Dear Sir:

Please permit me to congratulate you on your recent capture of public "rats". You have shown the criminal world that they cannot get away with it.

Before National Prohibition, the iron hand of the Federal Government was feared and respected. The general public felt like the negro who was being arraigned in a Federal District Court. After the clerk had finished reading the indictment and asked the accused whether he pled guilty or not guilty, the negro said; "Boss, please read that fust part over again." Whereupon the clerk read, "United States vs. Jim Johnson." Thereupon the negro said; "If de whole United States is agin me, I pleads guilty."

During National Prohibition days, the bootleggers aided by the mass of prosecution and the indifference of the jurors, brought the Federal Courts into disrepect and contempt. Law violators learned that they could violate the Federal law and escape punishment.

I thought that it would take a generation before the Federal prosecutions would be regarded with the fear and respect which they formerly held, but by your splendid work you have not only brought this about within a few years, but the campaign of the Department of Justice for law enforcement has awakened the whole body of citizenry of the United States to the necessity of the enforcement of the criminal laws, with the result that the criminals in the State Courts are being tried before jurors alert to enforce the State laws.

When I was in Washington a couple of years ago, I had a personal conversation with General Cummings, in which he discussed his plans for going after crooked criminal lawyers. The Department of Justice has been doing this, but there is a lot more work that should be done in that quarter. Any criminal lawyer who in his defense of criminal causes said criminal to materially alter or change the nature of his defense previously duly stated to competent legal authorities, should be prosecuted for subornation of perjury. Of course, the said lawyer would have the right to amplify and introduce proof to support the defense already stated by the prisoner, but the crooked criminal lawyer who coaches the defendant is as much an enemy to society as the criminal and should be handled. Having been prosecuting attorney for eight years and having handled three thousand indictments a year, I know that the criminal lawyers will consider this suggestion revolutionary, but I had in mind that some official like a public defender could be appointed whose duty it would be to take the statement of the prisoner before he was allowed to see a private lawyer, and the prisoner would be required to state his defenses to the said official. In case the prisoner refused to state his defenses, the record would show that fact, and a jury trying the case would naturally conclude that the defenses had been cooked up by the lawyer.

Please pardon me for transgressing on your valuable time, but I am keenly interested in the record that you are making and wanted to let you know that I felt you had added something to the safety of every man, woman, and child in the United States. Kidnaping Doesn't Pay Kidnaping was made a federal offense in June, 1932, and that made the crime the business of Department of Justice agents. Now that the last man wanted for a major part in a kidnaping has been arrested, it becomes interesting to check the record of accomplishment during the last four years.

A total of 63 kidnaping cases has been reported and 173 persons have been convicted. Some 29 are serving life sentences and a total of 2,028 years has been imposed on other members of kidnap gangs. Four kidnapers died before they came to trial and two others were lynched by outraged private citizens. Five kidnapers have been killed while resisting arrest and six were murdered by other gangsters. There are about 20 kidnapers waiting trial.

An interesting and encouraging phase of the manner in which the Department of Justice has handled the cases lies in the number of kidnapers who have pleaded guilty and accepted long prison sentences rather than face the evidence ready to be produced against them. Within the week two men of this type have pleaded guilty. One of them took a life sentence and the other a term of 60 years. In a word, the G-men have been certain as well as persistent and inexorable. In a great majority of cases they have worked rapidly, too, as far as that goes.

In order to have a complete picture of the rather extraordinary performance, it should be kept in mind that the G-men have not rested with hunting down, arresting and convicting the so-called Big Shots of the kidnaping organizations. They have also pursued these cases on down to all those who aided and abetted the major perpetrators. They have sought out crooked lawyers, crooked surgeons, receivers of stolen goods, the dealers in stolen cars, the rooming house keepers who knowingly harbored kidnapers, and all and sundry who played any conscious part in either the crimes themselves or the efforts of the criminals to escape.

It amounts to a job devastating in its thoroughness and supplies what seems to be an entirely conclusive proof that kidnaping does not pay.

Dear Mr. Yates:

I have received your letter, dated May 13, 1936, inclosing a copy of the editorial entitled "Kidnaping Doesn't Pay," which appeared in the May 14, 1936 issue of the Commercial Appeal, and want to thank you for your thoughtfulness in calling this article to my attention.

Permit me to express my sincere appreciation for your congratulations upon the recent success of this Bureau in apprehending some of the major criminals. I have particularly enjoyed your comments concerning the crime situation. I want to thank you for giving credit to this Bureau for increasing the fear and respect of the law during the past few years. It is indeed encouraging to observe the increased interest which our citizens are beginning to take in the enforcement of the criminal laws, and I feel that this change in sentiment will have a very salutary effect on the crime situation which has, to say the least, been very gloomy during the past decade.

Your suggestion that before being allowed to interview an attorney, a prisoner should be required to state his defenses to some disinterested official, has been observed with a great deal of interest.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TAMM

Re: B. Frank Kaltenbach, Baltimore, Maryland.

Mr. B. Frank Kaltenbach, 914 Baltimore Trust Building, Baltimore, Maryland, who is the Commercial Agent of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company at Baltimore, Maryland, called at my office this morning. He was present at the time I talked to the Transportation Club in Washington some time ago and stated that inasmuch as he was in Washington, on business, he just stopped by to congratulate the Bureau upon its apprehension of Campbell and Mahan yesterday.

Mr. Kaltenbach further stated that he was a member of the Traffic Club of Baltimore; that this club each year visited some industrial plant or similar concern. He was of the opinion that the club would be very much interested in a visit to the Bureau. Upon behalf of the Director, I extended to him an invitation and told him that I was sure if he would make some definite arrangement as to date and if it was at all possible, the Director would see that the members of his club were shown through the Bureau. He stated that the total membership of the club was 600, but did not indicate how many might be interested in going through the Bureau.

He also requested that, if possible, a written invitation or indication that his club would be welcome on such a tour be sent to him. The letter is attached.

Respectfully,

P. E. FOXWORTH

Dear Sir:

May I pause in the midst of a busy day, to heartily congratulate you on the splendid manner in which your office and the operatives working under you, have rid our Nation of its master criminals, especially during the kidnapping epidemic.

I have followed your work closely and I know of no one in the Country who has done more to help stamp out these thugs and criminals, than you have, and I am heart and soul with you.

It may amuse you to know that at one time, I tried to take a Civil Service Examination, so that I might assist you, but the Examiner, who was of Celtic extraction, thought that my mentality was inferior as I could not pass a Hugo-Munstenberg Psychological test. This I got a great kick out of, as at one time, I was Civil Service Examiner myself for the State of New York and have had a great deal of contact with the Civil Service Commission in Washington. Now that all of the kidnappers are in their congratulations are in order for your accomplishments in working this campaign out to a successful conclusion.

As you probably know, I have been in the insurance business for over forty years and am still in it.
I have had a plan in mind for some years that would recover every stolen automobile in the United States. It is an undertaking almost too big for an individual to handle. I shall be very happy to tell you about the details and I think you will readily realize it will be a wonderful thing for your department to take over. Within a year's time it would put behind the bars every crook in the United States that used an automobile for his work.

Please understand I have no ax to grind in this plan and if you see it in the light that I do and can get the credit for putting it over, more power to you.

Give me a ring when you have a breathing

U. S. Department of Justice,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I wish to extend to you my heartiest congratulations for the splendid work you and your Special Agents have achieved since the beginning of this month in capturing American's most dangerous criminals. Only in this morning's paper did I read an account of the capture of the Stoll kidnapper, Thomas Robinson. When Senator McKellar objects to your request for appropriations, he should take a look at a few statistics concerning your record. In comparison with Scotland Yard's 12,000 odd, your 500 odd seems to be doing splendid anti-crime work.

On January 27 I wrote to the two organizations you mentioned in your communication of January 20, February 21 I received a sample copy of the "National Police Officer", however I have never received any communication from the Kan. State Peace Officers' Assn. If you could give me the exact address of this organization, I would be very much obliged.

Enclosed find a small picture of a machine gun (?). If you could kindly inform me of the manufacture of this gun (ie Manufacturer, Calibre, etc.), it would be greatly appreciated. I extracted it from a copy of "Fortune" and the photographers (?) Woods-McClure. Please return it.

Kindly forward to me a copy of your publication "The Selection and Training of Personnel" and any other publications of literature upon this subject. If you would also kindly send me any addresses or speeches made by yourself, or Mr. W. H. Drane Lester, of whose presence I had the pleasure of hearing & seeing some time ago, I would be much obliged. Other literature would be greatly appreciated.

Thanking you very much for your literature and interesting and educational booklets, I remain

Sincerely yours,

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of May 12, 1936, in which you extend your congratulations upon the recent apprehension of several outstanding fugitives. I want you to know that I deeply appreciate your thought in writing me in this connection.

I note you would like to be advised as to the correct address of the Kansas State Peace Officers Association. The record of your department in the past week or two has been magnificent. It has stirred the country with admiration. The culmination of months of intelligent hard work, free from political spoilsmanship, it is a tribute to your splendid courage. The country has need of more such men in its service.

Thank you for noticing the words of one small paper out here in a state that is giving your men more work and subjecting them to added dangers. The editorial in question is the work of my associate, Miss Amy Comstock. She says to say thank you for her personally. Which I herewith do.

*Comendation Alvin Karpis May 1936
Wm. Mahan Gov. of Indiana*

ANOTHER GANGSTER SETBACK

With the capture in New Orleans the other day of Alvin Karpis, erstwhile No. 1 bad man on the list of the federal bureau of investigation, Uncle Sam's G-men have once more demonstrated the relentlessness with which they pursue their hunt for these characters whose actions make them fit subjects for the bureau's action.

It's been nearly three years now since the kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., at St. Paul, one of the crimes in which Karpis is accused of having had a hand. Meantime the search has continued with other crimes since in which Karpis is suspected of being implicated adding to the intensity of the chase.

Karpis has had the laugh on his pursuers at least once during the chase when he evaded a trap set for him by shooting his way out of an Atlantic City hotel. But now, it appears, the last laugh is on the side of law and order.

Just as the federal agents, through their relentless pursuit, finally crushed the Dillinger group of gangsters, so it appears, they have put an appreciable crimp in the Barker-Karpis gang.

That it's bound to be a losing game which Karpis and his type play is indicated by the score as it stands thus far in the Hamm kidnaping case.

Of the participants in that case, Karpis' arrest brings to four the total now in custody and facing charges. Three others have already been sent to the penitentiary and two met death while evading arrest. Of the notorious Barkers, Arthur is in Alcatraz, the "escape proof" prison; Fred Barker and "Ma" Barker are dead.

Attempts at plastic surgery, by which he sought to alter his appearance and disfigure his fingerprints availed Karpis nothing. As did his companions before him, he fell into the net spread for him, as he must have known he must eventually.

It's significant too, that his boastfulness was missing — his attitude of superiority to the long arm of the law missing — his ego deflated when the federal agents swooped down upon him.

It is likewise significant, in view of some recent questions fired at J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation that the capture of Karpis was accomplished without a shot being fired. It will be recalled that there was some recent sniping at the bureau chief back in Washington not so long ago, because of the fact that occasionally some fatalities result when federal agents close in on men they seek. Mr. Hoover noted then that the agents, while armed, are instructed to fire only in self-defense. He seems to have proved the truth of his statements in New Orleans.

Coming on the heels of the arrests only a few weeks ago of three other suspects in the Hamm abduction, the taking of Karpis represents a distinct triumph for the law enforcement agencies of the land.

The fate of Karpis now rests with the courts. Whatever, it is, his career stands as another warning to kidnapers and the like that they "can't get away with it."

William Mahan, linked to the Weyerhacuser abduction, now that Karpis is taken, moves to the No. 1 position among the nation's wanted men. It's a promotion of doubtful distinction and one which isn't calculated to bring increased peace of mind to Mahan. It will be the hope of many that the good work of the federal agents will continue to be fruitful that there may be similar promotions as the respective No. 2 badmen graduate into prison cells.

REC'D

WIPING OFF THE SLATE

Less than two weeks ago, the capture of Alvin Karpis by the federal department of justice agents in New Orleans was announced by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the department.

At that time it was here noted that the elimination of the No. 1 bad man of the nation from the list of such characters sought by the agents boded no great consolation for the other ranking characters upon the G-men's slate of wanted.

Subsequent developments have proved the correctness of that assumption in rather less time than was anticipated, even though announcements at the time were to the effect that the chase for some of the others was being pursued relentlessly and with fair chances of success.

Altogether the roundup during the past couple of weeks has been impressive—sufficient to convince even the most skeptical that the G-men bear a resemblance to Canada's widely famed Royal Northwest Mounted police force when it comes to getting their man.

The ink was hardly dry upon the papers which carried the word of Karpis' arrest before Harry Campbell, Karpis gang associate, had been taken in another bloodless raid, led by Mr. Hoover.

Within a few days came the capture of William Mahan, last remaining fugitive of a gang involved in a west coast kidnaping. Then, just by way of proving that all this was no stroke of luck, Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., the last remaining major kidnaper still at large, was taken.

The events which followed the capture of these offenders have likewise been encouraging.

Karpis awaits arraignment at St. Paul, with assurance given by authorities that they have built up an air-tight case around him.

Campbell, upon a plea of guilty, has drawn a sentence of life imprisonment. Mahan, who likewise admitted his guilt, has been sent to prison for 60 years. The penalties meted out to these two seem sufficient to insure that society will be safe from their depredations for years to come.

Robinson, it's related, has admitted his guilt in the brutal abduction of a Louisville society woman for which he was hunted. Under the circumstances it appears probable that when the courts have finished with him, society will also be freed, for a considerable period, if not forever, from any further worry on his account.

It all goes to show that the way of the transgressor is hard—doubly so when the transgression is sufficient to cause the federal department of justice to take up the chase.

Four smashing blows have been dealt to the kidnaping racket. The slate, as far as major offenders is concerned, has been wiped clean.

There still remain those minor characters who, by their conniving and assistance, have enabled the four now in custody or under sentence, to evade arrest for as long as they did. The record thus far indicates that they might be in for some troublesome times before long.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I'm writing this because I believe that a meger line from one of us who should appreciate what you've been doing may mean much in your future campaign against crime.

Kate Smith--in yesterday's broadcast--reminded that, after all, you are doing these noble things for us whom you've never seen or even heard of. The very least we might do in return is this; this message to let you know that we are interestedly watching. Sincerely appreciating the additional security of life and home that each new coup brings to us.

I'm aware that you've spent at least twelve good years as the Bureau's chief. Probably more years in a lesser capacity. You may, or may not, have heard this assurance from another nonentity like myself; believe this. We are not shallow in our scrutiny! The ungrateful and childlike rebuke you received from a congressman in the appropriations contest recently is regrettable. Thankfully, it was individual in source.

I hope that you may be fated to lead the F.B.I. in unchanging manner for many more years.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Department of Justice
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir:

Congratulations!

Mr. Hoover and all the men who assisted you in the capture of Alvin Karpis, the notorious desperado.

It is glorious to contemplate that - American Peril and Danger - Crime will become less prevalent for posterity through the diligent and efficient work of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

At a regular monthly meeting of the Pittsford Mens Republican Club on May 4, 1936,
Mr. John Doyle, of Doyle Detective Bureau gave an interesting talk on the work of a Detective and extolled the efficiency of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The sharp and penetrating narration of incidents in which he emphatically pointed out were enough to perceive the fact that "Crime Doesn't Pay."

MAY 29 1936 RECORDED & INDEXED

Mr. Doyle, expressed his close friendship with you. He acquainted the members of your eminent abilities as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and conveyed a picture which aroused strong interest to visit the Department of Justice. He has a keen mind clear, vigorous and alert. His genial wit and willingness to serve should encourage you,
Mr. Hoover, for his successful endeavor to obliterate Crime and make America, a bigger and bet-

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

I feel like it is a great imposition for any more people to write you a letter and ask you to do anything else for I am sure your requests are so numerous, however, there is one thing that as just a plain citizen I have felt should have some special attention and that is the grand work of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover.

If he were in England he, no doubt, would have been knighted and he would have been Sir Edgar. They talk continually of Scotland Yard, yet I do not believe there is a man in the employ of Scotland Yard who has done more wonderful work than our Mr. Hoover.

My parents were English people and I have an Aunt in England who wrote me at the time of the Lindbergh kidnapping that until the kidnapers of the Lindbergh Baby were brought to justice American citizens would have a lot of explaining to do and, of course, it is with pride that I have written her about Mr. Hoover's accomplishments.

I feel he is as much entitled to the Congressional Medal as any soldier for certainly these "rats" would have killed him if they could.

If this is presumptuous, please forgive me but knowing how fair you are, I feel perhaps you have already thought of this but in order for you to know the citizens are backing you up, I am writing you this letter.

J. Edgar Hoover and his army of G-men are to be congratulated on their fine work in rounding up the last member of the Karpis gang of kidnapers, says the Geminole Evening Reporter. In referring to one Sam Coker, Hoover alluded to him as "one of the dear parole boys from McAlester state penitentiary." We rather think that statement of Mr. Hoover has a deeper meaning than most of us at first imagine. Hoover evidently is of the opinion the paroling of these bad boys is not a wholesome practice, the paper decides.

Zioncheck Quits Puerto Rico After Barrage of Cocoanuts

By The Associated Press

SAN JUAN, P. R., May 13.—The brief honeymoon stay of Representative Marion Zioncheck on this island—marred by an automobile accident, a threatened duel and a patriotic demonstration—ended late today as he and his bride left in a marine plane for St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Employees at the hotel where he stayed said he kept guests awake most of last night by tossing cocoanuts into a garden where late dancers and diners were gathered.

Before the congressman boarded the plane he sent a message to President Roosevelt in Washington giving his views on the Puerto Rican situation. In answer, he received this reply from Presidential Secretary Marwin H. McIntyre:

"Impossible even to consider your request. Governor (Blanton) Winship at San Juan is the sole and competent authority to carry out this government's policy in Puerto Rico."

Zioncheck did not disclose what his request to the White House had been.

The 'G' Way for Lynchers

J. Edgar Hoover's G-Men are entitled to all the credit they are getting. And they are getting it in full measure. For, when results are forthcoming, the public is not niggardly with its appreciation.

With the arrest and confession of that elusive female impersonator, Thomas H. Robinson Jr., the G-Men have completed the round-up of kidnapers. For the first time since passage of the Lindbergh Law, which made kidnaping for ransom a federal offense, there are no known or alleged kidnapers at large.

Here is the record of four years of intense and intelligent activity of the G-Men: 63 kidnaping cases cleared up; 146 convictions; 20 more prisoners in custody awaiting trial; prison sentences totaling 2028 years; 29 life sentences; 4 death sentences.

Of course it is possible that the slate which is clean today may not look so good next week. New bands of kidnapers may spring up. A new wave of kidnaping may sweep the country, striking terror into the hearts of parents. That may happen, but we don't expect it. We don't, because Mr. Hoover's G-Men have put terror in the reverse; they have brought into the picture that most effective of all crime deterrents—fear of certain punishment.

All we have said here concerns the crime of kidnaping for ransom—a crime with which state and local police proved themselves utterly incapable to cope. So Congress made it a federal crime. The record is proof of the effectiveness of federal police action—of the superiority of an intelligently directed and mobile force of law enforcers, unhampered by state lines, unhindered by local political influences.

Kidnaping for ransom became a federal crime because of the default of local enforcement. There are other crimes which local law officers apparently are unable or unwilling to curtail.

One, in particular, is the crime of lynching.

There hasn't been a new case of kidnaping for months. Why? Because of that fear of certain punishment.

But there have been at least a half dozen cases of mob murder in recent weeks. Why? Because of confidence that punishment would not result.

We urge again that the Wagner-Costigan anti-lynching bill be enacted, so that a few of Mr. Hoover's G-Men may be sent into the states to instill anew the respect for the right of trial by jury.

The Gangster "Doesn't Live Here Anymore"

FIVE years ago it appeared as if gangland and the racketeers had taken the nation. Several major cities were in complete control of the gangsters and the only serious threat to any gangster group was that offered by some rival group. Kidnapping ran rampant; hijacking was the fashion; racketeers collected "protection" money without any pretense of secrecy; and "being taken for a ride" was an everyday news story. The nation was twice treated to the spectacle of a gangster king's funeral that equalled the last rites of a nobleman. If peace officials became too inquisitive they were "bumped off"; if newspapers became too emphatic, a bomb or two through the windows was the consequence. Five years ago gangland was running wild.

Then a young fellow named J. Edgar Hoover was sent in to head the Department of Justice. Gangland scoffed at him; some openly challenged him to meet them face to face. The country demanded an organization the equal of Scotland Yard of England or the Mounted Police of Canada. But the young head of the Department of Justice went quietly to work organizing his force. Today no detective force in the world can equal it. No similar organization anywhere has made the record that J. Edgar Hoover's men have created in so short a time.

Today not a gangster of reputation is alive or living outside prison walls. During the last five years every boasting racketeer and gangland chief has turned yellow; has turned and run like a hunted animal until cornered somewhere by Hoover's men. The list of names would fill this column—but Mahan, Karpis and Campbell, complete the roster. The old spirit of bravado has disappeared; Karpis trembled like a coward when Hoover stood face to face with this murderer. No mercy was shown; those who made the slightest suspicious move—like Baby Face Nelson, Dillinger and others, were mercilessly mowed down.

No longer is America the gangster's paradise; no longer are its citizens intimidated by them.

Once again Americans have their self-respect and "law and order" is not an idle phrase.

WHEN CROOKS OVERLOOKED SOUND

Capture of the Hamm kidnapers brings out in detail the story of how the G-Men found the prison of another kidnap victim. Bremer, through his memory of sounds. Kidnapers have shown great ingenuity but few planners, honest or criminal, think of everything. Now the kidnaper knows he must plug the ears of the subject held for ransom, and no doubt suffers chagrin from having overlooked so simple a detail.

Bremer, blindfolded, entertained himself with listening. Every morning a truck started next door, at certain hours whistles blew, a siren sounded at noon, on church days bells rang, children's voices passing indicated the nearness of a school.

Nearly every large or small community with a police department could locate a place where this combination of sounds could be heard unless it didn't exist. Where it did exist was the house sought, and the kidnapers were found.

In the game of law against crime, law has the advantage. Federal agents have solved 63 kidnappings with 136 convictions since the passage of the "Lindbergh" law in 1932.

Editorial Wins Approval Of Hoover, Chief of G-Men

There is something ominous in the appearance of a stampless envelope bearing the inscription in the left, upper corner, "Department of Justice." It was the first one from that federal department that had ever come to this newspaper office. The envelope was turned over, weighed and studied, like that of a rare telegram reaching an old-fashioned woman at an old-fashioned farm.

There were such flashing mental queries as, "Now what have we done—were some of those 'cracks' at the New Deal a little too harsh? Well (sigh) we'll see."

Doubt and apprehension changed to the emotion of pleasure. It wasn't a warning or an order to appear at a hearing, or even a request for some information of possible value to the G-men. It was just a nice, friendly letter from the Big Boss of the G-Men.

Here it is:

The editorial discussed the mental record kept by a blind-folded captive of kidnapers, and how the Department of Justice searched for the place where such sounds could have been made; locating the "prison" used by the kidnapers, proving the criminal mind never can devise a perfect crime.

Dear Mr. Howard:

I have just read with a great deal of interest the editorial entitled "The Federal May," which appeared in the May 9, 1936, issue of the New York World-Telegram.

I want you to know how deeply appreciative I am of the commendatory statements concerning this Bureau's recent good fortune in capturing Alvin Karpis. Needless to say, I received a great deal of satisfaction from the subsequent capture of Harry Campbell and William Mahan, thus terminating long and intensive searches for these two men.

I am pleased to observe you agree with me that politics is Public Enemy Number 1. It is hoped that the day will come when political interferences with all law enforcement agencies will be removed. As the public becomes fully cognizant of the situation as it exists today, I believe that it will demand a divorce of politics from the field of law enforcement.

Your suggestion that Federal law should be amended to bring into Federal jurisdiction any man convicted anywhere of three major felonies who is fleeing across State lines to escape trial for a fourth has been particularly noted. I would like to call your attention to the statute passed on May 18, 1934, which makes it unlawful for any person to travel in interstate commerce with intent

For your information, violations of this law come within the investigative jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and this law has been enforced to the fullest extent possible.

THE FEDERAL WAY.

THERE is another big lesson for the country in general and for State law enforcement in particular, we think, in the highly efficient, clean-cut, non-fumbling way J. Edgar Hoover and his federal G-men dealt with Alvin Karpis under the federal kidnaper law.

No games of tag with justice across State lines. No jurisdictional tangles. Nothing to halt the swift conveyance of Karpis from New Orleans to the custody of the federal authorities in St. Paul.

No $1,000-a-day costs, as in the case of getting "Lucky" Luciano back from Hot Springs, Ark., to New York County.

No local clumsiness or unseemly publicity stunts, as when the late John Dillinger was photographed in the encircling arm of a smirking prosecuting attorney at the Crown Point, Ind., jail, from which the desperado shortly after escaped.

No nonsense of any sort.

When Mr. Hoover points to politicians and their hand-picked appointees as the bane of law enforcement, when he says, "Politics itself is Public Enemy No. 1," he obviously has in mind what too often happens in State criminal jurisdictions. There's sharp meaning and contrast in his statement:—

"Federal Department of Justice agents capture more than 5,000 persons annually charged with various federal violations. It is difficult to rate them. To us they are all 'rats.'"

Why not give the people of these United States even greater benefits from this cold, quick, non-political federal efficiency in dealing with criminals who become public enemies?

For example, why not extend federal law to bring into federal jurisdiction any man convicted anywhere of three major felonies who is fleeing across State lines to escape trial for a fourth?

That would be a speedier remedy than getting slow-moving States to adopt uniform extradition laws. Far speedier than cutting what Mr. Hoover describes as "the links of the underworld to politics and at times to law enforcement officials."

Few States at the present time can afford to despise federal aid and federal expertness of the kind shown in more captures than that of Karpis. Certainly not this State.

END OF THE TRAIL

A COMFORTING characteristic of the Department of Justice, from the point of view of decent citizenship, is that it has a long memory and plenty of patience. Alvin Karpis was wanted and hunted for nearly three years before the Federal men found him in New Orleans.

This was the last but one of the kidnapers of 1933, when ten major crimes of this character aroused the Nation to realization of the underworld's arrogance and dangerous defiance of the law's authority. Thomas H. Robinson is still at large, but probably a nervous man.

The unsavory history of the man called "Public Enemy No. 1" shows how he earned his contemptible title. From little crimes he went to bigger ones, encouraged by paroles and suspended sentences and all kinds of police inefficiency and court leniency. The climax of his career was a kidnapping, the end of his trail is a prison and an "airtight" case which may keep him there a long time or send him to the chair for murder.

Karpis belonged in jail a long time ago, where he could not menace the peace and safety of society. He has been captured at last, and will probably be convicted by the untiring efforts of an organization which has no illusions about criminals. Most of them are dangerous, many of them are incurable. Their offenses can be checked by fear of capture and certainty of punishment. This is the theory of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover and his G-men, and its soundness is proved by the record.

Your department should receive all the encouragement to carry on even more vigorously. It is with a feeling of satisfaction that in your hands with the help of good citizens crime must go out. I realize when I read some time ago what part politics plays in crime, I had always contented without the aid of politicians this could never carry on so of only. Some times I believed some of our courts did not really try to convict. Just recently one sheriff was asked to explain why so many are carrying weapons in our country. Political setup. Just yesterday an item in local paper, is, claim crime is sweeping Ill. We of Ill know this to be true in many instances. The politicians have a stranglehold on the people, and as just recently in discussing this subject we were contented. That you may not even say any thing about it for fear they would make life miserable for me. Many people seem to realize this but today I believe we can carry on in a more satisfactory safe feeling. Some years ago we had a case in court concerning Tax graft and charactering. One could easily see the outcome it never really did come out. One of many politicians took the rap. the rest went free. There was much manuvering as one read the press daily one could easily see the outcome. I had at that time in mind of contacting your department if anything could be done about it. We really seem to be helpless in such affairs. I did take the liberty at that time in writing to Senator George W. Norris as there was a power magnate seem to be mixed up in this affair also several other large concerns. I had just about predicted the outcome of this particular case before it went to court.

 So one sees how justice is twisted as I have often said. Now that we know about it what are we going to do about it. For indeed what can we do about it. Today in our county taxes are so terribly out of proportion it simply is a disgrace to any community. Large wealthy owners pay less than we do for our small homes.
 By illustration as pictures of property are shown in the news papers it almost seems unbelievable this should happen in a civilized nation. To top it all off the question again arises now that you know about it, what are you going to do about it. I make this comparison on the strength of your statement what part politics plays in crime. I have an idea of how your mob must be hampered in that way. Now all of this appears to me to be a sort of criminal intent a racket if connected together. I really do not think any decent citizen would care to embrace any one in such form of racket. I here for I urge you to carry on I am sure the people of our country will assist you in all ways, yours is the outstanding work of the day we have much confidence in your ability. We are proud of your record we feel more safe again it may be a long fight but we must win.

Very truly yours

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Congratulations on your recent accomplishments.

In your latest letter, you stated that your plans were indefinite at present, but that when you visited Los Angeles you would welcome an interview with me. Dear Sir;- Just a vote of thanks to you, and your fellow officers in rounding up a 'wild uncivilized bunch' of kidnapers. And if only they can be parolled in a few years 'you all' can have some more fun. Anyhow there may be some more 'Crack Pots' that don't know crime don't pay.

Now if the federal Government will put you on the trail of Gangsters and clean them up with equal success, it won't be long until law abiding citizens can catch up on much needed peaceful sleep.

Dear Sir:

You and your loyal men have made the best citizens of our Nation rejoice by the way you have cleaned out the criminals from our land.

It is one of the achievements, that more than anything else has caused us to believe that in spite of the wickedness and lawlessness prevailing in all classes of society there is Hope that some day if you are not handicapped by other powerful forces you and your men will finally bring all the worst offenders to justice, and if we the ordinary citizens will do our part and aid the coming generation to find higher ideals as their aim in life, then our country will be known as one that is governed by and has respect for law and order.

The writer is not sure that you favor the idea of informing the public as to what part they may have in this warfare, if you do, and if one of your men who may be conveniently located would give this information to the business men of our community, it would be a service that would be helpful and very much needed.

We meet the second Monday of each month, a dinner meeting at 6:15 P.M. Our schedule is open for the July meeting and thereafter, usually from 75 to 100 men are present, much public interest prevails, if you are in position to render this service it would be the means of interesting our best citizens in this important work of our Nation.

The bringing to justice of criminals who persist in all kinds of lawlessness and the changing of local conditions which tend to produce new and young criminals is certainly a Goal toward which every worthy citizen should be striving.

We are proud of the work you and your men have done and wish you the best success in your continued efforts in this fight.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

My sincere congratulations on the marvelous series of captures that your Bureau has effected in the past few weeks, proving again the great value of criminal detection free from political control and supervision. During my visit to your department last October I was much impressed by the general efficiency of the place and by the preponderance of foreign men in your organization. The chemical laboratory was especially interesting to me because that was the field where I received my training.

For your information I am enclosing two clippings from the Rochester papers that may be of interest to you for your files.

I sincerely hope that we will live to see the time when most of the police forces of this country will be staffed through civil service examinations rather than by the whims of the ward politicians. Instead of our cities always having to refer us to England and her system, we should be referring the English to ours.

Curtains for Kidnapers

Arrest of Thomas H. Robinson Jr., charged with kidnaping and holding for ransom Mrs. Alice Stoll, of Louisville, clears up the list of such cases that have engaged the attention of the Bureau of Investigation.

We cannot say there will be no more kidnapings, but the menace which was really terrifying two or three years ago has been largely dispelled.

Gangsters and individual criminals took up kidnaping as a means of getting large sums of money quickly. Now most of them are behind prison bars for life or very long terms. Some are dead.

"The 'snatch racket' is wiped out. The risks have been made too great for the man who stops to think what he is doing, and kidnaping is a carefully planned crime in most instances.

So too, with the notorious gunmen, most of whom are now dead.

State and local police authorities aided in dealing with many of these cases. But the decisive factor, the one which has turned the scale against the criminal, was the introduction of an agency not hampered by state lines and ready to keep men on the trail of major offenders until they were caught.

This factor of persistence has been perhaps the most important of all, though the members of the Bureau of Investigation are carefully selected and ably directed.

This work has been expensive and yet, in the long run, it will prove cheap, because it has so notably reduced the types of crimes with which the bureau deals.

And it means something when small boys, in their games, want to be G men, not gangsters or gunmen.

Eliminating crime is a big problem. It raises social and economic questions, as well as those of law enforcement.

In coping directly with criminals, it is to be hoped the example set by the federal men will hasten interstate co-operation, help do away with that ridiculous figure, the untrained county sheriff, and spur resolves to keep politics out of the police field.

X Roch. Democrat Chronicle The Real Public Enemy

Who is Public Enemy No. 1? May 14, 1936

John Dillinger once enjoyed that sobriquet; then it fell to Baby Face Nelson. Still later Alvin Karpis was so designated. But J. Edgar Hoover, chief G-man, doesn't share that view. "Old Man Politics," he retorted when asked about it in New York the other day. "He is now, he was and he always will be Public Enemy Number One, locally, in the states and nationally."

There is something for the American people to ponder in this statement. And there have been recent evidences of its truth. Witness the almost successful attempts of politically prominent attorneys in Arkansas to prevent the extradition of the accused head of a gigantic New York city vice racket. Witness the necessity of a special prosecutor, a special grand jury and a specially designated judge to meet New York city's vice situation. Witness the scandalous implications of the Wendel kidnaping episode of the Lindbergh kidnaping investigation. Witness the charge of a responsible Rochester citizen that fixing was holding back the enforcement of the law in serious traffic cases in Rochester.

The G-men have shown the people of the country what non-political law enforcement means. Mr. Dewey and his special aids in New York city are doing the same thing. When the American people take Mr. Hoover's remark seriously; when state and local police and prosecuting agencies generally can be permitted to move as they will, without having some "higher-up" hold their punches, we shall be getting somewhere in law enforcement, but not before.

I have been interested in Karpis and Campbell for a long time, because they are products of the territory in which this Railroad operates, and their names have appeared in our files from time to time every since they began stealing.

My department participated in the investigation of the murder of Sheriff Kelly, of West Plains, by Barker and Karpis.

Unquestionably, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has established itself as a most necessary connecting link in the chain of law enforcement; and I consider this excellent result as your own personal achievement.

ans (5)
I am returning herewith the telegram addressed to you on May 11th by Honorable James M. Cox of Dayton, Ohio, relative to the possibility of my making an address at a meeting in Dayton in the near future before a community group.

I do not feel that it would be desirable for me to make this address; as a matter of fact, the pressure of work now pending before the Bureau is such that I frankly do not see how I could possibly arrange to fill this engagement in the near future.

Respectfully,

John Edgar Hoover,
Director

Your speech to the Dutch Treat climax on it by what you did yesterday!

Good luck to you.

Dear Mr. Barton:

H
Bres (5)
I have just received your kind note of May 2nd, and want you to know how deeply appreciative I am of your thoughtfulness in writing as you did. In the first place, it was a real treat to me to be able to speak before such a fine group as I met at the Dutch Treat Club. I am indeed glad that my remarks met with your approbation.

I also want to thank you for your expressions concerning the capture of Alvin Karpis. It really makes us feel as if the long hours of hard work demanded by such a case are more than compensated for when public-spirited citizens such as you take cognizance of our efforts.

With expressions of my very best regards and good wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

My dear Sir

As a citizen - I wish to congratulate you and your office as to the efficient manner in which you have taken care of the

In fact, you should be highly commended instead of censured as you have ^{been} by some of the "peanut politicians".

Don't get discouraged but keep up the good work.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

I could not be true to myself if I did not write you a line to say how deeply grateful I am to you and your magnificent organization for the effective work you have been and are doing in running down the dastardly criminals who have roamed around our country in recent months. May Almighty God bless and protect you, and may the American people be aroused to give your organization and our great government the cooperation needed to continue your good work and make effective in some permanent way the progress already made. We all feel safer.

Just why Congress should quibble over the matter of providing adequate financial support for your department is amazing. I am convinced that your work is of utmost importance and should have the wholehearted support of all good citizens.

Again I say, God bless you personally, and more power to you and your men.

Very sincerely yours,

E. L. Baughman

Dear Mr. Hoover:

When the copy of your address entitled "Patriotism and the War Against Crime," arrived yesterday I was greatly pleased, as I always am when I receive these copies that you have so kindly been sending to me, and I of course intended to write you to thank you. But this morning, after learning about the Alvin Karpis capture yesterday, I wish to extend to you much more than mere thanks. I wish to congratulate you most heartily and sincerely upon this admirable achievement. It is indeed a feat that has strengthened the already great trust every law-abiding American has placed in you and your co-workers.

It was certainly thoughtful of you to send me a copy of the cartoon, "Putting All His Eggs In One Basket," which appeared in your paper on May 3d, and I wanted you to know how deeply appreciative I am of your kindness. It is one of the best likenesses I have ever seen portrayed by cartoon.

I have been making a collection of cartoons which I felt to be particularly impressive and wondered if it would be possible to obtain the original of this particular one. I would indeed value it in my collection.
