CHILDREN who "tattle" are ostracized by their playmates; gangsters who "rat" on other gunmen meet certain death at the end of a one-way ride. But "squealers" who inform the United States Customs officials about smuggling activities get a bonus.

For more than 100 years, the Treasury Department has paid such rewards to "squealers." The practice of paying the rewards—nearly $100,000 in the past two months—started as a bonus system to encourage informers. At present, the amount of the rewards are based upon the grand total of the fines and penalties assessed each convicted smuggler. The "squealers" get twenty-five per cent of the entire sum, providing that the reward be not more than $50,000.

Latest to garner the bounty of the government in a smuggling case was the pro-Nazi maid, Rose Weber, who supplied Customs agents with the information that led to the conviction of Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer, who resigned from the bench; Jack Benny and George Burns, radio comedians; and Albert N. Chaperau (or Shapiro) for smuggling. Miss Weber will eventually be handed a government voucher for a sum amounting to approximately $20,000 for her "services" in swearing out an affidavit and testifying to the effect that Mrs. Lauer had smuggled more than $25,000 worth of jewelry and personal items into this country since 1933.

Personal prejudice on the part of the informer doesn't make any difference to the government. The fact that the "squealer" divulges information to the Customs agents to "get even" does not prevent payment of the reward, provided the victim is guilty of the charges. Miss Weber was the Lauer's maid. She "squealed" on Mrs. Lauer with malice aforethought.

A German citizen, Miss Weber was serving dinner at the Lauer's one night when some of the guests, including Chaperau, made remarks that the maid considered derogatory to Hitler. Interrupting the meal, Rose Weber shouted:

"I am a citizen of the Fatherland. I love Hitler and I won't serve any more of this dinner if you go on talking about him!"

When former Justice Lauer immediately discharged the girl, she cried:

"I'll get even with you all for this!"

She did. Another disgruntled employee who put her boss "on the spot" and collected "blood" money from the Treasury Department for smuggling information was Christine Drouadaine. She was employed formerly in the stock rooms of exclusive Marcel Rochas, Inc., Parisian dress importers. At work, Christine saw the trunks of lovely models, who had just returned from abroad, opened and emptied of smuggled, costly gowns.

Fired last year from her job, Christine didn't know that this country pays informers in smuggling cases. Her whole attitude was one of pique against Guy Font-Joyeuse, manager of the dress importing firm, who discharged her. When dismissed, Christine lost no time in telling her story to agents of the U. S. Customs House. By furnishing agents and the United States Attorney's office with names of customers of the shop she enabled them to obtain all the evidence necessary for a conviction.

Duties owed by the dress firm amounted to $30,000, the fines imposed, $1,000; so Christine's cut, figured at 25 per cent, amounted to approximately $7,750 for squealing on her former employers.

THE top reward of $50,000 for information in a smuggling case has been paid out by the Treasury Department only once in recent years. That was in 1937, when the sum paid to "Mary Doe," the fictitious name behind which the "squealer" hid in a diamond-smuggling case. The identity of the informer was never divulged by the Customs agents who arrested and caught Mrs. Pearl Weinberg with $286,346 worth of smuggled diamonds as the Bronx housewife descended the gangplank of the liner Normandie.

Acting upon information gained from the informant, Supervising Customs Agent John W. Robberts stumbled against Mrs. Weinberg as she walked down the gangplank. When he bumped into her, he knocked from under her arm an overnight bag, which fell, broke open and disclosed a false bottom compartment wherein he posed the smuggled diamonds. In less than three days, forty persons connected with the smuggling ring were arrested.

Only last month, another unidentified "squealer" caused the penthouse apartment of Mrs. James C. Ayer, wealthy socialite widow of the noted surgeon and painter, to be searched. A squad of Customs agents trained to spot a gown designed by Molyneux without seeing the label rummaged through the apartment and seized a large quantity of jewels, gowns and lingerie suspected of having been brought from abroad without payment of duty. The raid was made apparently on the tip on the informer, whose identity has been carefully guarded. The search warrant was based on a detailed affidavit signed in a small neat hand. The signature was merely "Mary Doe."

According to the affidavit, Mrs. Ayer's alleged contraband was tentatively assessed as worth between $20,000 and $30,000. Thus, if Mrs. Ayer is convicted on a smuggling charge, her nemesis, the informer who "squealed" to the Customs agents, stands to receive at least $5,000, a not insignificant sum for an act frowned upon by children and punished by gangsters.

Three months' imprisonment and a fine of $2,500 was the sentence on Mrs. Elma N. Lauer (above with her husband); Judge Lauer, a former Supreme Court Justice, resigned after a disgruntled maid "squealed" to Customs agents.

Haul Chaperau (above with his wife), hooked Mrs. Lauer, Jack Benny and George Burns into participating in smuggling. He did the smuggling; they bought the articles smuggled. Chaperau was sentenced to jail for five years.

Camera shy, but not shy about "squealing," is Rose Weber, the German-born maid who informed Customs authorities about the smuggling carried on by Chaperau and Mrs. Lauer. Her share of the fines levied may amount to $20,000.

More About— Big Money for "Squealers" Who "Tell" On Smugglers

Lost by a Customs agent, Mrs. Pearl Weinberg dropped a suitcase with a false-bottom full of smuggled diamonds.

Federal investigators leaving the New York City Federal building with the luggage of Albert N. Chaperau. It was in these bags that Chaperau smuggled clothes and jewelry into this country for Mrs. Lauer, Jack Benny and George Burns.

Appraiser Abraham Straus examining jewelry and furs taken by Federal agents in the surprise raid on the penthouse apartment of Mrs. James C. Ayer. He set the valuation on the articles at between $20,000 and $30,000.

Angered because her employer fired her, Christine Drouadaine (above) informed officials that the Marcel Rochas, Inc., dress importing firm sold smuggled Parisian finery.

Comedian Jack Benny (above with his wife, Mary Livingstone) received a suspended sentence of a year and a day and had to pay a $10,000 fine for his part in smuggling jewelry. George Burns paid a total of $10,754 in fines for a similar charge.

Lovely Allison Warner (left, above) and Ann Naylor Challe were models at the Marcel Rochas, Inc., Parisian gown shop in New York City. They testified that they didn't know the gowns they were modeling had been smuggled into America by other models from Paris.

Special Agent in Charge,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Sir:

Recently while an agent of this office was at the United States Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., [redacted] requested that he be allowed to see an agent of this Bureau. He was interviewed, when he informed that he had about seventy days longer to serve at the penitentiary and his home is in New York City. He stated he would like to be transferred to New York City immediately because his wife is ill.

b7C, b7D

With this in mind he stated he was acquainted with [redacted] who was recently involved with JACK BENNY and GEORGE BURNS in connection with smuggling activities; that he was of the opinion he possibly could assist in any further investigation being conducted in connection with this individual, [redacted]. He stated that [redacted] has been engaged in smuggling activities for a considerable period of time; that he possibly could be of assistance in connection with an investigation involving "LITTLE NATEY" who handles narcotics.

b7C

He also advised at the present time there is an indictment against him in New York County in connection with stolen bonds and a detainer is presently filed against him at the United States Penitentiary, Lewisburg, in connection with this matter; that he is of the opinion this indictment will be quashed at the time of his release.

He further informed he could be of assistance to the United States Government in connection with an income tax investigation of [redacted] of New York City.

To the Chief of Bureau:

This I believe is a very important communication. This information, the writer believes, should be in your possession.

It refers to the diamond activities of the firm of

4/7/39 - Sub. Bur. of Customs
cc - Los Angeles, JES

[redacted] and his assistant make a trip to Europe every year about the month of April, ostensibly to purchase jewelry. Some time last spring, Mrs. Jack Benny, wife of the radio star, was supposed to have brought to the Sunset store, a large valuable diamond estimated at about $16,000.- It was placed in the safe and only [redacted] and his assistant [redacted] knew of its whereabouts. While [redacted] were in Europe, the diamond was supposed to have been stolen from the safe, yet there were no evidences of an outside attempt to steal it. They reported it to the insurance company, and some of the details to the local police. This was at the time that the newspapers were publishing the case of the jewelry smuggling of Jack Benny and Burns. It is also known that [redacted] brought back jewelry from Paris and Nice, Fr., but do not know whether he paid duty on it. [redacted] has not a good name with the Int. Rev Bureau on tax matters. At this time and altho business was making $50,000.- a year [redacted] assigned his property and home in Santa Barbara, and all contents, as per Los Angeles County records. While in Los Angeles during the week days he stays at a house he formerly owned and also assigned to [redacted] at Whitely Heights, L.A.

In connection with your call to Inspector Foxworth last night regarding Jack Benny's case with respect to the allegation that Cahill is going to persecute the man rather than prosecute him, Mr. Foxworth telephoned me this morning after talking to Mr. Cahill.

Mr. Cahill said to tell you that the attorney had been in to see him and wanted him to dismiss the indictment; that when he refused to do this, the attorney wanted to enter a plea of nolle prole. Mr. Cahill is not familiar with this plea and informed the attorney that such pleas are not acceptable in that district. Cahill also told the attorney that he would not take a plea of nolo contendere.

Mr. Cahill wanted you informed of his appreciation for giving him the information and that he would like to discuss this with you some time and assure you that no personalities are coming into the case. Mr. Foxworth advised Mr. Cahill that you had no interest in the matter other than to furnish him the information and that you knew nothing about the merits of the case.

Dear Sir:

In a recent conversation with [redacted] National Broadcasting Company of Hollywood, California, he being a director and producer of shows, he advised me that JACK BENNY, radio comedian, who, according to today's press, pled guilty to smuggling charges in New York City, has been very worried as to the outcome of the trial. [redacted] arranges the program for BENNY and is intimately acquainted with him. BENNY and his sponsors were very much afraid that he would receive a penitentiary sentence in connection with this case.

He advised me confidentially that EDDIE CANTOR, who has recently made a number of public remarks relative to his dislike for HITLER and things German in general, has had difficulty with his sponsors, the American Tobacco Company, and the sponsor actually endeavored to cancel his contract after a recent episode in Hollywood. They were not legally able to break this contract and the comedian has eight or nine weeks before it expires.

After the conclusion of a recent broadcast in Hollywood, CANTOR made some remarks about HITLER and an individual in the rear of the studio arose and left and was followed by two persons, who are reported to have attacked him after engaging in a verbal dispute outside the studio. There was some talk of filing charges against the attackers, one of whom was said to have been an individual on the program with CANTOR. Apparently the incident, as well as CANTOR'S remarks, were very disgusting to the broadcasting company officials and he is becoming increasingly unpopular in radio circles.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Inspector Foxworth called and furnished the following developments in connection with [redacted] in the Jack Benny case; b7C, b7D

[redacted] has told Mr. Foxworth that he has been shakedown for ten or twelve thousand dollars by Morris Rosen, Oscar Moore, [redacted] b7C
[redacted], these individuals having knowledge of [redacted] past criminal record. [redacted] went to [redacted] who runs a night club in New York City, and told [redacted] he was not going to stand any more shake-downs and was going to report to the authorities. [redacted] told [redacted] that he, [redacted], and "John Edgar Hoover were just like that"; b7C
that you had sat at his table and [redacted] exhibited to [redacted] a photograph from you signed "To my friend". [redacted] states he did nothing further and that he is afraid of every one. b7C

[redacted] says that Gracie Allen was just as guilty in the smuggling case as George Burns; that in fact Gracie Allen jointly signed the checks with Burns; and that Mary Livingston is the real one involved in the Jack Benny case and that she had personally given him the jewelry he was to bring over. George Burns, according to [redacted] b7C, b7D deducted from his income tax the amount he paid for the Jewelry. Also that when the Customs officials raided Burns and Allen's apartment, certain narcotics were found. [redacted] has been informed by an individual, presently in the Federal House of Detention from Alcatraz, that both Burns and Allen use narcotics and that this is the reason Gracie wears long sleeves all the time. The individual claims he has sold narcotics to George and Gracie.

[redacted] also mentioned [redacted], a well-known bondsman in the Southern District, and stated [redacted] is supposed to be a contact man of Assistant U. S. Attorney Delaney. He also stated he had been told that if he made certain payments to [redacted] (mentioned in the Manton case) that [redacted] would take care of his case for him. The payments were not made as he had a falling-out with [redacted] b7C, b7D
[redacted] also furnished Mr. Foxworth information concerning three other pay-off matters that [redacted] is supposed to have originated but which did not go through. Mr. Foxworth is to send the details of these to the Bureau.

The records in the Director's Office show that a photograph was furnished [redacted] on 4/1/37 autographed, "With most cordial regards from your friend."

attention at the time to [REDACTED] remarks and that he personally felt that [REDACTED] was all right and was successful. He claims to have approached [REDACTED] on a number of occasions asking him why he did not sever his relations with the racketeers, and at that time [REDACTED] told him about being born on the lower East Side of New York and having known the racketeers all of his life for which reason he could not "shake them".

The information furnished by [REDACTED] does not in any way indicate a violation of any Federal Statute. The violation, if any, would be of the State Laws. It is noted that [REDACTED] says that a Detective of the New York City Police Department has investigated the matter and that he [REDACTED] requested that there be no prosecution. b7c

In accordance with the Bureau's instructions, I have called the facts in this matter to the attention of Mr. John T. Cahill, U. S. Attorney, Southern District of New York, telling him that I was doing so at your request.

As the State authorities are already aware of this information and as there is no indication of any Federal violation, no further action whatever is being taken by the New York Office.

very truly yours,

/s/ P. E. Foxworth.

~~PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL.~~

Director,
Federal Bureau of Investigation,

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to your letter of April 5, 1939, instructing that I personally furnished to United States Attorney John T. Cahill [redacted] concerning a "shakedown" by several individuals including [redacted]

b7C

I have talked with Mr. Cahill concerning this matter and furnished him with the details supplied by [redacted] as outlined in my letter to you of April 6, 1939. I also informed Mr. Cahill that [redacted] had in fact been furnished with an autographed photograph from you several years ago and that, of course, a large number of persons had received such photographs at their request. Mr. Cahill stated that from the facts which I had furnished there was no indication whatever of a violation of any Federal Statute and I particularly pointed out to him that you wanted to be sure that he thoroughly understood that you had no interest whatever in [redacted] other than you would have in the subject of any other Bureau investigation. Mr. Cahill stated, to use his exact words, "I wouldn't pay any attention to that at all. It amounts to absolutely nothing."

Maid Informer to Get Slice of Benny's Fine

Int'l News Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, April 6.—Rosa Weber, a German housemaid with some degree of fondness for Adolf Hitler, emerged today as the only individual winner in division of the smuggling jackpot into which George Burns and Jack Benny, screen and radio stars, have tumbled almost $15,000 in duties and penalties.

It was Rosa who upset the applecart and brought the federal men on the run to open the smuggling probe which involved Burns, Benny and others and today she stood to collect as much as $5,000 in the role of government informer.

The government pays tipsters who pass along information on smugglers, 25 per cent of the duties and penalties collected as a result of the tip and while Rosa hasn't received hers yet and nobody wants to talk about it officially, she is an off-the-record entry for a quarter of the cash handed over by the screen stars and by Mrs. Elma Lauer.

TALK OF HITLER

Rosa never suspected when she joined in the conversation at the home of Mrs. Lauer, wife of a Supreme Court justice, that she was laying the groundwork for a small personal fortune.

The conversation on that eventful evening centered about Adolf

Hitler and the conversers were Mrs. Lauer, her husband, and Albert N. Chaperau.

Rosa was serving the soup and she got so angry at what the diners were saying about the German leader that she put down her tray and waded right into the conversation. That was the end of Rosa's soup-serving career at the Lauers and the beginning of a large headache for most of the film colony and the Broadway crowd—people who never had heard of Rosa.

CONVICTED SMUGGLER

Without a thought of informer's fees but only burned to a crisp because of the incident at her employer's home, Rosa dashed down to the customs office and identified Mrs. Lauer as a smuggler. Unfortunately for Mrs. Lauer, she had been caught smuggling previously and had paid a substantial fine so the customs officers, after taking an affidavit from Rosa, went up to the justice's house to have a look-see.

From Rosa's complaint and that preliminary investigation stemmed the major smuggling probe which, before it ended with the sentencing of Burns and Benny on guilty pleas and the anti-climax sentencing of Mrs. Lauer and Chaperau—identified as Shapiro—involved a considerable number of names found more often in lights than on grand jury records.

piracy which involved Jack Benny and George Burns will net her at least $6,714 in United States Government reward, it was disclosed today.

The maid, employed in the household of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer, quit her job, vowing "revenge," at the height of a dinner party at which the Lauers' guests voiced anti-Nazi remarks.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the maid was quoted as telling the startled dinner guests, "I am a true German. I love Adolf Hitler. If you don't stop speaking against him, I will stop serving the dinner right now."

She went to Government authorities, with the result that customs agents later raided the Lauer apartment and afterwards arrested Albert N. Chaperau, confessed smuggler, who had been one of the dinner guests, thereby opening the trail that led to Benny and Burns.

Mrs. Lauer, Chaperau and the two radio and screen comedians all pleaded guilty. Benny paid a $10,000 fine and Burns $8,000. In addition, $8,816 worth of smuggled jewels and clothing were confiscated.

Under Treasury Department regulations, the maid will be rewarded for her role of informer by 25 per cent of the total fines and 25 per cent of the 100 per cent penalty imposed on the smuggled articles — or 25 per cent of the grand total of $26,816.

Additional sums may be forthcoming next Tuesday when Chaperau and Mrs. Lauer are scheduled to be sentenced.

PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL

Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

[REDACTED] informed me yesterday that at the time he was in difficulty with the New York County authorities, he was associating with one [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] at [REDACTED]

b7C, b7D

At that time, he was informed by [REDACTED] that he would be able to "fix" his case with the New York County authorities through an Assistant District Attorney by the name of [REDACTED] for the sum of $15,000. [REDACTED] told [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] was the contact to be used in "fixing" any matters in the office of the District Attorney of New York County. While [REDACTED] didn't recall the exact date of this occurrence, he did remember that it was prior to the time that THOMAS E. LEWEY took office as District Attorney. [REDACTED] was charged with grand larceny.

He states that his case was investigated by a police officer by the name of [REDACTED]. When he was arrested, [REDACTED] claims that he felt great concern over the fact that he might possibly be beaten up, and at that time talked to [REDACTED] in an endeavor to dissuade him from taking any such action, and as a result of his talk with [REDACTED] he claims that he paid to him the sum of $1,000 in cash in order to ensure that he would receive proper treatment from the police. [REDACTED] claims that after he was arrested and released on bond, [REDACTED] came to him and asked for $7,500 to get the case off the record, claiming that he controlled the prosecution. [REDACTED] further stated that at the time of his arrest, he had $62,000 on deposit in one of the New York banks, and that that bank immediately notified the New York City Police of the money which he had on deposit there, and it was for this reason that he had been approached with suggestions that he fix his case. [REDACTED] said that he was innocent of the charges preferred against [REDACTED]

He further related that as far as the request of [redacted] for $7,500 was concerned, there were two persons, whose names he presently could not remember, operating a restaurant at 41st Street and Broadway, New York City, who could substantiate his story.

The above information was secured from [redacted] during an interview on another matter, and is being submitted to you for your information, and no action is being taken thereon. b7C, b7D
