the grand air-raid of summer and winter gambling resorts.

He was officially an aristocrat in this new underworld, being listed in the international confidential blue book and all the glories of the FBI and the several agencies of the Treasury Department.

VITAL POINTS—

The Treasury took a special interest in him because the enforcement of the Narcotics Act is a responsibility of the Treasury and Siegel had established a milk route, as he and his colleagues called it, by which drugs were delivered from sources in Old Mexico to stations in the United States.

The principal port of entry was the California border, and Los Angeles and Hollywood were important points of distribution and sale.

The Musicians' Union in its recent convention adopted a resolution which is significant in this respect. The resolution would permit the expulsion from the union of any member who used, or carried on traffic in narcotics.

It was hastily explained that this was merely an affirmative gesture in favor of law and order and not directed at any special condition in the trade.

RESPECTFUL—

The truth is, unfortunately, that because so many of the really active members of the union are employed in resorts of the underworld and the twilight world of luxurious and expensive dives run by racketeers, but patronized by more or less respectable clients, they are brought very close to the narcotics trade.

The few spectacular cases in recent years in which prominent bandmen were caught using or handling marijuana and other drugs are merely an indication.

Detection is difficult and has been especially so in the moving picture colony because some of the public officials were notoriously friendly to Siegel. In one case in which he was a defendant on a minor charge the prosecuting attorney actually took a most respectful attitude toward Siegel who, naturally, walked out, discharged.

Siegel's latest and greatest venture was his Flamingo a gambling resort and hotel at Las Vegas, Nev. Billy Wilkerson of Hollywood, the publisher of a moving picture trade paper and for years the operator of expensive restaurants patronized by the movie industry, started the Flamingo, intending, he said, to run a restaurant, only.

Las Vegas is close to Hollywood and is heavily patronized by men and women who earn tremendous salaries in the movies, in radio and in the night clubs.

In the night club phase of the entertainment industry, most of the big operators are either underworld personalities themselves or fronts for catalogue criminals.

GETS OFFER—

Wilkerson soon got an offer from Siegel but whether this offer was enforced by "muscle," Wilkerson was unwilling to say as long as Siegel lived.

At any rate, Wilkerson found that among his partners, besides Siegel and others, he had an old-time Philadelphia bootlegger of the Boo-Boo Hoff gang and a Westerner who had no official criminal record, although his associations underworld in Phoenix, Ariz., were noted by both the FBI and the Narcotics Bureau.

Wilkerson said the cost of the Flamingo finally went to $5,600,000 and that the place was running behind because it was too lavish.

Siegel was bringing in some of the most expensive night club and radio talent to entertain his guests. Some of them dropped much of their pay back to Siegel at his gambling tables.

HOOVER WARNING—

There was a direct business relationship here between the entertainment world and one of the most dangerous criminals in the country.

Wilkerson finally got out of the Flamingo and his story was that he never suspected Siegel's character until J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI telephoned him and warned him that he was in bad company.

Del Webb, one of the owners of the New York Yankees, who got rich in a war construction contractor on Army projects in Arizona, was the building contractor and, as recently as last winter, found himself with a lien of $200,000 against the Flamingo property.

The fall of the Flamingo was the end of the Flamingo.

Countess Di Frasso Acted as Slain Man's Sponsor

Ben (Bugsy) Siegel, gangster slain in Beverly Hills Friday night, traveled in the top strata of filmland's social life.

His introduction to and sponsorship in Hollywood society was provided by none other than the fabulous Countess Dorothy Di Frasso, it was disclosed yesterday.

The countess, now in New York, was always "fascinated by gangsters and characters like that," one of her close friends told the Examiner.

Although there have been reports of a romance between the countess and Bugsy, her friends generally discount them.

The rumors started in 1936 when the notorious hoodlum disappeared Countess Di Frasso.

the comic-opera voyage of the "Hell-Ship" Metha Nelson. On their return, the countess remarked:

"Ben is one of my closest friends, but this talk about a romance is absurd."

At the same time, the wealthy Dorothy took Bugsy along when she attended "the very best parties in Hollywood, Del Air and Beverly Hills."

"He was flattered at meeting all the important people and he definitely went Hollywood," a friend of Countess Di Frasso said.

Siegel also disappeared in 1936 when he was in the middle of a romance with a Hollywood actress.

Gang Feud Now Believed Siegel Murder Motive

Police Told That Bookmaking Control Was Given to Bugsie in Las Vegas Conference

Reports emanating from Las Vegas, Nev., that control of the bookmaking racket in five Western States had been taken away from one group of gamblers by heads of an asserted nation-wide bookmaking syndicate and given to Benjamin (Bugsie) Siegel were given to local police authorities yesterday as the possible reason for Siegel's slaying last Friday night.

Persons "in the know" in Las Vegas gambling clubs were reported to have told Los Angeles officers sent to the Nevada city following the slaying, that a big conference of certain heads of the syndicate from Philadelphia, New York and Chicago was held at the Flamingo Club, Las Vegas, recently. Siegel, reported to hold controlling interest in the Flamingo, was present, it was said.

At the conclusion of the meeting, after long and hot wrangling, Siegel was said to have been given control of the five States, including California, Oregon and Nevada. The group on the losing end of the transaction was said to have headquarters in Chicago with possibly one member already representing them here. This local contact man was believed to have had previous altercations with Siegel in his attempt to muscle in on the local and Beverly Hills bookmaking business.

Greenberg Believed

The same sources revealed that Siegel had not carried a gun up until two weeks before he flew here Friday. His gun, an automatic, was found after the murder in the bedroom he occupied here.

Chief of Police C. H. Anderson, arriving yesterday from New York, where he had effected the capture of Albert Greenberg as a suspect in a recent $214,000 jewel robbery, declared he had uncovered information in the eastern city which may link Siegel with a recently plotted racket in Los Angeles and Beverly Hills which could have gained the participants more than half a million dollars.

Months' Crime Seen

"I do not believe that Siegel was wiped out because of anything which occurred in Las Vegas," he said. "We have learned that heavy losses have been reported in the Flamingo despite the general appearance of prosperity in order to make good Siegel, we believe, took a leading part in local underworld transactions and schemes among his henchmen accused him of a double cross."

Anderson said he hopes to receive from New York in the next day or two further information which may lead to the arrest in Beverly Hills of one or more men responsible for Siegel's slaying. He added that the so-called local crime syndicate also dealt in illicit narcotics and bookmaking.

Offered $2500

Significantly, Greenberg gave Siegel as an alibi when he was arrested for participation in the robbery of $114,800 worth of jewelry from Mrs. Samuel Gold in her apartment at 854 Charlotte Blvd., Beverly Hills, April 2.

"I was at the Flamingo Club from March 20 to April 2 and Bugsie can vouch that I was there on April 2," he was quoted by Anderson as saying.

Siegel was visiting at the home of a personal friend, Virginia Hill, former dancer and actress, at 620 N. Linden Drive, Beverly Hills, when he was shot to death late last Friday night. He resided at the Flamingo, police said, but visited the Hill home every two weeks or so. Miss Hill was absent on a trip to New York in the large, palatial dwelling at the time when Miss Hill's secretary, Miss Carl Green; Charles Hill, a brother of Miss Hill, and other friends, including a longtime friend of the slain man, Charles Anderson, were present.

Siegel was seated on a divan in the living room with Anderson after a dinner at an Ocean Park cafe when a sudden burst of gunfire resounded. Siegel slumped back with four bullets in him. Smiley, with the sleeve of one arm pierced by the bullets, took a nose dive to the floor.

Police Quito Smiley

Smiley, who was held in protective custody for several hours Saturday, told police that he, Siegel, Miss Mason and Miss Hill's brother had gone to Jack's Cafe on Ocean Park Pier before the shooting. Capt. W. W. White of the Beverly Hills police yesterday visited the cafe to check back on the story in an effort to learn if anyone else might have been present who could have followed the party to the Hill home.

During the dinner Smiley said Siegel gave no evidence that he feared such an ending as came to him but a few hours later.

Joe Ross, Siegel's attorney, also told Capt. White that Siegel was in good spirits and complained of no irregularities in his business when he conferred with him in his office Saturday afternoon.

Theory Confirmed

Tending to support Chief Anderson's theory that Siegel was slain for his connection with the reported local racket, was was received from Las Vegas by Anderson that Siegel had a "clean slate" in the Nevada gambling town. Officers sent to Las Vegas reported that operators of other gambling clubs thought well of the Flamingo operator.

He carried the appearance of a gentleman and disliked being called "Bugle," they said. Other gamblers had even put themselves out to help him in his operations, the officers reported. Members of the Clark County Sheriff's office also stated that Siegel had never got himself into any difficulties, according to Anderson.

While police were further checking ramifications of local gambling rackets, Siegel's wid-

Man in Redwood City Says He Killed Siegel

REDWOOD CITY, June 22.

(AP)—Police said today they were investigating an "incoherent" story by a 32-year-old ex-convict that he had killed Benjamin (Bugle) Siegel, slain by a sharpshooter who fired through a residential window in a Beverly Hills mansion Friday.

The young ex-convict, Edward S. Ross, told conflicting stories, officers said, relating that he "was supposed to get $5000" for killing Siegel, and saying at first that he had come to San Francisco in "a getaway car."

Later he said he had come here by plane, officers added. They said he told them he had traveled to Los Angeles by chartered plane from New York before the Siegel killing.

Now, Mrs. Elizabeth Siegel and her two daughters, Barbara, 14, and Muriel, 10, were expected to arrive by train from New York. Previously having rushed Siegel's weak 14-month-old son, Mrs. Siegel and the girls had been in New York for the past year, police said.

Chief Anderson said he did not contemplate making any roundup of known local gamblers until "probably next week." Anderson is being assisted in the investigation by Chief Deputy Ernest Roli and Chief Investigator Leo Stanley of the District Attorney's office.

Roli announced that a conference of all officers engaged in the investigation of the slaying will be held in his office this morning. A roundup of numerous persons with records of having been involved in Los Angeles and Beverly Hills bookmaking may be a result of the meeting, he said.

Two Men Held

Found with a .30-caliber Army carbine of the type believed used in the Siegel slaying, two men yesterday were arrested in an automobile at 163rd St. and Hawthorne Blvd. by Hawthorne police and turned over to Beverly Hills officers for questioning. Police Lt. Paul R. Smith reported that there is no evidence connecting the two with the murder. They are being held for Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on suspicion of illegal possession of government property.

The arrested men gave their names as Ross Frank Price, 21, of 4425 Boyer St., Long Beach, and Lowell Lloyd Frank, 30, of 644 Brinks Ave., Venice.

Taking exception to reports that he had been "called in for questioning," Barney Ruditsky, former New York policeman, declared yesterday he, as head of a private detective agency at 2818 1/2 Sunset Blvd., had merely volunteered his help in the investigation. He accompanied Roli and Chief Investigator Leo Stanley on several angles of the inquiry Saturday.

Siegel Killing Clues Hunted in Las Vegas

Gambling Situation to Be Investigated in Seeking Motive

Los Angeles and Las Vegas authorities yesterday joined forces in seeking answers to the riddle of Benjamin (Bugle) Siegel's gangland "rubout" Friday night in a swank Beverly Hills mansion at the hands of a sharpshooting gunman wielding an Army-type light carbine at point-blank range.

Siegel was killed instantly by two bullets through the head and two through the body as he sat in the luxurious living room of the home of Miss Virginia Hill, Alabama heiress and studio-dancer. His associate and partner in the fabulous Flamingo Club in Las Vegas, Nev., Allen Smiley, sitting at the other end of the davenport, escaped death.

After questioning every known acquaintance of Siegel who could be located, the District Attorney's office pinned hopes of solving the murder case on investigation by two men sent by air to Las Vegas.

Three Possible Motives

The investigators were back the entire Las Vegas gambling situation in quest of answers to three possible motives for Siegel's murder. These were:

- 1—That Siegel's gambling, newly opened Flamingo Club was getting such heavy play from Las Vegas visitors that other clubs were suffering from lack of business.

- 2—That Siegel's interest in the multimillion-dollar enterprise had drained his resources to the extent he was supplying the thumbcrews to Los Angeles bookmakers repeatedly forced to subscribe to his racing information service.

- 3—That a patron of the Flamingo who recently "dropped a couple of hundred grand" had undertaken reprisal upon Siegel.

Ex-Policeman Absolved

Following the taking of a lengthy statement by District Attorney's men, Barney Ruditsky, 50, liquor dealer and former New York policeman, was absolved from connection with the investigation.

Chief Dep. Dist. Atty. S. Ernest Roll, who with Capt. W. W. White of the Beverly Hills police is heading the investigation, said Ruditsky's information promised little if any light on the murder.

The investigators were going over Siegel's recent record with thoroughness in quest of other leads, and within a few hours had filled in a chronicle of the murdered man's activities.

Flew From Las Vegas

Siegel flew Friday morning from Las Vegas, and checked in at about 4 a.m. at the home of Miss Virginia Hill, Alabama heiress and former Hollywood dancer, where an upstairs room was equipped with his personal belongings. Siegel carried a gold key to the residence, 810 N. Linden Drive, Beverly Hills, and his room kept a .38-caliber bolt automatic purchased in 1935.

Slain Siegel Given as Alibi for Greenberg in Gem Holdup

Albert Greenberg, 33, friend of slain Benjamin (Bugale) Siegel, under arrest in New York City in connection with a $100,000 Beverly Hills jewel robbery, has offered Siegel as an alibi, wire dispatches said yesterday. Greenberg said he spent the two days before and after the robbery in Siegel's Flamingo Club in Las Vegas.

Greenberg was arrested on a warrant taken to the eastern city by Beverly Hills Police Chief C. H. Anderson, who said that two men held up Mrs. Sam Jents at her apartment, 9543 Charleville Blvd., April 2, and escaped with her gems. Greenberg, with a coast-to-

Open Gang War Feared as Result of Siegel Slaying

SLAIN — Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, 42, gangster leader, was 'robbed out' Friday night in a Beverly Hills mansion. Photographers failed to penetrate dark shades.

LA Underworld in Panic

Open gang warfare from New York to Los Angeles was feared by police yesterday as the "robbing out" of Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel rocked the billion-dollar gambling racket.

The biggest gang killing in years brought action by New York and Los Angeles police to prevent further slayings.

The tough, handsome 42-year-old gangster, who dined with such celebrities as George Raft and Countess Dorothy Di Franco, was shot twice through the head Friday night as he sat in a Beverly Hills mansion.

The killer fired through a window and fled.

UNDERWORLD PANIC

Underworld of Los Angeles and Las Vegas were reported in panic over Siegel's death. Some of his henchmen were in hiding, fearing they would be next on the list. Some of his enemies feared gang vengeance.

The man who fired Siegel's probably an imported gunsmith, fired a "squirrel" of three shots through the window of the house at 818 North Linden drive where Siegel was staying, and to which he carried a gold key. It is leased by Virginia Hill, wealthy divorcee now in Paris.

Twenty 30 caliber cartridges found by the window would fit an Army carbine, which could be altered to fire like a machine gun. Witnesses heard a popping burst and a light car raced away.

Siegel was said to be in bed with "The Mob," a New York syndicate in which he was a leader. Heavy losses at the $5,000,000 Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas made him unpopular with the syndicate.

MANY ENEMIES

Siegel also had made many enemies in trying to win control of Los Angeles bookmakers by forcing them to take his racing service.

The bullets, fired at short range, grazed Allen Bradley, business associate of Siegel, and two of them pierced his coat. Siegel was sitting on a couch reading a newspaper.

Siegel flew down from Las Vegas Friday morning with his "court jester," Swifty Morgan, and went directly to the house for a nap. He went to a barber shop, talked Flamingo business affairs with Attorney Joe Ross and Publicist Paul Prior in the afternoon and joined Bradley at the house at 7 p. m. Morgan had moved to a hotel.

With Miss Hill's brother and secretary, Charles W. Hill and Herri Mason, they went to Ocean Park Pier for a seafood dinner and returned home about 10:15 p. m.

While Hill stood, Miss Mason went upstairs, Siegel and Smiley sat in the living room for 30 minutes before the gunman started firing. E. R. Lee, the cop, was awakened in his room by the shots. Neighbors said two men raced away in a car.

New York authorities, fearing the worst gang war in years, alerted police to be on the lookout for all known gang gunmen.

Frank C. Rals, retired deputy police commissioner, said:

"Siegel often flew to New York to maintain his contacts. The only reason he lived as long as he did was because we were after the gang that was after him, and they just laid low. Now they seem to be catching up on their home work."

Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson of Beverly Hills, in New York on a $100,000 jewel robbery, said Siegel had been "on the spot."

KIN ON WAY

Siegel's two daughters, Susan, 18, and Barbara, 14, were reportedly en route here from a New York private school, where they have been sheltered from their father's dangerous life. Their mother, Mrs. Estia Siegel, who divorced Bugsy several years ago, may be with them.

Siegel, nicknamed for a violent temper that made him "go bugs," was a tough singer from New York's Hell's Kitchen.

"The Mob," of which he was West Coast chieftain and possible top man, deals in wine, liquor, slot machines and book-making, but has many legitimate businesses: hotels, juke houses and cigaret vendors.

The syndicate's latest, biggest and most costly venture was the Flamingo, which opened spectacularly last Christmas. But it was losing money and a group of Detroit gamblers recently beat the casino for $300,000 in a single night.

It was understood the New York mobsters, irked by bad publicity, had ordered Siegel to keep out of the newspapers at any cost. He was also under fire by an element of "The Mob" known as "The Dagoes."

Siegel started his bookie information service in Phoenix, then moved into Las Vegas, competing with powerfully organized race wires. When he tried to take over the Los Angeles "horse market" the bookmakers and other services fought back. Mickey Cohen, Los Angeles underworld figure, was known to have had a dispute with Siegel last year over the agency for a brand of Scotch-type whisky. He is sought for questioning.

AUTOPSY REPORT

A coroner's autopsy showed one bullet crushed the bridge of Siegel's nose and ripped into his left eye. The other entered his right cheek and came out through the back of his neck, shattering a vertebrae.

Other bullets shattered a statue and punctured a painting. Upstairs in the house, police opened a locked closet containing Siegel's suits and two pistols: one a Colt .380 automatic, the other a German Mauser.

A fur safe also was opened by police, but yielded only jewelry and clothing. The house belongs to Juan Romero, farm manager of Rudolph Valentino

LAS VEGAS, June 21.—Fear.

Meanwhile losses at the $6,000,000 Flamingo Hotel, in which Engel was one of a small number of stockholders, were estimated to have run as high as $750,000 since its opening last Christmas.

Glenn E. Bodell, head of the hotel police, said he had no information that might throw any light on the killing of Siegel Friday night.

Virginia Hill, 29-year-old Alabama divorcee, in whose Beverly Hills home Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel was shot and killed Friday night, had a prewar reputation as "Hollywood's champion spender." She reportedly left a week ago on a trip to Paris.

Her money, which paid for a $7500 champagne party at the Mocambo marking her entrance into Hollywood social circles. In 1941, came from two profitable marriages, she once explained.

"I don't know how much there is of it," she said. "And lawyers keep making more and more for me all the time. And I keep spending it."

On her first marriage, at the age of 14, to a George Rogers in Alabama, the green-eyed brunette commented:

"It didn't last longer than a good rumba tune," but I got a big settlement."

A second marriage to Gussie Griffin, Alabama football star, led to an "annulment and some more money."

In January, 1940, she was wed to Carlos Valdez, Mexican dancer. They separated in December of the same year.

Miss PHH announced with enthusiasm the coming of the war that she was devoting her time to Red Cross work and investing her money in war bonds instead of party throwing.

But in April, 1944, she was back in print, after a Mocambo faw-scratching tussle with a 23-year-old girl entertainer, Toby Tuttle. The latter hit Errol Flynn with a raw egg when he refused to come to her aid.

All of the occupants of the house were questioned by Ernest Rull, chief deputy district attorney, and Leo Stanley, chief investigator for the district attorney's office.

Stanley, who gained notoriety when he was accused and then acquitted of being the "knight in white armor" who shot and wounded Jay John Bull nose-cutting, explained in 1944, told police:

The underworld also agreed that "Bugsy" was "long overdue." An eyewitness to the shooting, who barely escaped death was Allen Smiley, Hollywood sporting figure, who was sitting in the living room with Siegel when the gunfire blasted through the side window.

One bullet ripped through Smiley's coat sleeve, but he was unhurt.

"I heard the glass shattering and I ducked," Smiley told police. "I don't know how many shots were fired, but when I looked at Siegel, I could see he had taken most of them."

Smiley told police that, judging by the rapidity of the shots, the killer had fixed down the rifle's mechanism so it operated like a machine gun, firing a burst of slugs with a single pressure on the trigger.

Five of the spent slugs were found in the wall of the luxuriously appointed living room. One shattered a small statuette and another pierced a huge oil painting of a nude woman holding a smoking glass.

Siegel flew in from the Nevada resort town yesterday, and went directly to the home of Miss Hill.

Juan Romero, owner of the Beverly Hills mansion leased by Miss Hill, formerly owned the Rudolph Valentino estate, "Falcon's Lair." He said the brunette heiress at one time also rented the silent screen idol's home and lived there for several months.

Last night Siegel and Smiley returned from a party with Jerrie Mason, Miss Hill's secretary, and Charlie Hill, her brother.

The others had retired, leaving only "Bugsy" and his long-time friend, Smiley, in the richly-furnished, dimly-lit parlor when the shooting occurred shortly before midnight.

Siegel was seated with his back to a side window—a perfect target.

Hill said that when he came into the room after the blast of gunfire, the gangland chief was slumped in his chair over his newspaper which was spattered with blood.

Recent heavy losses at Club Flamingo have caused angry reaction by stock members of New York, Chicago and other eastern cities, according to Capt. W. J. White of the Beverly Hills police.

White said Bugsy had $5,000,000 worth of shares in the Las Vegas casino which reportedly dropped $200,000 last night at the gaming tables. Chicago mob sent a man to investigate.

Other sources declared the killing was the declaration of a nation-wide gambling war. Las Vegas gamblers were reported cashing in chips and heading for pay known. "Bugsy" was said to have controlled all the making in California and of it in Nevada.

Smiley was still crouched on the floor.

A neighbor, Lou Shane, who was visiting at the home of Dr. Lyn Whiteman, 807 North Linden drive, reported he heard the shots and ran out into the street in time to hear a high-powered car roar away into the darkness.

Shane said the shots were fired so rapidly that it sounded like machine gun fire.

KILLERS IMPORTED, BELIEF

Police believe that the job was pulled off by imported killers, who "knew their business."

Within 20 minutes of the shooting the word of Siegel's death had spread throughout the length of Sunset Strip. The slaying quickly became the topic of the moment at the Las Vegas gambling casinos.

Reports from Las Vegas were that the Flamingo lost over $200,000 in one night recently, and that the backers of the multi-million-dollar venture took a dim view of the red ink column in the ledgers.

Siegel's body was taken to the county morgue, and when police went through his clothes they found two 14-carat gold keys, a Mexican goldpiece fastened into

MYSTERY CAR SEEN

Martin Belousoff, of 808 North Linden drive, told detectives that for the past several months he had noticed a small sedan parked across the street from the estate where "Bugsy" was shot to death.

"There was a man in it, dressed in working clothes," he said. "He would park there all day sometimes, and often stayed there until very late at night."

Siegel, who had been active in the sporting world in California and Nevada for the past decade, was once designated a "public enemy" by Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, during the latter's term as district attorney there.

Long an eastern gangland figure, Siegel was charged in 1942 with being the West Coast chief of Murder, Inc.

He was indicted by a Los Angeles Grand Jury in 1941 for the underworld killing of Harry "Big Greeny" Schachter here, but he was later cleared of the charge.

During his colorful career, "Bugsy" was arrested, tried and freed of "everything in the book—from misdemeanors to murder—with murder predominating" police said.

Siegel Linked in L. A. Gangland Slaying

Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, who came to a gangster's end in a midnight shooting in Beverly Hills, invaded the Southland in the late 1930's and set up as the top underworld figure while posing as a wealthy playboy.

Long known as an associate of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, New York mobster, Siegel and four others were indicted in August, 1940, by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury for the gangland slaying of Harry "Big Greeny" Schachter on Thanksgiving Eve, 1939, in front of his flat at 1804 Vista del Mar avenue.

Others named in the indictment, which climaxed the coast-to-coast investigation of Murder, Inc., were:

Frank Carbo, fight manager, accused as the man who "pulled the trigger" on Big Greeny.
Mendy Weiss, one-time right hand man for Lepke.
Harry "Champ" Siegel, proprietor of a barber shop in Hollywood, which was an asserted hoodlum hangout.
Siegel was named as plotter and participant in the murder.
However, the indictment was dismissed without ever coming to trial, the district attorney's office admitting lack of sufficient evidence to obtain a conviction.

Less than a year later Siegel and Carbo were reindicted for the same murder, and Albie Tannenbaum, Brooklyn "cousin," was brought here to "sing" about Siegel's connection with Murder, Inc.

Chief evidence against "Bugsy" was Tannenbaum's story that the "Big Greeny" murder was decreed by New York mobsters when Greeny threatened to tell the authorities what he knew.

Tannenbaum, who sang several of his Murder, Inc., associates on their way to the electric chair, testified Siegel planned the Schachter slaying, was present when Carbo pulled the trigger, and arranged the getaway.

Supporting this story when it was first told to the Grand Jury that indicted Siegel was testimony by the late Abe "Kid Twist" Reles. But Reles was not on hand to back up Tannenbaum at the trial, having been killed in a fall in attempting to escape through the window of a Coney Island hotel.

Although Tannenbaum testified he had brought the murder gun to Los Angeles by plane and handed it to Siegel and another man shortly before the slaying, "Bugsy" was again freed at the trial on Feb. 5, 1942.

During Siegel's incarceration at the county jail awaiting trial, one jail scandal after another rocked the sheriff's office. The county jailer and the jail physician were removed after another prisoner charged Siegel and other inmates had been given special favors.

Thereafter, "Bugsy's" name disappeared from the headlines until May 25, 1944, when he and Allen Smiley, a witness to the slaying of Siegel last night, were arrested on bookmaking charges.

Deputy sheriffs arrested them at Smiley's apartment in the Sunset Towers, 8358 Sunset boulevard, where they found betting equipment and notations on scratch sheets which indicated bets as high as $1000 per race were being placed.

After Actor George Raft testified that there was no bookmaking going on at the apartment, only race betting, Siegel and Smiley pleaded guilty to charges of placing bets and paid fines of $250 each.

'Bugsy' Siegel N. Y. Police Fear Gang War in Reprisal

By International News Service
NEW YORK, June 21.—New York police today feared the worst outbreak of gang war in years, in reprisal for the West Coast slaying of Benjamin ("Bugsy") Siegel, 41-year-old gambler and one-time public enemy.

"Bugsy" had important New York connections, and was seen here only two weeks ago dining in a popular midtown sporting club.

Burton Turkus, who, as a former district attorney, helped prosecute the notorious Murder, Inc., ring, with which "Bugsy" was associated, said:

"Whoever killed Siegel is a dead herring, because his men is sure to strike back."

Frank C. Baiz, retired deputy police commissioner, formerly in charge of Brooklyn detectives, commented:

"This is the first big gang killing in years. Siegel had interests all over the country, including New York, and there may be repercussions here."

Herald-Express Expose of Siegel and Murder Inc. Told

The operations of "Murder, Incorporated," and its gangland characters who used Los Angeles as their hide-out, first was revealed in an exclusive article published by The Evening Herald and Express in August, 1940.

Secret conferences between a representative of this newspaper and District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn, now mayor of New York, resulted in the "flushing out" of these luxuriously housed underworld termites.

Aftermath of the conferences, the Herald-Express revealed that the elegant Hollywood social light, Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, had been arrested cringing in the attic of his $260,000 mansion, as an alleged accomplice in the "rubbing out" of Harry "Big Greeney" Schacter. Warrants also were issued for the arrests of Harry "Champ" Segal, Hollywood barber, and Frank Carbo on the charge of murder.

CONSULTS HERALD-EXPRESS

Messrs. X and Y were flown to Los Angeles from New York. They told the Los Angeles County Grand Jury an amazing story of "Murder, Inc." whose tentacles stretched through the dark alleys of gangdom across the entire nation from New York to Los Angeles.

The relentless warfare District Attorney Barton Fitts had conducted against hoodlums who had come here as scoff at New York prosecutors led O'Dwyer to ask The Herald-Express how he could "do an honest job of running down" what he termed "the Los Angeles end of Murder, Inc."

O'Dwyer was told he could trust Fitts, who had shown the courage to prosecute powerful people regardless of political or other consequences, and was the most powerful enemy of gangdom in California.

MURDER, INC., NEMESIS

District Attorney O'Dwyer sent to Los Angeles his famous chief homicide detail assistant, Burton Turkis, the man who uncovered the alamy trail of "Murder, Inc." in the east.

Fitts named the extremely able Eugene D. Williams, then a deputy district attorney, now special prosecutor in the Overell case at Santa Ana, to take charge of the case here. With Detective Lieut. Miles Ledbetter and other officers, Williams brought the western development of "Murder, Inc." to a head.

Williams and Turkis had been told by O'Dwyer that a most important witness in the case would be "Whitey" Krakower, who had fled from Los Angeles after being used to "finger" Harry Schacter when the latter was mowed down in Los Angeles by gangster guns.

A Williams-Turkis conference was interrupted by a telephone call. It was O'Dwyer in New York.

"Whitey" Krakower was rubbed out last night," said O'Dwyer. "It makes it tough because he knew his number was up and he was ready to talk. They have killed our best witness."

Williams and Turkis continued their work and "Bugsy" Siegel "Champ" Segal and Carbo were arrested and indicted. Murder complaints were issued.

The indictments subsequently were dismissed "for lack of evidence."

But someone remembered. And Siegel was put on the spot last midnight!

Virginia Hill Enigma in 'Bugsy' Siegel Case

Virginia Hill, stunning brunette beauty, who owns the palatial Beverly Hills home in which Ben James "Bugsy" Siegel was murdered by gangland hit-men, emerged today as a "mystery woman" as news of the shooting brought her into the limelight.

Known to have been a friend of the slain racketeer, Miss Hill left the city last Saturday to go to spend the summer in Paris.

Always uncommunicative about herself, Miss Hill has entertained lavishly, but her friends and neighbors know little about her. She is thought to be an Alabama native.

Reports from New York indicate that she once owned an interest in the now defunct Hurricane Night Club and gave her stock in the club to her lawyer as his fee for some legal work.

The Beverly Hills mansion where the shooting occurred during her absence, is at 919 North Linden drive.
