MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON

May 21, 1936.

Mr. Tolson Mr. Baughman ..... Chief Clerk .....

Mr. Clegg .....

Mr. Coffey ......

Mr. Edwards ....

Mr. Quina...

Mr. Lester ...

I wish to advise that a great number of letters are being received in the Files Section from citizens all over the country commenting upon the recent capture of Karpis, Hunter, Campbell, Mahan and Robinson by the Bureau. All of these in one way or another commend the activities of the Bureau. It is noted that this increase in incoming mail is largely caused by the radio news comentators and especially the request of Kate Smith that all radio listeners write to the Director and express their appreciation.

The usual method of handling letters of this nature in which reference is made to fugitives would be to insert such letters in the investigative file. It is believed that the following method would be the more practical way of handling this incoming mail and would save considerable copy work in the Files Section. This matter will be adopted subject to approval.

A separate commendation file has been started and all incoming letters referring in a general way to the capture of these notorious fugitives and commending the Director and Bureau upon the recent activities will be inserted in this general commendation file. Of course, this file will be limited to letters of a general nature from citizens who have not corresponded with the Bureau before. Letters which are of a strictly commendatory character will, of course, be handled as in the past and carried in the Director's commendation file which is kept by the Personnel Files Section. This new commendation file will be kept in the Administrative Files Section and will be crossed with the Director's commendation file in the Personnel Files Section. It will also be crossed with the individual investigative files of these fugitives.

It is noted that if these letters were treated in the usual manner it would be necessary to make copies for the different investigative files. If any of these letters contain information of an investigative nature they will be inserted in the investigative file and a copy made for the commendation file.

Respectfully,

T. J. Donegan.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Like everybody else I am very much impressed by the splendid record of your organization recently, and we would like to get a series of stories from you if you can spare the time and have the inclination to furnish the material. We can give you a good man to do the writing, and of course submit the finished stories to you for your approval before publication. We would like to put through The Bell Syndicate, which is under the same ownership and affiliated with the North American Newspaper Alliance. The usual syndicate arrangement is a payment of fifty per cent. of the net, which means that the direct expenses, to include the physical expense of producing the service at ourrent market prices, that is, cost of proofs, mats, and engravings, is deducated from the gross before the division is made. No deduction is made for selling, overhead, postage, etc. Rewould be especially interested if you could give us some untold facts about how these criminals were caught recently.

THE SHARE STORY Will you please let me know whether you are interested, and whether I can arrange an appointment to see you? If you are coming to New York, as I know you do frequently, I would like to have an opportunity to talk to you about this.

With best wishes,

Yours sincerely,

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover,

Members of this organization have watched with sincere appreciation the cleaning up process of the various United States public enemies, especially the most efficient work carried out during the past week in the captures of Karpis, Cambpell and Mahan. It was really creditable work and your men and self deserve the profound thanks of the people of the United States for the bravery and self sacrificing motives behind your deeds in the line of ordinary duty.

Although away from home we Americans realize a distinct feeling of pride in the knowledge that you are the head of one of the most valuable branches of our home government. We wish you from the bottom of our hearts continued success and safety. This also goes for your many brave assistents who have so thoroughly demonstrated from time to time, in the capture of desperate criminals that they are far from being quaking youngsters.

Our sincere congratulations are communicated with this communication.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Permit me to addmy congratulations to the many thousands of others that you have doubtless received for the splendid work of your department in cleaning up the kidnap mobs.

I trust that the copies of True Cang Life and Murder Mysteries that I forwarded to you with the wanted mobsters section therein, were received in good order and I also trust that our method of handling this matter met with your approval.

At the present times I am about to go to press with the July issue of "Scalet Gang Smashers" and do to the splendid work of your department the score of the descriptions of criminals to be published has been reduced to these five:

> John J. Oley Francis Leo Dley Dr. Joseph O. Moran Percy Geary Avery Simmons

I would appreciate it greatly, if you will check on this list and let me know by return mail if all five of these are still wanted.

And I would also appreciate it if you will supply me with photographic likenesses, fingerprints and other descriptive matter concerning any other wanted criminals that you would like toadd to these five.

HERE is another big lesson for the coun-1 try in general and for State law enforcement in particular, we think, in the highly efficient, clean-cut, non-fumbling way J. Edgar Hoover and his federal G-men dealt with Alvin Karpis under the federal kidnaper

No games of tag with justice across State lines. No jurisdictional tangles. Nothing to halt the swift conveyance of Karpis from New Orleans to the custody of the federal authorities in St. Paul.

No $1,000-a-day costs, as in the case of getting "Lucky" Luciano back from Hot Springs, Ark., to New York County.

No local clumsiness or unseemly publicity stunts, as when the late John Dillinger was photographed in the encircling arm of a smirking prosecuting attorney at the Crown Point, Ind., jail, from which the desperado shortly after escaped.

No nonsense of any sort.

When Mr. Hoover points to politicians and their hand-picked appointees as the bane of law enforcement, when he says, "Politics itself is Public Enemy No. 1," he obviously has in mind what too often happens in State criminal jurisdictions. There's sharp meaning and contrast in his statement:

"Federal Department of Justice agents capture more than 5,000 persons annually charged with various federal violations. It is difficult to rate them. To us they are all 'rats'."

Why not give the people of these United States even greater benefits from this cold. quick, non-political federal efficiency in dealing with criminals who become public enemies?

For example, why not extend federal law to bring into federal jurisdiction any man convicted anywhere of three major felonies who is fleeing across State lines to escape trial for a fourth?

That would be a speedier remedy than getting slow-moving states to adopt uniform extradition laws. Far speedier than cutting what Mr. Hoover describes as "the links of the underworld to politics and at times to law enforcement officials."

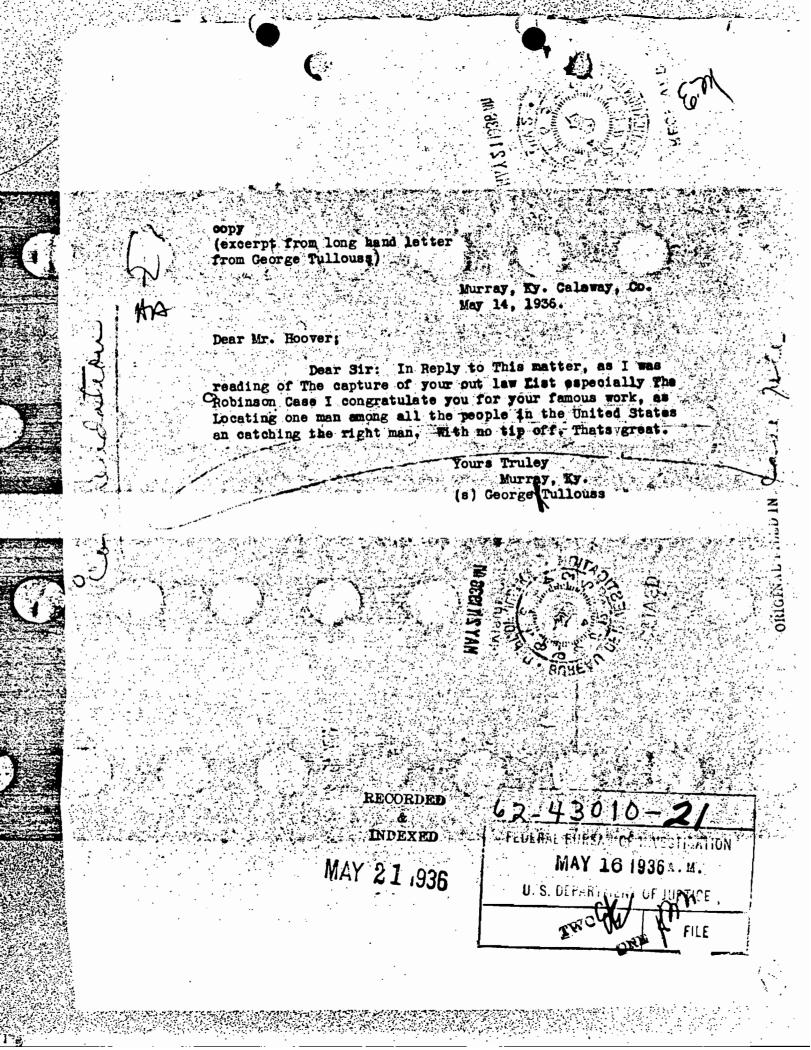

Few states at the present time can afford to despise federal aid and federal experiness of the kind shown in more captures than that of Karpis. Certainly not this State,

Humky Joe' Scolded at Numbers Hearing

Magistrate Weighs Holding of Two For Court

Magistrate Michael Stancati lost

Daylight time took one; Hunky Joe Lewandowski took the other.
Hunky Joe, broad-faced, 48-year-old advisor to Mayor Mc-wair, was called before Stancati vesterday in Oakland Police Court, along with William Irving, 37.

TECHNICAL CHARGES

Joe was charged with operating a lottery, Irving with violating a clty ordinance banning numbers.
Those were the technical charges. Actually, their sin was that they hadn't paid F. C. Hunter's fine.

Hunter, 46. a Jeweler, of 4419 Chatsworth Avenue, was fined $100 March 11, after police had found a clockful of lottery tickets in his jewelry store at 4842 Second Avenge. Hazelwood.

He asked Irving for the money.

ACCUSES TWO

Irving, of 416 Mansion Street, sent him to Hunky Joe. Hunky Joe sent him back. He shuttled a while, and finally got $80 from Hunky Joe.

When he didn't get the other $20, Hunter told police that Irving was the pickup man, and Hunky Joe the operator of an East End pool.

Joe arrived an hour late for the hearing, 10 minutes after Woods Run police had been told to bring him in.

Magistrate Stancati scolded

Hiss attorney, Warren Van Kirk, interposed soothingly:

"I think Hunky Joe was feeling a fille low last night and took a little too much."

Hunter testified about the $20. The magistrate asked:

"Did he say he had been hard hit?

"Yes, he said he had been beat out of $1,500."

GOOD FRIENDS, HE SAYS

Reproachfully, the magistrate turned to Joe:

"Joe, did you ever say you were going to have dinner with me?"

"No, I do not say such thing. I say to Hunter, you put in fix, not me. I did say you and me good friends. Your honor, ask him what get him to have me arrest."

Hunter bristled:

"Nobody asked me. I told Irving I was coming up to No. 4 if I didn't get that money. I'm still out $20."

The magistrate decided:

"Well, I believe we have enough evidence to hold both for court. I want to look over the testimony to be sure there are no loop-holes."

WHERE'S THE MAYOR

Philosophically, Hunky Joe squeezed his big frame into his car and drove away, presumably toward his attractive home at 6416 Forward Avenue.

And everybody wondered where Mayor McNair was. He usually gets in on things like this.

His friends and relatives attribute his mixups with the capital police to a militant get-a-kick-out-of-life philosophy. He just wanted to see what would happen, they explained, that time when he displaced a switchboard operator and rang all the bells in Washington apartment house.

The same impulse prompted him to drive 70 miles an hour down Connecticut Ave. in his sports roadster he wanted to see what the police would do.

His sister, Mrs. W. J. Nadeau of Seattle, had another explanation.

"I guess Marion has turned cynic," she said. "He's probably found that Congress isn't all it's cracked up to be."

whereabouts of Mr. Ziond his bride of three days ystery today. He said yesterday they were en route to Florida for a two-weeks honeymoon. Police quoted her as saying they were "just out for a little drive."

After spending two hours locked in Alexandria police headquarters Mr. Zioncheck was released upon bond.

After being released Mr. Zioncheck strode to the auto where his bride had waited. The car leaped away from the curb, scraping bumpers with another, and headed toward Washington. But at the Zioncheck apartment callers were unable to find either of the newlyweds.

Versions Differ

Mr. Zioncheck's and police's versions of what happened differed. The Congressman said he was cruising along with the traffic when Motorcycle Patrolman George S. Elimore spotted him.

It was on Mount Vernon Memorial Blvd., said Mr. Elimore, that he suddenly became aware of the speeding roadster weaving in and out of traffic. He gave chase and caught up in several blocks.

Mr. Ellmore complained that Mr. Zioncheck greeted him: "When are you damned police going to let me Alone?

"Then," said Mr. Ellmore, "he claimed he was outside the city limits and I was out of my jurisdiction. I said 'I could follow you to Richmond.'"

Mr. Ellmore then asked for Mr. Zioncheck's driver's license, he said, and the Congressman pulled out a lot of papers with the remark:

"Find it yourself."

Bride Ends Deadlock

There was some glaring between the two men while Mrs. Zioncheck kept telling her husband, "Oh please, don't say any more. Keep quiet."

She ended the deadlock by finding the license.

Mr. Ellmore added that on the way to the station house Mr. Zioncheck drove 40 miles an hour and almost outdistanced him.

Mr. Zioncheck's version differed. He said he was rolling along and no sooner had he entered Alexandria than he noticed the motorcycle policeman.

Admits Doing 60

"Wel," said Mr. Zioncheck, couldn't keep my eye on eye on my speedometer, my wife and the cop too. So I just went along with the traffic. But he followed. I said to myself, 'here's another cop who wants publicity.' Then I thought I was outside the limits and I gave her the gun. I guess I was going 60 all right.

"Disorderly conduct? I just kidded the cop. I told him his motor-cycle wouldn't last much longer and its brakes weren't worth a damn."

'As anti-climax to the court escapade the House roared in amusement when the clerk read a request from Mr. Zioncheck for an "าเทlimited leave of absence because of official business." It was granted, unanimously.

'HUNKY JOE' FORKS OUT $100 NUMBERS FIN

Joseph "Hunky Joe" Lewandowski, one-time adviser to Mayor William H. McNair, was prompt in paying his way out of Oalland Police Court with a $100 numbers fine today, although he indsted he had quit the racket long ago and accused Inspector Joseph Walker of being "out to get me." Magistrate Michael Stancati, who had promised to hold Joe for court or free him, sternly rebuked the erstwhile South Side "baron" with: "Let me set you straight on that. I believe you are in the numbers racket and it was not Inspector Walker who ordered you arrested." Lewandowski was arrested on an information filed by a man fined on a numbers charge who said Lewandowski was apposed to pay his fine and didn't. The camera caught "Hunky Joe" as he was paying today's fine to Sergt, J. H. nueenan.

Dear Sir:

Congratulations on the exceptionally good work by the Bureau in the most recent cleanup. Too bad there was no target practice attendant to the captures.

Your letter of May 5th. 1936 relative to a visit to the Bureau by Mr. Koester and his son is before me and I believe you would be pleased to know their reactions.

Annapolis man, and quite naturally he and his son looked forward to their visit to the Naval Academy as the outstanding feature of their trip. According to the report given me by Mr. Koester upon his return, both he and his son agreed that the trip through the Bureau was by far the most interesting and instructive part of the vacation. Mr. Koester's son has since been called on by the principal of Teaneck High School to explain to the student body assembled in the auditorium, the equipment and operation of the Bureau. The boys talk so impressed the students that he has since had numerous inquires as to the proceedure attendant to such a visit.

Mr. Koester has requested that I convey to you his sincere thanks for the courteous treatment accorded him and his son by the members of the Bureau with whom he came in contact, and inform you that he deeply appreciates the interest shown in his behalf. Needless to say that I am pleased with the cooperation extended me.

OTHER PUBLIC ENEMIES

ILLER KARPIS, Public Enemy No. 1, having been taken alive without a shot, William Mahan, the Weyerhauser kidnaper, assumes the uneasy crown of his successor.

The Karpis capture sheds new luster on the Justice Department's capable agents, known as the G-Men. One after another the big shots of America's gangdom have crumpled under their unrelenting drive. Seldom has this country seen such efficiency as J. Edgar Hoover's Federal policemen are displaying.

This sensational record for crime detection only emphasizes more glaringly the weaknesses in our law enforcement system that make much of their work futile. We refer particularly to our medieval reformatories and prisons where young men are schooled in crime, to the misuse of the "unwalled prisons" of probation and parole, to the social sink-holes where lawlessness spawns. Karpis was an alumnus of both a high school and sollege of crime. At 16 he was sentenced to 10 years in a reformatory for stealing auto tires. There he is said to have learned safe-cracking and the other arts of his craft. In Kansas State Penitentiary he was tutored by one of the criminal sons of "Ma" Kate Barker, specialist in robbery, kidnaping and murder.

It was after he was paroled, however, that he made his reputation. Facing a four-year sentence in 1931 for burglary, he was paroled by a kindly, but misguided, Oklahoma judge. A month later he had committed a murder and was well along on his career as bank robber, kidnaper and killer.

Karpis, it happened, was not a child of the American city alums, but most of his fraternity are—and with them he fraternized. No program of crime suppression will succeed that does not deal with the things that go with extreme poverty—malnourishment, illiteracy, child neglect, the hovels and tenements that millions of families must call homes.

arm may reach unhindered into states and cities, there to detect and capture criminals—but when this same Federal arm seeks to improve those social conditions in states and cities that grow the seeds of crime it is stopped by the courts as an unconstitutional invasion of states rights.

THE KARPIS REWARD

Having tried unsuccessfully for two ars to arrest Alvin Karpis, rated w as Public Enemy No. 1, and arry Campbell, another elusiv fugitive, the department of justic has resorted to the device which turned up John Dillinger and Baby Pace Nelson - the offer of a substantial reward. In this instance, however, the reward is offered only for information leading to the arrest of the fugitives - $5,000 for Karpis and $2,500 for Campbell. There is no bonus for the arrest of the men. Attorney-General Cummings said that the offer of additional rewards for arrests may lead to costly mistakes or to negotiations for which the department can not be responsible. Its agents prefer to investigate information and act on their own judgment and in their own way.

It is noteworthy that although the department has had a substanpal sum for this purpose for some years, it has made little use of the gan. It has properly elected to day on its own agents and the cooperation of state and local peace officers. The notion is that the people should be encouraged to le lieve that the constituted law e orcement authorities can do the hib f properly encouraged by a grant of ample authority and fair treatment as public employes engaged in a hazardous service to the people. The reward system is not without its dangers. If a standing reward is posted for a specific kind of law violation, there is a tendency to encourage crooks to frame victims in order to procure the reward. And in all kinds of rewards, there is a probability of dissatisfaction over the distribution of the money. Prequently the payment is held up for a long time by claimants resorting to court action for what they be-lieve to be their rights. The vari-ous state Dillinger rewards were so involved. However, the plan is much better than the exposure of courageous agents to the dangers involved in an extensive chase, and in most instances it is less cost if the rewards bring Karpis a Campbell into custody, the depar ment will get nothing but praise

Dear Mr. Hoover:--

While I've always been (as an American Citizen 100%) Keenly interested in your department's exploits and the tremendously efficient handling of our country's major crimes, this last one the Karpis clean up-intrigues me - to the extent I am of the firm belief you are the man America needs as its President and with a similiar running mate, I believe you two would get a great public acclaim from Democrats & Republicans. While I am strictly no politician crook etc etc. I however do know many influential & rich people who voice my sentiments and I feel assured would do every thing possible to speed your career, if you would accept the challange to run in this capacity. Dear Sir:

I am with you 100% in your war on racketeers and kidnappers, and congratulate you on the splendid work that your Department has been doing. I have made several comments on this line in my newspaper and also strongly favor adequate appropriation for you to continue the good work you are doing.

However, I believe that Federal Judge Robert L. Williams of Mushogee, Ohlahoma, made a mistake in condemning to death Arthur Gooch for the kidnapping of the two Paris, Texas, police officers.

As I understand the case the officers were not hurt nor held for ransom, and Arthur Gooch had not planned to kidnap them. Of course he should be punished for committing a serious offense, but I believe it will cause a great deal of resentment to execute this youth and would do more harm in the end than good.

This is the first letter I have ever written in behalf of such a criminal, but I believe that I speak for many thousands of other people who think as I do in this case and from comments I have seen in newspapers I believe the commuting of this sentence would be commended.

I am

Yours very truly.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

I want to congratulate you on the recent capture of the three well-known menaces of society. Your individual bravery was greatly admired by my fellow associates and me. People have finally come to the conclusion, I believe, that the department of Justice is the most efficient protection in the whole world.

While at large, such men as Karpie, Cambell, and Robinson keep people in a constant fear, for they know not where or whence one of these public enemies might strike. I do, however, think that this fear has been quelled a great deal by the bravery and brillant efficiency of your great department.

It is too bad that we have to have such mea go wrong, but I know it can't be avoided. I do hope that in time, young men thoughtlessly embarking on the road of crime will see that it does not pay.

I feel confident that your excellent work will continue to be a benefit to society.

Truly yours

HOOVER'S REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

J. Edgar Hoover, who is regarded by many as man of mystery risen overnight to clean up major national crime is neither man of mystery nor a product of the hour, though of necessity his methods are on the side of secrety that may give the appearance of mystery. He is just a good business man, applying business methods to his work of running down large-time criminals who have offended federal law. He has been a success because he prepared himself for success through long training; and because a nation shocked into full support got behind him with laws permitting the entrance of armed operatives vested with power of arrest to take the field against certain types of criminals specializing in kidnaping and other major crimes of force.

As for Mr. Hoover himself, he is a personable character, meticulous in dress, of medium height, close to stoutness and as un-detective-looking as a librarian, which he was-in the capacity of clerkuntil he entered service in the Department of Justice after winning his law degree. In 1924 he was placed in charge of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation, replacing William J. Burns. Even as tied and bound as the directorship was by tradition and restrictions of law, it was a sizable assignment for a man of 29. The "D. J." men of that day did not have power of arrest, had no authority to carry weapons and were powerless to act with directness that was in any way suited to the need. So Mr. Hoover moved along as best he could, meanwhile preparing himself for what was to be the deluge.

The Lindbergh kidnaping provided the explosive that jarred the public and the lawmakers into action. Kidnaping was made a federal offense, a series of a dozen anticrime bills were recommended by Attorney General Cummings, the Division of Investigation was created by order of the President out of the Bureau of Investigation, Mr. Hoover continuing as director. So armed, the operatives sent forth on an adventure that has astounded the country, provided as they were not only with weapons suited to the weapons they must engage, but with broadened powers of pursuit and arrest. The results are too well known to require a new listing of the arrests and convictions or of criminals killed who resisted arrest. In fact, the list of major criminals wanted by the FBI had been checked to the last man when Thomas H. Robinson Jr., kidnaper of Mrs. Stoll at Louisville, was captured in California Mon-

For this remarkable rounding up of the full company of public enemies we have to thank Mr. Hoover, director of the "G-men," and designer of a program of crime-prevention that promises a new day for law and order in the United States. Nor should the public forget its continuing duty in order that gains already made be not lost. In the heat of his campaign against dangerous criminals, Mr. Hoover said and has repeated since that the main root of crime may be traced to "the shyster lawyers and other legal vermin," to the "legal shyster in law making," to the "crooked politicians" and "sob-sister fodges." Not pleasant terms, but who could know better than Mr. Hoover how accurate they are.

J. Edgar Hoover G-men have and topped off a week and a half of rather sensational success by the bloodless capture of Thomas Robinson, Jr., wanted for the kidnaping and holding for ransom of a Louisville woman. The list of so-called public enemies is now cleared, and there remains only the less spectacular if no less important task of rounding up those who aided the men in evading the law as long as they

One outstanding fact in connection with the remarkable roundup is found in the fact that every name on the record is that of a man who should have been impounded by society for one reason or another long before he became so seriously involved in, major crimes. If it was kindness that actuated the release of these men by pardon, on parole, or however, it was a desperately mistaken sort, as the event has tragically proved for everyone concerned. In Robinson's case, for example, it had been known for a long time that he was mentally or psychically so maladjusted as to make his freedom from some form of restraint a proposition as bad as he so conclusively proved it.

Karpis, Campbell, Mahan and Robinson are names now clear in the public consciousness that should reveal how very much worse than futile it is to exercise clemency on any except the firmest and soundest of practical grounds. Because these men, to say nothing of many others who could be named in the same category, were let loose on society when they could have been held, a veritable carnival of crime has been staged that included robbery, killing, kidhaping and no telling how much adoed cos to public treasuries. Nor should one forget the agonies of mind and body e durid by the victims of these men and others like them. Consider, too, the fearful distress suffered by the relatives of the victims of these kidnapers, for it is an item that is properly included.

We are not insensible to the feelings of fathers and mothers and relatives and friends who come face to face with the fact that a young fellow has demonstrated his social unfitness and is condemned to spend a long term in prison. Neither are we unmindful, however, of the feelings of those on whom this same young fellow preys after sentimentalism or politics has served to relieve him of the penalty he has earned. We can, we think, understand something of the agony of spirit that must come to parents who see the blighting of their hopes in a boy, but we are also able to see that young Robinson is immeasurably worse off today himself, to say nothing of others who were involved for no fault of their own, than if he had been held, by whatever means were necessary, apart from a social order in which he was not disposed to behave himself.

There is no question but that we need a more realistic and intelligent attitude toward the handling of criminals in the matters of pardon and parole. It is cruel folly to release a man from the prison to which he has been justly sentenced without the finest assurances possible that he will not use that freedom merely to get himself into a situation far more serious, and it is the makest injustice to those on whom he provi in the process.

THE ROBINSON CASE

The end of the trail has come to Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., too.

It led from a devoted home whose ministry of affection, patience and sacrifice in the days of early youth he placed behind him, to the daring misdeeds that made him a fugitive from justice. a furtive figure of the underworld of crime, relentlessly tracked, and that finally saw him a manacled prisoner, hurried across the continent and placed behind the bars of the home city of the victim of his criminal cupidity.

The arrest of Robinson came as the climax of intensive efforts by the G-Men in the last two weeks to capture the few master minds among noted kidnapers of recent years who had escaped the toils of the law and were flitting from city to city, employing every device to baffle their pursuers.

The title of Public Enemy No. 1 was transferred from Alvin Karpis, captured in a far Southern city, to William Mahan, scarcely less notorious, and Harry Campbell, and then to the twenty-nine-year-old Robinson, who for nineteen months had been a figure of mystery which the best-trained sleuths of the Department of Justice could not locate. The disguise which be had so effectively used in his movements from the borderland of the South to the Pacific Coast finally failed him, however, under the observant eyes of a drugstore clerk, and in a few hours he fourfd himself a guarded passenger on a swift airplane flight from California to Kentucky to face the threat of the electric chair.

Whatever may be the ultimate fate of this young man, his ill-gotten gains have brought only fear, disappointment and disgrace to himself, immeasurable sorrow to those who gave him birth, and who still cling to him to offer such service as is possible.

Again does he make proof that crime does not pay.

The arrest of Robinson wipes clean the slate of notorious kidnapers upon which the Federal Government several years ago declared war. The fate of bandits and kidnapers who had spread terror in centers of population and even small communities until none appeared to be immune to depredation has administered a check to those species of crime; but the law can afford no degree of relaxation.

The G-Men have displayed, as a rule, marked intelligence, as well as tireless energy and unvarying courage, in the pursuit of kidnapers A case that originated in this community several years ago marked by boldness and atrocity remains unsolved to this day. If the G-Men should solve the mystery of the disappearance of the Distelhurst child, it would mark a triumph of justice that would be worthy of their best efforts, and which would receive the enduring appreciation of this entire community. Now that the other kidnaping crimes have been solved and the perpetrators punishes, the Diselhurst case might appropriately receive at

The real Public Enemy No. 1 in the United it might be observed, has not been, nor s, an individual. The most serious menace to society, to the law, is a condition not a peron—the failure of the public to realize, and to act upon the realization, that prevention of prime is more effective as a solution to the great national problem of crime than is its punishment: the latter, in its primary effect, is personal, the former is a blow at the structure of the social order undermining its functioning and its worth. The weakening authority of the home as an institution which must ever be the bedrock of educational forces, the increasing laxity of its effect of an influence the deprivation of life at its effect of an influence which must be buttressed in the creed and conduct of childhood, if it is to withstand the insidious advance of disrespect for law and for social obligations that the temptations of the coming years inevitably

Does the school room realize the tremendously important part that it must take, if war on crime is to be successful, and its drain on the reserves of youth be deeply lessened?

What of the church? Are its counsels as specifically directed to impressing on childhood and youth-for it is here that the batt prust be mainly fought—the individual and co ctive danger and destructiveness of disrespe for law, the sure and devastating consequences ol its violation material as certain as spiritual? In a word, are the immeasurable resources of the church being thrown into action not only as an uplifting but educational force with clear realization that it must function as both?

Is public opinion as yet aroused to the point where it will sever the connection between crime and politics, where it will destroy the defenses which crime has shrewdly set up within the law, where it will realize that certainty of punishment is even more effective as a deterrent than severity of punishment?

Has that close coordination of effort between federal, state and local agencies which is absolutely essential to effective crime preventive policies, crime detection and punishment been accomplished? Is the Press doing its full duty?

Back of the G-Men, of local constabulary, however alert and determined, if the defiances and the damages of crime wrought in the social order and moral realm are to be overcome, must be Society itself aroused, determined, throwing into the struggle, for struggle it is and will be, all of its reserves of home, and school and church, of courts and public opinion, of humanitarian efforts, of enlightened legislation.

THE LAW CATCHES UP

The long arm of the law, reaching here and there for the fugitive William Mahan for almost a year, finally claimed its own Thursday, and America's No. 1 Public Enemy for less than a week now goes back to Tacoma, Wash, to answer to the charge of kidnaping little George Weyerbaeuser, Jr.

Mahan's capture in San Francisco almost wipes clean the slate of kidnap cases. Thus does America redeem itself of a situation of crime unparalleled in modern annals. The lone remaining fugitive. Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., still evades pursuers.

Within a week the names of Alvin Karpis, Harry Campbell and Mahan have been stricken from the list of wanted men. The state prepares to exact payment for their misdeeds which run the gamut from banditry and kidnaping to murder.

It would be overly optimistic to presume that the record of apprehensions and convictions will end kidnapings. The criminal mind to an extent is impervious to reason. But the sudden wiping out of gangs, and the inexorable fight of cold and calculating men who have laid successful traps for wayward feet, will put a definite damper on crime so long as the present pace obtains.

The disgraceful conditions of an era of crime unprecedented in history have long reflected discredit on a nation representing itself as the superlative of efficiency in every known field. Other peoples have marveled that great America has failed so signally as a keeper of her own peace. Today, through elimination of the many barriers so long impeding justice, that condition is remedied. Colleges may draw a belated breath of relief. Justice has begun to reassert

Taking Glamour Out of Crime

HERE was major significance in the qualification added by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the G-Men, to his announcement of the taking of Karpis, notorious kidnaper who had managed to elude the authorities for two years. "We've captured Alvin Karpis, generally known as Public Enemy No. 1—but not to us."

When Mr. Hoover did not say who No. 1 public enemy to the Federal Bureau of Investigation might be, it was quickly assumed that possibly the highest rating Karpis—or any other desperado, for that matter—could get with the G-Men would be "Public Rat No. 1." No matter how clever or how audacious a criminal might be, it is the definite policy of the Department of Justice Bureau to depreciate him—publicly—and there is, of course, a most important reason behind this.

There was a time when the maudlin sentiment over so-called big-time criminals in this country was so marked that public opinion as a whole was reproached with charges of indifference to the condition. Certain it is that a wave of unjustified paroles swept over the country; some officers referred to desperate prisoners as their "pals," one even posing for a picture with an arm affectionately about Dillinger.

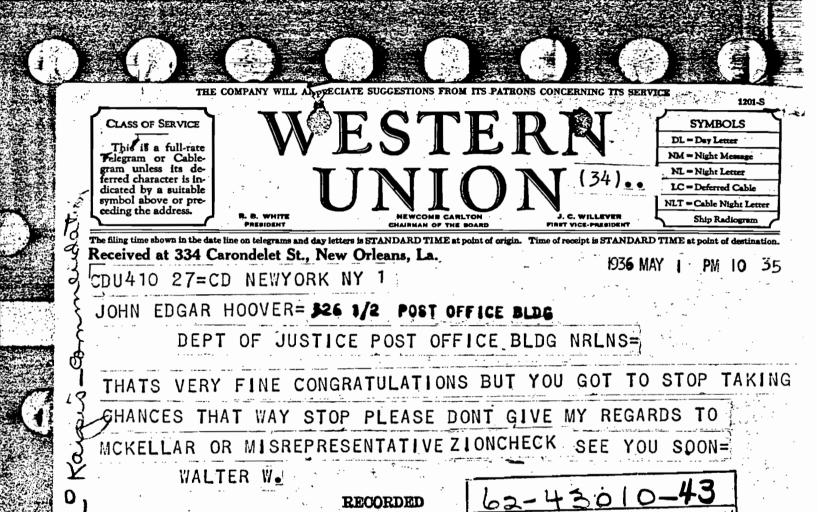

was to smash that perverted sentiment and recall the country to proper support of the law. So Mr. Hoover lost no time in tearing into the "fiddle-faced reformers" and "convict lovers" who wove romances about spectacular murderers and bandits.

As for Karpis, who was never going to be taken alive and who was going to kill Hoover on sight—"he was so scared when the law finally closed in on him that he couldn't talk. His was a false courage. Gangsters seldom have any real courage. They are all yellow dogs."

of the utmost importance—is to note that more and more boys are now going to grow up to be G-Men.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

I thought you would be interested in the following matters which I wanted to pass on before I Lert the city again Sunday, May 10th, for about four days:

I saw Special Agent in Charge Ladd at Chicago yesterday and passed on to him the information concerning the possible changes in the Chicago Police Department. I phoned Mr. Evans, whose father-in-law is very seriously ill. I then contacted Emory J. Smith, who some time ago stated he had wanted to see me. We had lunch together and Lieutenant John Howe joined us, apparently at Smith's invitation. Mr. Wilson of the Northwestern Laboratory also was present. Mr. Smith had nothing special to discuss, other than to make inquiry concerning the IAI convention at which he is to give a talk. After luncheon, Howe, who works directly out of Commissioner Allman's office and who is quite close to Allman, told me that he believed Captain Gilbert will be moved very shortly from Courtney's detail. Howe also added that Kelly and Courtney were drifting farther apart. He feels that Kelly will do his best to defeat Courtney this fall because he fears Courtney's political influence and probably feels also that Courtney is ambitious. I gave this information to Mr. Ladd also.

With Howe I went to Commissioner Allman's office. Allman was absolutely delighted that you had participated in the arrest of Karpis and Campbelly In fact, he has never evinced such enthusiasm or been so talkative. He said he thought your action effectively silenced Senator McKellar's criticisms but he added that he hoped you would not conduct too many raids personally, since he did not feel you should subject yourself to this risk. While in Allman's office I took occasion to give him a copy of "The Illinois Policeman", the magazine which contained portions of my talk before Governor Horner's last Crime Conference, in which I praised Allman and Inspector Evans. Allman thanked me kindly for this copy. He stated then that he had intended to mention to me that some newspaper men had phoned him recently quoting you as having stated that several Mid-Western cities were corrupt and uncooperative. I told Allman that I was confident you did not intend to direct this criticism at him because you, according to the papers, had purposely commended him just a short time before. He said he realized this fact and had so told the newspaper reporters. I took occasion to assure Commissioner Allman specifically that if any misunderstanding arose with reference to your feeling concerning his efficiency, I felt confident you would definitely correct it. He seemed extremely pleased to hear this. I think he is most friendly toward the Bureau. I know he took occasion to tell Howe to do anything he could for any of the Bureau representatives. Allman told me in passing that he wanted to know personally of any instances in which he could help the Bureau.

I am sending Andy Kavanaugh a coly of the resolution adopted last week by the Tennessee and Mississippi Sheriffs! and Peace Officers! Association to forward for the IACP "News Letter".

President William A. Toler of the IAI has asked me to prepare his talk before the IACP next September and I am starting it. Mr. Toler expects to be here shortly.

Don Leonard advises me from Miami that he may stop off in Washington on the way back to Detroit.

During the last few days of my trip to Rochester, Minnesota, in Chicago and on trains the work of the Bureau in the arrest of Karpis, Campbell and Mahan was the subject of general conversation. It seemed to be the big news of the day. Also, while I had known that many persons were interested in the Bureau's activities, I did not realize that it attracted such universal interest to the extent that the persons discussing these arrests, two of which were made by you, associated this action with Senator McKellar's recent criticism of the Bureau. Surely McKellar was being criticized and you were being eulogized. This did not pertain to isolated instances, but to general comment.

Respectfully,

(s) L. C. Schilder.

ANOTHER COUP

A Congress sensitive to public opinion will cut no appropriation requested by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the famous G-men who personally directed the capture of Alvin Karpls in New Orleans, ending a 2-year search for one of the mation's worst desperadoes.

This sensational capture adds to the legend that when others fail the investigators of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation succeed. They have caught either dead or alive every important criminal they have pursued. Unquestionably they are instilling a deadly fear into the hearts of the criminal element.

Kidnaping for ransom has gone entirely out of favor since the G-men entered the field. There may be, of course, queer things in New Jersey, but bugh crooks like Karpis would rather rob a bank to-day than try for easy money in the "snatch racket"

Karpis was a killer with a warped mind. He knew that death or a lifetime in prison awaited him if he was trapped. Yet the Government agents took him without a shot's being fired, another illustration of how thoroughly they make their plans. Karpis would have fought as he has in the past if he had been given the slightest opportunity of reaching for his gun. The nation will feel relieved with Karpis behind the bars. Not only was he dangerous himself, but also he had the gift of leadership, suirounding himself with men as deadly as he. His arrest will certainly end many crimes of violence, as they were his only means of support.

Mothers of little children will also feel satisfaction at Karpis's capture. No person was safe while he was at large, and no plot was too diabolical for his vicious brain to conceive. He will now be eliminated as a prey to society, permanently, it is hoped.

On their splendid record Hoover and his men are entitled to public support. Any reasonable demand which their bureau makes for funds should be granted. Conditions throughout the nation would have been intolerable today if they had not entered the situation. The society which they protect should insist that they continue with ample funds at their disposal and without political interference. That is the one way in which public gratitude for services rendered can be filly and freely expressed.

They Got Their Man

A LVIN KARPIS, a killer-kidnaper graduate of the easy parole system, has been captured by the man the public enemy No. 1 threatened to kill. Karpis wrote into the department of justice last summer to tell J. Edgar Hoover he was marked for erasure. But the yellowness of Karpis' type was revealed again. He made no attempt to fight with officers armed to have an equal chance with him. Yesterday afternoon's work in New Orleans by the federal force was a splendid one. Another proud entry is made in the annals of the G-men. They are still showing the nation what may be done when there is a valiant intention to enforce law.

Mr. Joseph .... Dear Sir I congratulate you and your department of the 100% solution & ... capture of the participants in many crimes. Every now and them I refer to the capture of the participants in many crimes. circulars from your department describing men with criminal recerbs and asking my cooperation in putting justice on their trails. In Call the descriptions of criminals no mention is made of the pathologic configuration of the faces of these men. Almost all of them have assymet rical faces with andeye either lower than normal or higher. Robinson(s face is assymetrical in this respect and others. This deformity of stigme is found in persons with abnormal minds. It not only means that the skull is assymetrical but the brain above it. Very few people are exactly balanced in facial proportions one sidebeing large (( longer ) than the other. One can spot an abnormal man by this peruliar facial formation. Those that arementall sick frequently have this abnormality. Poe the poet had it most markedly9 He was a great dipsomaniac- pathological) Francis Thompson the English poet too had this facial deformity ( he was a drug addict) Many abnormal public people notably base ball pitchers too have facial deformities of this type most markedly. I will not name them but they are hard to manage, some of them are left handed another stigma. Most of the kidnappers that you have make apprehended arementally off. not insane but psycho-neurotics. I think that this common deformity would lead your men to spot sustanted men an a crowd. It is so common that it is singular withat at his motificeen commented on. MEMORANDUM FOR THE DIRECTOR

Congressmen Patton telephoned this morning and stated that he wanted to extend to the Director his heartiest congratulations in connection with the apprehension of Karpis. He stated that it was a job well performed and they were indeed proud of the FBI. I thanked the Congressman and advised him that Mr. Hoover was, of course, absent from the city but that he could rest assured his congratulations would be called to Mr. Hoover's attention immediately upon his return.

I also made inquiry of the Congressman as to whether he had ever gone through the Bureau and he stated that he had not, whereupon an invitation was extended to him and he stated he would call in the very near future in order to advise us as to the time he would be down.

KARPIS CAPTURED

Alvin Karpis, who was regarded as public enemy No. 1, although J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the G-men, says there's another who deserves that title, has been taken into the custody of the federal agents.

Karpis is a kidnaper, killer and robber, and was personally arrested at New Orleans by Hoover who had received a letter from the desperado saying he would be killed.

The G-men had been on the trail of Karpis for a long time and they deserve congratulations for taking him. Most of Karpis leading sociates in crime, as well as some other other by sociates in crime, as well as some other to an spicuous desperadoes, have been killed by ullets before the courts had a chance a

In spite of the tragic endings in the last two or three years of so many noted criminals, the coming of spring has brought a renewal of killings and robberies by dangerous gangs throughout the United States. Only a few days ago, an Indianapolis policeman was shot by an Indiana gang which was evidently trying to live up to the unenviable record of the Dillinger gang, now destroyed by deaths and imprisonments.

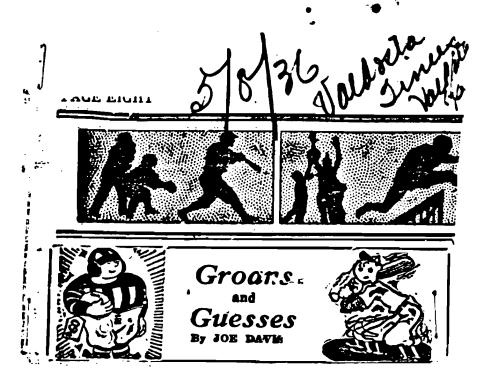

That seems that the mentality of criminally inclined people is such that the tragic fate of other criminals does not inspire them with ough fear to restrain them from taking chances. Each criminal thinks he is smarter than the law and the police. Often he is, but in is inevitable.

Min is inevitable.

Much praise is deserved by the bureau of investigation of the department of justice which is headed by Hooyer. It is one Washington bureau which has functioned well while organized violent crime has by no smeans been stamped out in the United States. it would undoubtedly be much more dangerous if it had not been for the activities of the to shoot their men in several cases. Some shicken hearted people days criticized them for I. But the fact is that criminals like Karpis are no better than the consideration.

The record of Karpis career shows that more than once he was paroled soon after their sentenced to prison, even when the authorities knew that he was an extremely dangerous man Several recent major crimes
