Winchell never retracted these charges, and here

Mr. COHN. Now, how about the content in the case of the first two books?

Mr. WECHSLER. Since I have said that at the time I wrote them I was in the Young Communist League, I would hardly contend they were anti-Communist books.

Mr. COHN. Well, did they follow the Communist line?

Mr. WECHSLER. Obviously, yes.

Mr. COHN. They did. Now, when did you join the Young Communist League?

Mr. WECHSLER. In the spring of 1934.

Mr. COHN. Did you join under your own name?

Mr. WECHSLER. No; I did not.

Mr. COHN. Under what name did you join?

Mr. WECHSLER. The name that I used at that time was Arthur Lawson. Let me add that it was a name that I was given when I joined, and that I never used it again. It was not a name that I employed. There was the procedure of using fictitious names when you got your card. That was the name I was given.

Mr. COHN. For how long a period of time were you in the Young Communist League?

Young Communist League.

Excerpts from report of Senate investigations subcommittee show membership of N. Y. Post editor James Wechsler (left) that he was a member of Young Communist League. Excerpts on next page from Wechsler's testimony in Luit-Morfiner lawsuit bear out other Winchell charges.

Ex-Communists and his other enemies boasted they had scored a knockout over the noted reporter...but they never mentioned what Winchell did not retract!

THE NEW YORK POST screamed it was a victory for truth. Time Magazine called it an "abject apology." The Communists, professional liberals and and pinko punks crowed that they had finally defeated the man who had battled subversion of both left and right in all his adult life.

This was the fanfare that greeted the news of a lawsuit settlement brought by the N. Y. Post, a tabloid newspaper, against Walter Winchell. The "retraction" was heard by millions of listeners over the American Broadcasting Company's TV-radio outlets last March and read in the hundreds of newspapers that carry the Winchell column.

But what the N. Y. Post, Time Magazine, Drew Pearson and others never printed was that Winchell to this day has never retracted his charge that James A. Wechsler, editor of the Post, was a former official of the Young Communist League.

The controversy that shook the nation's press for two years began when the Post printed a series on Winchell in 1951. At that time — as it is now — the Post was the lowest ranking New York afternoon newspaper in terms of circulation; the use of Winchell's name on page one for two weeks was an obvious bid to pick up newsstand sales by attacking the columnist.

During the Winchell series, this newspaper added 50,000 circulation on the strength of the columnist's name, but kept only 7,000 of this after the articles were concluded. Many readers claimed they were disappointed.

Winchell, seriously ill at the time the Post aimed its

His proof — from the record — that he was right!

the time and I don't think I held any title in the organizations, but I was quite active.

Q What titles did you eventually hold in the Young Communist League?

A I was for a period of about six months a member of the National Executive Committee.

blasts at his reputation, his family and his personal life, launched a hard-hitting counterattack when he regained his health and resumed his column. For the first time, his vast audience learned of the political background of the N. Y. Post's editor.

But the Post, which had stopped at nothing in its series against Winchell, couldn't take it. Both Wechsler and his newspaper sued the noted commentator, the papers that carried the Winchell column and the ABC Network. This didn't stop Winchell, whose courage is a Broadway legend. He continued his expose of Wechsler. After a year, pre-trial hearings were held and Winchell interrupted vacations on the West Coast to fly back and take the witness stand.

Winchell Wanted to Fight It to a Finish

The Post presented a vast array of legal demands, including a long list of bills of particulars, in its suit. A majority of these demands (70 percent) were rejected by Supreme Court Justice Irving Saypol, who did a major job of legal surgery to make the Post stick to the issue.

At no time did Winchell take back a word of his original statements that Wechsler had been a member and a leader of the Young Communist League, an organization listed as subversive by the Attorney General of the United States.

The case dragged on, with Winchell insisting that it be fought out in the American way — before a judge and jury.

He never asked for quarter in this fight. But one night Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, publisher of the Post, introduced herself to Winchell's newspaper employer at a dinner party.

"I don't want to sue a newspaper," she said. "I'm not even angry with Walter Winchell. (Continued on page 48)

Dorothy Schiff, N. Y. Post publisher, made first move to back away from court trial. She suggested a "retraction" as basis for an amicable settlement.

85

Why not settle the whole thing a cably? Can't you put in a little story saying Winchell never said we were Communists and if anyone misconstrued his remarks, they are withdrawn, etc.?"

It was the first sign that the N. Y. Post was willing to abandon the fight — if it obtained a retraction.

Network Had No Choice

But at about the same time, the insurance company retained by the ABC network to protect itself from libel suits was negotiating with the Post for just such a retraction. Under the contract, if lawyers for the insurance company could settle the case out of court with a retraction, ABC was powerless to order these attorneys to insist on a jury trial and still retain the benefits of insurance. The network over which Winchell had been a star for 25 years, had no choice in the matter. The retraction was arranged.

Winchell's newspaper bosses then said, "If the insurance company settles for ABC, don't you think it unfair to make us fight it alone?"

Winchell said, wearily, "I suppose so" and "authorized" the statement that later was aired over ABC and printed in his newspapers.

The noted commentator tells close friends that he feels no bitterness toward ABC — he had been with them a quarter of a century and his record as a fighter for truth was a clear-cut one. He never lost a suit on the air. The hard-hitting reporter, however, feels that the insurance company should have carried the battle into the courtroom. In 1954, five law suits against Winchell had gone before juries and five times he won out.

And Winchell repeats time and again:

"I didn't say the Post and Wechsler are Communists. I said Wechsler had been an official of the Young Communist League in the past and if I repeated it every day of the week, I'd be telling the truth. Look at the record."

The record, based on sworn statements by Wechsler himself, bears out that Winchell is accurate in saying that Wechsler, at one time, had Communist affiliations. Among his statements concerning the editor of the N. Y. Post, Winchell charged that Wechsler had at one time written books that followed the Communist Party line.

Months after Winchell had made this charge, Wechsler was called as a witness before the Senate Investigations Subcommittee in Washington on April 24, 1953 and questioned by the committee's chief counsel, Roy Marcus Cohn, concerning two books, "Revolt on the Campus" and "War, Our Heritage."

Q. (by Cohn) Now, about the content in the case of the first two books.

A. (by Wechsler) Since I have said that at the time I wrote them I was in the Young Communist League, I would hardly contend they were anti-Communist books.

Q. Well, did they follow the Communist line?

A. Obviously, yes.

Wechsler Had Used an Alias

Winchell also charged that Wechsler had been known in the Young Communist League (which has been listed as subversive by the U. S. Attorney General) under the name of Arthur Lawson.

When Wechsler was called before the Senate subcommittee, he was asked:

Q. Now, when did you join the Young Communist League?

A. In the spring of 1934.

Q. Did you join under your own name?

A. No; I did not.

Q. Under what name did you join?

A. The name that I used at that time was Arthur Lawson. Let me add that it was a name that I was given when I joined, and that I never used it again. It was not a name that I employed. There was the procedure of using fictitious names when you got your card. That was the name I was given.

Editor's Own Testimony

Winchell also charged that other former Young Communist League members were employed by the Post. Months later, Wechsler admitted to the Senate Committee, "I believe that there are former members of the Young Communist League on the N. Y. Post."

In his expose of Wechsler's former Red career, Winchell had stated that the Post editor had been an official of the Young Communist League. On 1952, Wechsler was examined at the United States Courthouse in a pre-trial action growing out of a lawsuit filed by Jack Lait and Lee Mortimer, co-authors of the book, "U.S.A. Confidential" against the Post. Wechsler was questioned by attorneys for Lait and Mortimer.

Q. What titles did you eventually hold in the Young Communist League?

A. I was for a period of about six months a member of the National Executive Committee.

Winchell also charged in his column that Wechsler indicated that the N. Y. Post had followed the Communist party line for a period of time in the late 1940's.

His Discussion with Publisher

In the Lait-Mortimer suit against his newspaper, Wechsler testified that he had a discussion with Mrs. Dorothy Schiff before he became editor in 1949. He stated:

"Mrs. Schiff knew that I felt very strongly about the course that the editorial policy of the paper had taken in the previous year or year and a half. She was well aware that I was strongly displeased with what I felt to be the following of the Party line, at least on international issues."

In his appearance before the Senate committee and in his pre-trial appearance in New York, Wechsler admitted that he knew Gilbert Green, former head of the Young Communist League who is now a fugitive from the FBI. Wechsler also added that both he and the Post are now violently anti-Communist.

But the fact remains that Winchell has never signed a statement or authorized one repudiating his original declaration that Wechsler at one time had been a Red who rubbed elbows with men and women later convicted of conspiracy; and that Wechsler admitted under oath that while a Communist, he had slanted his writing to fit the Party line; and that the N. Y. Post at one time followed the Communist party line for 18 months.

This magazine, in the interests of fair play, gives its readers the story behind the story — and it is that Winchell never retracted his charge that James A. Wechsler was once a Young Communist League leader.

You probably have read that in your newspapers and from the public statements of the investigating committee. Naval Reservist Landy is expected to be cleared also. Only two charges remain. The Navy Board has his record for study.

Our history books offer a most enlightening and tragic parallel. Had the very same standards been applied in 1776, we might have lost the War of Independence because we would have been deprived of the dynamic services of a very great American. In those bitter and fateful days, a Tory was regarded as much a public enemy as a Communist is today. This great American's own son was admittedly sympathetic to the enemy in wartime. They jailed him as a Tory. The son did all he could to bring his famous father's enormous prestige and influence over to the side of the British whereas at no time did the Americans of those days impugn the loyalty of the father. If they had, this famous man would not have been able to help frame the Declaration of Independence and the United States Constitution nor could Ironically, there would be no 5th Amendment to plead if the men of the American Legion hadn't been ready to bleed. Americans investigating Americans is merely tax exempt under our laws. Actually, it seems to me that the Communists would be willing to pay many millions of dollars to accomplish the same result. By an equally strange coincidence, the men and women in the American Legion make up about 80% of the fighting reserve of this nation; the only real bulwark against Red globe domination. This then is the hope that the Fund for the Republic discovers that the American Legion is the finest group of public minded citizens in the world because it will be a very sorry day for all of us when it isn't and none will be sorrier than the product of free enterprise unheard of in Communist nations - the Fund for the Republic itself.

Mary G. Knowles, [redacted] of the Philadelphia Office who is employed as a librarian at the William Jeanes Memorial Library, Plymouth Meeting, Pennsylvania, has been the subject of considerable publicity as a result of a $5,000 award made by the Fund for the Republic to this library where she is employed. The award was granted for the library's "courageous and effective defense of Democratic principles" in hiring Knowles after she had been discharged as a librarian at Norwood, Massachusetts in 1953, after she had invoked the 5th Amendment before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. On September 15, 1955, she testified before a public session of this Committee and refused to answer any questions concerning her past Communist activities or associates stating that she did not believe this Committee had the jurisdiction to ask her such questions concerning her background. Senator Jenner who presided at this public hearing indicated following her testimony that he planned to confer with the full Committee to consider citing Knowles for contempt. In memorandum dated September 16, 1955, from Belmont to Boardman details of her testimony were set out and the Attorney General was advised concerning this matter by letter dated September 19, 1955.

Memorandum for Mr. Boardman

Winchell Said:

To the surprise of very few people the defendants in the "Wolf Whistle trial" were acquitted. A fourteen year old Chicago Negro was kidnapped and slain because he allegedly insulted a white man's wife. The only person who acquitted himself with honor according to the many reporters there was His Honor Judge Swango. He did his duty. The Defense Counsel convinced the jury that the victim's body was not recognizable despite the mother's identification and the signet ring on her son's finger. Sumner, Mississippi has a population of five-hundred. The jury apparently surrendered to prejudice and fear. In these communities where bigots are neighbors, hatred rules. Now these jurors can live without fear of reprisal but how can they live with themselves. Sometimes justice is blindfolded because it cannot stand the sight of what some people do in its name.

Comment:

The two white men accused of the murder of deceased Till Louis Emmett Till, a fourteen year old Chicago Negro killed in Mississippi, have been acquitted, but still await kidnapping charges. The Communist Party began nationwide agitation and protest over this murder and the details of their activities in this regard have been furnished to the Department, the White House and to the intelligence agencies. This agitation on the part of the Communist Party has also been mentioned in the Current Intelligence Summary on September 21, 1955, which is widely disseminated to Government officials.

Winchell Said:

Attention Mr. Sherman Adams, White House, Denver, Colorado: Burgess and Maclean, the top British intelligence agents, fled to Russia following a tip that they were watched by Scotland Yard for being Russian spies. The person who tipped them off is another top British intelligence agent now in the United States. The FBI refused to give this man any information for over three years but other American intelligence departments opened up their very top secret files for him. (u)

Winchell Said:

Washington, D. C.: A very prominent American in Buenos Aires was Peron's constant companion at those scandalous school girl parties. He is now being investigated by our Government.

Comment:

The substantive supervisor in security matters has no knowledge of such person or any investigation of Peron's associates.

Winchell Said:

Boston: Senator Joseph McCarthy will be the first witness next Tuesday at the contempt trial of Harvard teacher Leon Kamin. McCarthy arrives at Boston tomorrow.

Comment:

This undoubtedly refers to Leon Judah Kamin, formerly a Harvard University instructor. Kamin was indicted on 12-17-54 by a grand jury in Boston under U.S. Code, Title 2, Section 192, for contempt of a Senate Subcommittee investigating U.S. Government operations. The contempt took place at Boston on 1-15-54 before the McCarthy Committee when Kamin refused to answer questions from Senator McCarthy. Kamin admitted Communist Party membership prior to 1950 but refused to name other Communist Party members and was thereafter indicted for contempt. Kamin now teaches at Queen's College, Kingston, Ontario, Canada.

Winchell Said:

Attention Detroit "Times": Some very top people at the Dearborn Ford Motor Car Company are planning to issue a statement disassociating themselves from the Fund For the Republic.

Comment:

None. For your information.

Winchell Said:

Attention the District Attorney of New York, Frank Hogan: I think I have a valuable lead on the whereabouts of the missing financier accused of alleged embezzlement. I will make it available to you, Mr. Hogan, after the broadcast.

Winchell Urged:

That post cards be sent to him right away with each individual's choice for President in 1956. He stated that what the public thinks is very important. "It will not only clear the air in the smoke-filled rooms of the politicians but it will help clear the way for the man you want for your President. He will not have to go to the politicians because you can make them go begging to him."

Winchell then gave the first week's tally on the Winchell Post Card Poll for President as follows:

Eisenhower	59%
Nixon	12%
G-Man John
Edgar Hoover	9.4%
Stevenson	6%
Senator	4%
McCarthy
Knowland	3%
Chief Justice	2%
Warren
Harriman	2%
Senator	1.6%
Kefauver

Winchell stated he received over 10,000 cards in one mailbag on Friday and urged that everyone send in their choice for President, stating "The last time we did this the man you selected got elected."

Comment:

None. For your information.

Winchell Said:

Washington, D. C.: "The headlines this week told you that Pan American jet planes will bring London as close as 6½ hours by 1958. What the newspaper headlines did not tell you is that those same jet passenger planes are already flying as bombers. Meaning Moscow is only a dozen hours away. Jets fly both ways and that means that the Russian Air Force is only a half a day from your hometown. For telling you all this a few years ago I was called, among other things, a hysterical alarmist and a warmonger by my Minneapolis and my Cincinnati editors among other experts."

Comments:

Memorandum for Mr. Boardman

Winchell Said:

"Washington Post": the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HCUA) is hushing a heck of a story. Several members of that Committee refuse to approve a report prepared by their own staff. It alleged that a certain civil liberties group is a Red front, which I doubt very much."

Comment:

This probably refers to information received from former Inspector Lee Pennington on 7-27-55 who stated he had been advised by Irving Ferman, head of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) in Washington that the HCUA contemplated publishing a report reflecting seriously on the ACLU. On 7-22-55 the Assistant Director of the Legislative Division of the American Legion received a call from [redacted] a former employee of the American Legion. [redacted] stated he had seen a research study report prepared by the staff of the HCUA. [redacted] advised that there was then a determined effort to suppress the printing and public release of that document and it would require a majority vote of a 9-man committee to order printing and release. He stated that it was doubtful as to whether the majority would vote for the printing and that Congressman Scherer of Ohio was favorable to the release. [redacted] also stated that Congressmen Walter and Kearney also favored the release but that Harold Velde (former Bureau agent) might vote against it due to the fact that he is viciously against the Chief Clerk of the Committee, Tom Beale [redacted]

Comments:

(Investigative Division)

Division 6 has no knowledge as to the identity of the individual Winchell referred to.

Winchell Said:

G-Man John Edgar Hoover may be the Republican choice to break any deadlock caused by favored son clamor.

Winchell thereafter made reference to the fact that the Sunday New York City newspapers reported the Hearst papers and the Gallup poll findings as to which candidate the Republicans want for President of the United States. He stated this reminded him of the poll he ran over the air when no one could find out for sure if Mr. Eisenhower would run in 1952. Winchell then called on the public to send him a postcard or letter right away naming a man each person would like to see President of the United States irrespective of the party - Eisenhower, Stevenson, Nixon, Harriman, Warren, Russell, Knight, John Edgar Hoover or Joe Doaks. Entries are to be sent to Walter Winchell, Box 711, New York City.

Comment:

None. For your information.

Winchell Said:

"Variety": I recently reported that the Magnuson Senate Committee was letting the probe of television die. The Senator's friends now assure me otherwise.

Comment:

The substantive supervisors in the Internal Security and Subversive Control Sections have no information regarding further probes in radio and television industry. The House Committee on Un-American Activities recently completed its investigation of the entertainment field in New York City without success.

Winchell Said:

Miami "Herald": The American Legion convention leaders rejected the offer of Ford cars. They took Dodges instead because of the hassle with the Ford Foundation's Fund For the Republic.

Winchell Said:

To the editor of the Havana "Post": The Commissioner of U.S. Immigration, General Swing, plans an open-door policy for Cubans to enter the United States without a screening.

Comments:

This apparently pertains to an agreement reached between the Department of State and the Attorney General's office whereby after 10-1-55 visa requirements would be waived for Cuban nationals traveling to the United States for business or pleasure as well as Cuban students. On 9-7-55 the State Department advised the agreement had been reached after talks in the State Department and the White House in which General Swing and departmental officers took part. It was stated the plan was related to the President's desire to facilitate international travel. It was further indicated this waiver would be of a 6-month trial period and if successful it was planned to make a request of the Mexican Government for a similar procedure. On 9-8-55 the Director talked with the Attorney General at which time the Director made known the Bureau's position in this matter, namely, that such a program tends to lessen the security of the U.S. On a memo dated 9-13-55 the Director noted that "We are not going to get into it other than expressing to AG our views."
(62-39749)

Winchell Said:

The United States Senate Investigating Committee is secretly working on a case similar to former Secretary of Air Talbott. The man involved is with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The charge, interfering with the Chicago transit deal.

Comments:

The substantive supervisor, Investigative Division, advised no allegations have been received along the lines of Winchell's information.

Winchell Said:

"Now everybody stand back -- no pushing -- hold on to your hats. Senator Joseph McCarthy who recently assured intimates that he would remain neutral in 1956 and support Eisenhower will enter the Presidential primaries in Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Nebraska and Illinois. Senator Joseph McCarthy's purpose is not primarily to seek the nomination for himself but to go to the convention in control of a sizable block of delegates."

Winchell Said:

"Senator McCarthy's charges of Reds on the National Labor Relations Board involves one member of the five-man board."

"Washington - The publisher of 'Ebony' magazine will debunk present Communist claims, the big claim, that the American Negro is poverty stricken and exploited. This man will penetrate the Iron Curtain over the mike of the 'Voice of America' with this uppercut, that in 1955 the total income of our Negro population will be 16 billion dollars, far greater I am told, than the national income of Canada."

"Ebony" is a monthly Negro publication established in 1945. John H. Johnson is editor. This magazine is published by Johnson Publishing Company, 1820 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois. (See Ayers Directory of Newspapers and Publications, 1953)

Winchell Said:

M.Y.
"Puerto Rico - Rudolph Halley, one-time menace of Frank Costello and many bookies, confirmed the other day that he knew a key member of a syndicate promoting a big gambling operation in Puerto Rico. Mr. Halley told a newspaper man that he was always for, for, legalized gambling. Mr. Halley has a very short memory."

Comments:

The substantive supervisor in the Criminal Section advised that the identity of the individual referred to above is not known to the Bureau.

Halley served as Assistant United States Attorney, Southern District of New York, from 1937 to 1942. He was Assistant Counsel for the United States Senate War Investigating Committee, 1942 to 1944, and Chief Counsel from 1944 to 1945. It was rumored that he had been friendly with Frank Costello and other gambler interests. (Bufile 62-95503-10)

The "New York Herald Tribune" on 11/4/55, carried an article by Joseph E. Selvin captioned "$1,500,000 Syndicate to Sell Stock, Halley in Puerto Rico Gambling Company." This article states that Rudolph Halley, former Chief Counsel of the Kefauver Crime Investigating Committee, and the former President of the New York City Council, is a key member of a syndicate that is promoting a new $1,500,000 operation in Puerto Rico.

Memorandum for Mr. Boardman:

Winchell Said:

"'Boston Record' - Government people are checking information that Judge Aldrich who dismissed part of a case, a contempt case, against Harvard instructor Kamin, is on the Board of Overseers of Harvard. Possible ground, I am told, for disqualification."

Comment:

The substantive supervisor in the Subversive Control Section advised that no allegation has been received along the lines of Winchell's information.

Federal Judge Bailey Aldrich was investigated as a "Departmental Applicant, United States District Judge, Massachusetts" in 1954. Investigation reflected that he is a person of excellent character and reputation and highly regarded in the legal profession. A copy of all investigative reports was furnished the Department.
