area from San Diego. California, where she had been a teacher, student of party (BPP) in San Diego. Upon arriving in this area, DAVIS obtained employment at the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) as an Assistant Professor, Philosophy Department, having been hired by a Key Activist of the Los Angeles Office. The california Board of Regents called for her dismissal because she was a self-admitted Communist Party (CP) member. Eventually, the court ruled that she could teach and now the case is on appeal by the California Board of Regents.

The Los Angeles Office has cooperated fully with the officials of the State of California and within bounds have provided them with information concerning DAVIS and advised them that former who testified for the Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB), could be of assistance to them since he was the first individual who exposed DAVIS as a CP member.

Informants close to the Mexican-American community and CP members have been told that when feasible, the question of should be brought up. would appear to some that the SCDCP is discriminating against the Mexican-American, while others were told to agree with the CP and question the strange actions of while in New York. It is to be noted that the in June 1969 was the subject of an SACB hearing in Los Angeles, California. Every effort is being made to cast suspicion on the while at the same time accusing the SCDCP of being anti-Mexican-American.

The Los Angeles Office has closely studied copies of periodicals of the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) and on several occasions articles critical of the BPP have been used. These articles have been sent to certain BPP members and it is generally known that there is definitely no love lost between the PLP and the BPP locally. This office will continue to follow the PLP articles and continue to cause a split among the PLP and the BPP.

As pointed out under "Tangible Results" in Los Angeles letter dated 9/23/69, after Bureau approval, this office distributed throwaway accusing throwaway accusing of being an informant to a police agency. Initially distributed in the Los Angeles area, then at the Black Panther Party conference in Oakland, California, the results were effective. In October, was arrested for illegal possession of firearms, which he paid for by use of his own personal check. After a short period of time, the remaining throwaways were scattered throughout the UCLA campus area. Once again the question was whether was really an arrest "victim" or actually an informant trying to trap the members of the BPP.

WHO MULES SCHOOLS Beard of Education Acts To Fire Teacher of 20 Yearsi Vera Greenwood

HISTORY

In September of 1968, Veta Greenwood, along with four others, gave a speech across the street from Manual Arts High School. The speech was part of a rally sponsored by the Black Anti-Draft Union which was organized to expose the racist and imperialist nature of the war in Vietnam.

A week later Mrs. Greenwood was arrested because of her speech in the elementary school in which she had been teaching for the last eleven years.

. Two months later she was acquitted in Superior Court of the County of Los Angeles.

Fall of '68 Vera Greenwood joined Prog. Labor Party and strengthened her committment to fight Racism & Imperialism.

Exactly two years later in November of 1969, Vera Greenwood received a letter from Sacramento threatening to take away her right to teach in California schools because of her political activities.

VERA'S REPLY TO THE BOARD OF ED'S AT LA City School System since 1949: "I have taught in taught 2nd and 3rd grades at 116th Street School for 11 years. I three children - a daughter at Cal State-LA, and a son and a daughter at Crenshaw High School. My husband has been, and is, in the forefront of the struggle against racism and oppression. I think I can safely say that most parents, teachers, and students espect me as a teacher. In September of 1967 an anti-draft rally was held at Manuel Arts High School. I spoke at that rally. The rally was called by the Black Anti-Draft Union, which I helped to organize. I spoke to the students about the war in Vietnam - the fact that this is an imperialist war . . . . I tried to relate this war to the conditions of Black working-class students here. The inferior education that our kids receive is no accident. The same class of people who control the government, control the schools. They operate both in their own interest and for their own needs - super profits! My anti-draft activities (previous to that, active in CORE) led to a firmer conviction on my part that the whole system of capitalism must be overthrown and replaced by socialism in this country - the working class). Recently, I joined the Progressive Labor Party, a Marxist-Leninist party dedicated to the overthrow of the capitalist system and the establishment of the dictatorship for the proletariat (working class control of the country). Now, two years later, why is Sacramento re-opening this case? I think the reason why is that they realize that by joining the Progressive Labor Party I have in effect elected not to discontinue political agitation, but to commit myself to full political participation. During my whole life I have been involved in what I thought was service to people, by teaching Sunday School, working with community improvement groups, youth groups, PTS's, and civilrights organizations. But, I have in fact come to realize that the only way I can truly serve the people is through an understanding of the class nature of society and the need for revolution. It is precisely this understanding on my part which has let to the attack by the state Board of Education.

This attacton me is an attack on all people whether communist or not, to are strongly against the war, against bad schools, and against the super-oppression of Black people the oppression of workers all around the world."

Public Schools are Racist and Anti-Working Class

The 116th Street School is in the predominately black south-central area of Los Angeles. As in all schools, teachers here are expected to push racist and anti-working class propaganda daily. Children are told that George Washington was a great and honorable man. They are not told that he was a slaveholder, and devoted his life to securing the position of a small group of wealthy farmers. Kids are taught that the slaves brought from Africa were really "uplifted" because of the greater cultural advantages of this country. At an early age children begin to feel their parents are inferior for not becoming managers or foremen. Even in the stories for first and second graders, working people are referred to in a derogatory way while the exploiters are presented as heroes. Drugs are pushed even in elementary school because the ruling class knows that doped up children will stay off their backs. Cops are brought in and paraded around as "servants of the community", except, of course, when they come in to harrass some student or to arrest a teacher like Vera Greenwood. (She was called out of class and arrested for her part in the anti-draft rally.) At the same time, even the basic skills, such as reading are not being taught at this school, thus some of the lowest reading scores in the city come from schools like the 116th Street School.

Mrs. Greenwood in Forefront of Struggle for All Working Class Parents and Students

Having lived and taught in this area for 11 years, Vera Greenwood is well aware of these conditions and has always been involved in fighting back against the special oppression of Black people. Only five years ago the streets around 116th Street burned with the fires of rebellion, and certainly must have involved some of the very "graduates" of this school. Because Vera has chosen to also fight against the super-oppression of black people through her role as a communist, this attack on her is a racist attack on the vanguard of the struggle against racism and imperialism.

The ruling plass has systematically attack he black workers and students, who, like Vera Greenwood, are fighting back. This attack, felt by the students at Orangeburg, S. Carolina, and San Feranndo Valley State College, by workers at General Electric, and by the Black Panthers is designed to strike fear into the hearts of those who struggle against the ruling class' oppression.

Attack Differs From Angela Davis Case

The attack from the Board of Education sites section 13202 of the Education Code as the cause for Vera's hearing; that is, membership in a communist organization. They fear the role communist will play in the schools and elsewhere in giving leadership to the pent-up hatred the people have for their exploiters. This attack on Vera is far different from the attack on Angela Davis. Angela Davis is part of the Comminist Party, which has consistently sold out the working class with its support of the "lesser of two evils" answer to our problems - Johnson over Goldwater, I.W. Abel over whatever other crook he is running against for union president, Bradley or Yorty, etc. The CP "leads" people to believe the rich will give up their power non-violently through support of Martin Luther King and other pacifists. The CP has long since abandoned even talking about the working class, or the fact that this is the power that is necessary for true self-determination. The ruling class used Angela Davis to build anti-communism in this country without any fear that the truth about communism would escape her lips.

PART II

"Marxism-Leninism teaches us that only with collective thought and action can we make any gains under this system and overthrow it to establish a workers state." Mrs. Greenwood has said this to groups of friends and supporters at recent public meetings and over the last few years she has shown her increasing willingness to carry this out.

Propaganda used by Ruling Class

One of the main tools the ruling class uses to keep workers divided and to make super profits is Racism.

The schools play a leading role in the promotion of racism. They do this by teaching such things as: black slaves in America Toved their masters; they didn't organize to resist slavery; and slavery was better for them than running around loose and naked in Africa. The schools imply that whites do better because they are superior. The failure on the part of the schools to teach basic skills, such as

Reading Scores

Recently the L.A. Times published reading scores of all L.A. City Schools, school by school, and gave not only the reading scores, but the percentage of minority pupils at the schools. In most cases the higher the percentage of minority youngsters the lower the reading scores. Publishing these scores without a strong indictment of the educational system for failing to provide conditions under which black and brown children can learn to read promotes racism. When there's fussin' about bussin', white parents are going to conclude that greater numbers of black or brown pupils at their schools means that the academic level at the school must fall lower.

(Latin Americans and Indians)

The schools teach that Latin Americans love to sing and dance at the drop of a sombrero. And when they are not doing that, they're sleeping under a tree. We are taught that Indians are savages who massacred and scalped innocent white people. We learn that the reason Indians were defeated is because of the superiority of white soldiers. How many times have we seen movies where a few whites take on a whole Indian tribe and wipe them out.

The failure of the American educational system to teach the true political and economic reasons for the racism in this country leads to minority people being racist against themselves. Many conclude that only by looking and acting white can they attain "equality". Some believe that all whites are racist by nature or because they want to keep black people down.

Holidays — Washington and Lincoln) days we are forced to celebrate are Even the anti-working class. We are taught that George Washington is the "father of our country." George Washington was absolutely our enemy and the direct opposite of us. He was a chief agent for the ruling class of that period just as every other president has been. He was a slaveholder who devoted his life to the consolidation of wealth and power in the hands of a few. Lincoln was no better. He was an arch racist. He didn't free anybody. He only advocated emancipation of some of the slaves to preserve the system. He didn't "save the country" . . . . only the black people fighting along with the white working class and oppressed Indians could have saved the country for us. Lincoln felt the only solution to the race problem was shipping black people back to Africa. (So-Called Black Leaders) Even the Black so-called "leaders" that our children learn about were really misleaders or out-and-out enemies. People like Booker T. Washington, George Washington Carver, A. Philip Randolph, Jackie Robinson, and even Martin Luther King loved the system and only advocated various ways black people could sneak in the back door to help the ruling class oppress African, Asian, and Latin American workers. We have no fighting heroes like Nat Turner, Denmark Vesey or Joseph Cerque. There is not emphasis in the school cirriculum on Mexican heroes. If someone like Pancho Villa or Zapata is mentioned, he is brushed aside as having been simply a bandit or a terrorist. Ruling Class Never Teaches One WC History The schools are anti-working class. They don't teach of the heroic and bloody struggles of workers in this country to win such basic gains as the right to have unions, the eight-hour day, and the (Continued on Page 9)

THREE R'S AND THEN SOME—Elementary school teacher Mrs. Vera Greenwood spoke on "Battles in Education" here yesterday, sponsored by the Progressive Labor Party. She charged that the state is trying to fire her because of her party membership. An organizer of the Black Anti-draft Union, Mrs. Greenwood said those who receive a deficient education have a choice between "a bad jab or the army." Petitions supporting Mrs. Greenwood were circulated afterwards.

abolition of child labor. We are taught that these advances were granted by a benevolent government whose only interest is the welfare of its citizens.

Even in elementary schools the system wages a strong brainwashing campaign. Cops are invited into the schools to visit the classrooms and tell the children how they're in the community to protect and to serve and to keep bad people from robbing and hurting them. But it is becoming difficult to even fool second graders who have had their fathers and older brothers or other relatives beaten and arrested for "looking suspicious." They have sat and watched on TV while cops have beaten and clubbed demonstrators.

(Narcotics)

They see these same relatives being destroyed by narcotics and nothing is done about it. In fact, last year there was an article in the L.A. Times entitled "More Drugs, Less Violence; Less Drugs, More Violence." It presented statistics to show that in N.Y. High Schools where there was a high percentage of hard drugs in use there was very little if any violence. On the other hand, in those schools with less drug use - the resistance to oppressive education was high. Where do you think more cops and guards were stationed? Who benefits from the use of narcotics? The only thing the schools should teach working class children about cops is that they are the military arm of the ruling class and the main force they will eventually rely on to maintain their power. Right now cops are stationed in black and brown communities in increasing numbers not to protect and to serve its citizens, but to contain, intimidate and brutalize them.

(Farmworkers)

There is a film put out by the Board of Education about the farmer. It shows farmworkers as happy, working at their own rate in the healthy sunshine. It doesn't show how migratory farm workers really live, or that their children have to work in the fields too at inhuman speeds to make enough money for subsistance wages.

(Factory)

In one book a factory is pictured as a clean, well-lighted cheerful place to work. The guard at the door is supposed to be there to open the doors for the workers and visitors. The foreman's main duty in the book was to show visitors around the factory. When I asked the children why they thought the guard was there, they told me to keep people out because he thought they would steal something. They and their parents about the foreman's joinnel it didn't agree with the k's explanation. II. Parent-Teacher-Student Alliance. The only way the working class can wage a struggle for the best schools possible under capitalism is through the formation of a strong Parent-Teacher-Student Alliance. The working class cannot completely run the schools under capitalism. In other words, there is no such thing as community control. Working class control can only come under socialism. arent-Teacher-Student Alliance should demand: - A complete overhaul of teacher training and assignment so that working-class, especially Black and Mexican-American children, can e taught. - Teachers should live in the school neighborhood; neighborhood arents should likewise get free training and become full teachers. The fighting history, past and present, of Afro-American, Mexican-American, and all working-class people, must be at the heart of our schooling. This will inspire our young people to learn. - Jobs must be waiting for our young people when they get out of school, not the draft. A crash program of new school construction in working class areas must be started now to end the crippling overcrowding which turns schools into detention houses. ALL young people must be educated. We will fight for whatever is necessary to bring high standards for all schools in the city. THE BOARD OF EDUCATION shall be held responsible to get the funds necessary to meet our demands. - An end to the drugs pushed on school children and get rid of the drug pushers who supply the students. All this is done with the approval of the sand local rulers who would prefer the drendren - No police on campus to intimidate students.

Divide & Conquer

We've seen examples here and elsewhere of what divisions gains for the working class. At Carver Jr. High School last year after a brutal attack by the police, students, teachers, and parents who were genuinely interested in doing something about the police brutality, bad education and racism attended many meetings. However, the Parent-Teacher-Student Alliance. As a result, Yorty could get on TV, Parents were urged to form patrols to force students back to school conditions.

(New York)

In New York City, Community control was used by the board and the racist teachers union leadership to divide parents, teachers, and students. As a result, the struggle for better schools in New York has been set back.

(L.A. Teacher's Strike)

L.A. Teacher organizations are threatening a strike this spring. Parents, students and teachers must begin to ally now to fight for demands that benefit working class children. If we don't, the leadership of the teacher organizations will wind up selling out the students. The only way this can be prevented is by parents, students, and teachers becoming actively involved in the strike. To benefit the are often divided and pitted against each other over school issues. Class issues become secondary - what children learn, who run schools, for what purpose.

(Parents Must Support Teachers and Students)

Another important reason for a strong alliance of parents, teachers, and students is that any teacher or student who speaks up or organizes to improve education is going to be silenced by the school board unless parents support teachers and students.

(Horace Mann)

At Horace Mann Jr. High School the parents have formed a committee to improve education and reduce overcrowding. The teachers who have supported us have been harrassed and intimidated by the principal and their department heads. The only way those teachers can continue to speak out, organize and teach is with strong community support.

(Sacramento)

"Presently, the State Board of Education is threatening to revoke or suspend my teaching credential. They have demanded that I come to Sacramento, Feb. 16, for a hearing regarding this. I've been active at every school my children have attended and at the school where I teach. Now, when the black community is becoming more organized and when they are beginning to fight the bad schools — the board must silence anyone it exercises power over."

Strategy for our Campaign

We feel that Vera's credential is important, not only because it is her livelihood but because of her political outlook. Rotten conditions in the schools are a severe working class problem. The main aspect of this problem is the fact that public schools are used primarily to turn out vast numbers of workers to be exploited by Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Hughes Aircraft, and all the other factories in LA and around the country. We need teachers like Vera who are willing to bring together parents, teachers and students. Without the fighting unity even basic reforms will remain out of our reach in working class schools. With this unity and with communists such as Vera who can bring the science of Marxism-Leninism to a working class movement, we will be able to improve conditions in the schools and smash the real enemies of the people — the U.S. rulers.

Friends and supporters of Mrs. Greenwood and Progressive Labor Party are mobilizing to wage an aggressive campaign against this attack from the ruling class Board of Education. Our campaign will follow the general spirit of Vera Greenwood's reply to the Sacramento letter. We plan to expose and attack the ruling class for its anti-communism and racism through leaslets and speaking campaigns to workers and students. We will emphasize the need for unity of teachers, working class parents, and students to fight for better education, and to fight to retain Vera as a teacher. We are mobilizing busses to go with Vera to the hearing scheduled for write, P.O. Box 19724, Los Angeles, 90019

Pat made a speech on male privelige and a general discussion was held. Workshops included campus organizing, Marxism-Leninism, and BS session on nationalist movement. The reference to money in relation to the Atlanta trip should be eliminated and the reference to a trip to Atlanta should be brought into the report through some other reference.

The report and cover note may be prepared and mailed after the above changes have been made. In preparing these, all necessary steps are to be taken to protect the identity of the Bureau as their source. The recipients of the letters should be restricted to approximately ten or less which should include Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) chapters and Black Panther leaders. #### NOTE:

Los Angeles has suggested that a spurious informant report be prepared which would purportedly be from a Key Activist to an unidentified investigative organization. The report covers an actual meeting at which was in attendance and, thereby, could be authentic. A link connecting with the report is a cover note sending it to a limited number of New Left and Black Panther Party (BPP) leaders. This note states it was found near a white car in an area where New Left meetings are held.

The purpose of the program is to discredit the last and break up his following in the RYM, by showing that he is some type of informant. The Los Angeles office has prepared a "kit" of news articles which have appeared in the various newspapers in the Los Angeles area. Included among these articles is an account of a speech made at the University of California at Santa Barbara (UCSB) in which she called for the overthrow of the government. This kit was used recently when DAVIS, selfadmitted member of the Communist Party, and well thought of by youths in the New Left Movement, was scheduled to speak on the campus of the Mt. San Antonio College, Walnut, California. With little time to endeavor to cancel her appearance, a select group was sent this "kit" of news items, and shortly after, her speech was cancelled by the authorities at Mt. San Antonio College. It has been requested that the Bureau approve any future use on a very select basis in an endeavor to force the responsible school personnel to deny DAVIS a platform on campus where she can voice her philosophy of Communism.

DO WE NEED A MARXIST?

Air Date: June 3, 1970

There are a number of reasons the Regents of the University of California should not fire Angela Davis, a Marxist and an admitted member of the Communist Party. The issue will probably be decided at the June 19th Regents meeting.

First, instructors should be judged on their performance as instructors, not on their political beliefs. Miss Davis has been judged on her performance by other members of the UCLA Philosophy Department and by a blue ribbon committee of other faculty members.

Second, there is no grave danger to the university from the presence of an admitted Communist. We have more to fear from instructors who think left and talk right.

Third, the time for the decision to dismiss or retain acting assistant professors comes at the end of their second year. Releasing Angela Davis now for political reasons makes her a martyr.

Finally, a decision on her retention or dismissal should come from the Chancellor, Charles Young, and not from the Regents. He carries the direct responsibility for the academic operations of the school, and it is he who should retain the authority for hiring and firing non-tenured faculty members.

KNBC does not believe in Communism, and we object to the idea that California taxpayers are providing a forum for the espousal of that body of thought. But academic freedom isn't a thing we can turn on and off like a faucet. Universities must be free to discuss ideas whether they're practical or popular or not.

And if students in our best universities aren't able to weigh and reject the convoluted teachings of Marxism, who is?

We should be wary of the actions of Marxism; not the words.

Special Agent in Charge

Sent .

For the information of recipient offices, ANGELA YVONNE DAVIS, was an Assistant Professor, Philosophy Department, at UCLA, until relieved from this position because she had made statements off campus which were not considered in good taste by the University of California Board of Regents. She is also a self-admitted member of the Che Lumumba Club, Moranda Smith Section, Southern California District Communist Party.

ANGELA DAVIS recently was seen in the Los Angeles area withone, age 17, who acted as her bodyguard. On August 7, 1970, JACKSON entered a Marin County California Superior Court, passed out guns to several Negroes appearing before Judge HAROLD J. HALEY, and as a result HALEY and three others, including JACKSON, were slain.

At the present time the Marin County District Attorney's Office is planning on holding a Grand Jury hearing concerning the slayings which occurred on August 7, 1970, and DAVIS will be served with a subpoena and ordered to appear for this hearing.

The above information is being made available so that interested offices might be alert to the fact that DAVIS might possibly seek employment in their area, and so that, through established sources, these offices can alert appropriate officials in their area concerning DAVIS and her past activities in the Los Angeles area.

Pertinent letters are being sent to the Buffalo and Milwaukee offices because of job offers for DAVIS from that area. Copies are being sent to the Minneapolis and Washington, D.C. offices because of their interest in the National Student Association, and also to San Diego since HERBERT MARCUSE is mentioned on one communication.

PURPOSE:

This memorandum recommends the Laboratory Division be authorized to make alterations in a diary in order that a Los Angeles Security the diary's owner, Index subject, can be branded as an informant of a Government agency.

is a member of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles branch of the Progressive Labor Party (PLP). The Los Angeles Office has obtained a diary that was maintained and then discarded by ______ It contains the usual names, addresses, and dates of meetings that could be expected in any diary of an active member of an organization. It is clearly identified as belonging to since it contains his name handwritten in the front.

Los Angeles has proposed that the Laboratory Division make certain forged additions to this diary which would strongly indicate that the had been contacting an Army intelligence agency or the Secret Service. The entries would be cryptic, would refer to Party affairs, and would contain phone numbers which would, when called, be identified as Army intelligence or Secret Service agencies in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles suggested that the altered diary be sent n. Chairman of the PLP, with a cover letter written in the vernacular of the New Left which would point out the specific Army and Secret Service notations and would accuse of being an informant. The letter would be anonymous and would contain enough "bait" to insure that mould follow up with an investigation

OBSERVATIONS - OVER

OBSERVATIONS:

The recommendation of the Los Angeles Office appears to have merit. Since it would be introduced into PLP circles by anonymous means, there is no possibility of embarrassment to the Bureau. The Document Section of the Laboratory has advised that alterations can be successfully made. If, through this means, Party reputation is seriously impugned, it can result in the neutralization of a PLP official.

RECOMMENDATIONS:

- 1. That the Document Section of the Laboratory Division be authorized to make the necessary alterations and
- 2. That the Los Angeles Office be authorized to anonymously mail the altered document to PLP headquarters in New York City.

PROGRESSIVE LABOR PARTY (PLP)

"The New York Times" city edition, Tuesday, April 20, 1965, Page 27, reported that a new party of "revolutionary socialism" was formally founded on April 18, 1965, under the name of the PLP which had been known as the Progressive Labor Movement.

According to the article, "The Progressive Labor Movement was founded in 1962, by MILTON ROSEN and MORTIMER SCHEER after they were expelled from the Communist Party of the United States for assertedly following the Chinese Communist line."

A source advised on June 3, 1968, that the PLP held its Second National Convention in New York City, May 31 to June 2, 1968, at which time the PLF reasserted its objective of the establishment of a militant working class movement based on Marxism-Leninism. This is to be accomplished through the Party's over-all revolutionary strategy of raising the consciousness of the people and helping to provide ideological leadership in the working class struggle for state power.

The source also advised that at the Second National Convention MILTON ROSEN was unanimously re-elected National Chairman of the PLF and were elected as the National Committee to lead the PLF until the next convention.

The PLP publishes "Progressive Labor", a bimonthly magazine; "World Revolution", a quarterly periodical; and "Challenge-Desafio", a monthly newspaper.

The April 1969, issue of "Challenge-Desafio" sets forth that "Challenge is dedicated to the peoples fight for a new way of life---where the working men and women control their own homes and factories; where they themselves make up the entire government on every level and control the schools, courts, police, and all institutions which are now used to control them."

Source advised on May 8, 1969, that the PLP utilizes an address of General Fost Office Box 808, Brocklyn, New York, and also utilizes an office in Room 617, 1 Union Square West, New York, New York.

APPEND LX

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY (SDS)

A source has advised that the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), as presently regarded, came into being at a founding convention held June 1962, at Port Huron, Michigan. From an initial posture of "participatory democracy" the line of the national leadership has revealed a growing Marxist-Leninist adherence which currently calls for the building of a revolutionary youth movement. Concurrently, the program of SDS has evolved from civil rights struggles to an anti-Vietnam war stance to an advocacy of a militant anti-imperialist position. China, Vietnam and Cuba are regarded as the leaders of worldwide struggles against United States imperialism whereas the Soviet Union is held to be revisionist and also imperialist.

At the June 1969, SDS National Convention, Progressive Labor Party (PLP) forces in the organization were expelled. As a result, the National Office (NO) group maintained its National Headquarters at 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, and the PLP faction set up headquarters in Cambridge, Massachusetts. This neadquarters subsequently moved to Boston. Each group elected its own national offices, which include three national secretaries and a National Interim Committee of eight. Both the NO forces and the PLP forces claim to be the true SDS. Both groups also print their versions of "New Left Notes" which sets forth the line and the program of the particular faction. The NO version of "New Left Notes" was recently printed under the title "The Fire Next Time" to achieve a broader mass appeal.

Two major factions have developed internally within the NO group, namely, the Weatherman or Revolutionary Youth Movement (RYM) I faction and the RYM II faction. Weatherman is action-oriented upholding CASTRO's position that the duty of revolutionaries is to make revolution. Weatherman is regarded by RYM II as an adventuristic elitist faction which denies the historical role of the working class as the base for revolution. RYM II maintains that revolution, although desired, is not possible under present conditions, hence emphasizes organizing and raising the political constitueness of the working class upon whom they feel successful revolution depends. Although disclaiming control and domination by the Communist Party, USA, leaders in these two factions have in the past proclaimed themselves to be communists and to follow the precepts of a Marxist-Leninist philosophy, along pro-Chinese communist lines.

A second source has advised that the PLP faction which is more commonly known as the Worker Student Alliance is dominated and controlled by members of the PLP, who are required to identify themselves with the pro-Chinese Marxist-Leninist philosophy of the PLP. They advocate that an alliance between workers and students is vital to the bringing about of a revolution in the United States.

SDS regions and university and college chapters, although cperating under the cutlines of the SDS National Constitution, are autonomous in nature and free to carry out independent policy reflective of local conditions. Because of this autonomy internal struggles reflecting the major factional interests of SDS have occurred at the chapter level since the beginning of the 1967-70 school year.

POTENTIAL COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ACTION

The Los Angeles Office forwarded to the Bureau a diary belonging to one Samuelles, member, Executive Committee of the Los Angeles Progressive Labor Party (PLP). Los Angeles requested that necessary changes be made in this diary so that it would appear that was in contact with the Secret Service in Los Angeles and also Army Intelligence. By letter dated August 31, 1970, the Bureau returned this diary to Los Angeles so that it could be mailed from this area.

It is the intention of the Los Angeles Office to mail this diary to This counterintelligence program it is hoped will neutralize cause suspicion among the PLP members and it is hoped the membership will doubt the sincerity of its own leaders.

By airtel dated August 14, 1970, this office made available to the Bureau and interested offices copies of correspondence which were mailed to ANGELA YVONNE DAVIS, Bureau Fugitive, and former Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the University of California at Los Angeles. The copies of these letters which had been mailed to DAVIS from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Buffalo, New York, and Washington, D. C., contained many offers of assistance to AMGELA DAVIS including the offering of positions in the event she decided to leave UCLA. Without divulging the source of these bits of correspondence, it is hoped that recipient offices can

By letter dated August 31, 1970, the Los Angeles Office made available information concerning who is presently residing in Canada. Los Angeles Office provided background information not only concerning and his wife but also information concerning their numerous friends. The Los Angeles Office suggested that in the event is not utilized as an informant by the it might be possible to build a counterintelligence program around and leak information to Chinese Sources that one is a United States Intelligence Agent, thus neutralizing his intelligence possibilities.

2. TANGIBLE RESULTS

For the information of the Bureau, recently two editors of the UCLA campus newspaper published a picture of a semi-nude couple apparently engaged in a sex act in a cemetary. When this paper appeared on the campus at UCLA the information was made available to Agents of this office and to friendly outside sources. As a result numerous telephone calls were made not only to UCLA authorities but to the local police department and the District Attorney's Office. It is to be noted that the two editors at UCLA were arrested and charged with obscenity in a complaint which was filed by Los Angeles City Attorney ROGER ARNEBERGH.

3. PENDING COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ACTION

At the present time, the Los Angeles Office is still trying to obtain photograph of showing him as a member of the California National Guard and as an "Agent of the establishment" recruited directly from the California National Guard. This office wants to make sure that the source of these photographs cannot be identified and that this counterintelligence program can be safely undertaken so that no outsiders will be aware of this counterintelligence program.

is at all times an intimate part of the action. In fact, one of the Company's trademarks is the degree to which it tears down the old barrier between stage and gallery. Whether through direct spontaneous participation in the play or merely through intense emotional absorption, each member of the audience is made to feel personally involved with the spectacle unfolding all around him. In Children of the Kingdom, for example, the audience is a rock audience and is treated as such. The Emergence invites the spectator to share in bread, cider, and dancing on the green; the play's final moments induce in him, thanks in part to extraordinary technical effects, an incredible sense of personal mystic communion with the actors (Continued on Page 12)

I. How did you feel about the "Indian scene" that happened about a year and a half ago?

B.—I looked forward to it. There were headbands and feathers. Rolling Stone, Oracle and The Free Press were all running Indian pages. They were printing things that they thought related to Indian affairs. But none did adequate research, none really cared.

Even now, Hollywood is exploiting Indian death. Their most recent film was Soldier Blue. I sang the theme song to it because I thought the film made a statement of sorts. But the film was edited, and all that remains is a violent bloody film that uses Indians as a vehicle for their violence.

We're taught, in public schools, that the Indians invented scalping. The truth is that the white man taught us that trick.

L—How is it that you managed to go through all those years of schooling and University, and emerge unscathed?

B.-Unscathed? Man, I am one big scar!

I.—How do you feel about researchers who go to the reservation in an effort to study the Indian from a sociological or psychological viewpoint in order to understand them better?

B.—You mean those people whose only reason for "studying" us is to get their Ph.D.'s or write a book so that they can become famous? It's just like the Hollywood movies. A white man presents something to a white audience in order to make money, or for other personal gains, and we get nothing. What should we say, thank you?

I have a song that I sing about those people who come to help us:

"The anthropologist man comes to me/ he tells me he's got a college degree/ he says he's got the papers he's got/ the experience he's studied hard/ and he's gonna go dig in our grave-yard."

These people don't seem to understand that they are perpetuating our poverty.

We need a different kind of a white man. We need people to go get jobs in the Burcau of Indian Affairs, and then turn his job over to an Indian. So if you know anyone whose wondering what to do now that he's got his degree or whatever, tell him to go enroll in a Native American studies program; get to know some Indians; pull to get a job in the B.I.A. then turn it over to one of us.

We need a new kind of person. We need the American hippie sentiment. We need the new modern lip service to get on the

and with the spiritual forces they represent?

This sense of personal involvement, says Barry, is as important for the performers as it is for the audience. As compared to the famous Living Theatre, which tends to stress the political rather than the spiritual side of man, "We like our audiences better." In the cramped quarters of the playhouse, an actor can look directly into the spectator's eyes. Through this sort of close interpersonal contact, the actor can gauge the response his performance evokes.

The future of the Company is filled with uncertainties. As aiways, they will try to add a new play to the repertory every ten weeks. They are also interested in the possibilities of film and, although recognizing that there cannot be much excitement in film performance for an actor, they plan acinematic re-working of Megan Terry's Keep Tightly Closed in a Cool Dry Place.

Traditionally the Company's decisions for the future have been based solely on their own artistic and psychological needs. For instance, there is the case of The Sport of My Mad Mother. Although playing to full houses, it was dropped from the repertory when the actors became over-involved with their roles. "It made us mean," says Barry.

Now, however, success has brought with it new problems of artistic integrity. Performing Edward Bond's Narrow Road to the Deep North, a more conventional play than the usual Company offering, was for the actors a valuable exercise in discipline. Critics commended it but the audience clearly didn't want this "stepping-back" into traditionalism by a group known for its contemporary lack of inhibition. Thus Narrow Road was temporarily, at least, discontinued. The Liquid Theatre, on the other hand, is sold out for weeks to come. It has spread the group's reputation and has completely solved the problem of a sagging Saturday night boxoffice. But the Company has been staging the Liquid Theatre, in various forms, for a year and eight months. They are reluctant to abandon their breadwinner, but at this point they desperately "need a new way to get excited about it."

The problem of the Liquid of grim as Barr is as yet unsolved. So is the larger issue of the Company's responsibility to its audience. Is it more important, at this point, to remain in the theatrical vanguard through continued experiment or to expand as individual performers? And what about the possibilities of expansion, of extensive touring, of a bigger and better playhouse? Admits Barry, "We're on gether."

the brink of a major commerical decision," but the nature of that decision is at present anybody's guess.

A large sign in Barry's office declares, "Arbeit Macht Frei." The fact that this same sentiment -"Work Makes us Free"-was inscribed over the gas chamber door at Auschwitz adds a note of grim irony to its meaning. But as Barry points out, the words are true nonetheless. Through dedication and hard work the Company is determined to achieve the artistic freedom it seeks. In any case, even in their gloomiest hours, the members of the Company Theatre family can hold on to the knowledge that after three years of assorted ups and downs, "We're still to-

On this one, Spencer was the whole show, and although we became the best of friends, there was a lot of tension on the set. I was determined to give a credible performance no matter what, and I had to try that much harder. We started shooting in January, 1943, and I had to drive to the studio so early in the morning it was still dark, which started the day on a depressing note. Then after we'd been shooting for several weeks, Van Johnson got into a terrible motorcycle accident; and we didn't know whether he would recover or not.

They got frantic and called the mayor and everybody else they could think of, but it didn't do any good. Fortunately somebody hit upon the bright idea of dissolving it with gallons of cold cream, otherwise we would have been bald. The hair dyes were so crude in those days. # Drug abuse research rich in purpose, poor in funds

By Paula Skale DB Staff Reporter

Leaning back comfortably in his chair, Dr. J. Thomas Ungerleider, assistant professor of psychiatry here unwrapped an ARA sandwich and tried to explain how he got involved in research on drug abuse!

"Well, it's all pretty simple," he said. "In 1965 we suddenly found ourselves flooded with kids freaked out on drugs. We just wanted to know what we could do about it."

Between bites of his sandwich Dr. Ungerleider spoke of the research he has donesince 1965. Based on his research are the articles he has written, the speeches he has given and the TV documentaries he has assisted in creating to inform people about the problem of drug abuse. His research has also lead to the creation of projects aimed at treating and preventing the drug problem.

Recognized

Dr. Ungerleider's work is now officially recognized by the University Medical Center. "Sure we're official," he explained, gesturing to the wails of his office, heavy with plaques of recognition from Pres. Nixon, Hubert Humphrey, Gov. Reagan, the American Medical Association and others. "But we still have no money and very little space."

Dr. Ungerleider graduated from the University of Michigan with honors in psychology and was previously Chief of Psychiatry at the United States Army Hospital, Fort Ord, California. His 55 published articles and book chapters especially emphasize youth and drugs.

Many of the projects Dr. Ungerleider is working on now are unfunded. "A Criminal Justice Grant has provided some money, and of course the Medical Center provides a typist." He also noted that, "we have no lack of volunteers willing to help, but we don't have the funds or facilities to use them."

In spite of these handicaps, work against drug abuse does continue under Dr. Ungerleider's guidance. "We have a detoxification ward with 40 beds and also the only methadone maintenance program in the country where addicts are kept on methodone."

Lead the way

Finishing his hurried lunch, Dr. Ungerleider lead the way to the ward in which his patients live. The people there seem comfortable and continued playing ping pong or cards, hardly noticing the visitors passing through. "Unfortunately," Dr. Ungerleider said, "a large number of the people here now, try-

ECTP begins fourth year

🔅 By Carol Starcevic DB Staff Writer

The Exceptional Children Tutorial Program (ECTP) has been tutoring emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children here for three years, according to Todd Thorne, project director.

The project currently works with three local schools: the Kennedy Child Study Center in Santa Monica, the Dubnoff School in North Hollywood and the Alta Loma Elementary School in the Crenshaw area.

The number of volunteer tutors fluctuates between 80 and 110. Three hours a week are devoted to tutoring and various field trips are taken on week-ends. Children are taken on a special snow trip during the winter quarter.

Approximately $6500 a year is allocated from Student Legislative Council (SLC). Most of this goes for transportation and staff salaries. Additional funds go for supplies, publicity and tutor training.

Prospective tutors go through a three-step preparation program: First, a training period of six weeks consisting of speakers from each school and films. The tutor then participates in "classroom aide work" under a teacher's supervision for one quarter. Finally, if the tutor wishes, he is placed on a one-to-one basis while tutoring a child.

Faculty adviser for ECTP is Dr. Steven Forness, director of Program Developing of Special Education at the Neuropsychiatric Institute here.

The ECTP has future plans for a summer day center next year. According to Thorne, It will be a type of school run by UC students with a student-teacher ratio of no more than 4:1. Children will learn some arts and crafts and have academic instruction in math, reading and physical education. Thorne hopes to get professional help from the psychology and education departments here and from NPI.

The ETCP is planning to finance its summer young people or tell them drugs are immoral. Instead, Dr. Ungerleider said, "D.A.R.E. tries to inform people about the risks involved in using drugs." As a D.A.R.E. leaslet says: "Know the facts about drugs, then make your own decision."

The teenage volunteers who are members of D.A.R.E. hope to "bridge the generation gap by helping parents to communicate with young people without being so frightened by the fads, their language and their whole culture."

Inform

According to Dr. Ungerleider the teen members of D.A.R.E. work to inform people about drugs by making and evaluating movies and literature about drug use: "They send out over 40,000 pieces of material a month, solely in answer to requests for information on drug use.

D.A.R.E. is also supported by an adult group called A.D.A.R.E. which attempts to help addicts stay off drugs and give them a positive future by finding jobs for them. A.D.A.R.E. presents a group of adults who have bridged the generation gap and can accept the young people and their ideas.

These groups, Dr. Ungerleider said, hope to supply a source of peer group pressure all the way down into elementary school, against the use of drugs. He believes that peer group pressure and honest information seem to be the best bets for halting the problem of drug abuse.

Tutors sometimes work with physically handicapped children but this does not usually pose a problem or barrier to learning. "The kids are smart." Thorne said, "they'll psych out a tutor to the point where he's doing what the kids want him to."

On the ECTP's success, Thorne said, "We really influence people. From the experiences in tutoring, about 60% decide to go into leaching or special education."

Dickson Galleries

The ceramics of Professor Laura Andreson are being highlighted through November 1 as part of the Dickson Art Galleries series of faculty exhibitions.

This retrospective look at Miss Andreson's works represents some thirty years of efforts in earthenware, porcelain, and stoneware.

The collection consists of ceramic bottles and bowls glazed in a variety of colors. Many of the types of glazes represented are a result of the artist's own investigation of glaze chemistry in her career, which lead to the recreating of glazes of past cultures for which methods had been lost.

Sharing the spotlight at the galleries is a collection of paintings by art professor Lester Biller.

Ethnic Art Gallery

The UCLA Museum and Laboratories of Ethnic Art and Technology is now presenting its fall exhibition Ceramics: Form and Technique until Nov. 25.

The exhibit covers many facets of primitive, folk and ancient ceramics.

The exhibition is also didactic in that there are sections dealing with the nature and composition of clay, the forming of pots, the nature of firing, decoration and ancient glazes. Also included are slides which illustrate the role of the potter as an artist, innovator and bearer of a community tradition.

The exhibit features pieces from Africa, the Indians of the Southwest United States, Greece, and a collection of Japanese and Chinese wares loaned to the exhibit by Laura Andreson, professor of ceramics who retired this year.

The exhibit is located in the architecture building and is open noon-5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday and 1-5 p.m. on Sunday.

BRUINSPORTS

By Buddy Epstein DB Sports Editor Emeritus

UCLA basketball coach, John Wooden, was spending an average morning in his office yesterday with picture day for his team today and practice to begin tomorrow.

He was discussing the morals of professional basketball players with a former freshman player of his who came in to talk. When his assistant coach, Denny Crum, came in to remind him that the World Series was on, Wooden turned on his set and began a discussion of the two teams playing position by position.

He fielded several phone calls including one from a former player who wanted to know why UCLA lost in football to Oregon last Saturday. Wooden patiently explained UCLA's strategy in that game.

Still, though, the thought of the upcoming basketball season was foremost in his mind.

"The biggest problem we face," he said, shifting the discussion to the 1970-71 Bruin varsity basketball team, "is that we may not have the incentive we had last season."

Last season, the Bruins played without three-time-Player-ofthe-Year, Lew Alcindor, for the first time after playing three years with him. Many of the players, particularly center Steve Patterson and forward Sidney Wicks felt they had something to prove to people who claimed Lew was all of UCLA's team those previous three seasons.

Last year's team succeeded in adding UCLA's fourth consecutive NCAA title, and Wooden's fear is that the returning players from that team may be satiated, having proven their merit.

"I am very much aware of that problem," Wooden admitted, "but they say, 'being forewarned is being forearmed.' Even though I am forewarned, though, I may just not be armed enough."

Wooden says the only other major problem he has to contend with at this stage, is finding a replacement for John Vallely, who graduated and is now with Atlanta of the NBA. "It's hard to replace a player with John's peculiar ability," Wooden said.

"Statistically we could get someone as good in there, maybe, but John had the uncanny ability, as his teammates called it, of being a money player. When the attribute to the state of the

When the chips were down, John came through with the big game. I've never had another player that the rest of the men on the team referred to as a money player."

Although the four returning starters seem to be "safe" in their starting positions, Wooden said, "I told the team at a meeting yesterday that the returners would have first crack at their positions, but I would be very happy if anyone could beat them out. I know all the veterans are very good, and I would be very happy if we had people who were better.

"Patterson is back, of course, at the high post where he fits very well into our game. He has become stronger over the summer and he has a year's experience.

"At the forwards, Sidney Wicks and Curtis Rowe are back. Of all the players we have, I know just what to expect all the time from Curtis. He may be our most consistent player—he is consistently good for us.

"Sidney, on the other hand, has as much physical talent as any player I've ever had at that position. Although I don't think he will get any quicker or bigger, I think he will get stronger and he is beginning to become a much better player.

"That's right," he added, "I don't think Sidney (who was selected as the NCAA Tournament's MVP last season) has near reached his potential yet. He is the type of player who rises to occasions. He has a subconscious verve for the spectacular. Sometimes he can make big mistakes because of it, but normally he is great.

"Henry Bibby is our returning guard, and he too should be better. He was a great team with John Vallely last year. He was our outside shooter and we want him to stay in that role,"

Steve Sakem, of 518% Glenrock, Los Angeles 24, was the winner in last week's PSA contest. Steve picked the winner in seven of the eight games, missing only the UCLA-Oregon game. Two other entries also had seven of eight winners picked, but Steve's predicted point spread was only 26 points off the actual spread of all eight games, the lowest of the three entries.

"Vallets" at the other guard last season was the one we used more to cut behind screens and take positioned jumpers," Wooden explained. "We would like to have another guard of that variety to team up with Henry."

Wooden will have several choices in selecting Vallely's replacement—at least seven. From last year's team he can select from Rick Betchley (6-4%), Kenny Booker (6-3%), Andy Hill (6-1), or Terry Schofield (6-3).

From last year's freshmen team he can add to those Tommy Curtis (6-0) and Marvin Vitatoe (6-2). Additionally, there is 6-3 Bob Webb, a JC transfer from Fort Stellacoom Community College in Tacoma, Washington.

"Right now," Wooden said, "I can't honestly say anyone has an edge. I just don't know. Some of them are better at each phase of the game. We'll have to try different combinations in practice and see who works out."

At the less open forward line positions, there are two JC transfers and one soph that will fry to break into the line-up. Sven Nater, a 6-11 center from Cypress JC and forward Larry Holly field (6-5) from undefeated Compton College will try to break into the UCLA line-up. Up from the frosh is Larry Farmer, 6-5. Other varsity returners vying for front line jobs as practice starts are two 6-6% men, John Ecker and Jon Chapman.

"In seems that we always get to a point where we have a group of three guards and four frontlinemen that all play a lot," Wooden said. "The rest are necessary for developing our team.

That varies some, but not usually."

This year, UCLA apparently has one opening in that group of four front-liners and two openings in the back-court. "I have to be optimistic," Wooden added with a smile. "I know our players are good, but there are alot of other teams with good players. If we do not lose our incentive and we can replace Vallely we should have a very good team."

USC Rooter Tickets

Instead of the free rooter tickets for the UCLA-USC game on Nov. 21, Stadium Executive Committee has decided to seat UCLA students in the Coliseum on a reserved seat basis. The following is the procedure to obtain your reserved seat:

- 1. Beginning at 8:00 A.M., Tuesday, October 20, students waiting in line at Gate 15 of Pauley Pavilion will be issued "priority numbered" tickets, upon presentation of the current student ID picture card, issued by ASUCLA and UCLA Registration Card. Upon the issuing of the priority number, the student ID card will be punched. These numbered tickets will serve as the method of admission to the area where the ticket windows are located. Each priority numbered ticket will specify the time and date when the holder of that ticket is to come back to Pauley Pavilion to purchase the actual admission ticket to the game. STUDENTS ARE ADVISED TO RETURN TO PAULEY PAVILION ONLY AT THE TIME SPECIFIED ON THEIR PRIORITY NUMBERED TICKET. EACH STUDENT RECEIVING A PRIORITY NUMBERED TICKET WILL BE ISSUED A SHEET OF INSTRUCTIONS CONCERNING THE PROCEDURES FOR THE PURCHASE OF TICKETS.
- 2. EACH STUDENT WILL BE ALLOWED TO PURCHASE A MAXIMUM OF TWO (2) TICKETS TOGETHER_ PROVIDING HE PRESENTS BOTH STUDENT ID CARDS AT THE TIME THAT HE PICKS UP HIS PRIORITY NUMBERED TICKET, AT THIS TIME HE WILL BE ISSUED A MAXIMUM OF TWO (2) PRIORITY NUMBERED TICKETS. HE MUST ALSO HAVE BOTH STUDENT PICTURE ID CARDS AND BOTH PRIORITY NUMBERED TICKETS WITH HIM AT THE TIME OF GAME TICKET PURCHASE. In order for more than two students to sit together, it will be necessary for each person (or one of a pair of persons) to obtain priority numbers together and then stand behind the same ticket window. A MAXIMUM OF TEN(10) SEATS IS ALL THAT CAN BE GUARANTEED TO BE ISSUED TOGETHER. The best seats in the students section will be sold first. Distribution of these seats, as well as the other seats, will be made equally among all the sellers.
- 3. Students report back to Gate 15 of Pauley Pavilion at the appointed time as indicated on their priority numbered ticket. On Wednesday, October 21, at 8:00 A.M. Door 15 to Pauley Pavilion will be opened to allow students who have the proper priority numbers to wait inside until the numbers are called by the staff on duty. As the priority numbers are called, the students show their number to the doorman and are admitted to the area where the nine (9) ticket booths are set up.

Where does athletics fit in?

John Sandbrook

My complaint was that any student who wanted to play intercollegiate football here had to report halfway through the summer to begin practice for a season that is almost half over before school begins.

I also mentioned that the scheduling of an 11th game this year on Dec. 5 for the explicit reason of gaining additional revenue seemed to indicate the real intentions of intercollegiate athletics, especially when that game comes just one weekend before finals, after four months of intensive practice and pain.

Ideally, intercollegiate athletics should be a program to complement the academic programs of a university, no more, no less, in the same way that the URA club and intramural programs do. Any student should be allowed to participate in the program, which should coincide with the real reason he is at a university — his academic program.

Additionally, the very nature of an intercollegiate program would seem to emphasize sharing experiences with the members of other colleges, not trying to destroy them on the athletic field.

Pomona College, one of the Claremont Colleges, is a good illustration. Ed Malan, the athletic director (and offensive line coach) there, recently related the story of a football game Pomona had a few years ago with a Nebraska school.

"When we were discussing travel arrangements out to Pomona with that school's officials," he said, "we discovered that all but three players had never been out of Nebraska. They had originally wanted to come out by air, but I convinced them to come by train, to give the kids a chance to see the country.

"When they got here, they spent several days on our campus, going to classes here with our team, etc. We even paired them up in the darm; their offensive guards slept in the same room as our offensive guards, etc. We tried to make it as try with a doctorate in education, and those of the athletic administrators here.

Malan, while enjoying the taste of victory, is more interested in the education of his players — the total education of gaining as many life experiences as possible, including football.

Here, at UCLA, it has been confided to me on at least one occasion that what "we are interested in is competition and success" and that "the road trips are not meant to be joyrides."

Implied in this is the advent of "big business" in the UCLA program and many intercollegiate athletic programs throughout the country. UCLA and Pomona are, superficially at least, academically equivalent. While Malan and Pomona are satisfied with spending $50,000 on a well-rounded intercollegiate program, UCLA will spend almost $2.6 million this year.

This situation is what disturbs me and it is something this section of the DB will look at in the coming weeks.

The problem is not peculiar to UCLA, by any means. If I were at USC, Stanford, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Texas, Alabama, or South Carolina, I'd be saying the same thing. (Note that I did not mention the Ivy League, which has tried to maintain some semblance of restraint in Its programs.)

I don't like the fact that ABC Television controls the UCLA-USC football game, that a college player is judged an All-American depending an how good his athletic publicity man is, or that athletic departments everywhere hand out scholarships to high school athletes on the pretense of providing them with an opportunity for a college education and then turn around and pay tutors to help keep the athletes in school and eligible for competition.

And, for you gentlemen across the street in MAC-B. I hope this explains to you that I am not interested in challenging athletics (you have the Chancellor on your side, you know), only the set of assumptions under which you work.

You can start off by explaining why, if the Minnesota Vikings need only seven football coaches, why UCLA needs ten.

An interesting comparison is the UCLA football team's trip to Stanford last year. The team arrived in a charter plane on Friday afternoon and was immediately transported to a hotel three miles from the Stanford campus.

The team did not leave the hotel until Saturday morning when it boarded the bus for the Stanford stadium. After the 20-20 tie with the Indians, the Bruin football team boarded the bus for San Francisco International Airport, where it ate dinner and immediately flew back to Los Angeles.

Reforms in tenure urged to improve teaching

By Keith Schiller

The quality of the classroom experience often hinders the pursuit of learning and inquiry at the University. Many students have found the quality of life in the classroom leaving much to be desired as too many professors fail to respond to the needs of their students by not providing a high caliber of teaching. Specific proposals designed to constructively rectify this problem such as course load surveying and foreign language revising have been rejected by the faculty.

The frustrations of students which result from a lack of quality in the classroom experience develop from several causes.

Class size

First, the extensive size of the lecture classes serves to atomize students and depersonalize learning.

Second, professors fail too often to develop a course curriculum related to contemporary developments. For example, one physics professor used the same lectures in 1960's and in the mid 1940's. Surely man's knowledge of physics has progressed somewhat during that time.

Moreover, too many professors and departments fail to encourage creative thinking. The psychology department, for example, generally uses the objective grading system with multiple choice examinations. Education is thus relegated to a process of memorizing and regurgitation.

In addition, professors often fail to attend class as previous obligations to the publisher or a government agency receive higher priority. Professors have been known to abandon the classroom obligations for two weeks as government conferences demanded their time.

There are professors who have been concerned about the classroom environment and seek to enhance the caliber of teaching. Professors Stanley Wolpert, Colin Young and Ray Orbach among others have dedicated their energies to a more responsive curriculum through liaison with the Student Educational Policy Commission (SEPC) or development of the Council of Educational Development (CED).

During my three years at UCLA, I found many of the policies of the Academic Senate and the attitudes of considerable numbers of faculty to be inimical to the development of intellectual curiosity. Specifically, the necessity to enroll in five quarters of language and to expend my time in breadth requirements courses in which the professor enters the class seemingly bored with the subject and uninterested in developing curiosity for the subject, stultifies academic development.

You may ask, what have we done to solve this problem?

Last winter, of 12,000 undergraduate students voting, over 10,000 expressed their support for a Course Load Seminar Proposal which would enable students to enroll in small seminars and appreciate a more in depth analysis of the lecture material. In this way, individual contact between professor and student could flourish. By reducing the number of classes required from four to three per quarter and by enabling each undergraduate student to enroll in four seminars during his tenure at UCLA such personalized education could flourish.

The proposal was developed through a year's research and endorsed by the administration. However, the College of Letters and Science rejected the proposal.

It was Clark Kerr who once stated that the faculty is liberal about everyone else's issues except their own. Perhaps we all may recall the old adage of "publish or perish."

For those here too young to understand its meaning, allow me to explain. Promotion to tenure for faculty is implicitly, if not explicitly, based upon research and writing. The quality of one's teaching ability is not emphasized. As a matter of fact, professors who have received awards for their teaching ability have been fired at numerous institutions for their failure to publish.

It is not our goal to discredit or hinder research. Yet, we find no reason why it should come at the expense of teaching quality.

Strengthen faculty

Let us strengthen the quality of teaching by promoting those faculty who demonstrate exemplary teaching. Let us enhance the quality of the classroom experience by increasing classroom time in seminars for those professors who are high caliber teachers.

The quality of life in the classroom is of vital concern to all students. A faculty which fails to dedicate its time and energies to the needs of the students leopardize the caliber of the University and raises the level of tension on campus. A University system which fails to encourage quality neglects the needs of the students and public.

As students we can peacefully confront our teachers as to your concern for the quality of teaching and current state of the tenure and promotion system. As a public you can write the Chancellor or myself expressing your concern for this problem. As students we can join in a common bond united in the belief that the quality of the classroom environemnt must improve.

Hello, I'm Johnny Cash. I want to tell you about the sound of the Hohner harmonica.

It's a sound that's as much a part of America as the lonesome wail of a freight train in the night.

A sound that was first heard back in the 1850's when Hohner harmonicas soothed restless mountain men, homesick sailors and weary plantation workers.

During the Civil War, the sound was Johnny Reb playing

"Dixie" at Shiloh and Lookout Mountain. While across the lines Union soldiers played "John Brown's Body."

The sound went with boatmen up from New Orleans. Lumberjacks in Coos Bay. Miners in Cripple Creek. Farmers in Dyess, the little town in Arkansas where I grew up.

I remember hearing it back then. Good times or bad, the humble harmonica has been in America's hip pocket as we grew up.

And it's still there today.

Because it's a sound that's simple and true. Happy and sad. A reflection of life. past and present.

It's not surprising that today Hohners fit so naturally with any kind of music. Blues. Folk and Rock. In fact, Hohner makes over 160 different kinds of harmonicas, from an inch and a half to two feet long. Popular models come in all different keys. There's even a neck holder so you can play harmonica and guitar at the same time. Me? I use the good old Marine Band for songs like "Orange Blossom Special." It gives me just the sound I want. Pure and honest.

You can get the same sound I do by getting a Hohner

Recapturing the Films of Irene Dunne

by David Chierichetti

Irene Dunne is one of the few 1930's actresses whose work remains vital today as it did when first released. Never one to gain attention through an exaggerated physical trademark, (such as Harlow's hair or Crawford's shoulders) Miss Dunne's fame rested somewhat on her beauty and charm, but was due to a much greater degree to her natural flair for comedy and her absolutely perfect sense of timing. This is not to say that she was by any means limited to comedy, for many of her best pictures combined comedy with tragedy (Love Affair, Penny Serenade) and she won great acclaim for her performances in such strictly dramatic vehicles as The Silver Cord, Magnificent Obsession and The Mudlark. She also displayed a beautiful singing voice in occasional musicals such as Roberta, Showboat and Joy of Living. Indeed, she was the only performer of her time to achieve equal success in comedy, drama and musical films. Films such as Theodora Goes Wild, The Awful Truth and My Favorite Wife remain every bit as entertaining today as they were thirty years ago, although several of Miss Dunne's films have not been released to television or been shown publicly since their initial release. The Los Angeles County Museum of Art is who midst of a retrospective of Miss Dunne's

Above all, she is honest and utterly professional. Her clothes and hair are quite contemporary, but otherwise, her appearance is virtually the same as it was in her days of greatest fame and her schedule today is just as exhausting as it was forty years ago when she first arrived in Los Angeles. I recently met Irene Dunne and recorded these observations about her life and work.

On acting: "I never went to dramatic school; all of my formal training was in studying music and opera. I had always played in musical shows on the stage, and expected to do the same when I came to Hollywood, but they stopped making musicals for awhile so I turned to dramatic parts. I have always regretted that my success in pictures distracted me from my music, which has always been my greatest love. I enjoyed making motion pictures, but it was extremely hard work. On her career: "I was never movie struck. When I first came to Hollywood, I made five pictures a vear, and I was too busy to do anything else. The Los Angeles County Museum of Art is now in the midst of a retrospective of Miss Dunne's best films, and suddenly there is a great renewal of interest in her unique career.

Irene Dunne sang in musical comedies and operettas on Broadway for several years, before joining the tidal wave of Broadway performers who came to Hollywood when the Depression and the advent of talking pictures just about put the New York stage out of business. Her first picture, Leathernecking (1930) was a minor Marine tale, in which she played an ingenue role similar to those she had essayed on the stage. In her second film, however, she was cast as Sabra in the cinemazation of Edna Ferber's epic novel Clmarron, which took place over a span of 40 years. It won her the first of five Academy Award nominations and international fame.

Miss Dunne continued as a popular leading lady in a so-so series of sophisticated dramas for RKO. In 1935, she returned to musical comedy with Sweet Adeline, which was a not very successful attempt to blend turn of the century nostalgia with Warner Brothers cynicism and geometric production numbers. But in Roberta, she was cast with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in what must be one of the most delightful musicals of the 1930's.

Miss Dunne had played Magnolla in the Chicago production of the Ferber-Kern-Hammerstein Showboat in 1929, and she repeated this role in Universal's 1936 production. That film also preserves the classic performances of Helen Morgan and Paul

I stopped acting by choice, and went on to other things. It's like when my brother Charles asked if I had stopped smoking. I said, "No, but I'm not smoking now." I am not acting now but it is possible that I might make another film if I were offered a part with some depth to it, that would be challenging and that I would enjoy doing. I have received a lot of offers, but they're all such uninteresting roles. They wanted me for the Survivors television show as this woman who comes back after being locked up for years or something.

I think I had a pretty good batting average; the pictures the museum has in their series were all good films. The Silver Cord was a good picture. But there were others, I'd just as soon forget about. I think I made one called This Man Is Mine, that was awful, and The Great Lover; I had forgotten all about that until you mentioned it."

Cimmaron: 'I was determined to get that part, so I tested, but Wesley Ruggles wasn't going to risk this multi-million dollar picture on an unknown leading lady. He turned me down and they tested every other actress in Hollywood, but they couldn't find any they liked, so they asked me to test again as Sabra as an old woman. I went into wardrobe to get my clothes and I saw this little old lady who was just coming to work. She was wearing this little hat that I thought was perfect for the part, so I asked her if I could borrow it and I wore it in the test. I think that hat, just as much as anything else, was what got me that part."

Theodora Goes Wild: "I was trying to get out of my contract with Columbia, and I thought they were trying to get even by casting me in a low budget

Ferber's epic novel Cimarron, which took place over a span of 40 years. It won her the first of five Academy Award nominations and international fame.

Miss Dunne continued as a popular leading ladv in a so-so series of sophisticated dramas for RKO. In 1935, she returned to musical comedy with Sweet Adeline, which was a not very successful attempt to blend turn of the century nostalgia with Warner Brothers cynicism and geometric production numbers. But in Roberta, she was cast with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in what must be one of the most delightful musicals of the 1930's.

Miss Dunne had played Magnolia in the Chicago production of the Ferber-Kern-Hammerstein Showboat in 1929, and she repeated this role in Universal's 1936 production. That film also preserves the classic performances of Helen Morgan and Paul Robeson, (and will be seen for the first time in 34 years on November 14. Later that year, she made Theodora Goes Wild, the first of the series of comedies for which she is best remembered, and which improved her status from that of a popular actress to that of, a superstar. Theodora was a sensation in 1936, and when it was shown as part of the Academy series last year, the high school and college students present laughed so hard they drowned out the soundtrack and they gave Miss Dunne an exuberant standing ovation at the end. It will be repeated at the County Museum November 28.

Even better was The Awful Truth (1937). Miss Dunne's and Cary Grant's performances as the couple that divorce and then try to prevent each other from remarrying, are of a superb comedic virtuosity! that has perhaps never been equalled, and Miss Dunne's vulgar rendition of "All My Dreams are Gone With The Wind" pretty well relieved her of her erstwhile, "perfect lady" image.

By 1940, Miss Dunne had become the screen's highest paid actress with an annual income (including radio work and investments) of over $400,000. Her popularity continued, but she began to chose her parts extremely carefully, doing about one picture a year while her contemporaries, including Claudette Colbert and Barbara Stanwyck, continued to make four or five. In the latter portion of her career, she turned increasingly to character roles, and the range of her acting skill is much evident in her portrayals of the Norwegian mother in I Remember Mama (1948) and Queen Victoria in The Mudlark, in which no vestige of her earlier characterizations is apparent. In between pictures, she began to turn her attention to a multitude of charities, business affairs and politics, and since her last film, It Grows on Trees, 1952, these matters have occupied her time exclusively.

Meeting Irene Dunne today holds no surprises if one has seen any of her films, for she projects the and talk. I never could do that, the minute I got under the dryer, I'd start reading the script, writing down every thought that entered my head about the character and the scene and how I should play it. Even if it's just a long shot walking across the room, you can't do it with your mind blank, you must be thinking of something, even if it's irrelevant. I'd find something to think about. I think the way to enrich yourself as an actress is to enrich yourself as a person. I saw that program about Helen Hayes on the educational television, and sure she's a great technician, but all the tricks in the world can only take you so far. She is a great actress because she is a great person. I don't think anybody can teach anybody else how to act, the only thing one can do to learn is to act as much as possible, and to educate oneself as broadly and thoroughly as possible. I have always enjoyed Katherine Hepburn, and I think a lot of that is because she is intelligent and has educated herself well. On the other hand, Elizabeth Taylor is a great actress, and she is very intelligent, but she never had a chance to get much of an education. I made two pictures with Elizabeth when she was a child and I know her schooling was pretty brief, and she's been working ever since, so she hasn't had much formal education, and yet she is one of our greatest actresses. I suppose it is like learning business. You can go to school and study economics and marketing or you can go out into the world and learn it all in the school of hard knocks. And of course, one must have a certain was what got me that part."

Cimmaron: 'I was determined to get that part, so I tested, but Wesley Ruggles wasn't going to risk this multi-million dollar picture on an unknown leading lady. He turned me down and they tested every other actress in Hollywood, but they couldn't find any they liked, so they asked me to test again as Sabra as an old woman. I went into wardrobe to get my clothes and I saw this little old lady who was just coming to work. She was wearing this little hat that I thought was perfect for the part, so I asked her if I could borrow it and I wore it in the test. I think that hat, just as much as anything else,

Theodora Goes Wild: "I was trying to get out of my contract with Columbia, and I thought they were trying to get even by casting me in a low budget picture. My deal with Harry Cohn didn't give me approval of scripts but I could choose when I would make the picture, so I took a long trip to Europe with my husband, thinking that by the time I got back he would surely have cast somebody else. But it was waiting for me when I got back, and I had no choice. Richard Boleslawski, the director, was being loaned out by MGM as a punishment, and neither of us had much faith in it, but I must say it turned out very well. Last year the Academy asked me to come the night they showed it, and I was scared to death, I thought the students wouldn't even come with such a silly title as Theodora Goes Wild. But they loved it, because it's still very, very funny."

Love Affair: "Leo McCarey who directed The Awful Truth and Love Affair was a genius at improvisational comedy. We'd come in and sit around, talking about various ways to shoot the script, and then we'd just get up and do it. The beginning of Love Affair was marvelous, it took place on board a ship and everybody was full of ideas, and the front office looked at the rushes and loved them. But when the story landed us in New York, we all felt sort of let down, just the same as one feels coming home from a trip, and we all dried up and couldn't think of a thing to do. I say that was my favorite picture, not only because it was a good movie but also because everything went smoothly while we were making it and we had such a good time. Leo produced My Favorite Wife, and he had a very serious automobile accident just before we started shooting, so that picture was a pretty grim experience because we were so worried about him the whole time we were doing it."

The Company Theatre at a Turning Po

Theatre, that perennial invalid whose death is daily rumored, is very much alive at 1024 So. Robertson Blvd. Here, in a tiny, stuffy playhouse, the Company Theatre works its magic. These young people have in three short years developed a thoroughly professional ensemble which is consistently original, powerful, and exciting. The Company is what modern theatre is all about.

Antonin Artaud, the French prophet of the avant-garde in drama, has proclaimed "a theatre in which violent physical images crush and hypnotize the sensibility of the spectator seized by the theatre as by a whirlwind of higher sources." The members of the Company are not slavish disciples of any theoretician, but their productions seem very much to reflect Artaud's concepts. For them the play is not the thingat least not in the conventional sense. A playwright's words are not a sacred trust; rather, they are raw materials to be shaped, twisted, and molded by the Company's intense concern with the world outside the playhouse. The Company knows Artaud's whirlwind and can summon it at will to catch the audience in its grip.

Begun on the traditional shoestring, the Company Theatre has always teetered on the brink of financial disaster. No one gets paid except a small administrative staff. As of now, everyone else survives on dedication and daytime jobs which interfere with rehearsals.

But slowly recognition has come, and with it some badly-needed funds. In 1970 the Company received a $10,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. This made it the only experimental theatre group west of the Hudson River ever to be so honored. Such is its current position, however, that the Company is still struggling valiantly to pursue its expanding artistic goals while staying out of the red.

In a cheerfully cluttered office, Barry Opper-long-haired, blue-eyed, blue-jeaned, barefoot-curls up in a donated executive swivel-chair and talks about the Company. Barry came to write plays, stayed to answer the telephone, and is now officially known as the Company's administrative director. These days his mindruns as often to Revolution as to things theatrical, and he sometimes considers leaving the group. But for him as for the actors and technicians the Company is first of all a family, and life is always Family First.

Barry stresses the years of formal theatrical training which stand the Company in good stead. Many came from the theatre arts departments at USC and Cal State—I.A. They have studied the classics, as well as the theories and theorists of the modern stage. Thus they have the sense of discipline which must always lie behind productive experiment. And specialized work in music, dance, art, puppetry, and mime has given them the technical mastery which makes theatrical freedom possible. There seems to be nothing they can't do on a stage.

This extensive background was not much needed in the Company's very first production, the matinee favorite Tevye and His Daughters. Then came the more challenging In White America and the anti-war Johnny Johnson. It was not until 1968, however, with the staging of two Megan Terry "transformation" plays that the Company first hit upon its own particular brand of brilliance—the ability to shift from role to role coupled with a hard-hitting physicality that makes every performance an exercise in survival. Actors and audiences alike began to leave the playhouse in a state of physical and emotional exhaustion.

Buffy St. Marie: Conquering Myths

When one first peers into the soft brown eyes of Miss Buffy Saint-Maric, it is impossible to see the anguish and the frustration which lie within her. Buffy Saint-Marie is not just a singer or a songwriter. Should the embodiment, or rather, the symbol of the drive to respect to the American Indian that which the United States Government took from him; his identity, his culture and the freedom to five his life as he sees fit.

Being bod on an Indian reservation, Buffy has lived the life of an Indian complete with the alienation, the hate, and the bigotry which are to be expected by one "unfortunate" enough to be born as a member of an ethnic minority. She was raised in Maine and Massachusetts, and at an early age became aware of the "special treatment" she was receiving from her playmates. After a rather uneventful adolescence, during which she fell in love with her guitar, Fats Domino and Little Richard, she went on to finish high school and enter the University of Massachusctts.

It was at the University that Buffy first began writing and singing her brand of truthful, reflective folk songs. At the end of eight years of studying Philosophy, teaching school and simultancously playing her songs in coffee shops, Buffy journeyed to New York to perform in Greenwich Village. forth as a representative of the Indian people. Upon hearing her speak or discovering what her beliefs are, one begins to comprehend the plight of the Indian people and what must be done in order to stop the senseless oppression that is slowly but surely choking the American Indian to death. Speaking at length during a recent visit to Southern California, Buffy exuded warmth despite the determined seriousness with which she spoke.

Intro-Do you feel that you have a commitment, so to speak, to your people?

Buffy—Yes I do. Not a formal commitment, but when you're in the position that I'm in, if you happen to be an Indian, there it is. It's like asking a Jew in Israel if he has a commitment to Israel.

When you are as hopelessly outnumbered as we are, you realize rather quickly that everyone has to help. Especially, when there is so much that is wrong. There is the lack of formal education and there is the poverty and all the things that are associated with poverty. And the worst of it is, no one knows what's going on.

I.—Is it that no one knows, or that media suppression causes the ignorance?

B.—I think that most people in the West know what's going on, and that they are directly or indirectly responsible for what's going on, and they are totally approving of the entire scene.

I'm not talking about the coast or New York City where the Indian is almost invisible. There are 40,000 Indians in L.A. yet you don't very often pass someone who is noticeably an Indian. If you passed some Greek person wearing feathers, you'd probably mistake him for an Indian.

There is a great confusion about what is and what isn't an Indian. This, of course, is caused by the education, the lack of education and the miseducation, that the average American person gets about the Indian

We think that they sho be paid for the same way that other schools are paid for; through government and local agencies and the office of Health, Education and Welfare. We are in the position of having to give our kids a double education. The regular American school currism mind then our own.

Ind then our own that it has to be that way. It's a shame that you, as a kid, couldn't have learned the real history of America. So what we're trying, through the activist groups and the people on Alcatraz and the real active people in Chicago and New York, to provide for our people what America is too cheap to provide. Namely, breakfast programs for our kids, legal ald for our people and clinics that an Indian isn't discouraged from utlending. Through other organizations besides the activisti groups, and an organization that I started for traditional Indian women, we hope to bring attention to the injustices that are done to us. Also, we are trying to make a place for Indian women in American society. Right now, an Indian girl has no place in this society. She can cither copy a Hollywood stereotype, or settle for nothing. For example, look at these pages from America's symbol of elegance, Vogue Magazine. Here we have two black chicks and two white chicks wearing "Indian" cloths that made in Italy, Why couldn't there be Indian models wenting Indian clothes? It sometimes may not be so much that people don't-like us, but rather that we just don't have any connections. The job we have undertaken is big. We have to it ate the entire country. We are constantly badgered, one way of which er lo jump into the melting pot But first we have to make sure that our pockets are full of Ivory soap. What I mean is that we don't even get to enter the melting pot unless we're white. And then we drown.

I.—What about the money that is supposedly allocated to government agencies which are in turn supposed to be given to the people?

B.—The American government does not allocate money to the Indians. Every once in a great while you'll hear that the Government appropriated six million dollars to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and then everyone heaves a great sigh of relief. But giving the money to the B.I.A. is like giving the money to the president. The B.I.A. are the people who exist because we have problems. If we don't have problems they don't have a job. It's a non-Indian organization through which the government deals with us. And boy do they deal with us.

Look what they did to the Indians on Alcatraz. Alcatraz

There was the overwhelming gut-level adaptation of Ann Jellicoe's The Sport of My Mad Mother, the Company's very own James Joyce Memorial Liquid Theatre, and the madcap but ultimately highly spiritual trip known as The Emergence. to the Liquid Theatre, however, that the Company owes its recent fame. Bel Air's "rich hip" crowd, uptight executives from the suburbs. Venice waifs and wastrels, midtown middle-of-the-roaders-they all meet and mingle at the Liguid Theatre on Sunday nights.

Currently alternating in repertory with The Emergence and the Liquid Theatre is a new play called The Children of the Kingdom. Inspired, in part, by the brutal death of a young fan at a Rolling Stones concert, it explores the relationship between violence and the world of rock music. Don Keith Opper, Barry's brother, is listed as author but the show really evolved out of improvisations by the Company. They wrote the songs and, having transformed themselves seemingly overnight into creditable rock singers and musicians, expertly perform them. The Children of the Kingdom does have its problems—an ending, for instance, which though theatrically dynamic is thematically inconclusive-but like all Company productions it is vibrant and engrossing. The audience, here sprawled on the floor as at a real rock concert, is at all times an intimate part of the action.

In fact, one of the Company's trademarks is the degree to which it tears down the old barrier between stage and gallery. Whether through direct spontaneous participation in the play or merely through intense emotional absorption, each member of the audience is made to feel personally involved with the spectacle unfolding all around him. In Children of the Kingdom, for example, the audience is a rock audience and is treated as such. The Emergence invites the spectator to share in bread, cider, and dancing on the green; the play's final moments induce in him, thanks in part to extraordinary technical effects, an incredible sense of personal mystic communion with the actors

Angela Davis arrested in New York

By Jeff Perlman DB Staff Writer

Former UCLA philosophy instructor Angela Davis was taken into custody by the FBI in New York last night, climaxing a two-month-old search for her by state and federal law enforcement agencies.

FBI agents staked out a mid-Manhattan motel near the Hudson River all day Tuesday before arresting Miss Davis and David Rudolph Poindexter, who is charged with harboring her.

According to wire service reports, Miss Davis was unarmed and offered no resistance at the time of her arrest.

She had been sought since shortly after a courtroom kidnapping and shooting Aug. 7 in San Rafael that took the lives of a judge and three others.

Authorities said all four guns involved in the shooting were traced to Miss Davis.

Student, faculty and administration reaction to the news of Miss Davis' arrest was cautious.

Chancellor Charles E. Young, who unsuccessfully last spring fought to have Miss Davis retained as an instructor here after the Board of Regents voted to dismiss her, told the Daily Bruin: "Idon't know very much about it. . . I just hear about it, and I'm glad no one was hurt,"

Young declined to comment further, saying "I'm not in a position to make any statements about it."

Professor Montgomery Furth, chairman of the Philosophy department, issued what amounted to a "no comment."

"I've only heard what the Associated Press Is giving out...I certainly don't want to make any statement yet... She's been charged with a serious crime."

Philosophy Professor Donald Kalish, who was chairman of the department when Miss Davis was hired here, said:

"At the present time I don't have anything to say... I just don't know enough about it... San Rafael was a tragedy with a lot of interpretations."

According to one philosophy professor, the faculty in his department are reluctant to comment because, he said, "We're tired of sticking our heads up and getting shot at."

Eddie Maddox, former chairman of the Black Students' Union here, said:

"It's entirely unfortunate...I'm very much surprised that they didn't kill her. She has absolutely no chance of a free trial anywhere in this country... She's been prejudged."

Allen Brooks, editor of NOMMO, black student newspaper here, said:

"I'm unhappy to hear about the arrest of Angela Davis. There is no possibility for a fair trial for her. Although her guilt has not been proved the media have tried and convicted her. I'm concerned for her safety in the hands of the government. It's time for the end to black bullshit and for blacks to get behind her."

Since the shootings in San Rafael, Miss Davis had been reported in various parts of the country and even abroad.

However, the FBI traced her to New York City several days ago, through a car belonging to a male companion. Both were picked up in a Howard Johnson motel on Eighth Avenue.

An admitted Communist, a woman of academic brillance. Miss Davis became an acting assistant professor of philosophy here last year.

As a doctoral candidate she had been a protege of Herbert Marcuse, a Marxist professor at UC San Diego.

On the basis of her Communist party membership, Miss Davis had been discharged from UCLA a year ago by UC Board of Regents, led by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Overruled by a superior court judge, the regents appealed to the California Supreme Court. But meanwhile, they voted not to reappoint Miss Davis, citing not her Communist membership but her extra curricular activities in support of such militant groups as the Black Panthers.

Meanwhile, during the summer vacation, she embraced the cause of the so-called Soledad Brothers.

The "brothers," not actually related, are three black convicts awaiting trial on charges of murdering a Soledad Prison guard last Jan. 16.

One of them, George Jackson, 28, is the brother of Jonathan Jackson, the escape shootout accomplice.

Miss Davis picketed Soledad, about 150 miles south of San Francisco, made fund-raising visits in many places and demanded, in vain, to visit the convicts as a defense investigator.

In the fortnight beforethe Aug. 7 shooting, she was seen often with Jonathan Jackson, but was not known to have gone with him to San Quentin Prison, where he visited his brother each of the four days before the break.

Workshop to focus on LAS funding problems.

More volunteer service and permanent funding sources for the Legal Aid Service (LAS) here will be discussed in a workshop at 1 p.m. today in Ackerman Union 2408, according to Mike Dwyer, Student Welfare Commissioner. The workshop is being held on an invitational basis, Dwyer said.

An average of 25 students a day have been requesting legal advice, according to Dawn Friedman, the attorney recently retained by Student Legislative Council (SLC).

But because of her own busy schedule coupled with a lack of voluntary aid and funds, the students' need for legal advice cannot be treated with the necessary individualized attention,

Possible solutions to the problem will be discussed by attorneys, representatives of the law school, the Alumni Association, and the counseling center, Dwyer said.

Mrs. Friedman, undergraduate student body president Keith Schiller, Community Services Commissioner La Mar Lyons, Lee McEvoy of the counseling center and Dwyer will coordinate the discussion.

Some of the ideas to be discussed are:

• A sort of inter-agency coordinating service whereby the various groups and services on and off campus may achieve some type of interaction.

- A pamphlet that will outline some of the necessary legal steps in the more common cases brought before LAS. For example, over 70 per cent of the cases handled by LAS last year were landlord-tenant disagreements. Second to this were divorce and separation problems. A LAS pamphlet could outline the legal relationship between landlord and tenant, husband and
- Pre-paid legal insurance whereby a student would be assured legal representation should the need arise.
  - A permanent means of funding LAS.

Randail feels this presents no problems. "The important thing is to have common feelings with students," he said. Good professors are distinguished from bad ones by their ability, or lack of it, to communicate with their students, he added.

Ever since the age of three when he saw a picture of a chemist in a magazine he was reading, Randall realized his interest in chemistry. At four he convinced his parents to give him his first chemistry set.

a day. In a few months he had acquired a massive vocabulary.

At five, Randall entered Hollywood Professional School where students are allowed to progress a small school." He transferred to USC for his senior year where he received his B.A.

Now at 16 Randall is taking courses in preparation for his doctorate and is teaching one class. "I'm enjoying the work I am doing. I'm really doing my thing."

Piano

Randall likes to "lead a well-rounded life and to pursue as many interests as possible." His hobbies include reading, collecting minerals in the desert, and playing the piano. He has written music for plano and clarinet and would some day like to produce a composition.

Politically, Randall felt USC "was plenty active for me," although compared to this campus it is inactive.

Randall plans to get his doctorate in chemistry in three or four years and then to teach and do research. He said he will accept a position wherever he receives a good offer, but his preferences include Stanford, Colorado, and Cal-Tech.

Possible solutions to the problem will be discussed by attorneys, representatives of the law school, the Alumni Association, and the counseling center, Dwyer said.

Mrs. Friedman, undergraduate student body president Keith Schiller, Community Services Commissioner La Mar Lyons, Lee McEvoy of the counseling center and Dwyer will coordinate the discussion.

Some of the ideas to be discussed are:

 A sort of inter-agency coordinating service whereby the various groups and services on and off campus may achieve some type of interaction.

• A pamphlet that will outline some of the necessary legal steps in the more common cases brought before LAS. For example, over 70 per cent of the cases handled by LAS last year were landlord-tenant disagreements. Second to this were divorce and separation problems. A LAS pamphlet could soutline the legal relationship between landlord and tenant, husband and wife.

Pre-paid legal insurance whereby a student would be assured legal representation should the need arise.

A permanent means of funding LAS.

of Control (BOC), a body of six students, administrators and faculty members. He replaces A.T. Brugger, who left to become a vice-chancellor at UC Riverside this fall.

Findley notes the problem of available room on campus: "We have a helluva space problem. We're squeezed out of space—our activities have proliferated," he says. One immediate problem is the loss of a storage area loaned by the Dental School since 1965. ASUCLA materials will have to be removed and squeezed into a smaller area.

Money is another dilemma. According to Findley, the last ASUCLA financial statement indicated losses, which he attributes partly to last spring's Strike. The clean-up in Ackerman Union cost between $25,000 and $38,000.

When Ackerman Union was closed down, the fixed expenses, such as employee salaries, continued. Findley hopes to counter losses with a formula: "cut out unprofitable, unnecessary activities, or reduce the cost of these activities, and increase the income in other areas."

Findley is an active, precise young (37) man with a wide background in business and government. "I run by the numbers," he says. "I like to know exactly what's on, and track carefully what's supposed to be going on." Findley handles a budget of more than $8 million, and oversees about 700

Findley helped install a management information system in HUD's Model Cities Program for 30 western cities. A management information system is a network of reports that enable the management of an organization to understand better its workings. Findley worked on OEO projects, and was a general management consultant to the Labor Department's Concentrated Employment Program (CEP).

About half of Findley's experience has been in marketing, the study of consumer needs. He hopes to apply that experience in determining the student's needs, and will be working with Graduate Student Association (GSA) President Pete Bouvier in that area.

"This is a vigorous, young exciting environment. It's a beautiful one, too. And the kids today are concerned about their world and the social welfare of others. This I identify with," Findley said.

Edward B. Johns, BOC member and health education professor in the School of Public Health said, "I think he's going to be great. I'm very pleased that he has the student point of view, and that he has a good business background. That's what ASUCLA needs now."

ASUCLA's new executive director. Donald E. Findley, must balance growing student needs with limited space and funds. Findley, now in his second week here, says: "My job is to insure the efficient and appropriate operation of ASUCLA. We'll do everything we can to see to the interests of the students."

Findley, a graduate of Carleton College and an M.B.A. recipient from Northwestern, oversees the operation of the student store, the food services. and the majority of vending ma-

Med faculty wives hold panel on student unrest

A panel discussion to "help bridge the gap between faculty, faculty wives and students" was held yesterday by the wives of the medical faculty here, under the leadership of Mrs. George Wayne.

Focusing on campus unrest and student-community topics, the panel included undergraduate student body president Keith Schiller, Associated Students Information Service (ASIS) associate director Steve Gorelick and Cary Johnson and Gordon Bubar from the ASUCLA Speakers Bureau.

Gorelick said, "When the police come on campus nobody wins." Referring to the May 5 confrontation, Bubar said, "When you have been at the wrong end of a night stick or you know someone who has, it's all over."

The panel agreed the President's report on student unrest did not uncover any new knowledge about campus violence. However, they felt it was important that the government now realizes problems facing colleges and universities.

Both Johnson and Bubar said it would be helpful if 18-yearolds were given the vote and could elect government officials who would bring progressive changes in education.

Other problems plaguing students, according to Schiller, are teachers not keeping their office hours, the large size of many lecture classes and the "publish or perish" rule for professors that often causes professors to neglect students for research.

"I'd like to see my instructors take off a year to do their research studies than doing it between classes," Gorelick said.

Johnson said if students were conscientious about filling out professor evaluation cards, other students would be able to choose their instructors more carefully.

TISP to sponsor teach-ins

By Ken Peterson DB Staff Reporter

A new student government organization which will plan and direct teach-ins here has been set up as a department of the undergraduate student body president's office.

Headed by Executive Director Dave Luber, the Teach-In Symposium Program (TISP) hopes to have its first symposium sometime this quarter.

"In addition to our own programs, we are especially interested in helping outside groups with teach-ins of their own," Luber said. "If a group comes to us with a good idea for a teach-in, with speakers set up and an outline of topics to be discussed, we'll give them all the help we can in arranging for facilities, publicity, and whatever else they need."

'Fill the gap'

The TISP was established by the Student Legislative Council (SLC) to "fill the gap" left by the Speakers' Program, according to Bill Winslow, one of the five directors of TISP and a general representative on SLC.

"The Speaker Program is oriented to onetime affairs with big-name speakers," Winslow said. "The symposia will offer a longer period of time (all-day or two-day sessions) to broad subjects."

TISP has been allocated $1,500 from the undergraduate president's office. The funds will be dispensed by the board of directors of TISP.

In addition to Luber and Winslow, the other directors are Gary Cohen, general representative; Sonja Walker, first vice-president; and Jerry Aloniz. They can be reached for information or assistance in Kerckhoff Hall 409, headquarters for the program.

Several topics

"We definitely hope to have a teach-in this quarter," Luber said. "Right now we aren't sure when, or what the topic will be, but we're considering several subjects."

He mentioned The Sexual Revolution, Third-World Perspectives, and Drug Abuse Problems as being three possible topics.

All of the directors were quick to stress the need for outside groups to develop their own programs and bring them to TISP.

"Our budget is much too limited for us to put on our own programs," Luber said. "Facilities and advertising cost a lot. That's why we have to rely on groups getting together their own ideas."

Seating for 715 additional readers will be available in individual carrells located along the exterior walls adjacent to the stack areas. Also, there is space for an additional 51 enclosed studies, designated for use

No serious disruption of these facilities should occur during the move, although construction and remodeling work is still in progress in various parts of the building, Moore added.

Nixon's peace plan analyzed

Superficially, the proposals for "peace" set forward last week by President Nixon seem to be reasonable ones. Both hawks and doves greeted them enthusiastically as if they represented real breakthroughs in attempts to achieve peace in Indochina. Actually, they have all, with variations, been presented before, and a close examination reveals their shallowness and their inadequacies.

The "cease-fire in place" that Nixon proposed is Washington's only relatively new suggestion. The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) and North Vietnam have always been ready to discuss a cease-fire as a condition of U.S. withdrawal. The significant part of the cease-fire is that it is a cease-fire in place, meaning that U.S. troops remain in full force just where they are. If the troops remain in place, the United States will obviously give continued support to the Thieu-Ky regime and all that goes with it—suppression of dissent, tiger cages, governmental corruption and continued exploitation by U.S. firms, such as Firestone, of Vietnamese labor and natural resources.

Also, if the U.S. troops remain, the intimidation and domination that the Vietnamese people have experienced for the last 100 years from foreign occupying troops will also remain. The United States will still have stationed in Vietnam the military power to impose its will whenever it feels it is necessary. With U.S. military power grossly evident, and with continued backing, of the oppressive South Vietnamese government by the United States, a "cease-fire in place," while it may possibly mean less bloodshed, will certainly not mean "peace" for the people of South Vietnam.

Now new

Nixon's second proposal consists of the implementation of an "Indochina peace conference." This is also not a new proposal by any means—it was proposed by Johnson five years ago, and by the National Liberation Front of a proposal on the conference table in Paris at least 18 months ago; and three weeks ago, the PRG and North Victuam announced that they had rescinded their demand of immediate withdrawal and would be agreeable to total U.S. withdrawal by June 31, 1971. But even after public sentiment in this country has overwhelmingly demonstrated itself in favor of complete, immediate U.S. withdrawal from Indochina, Nixon is only interested in negotiating a withdrawal based on the previously mentioned illegitimate proposals.

The government would have the U.S. public, or more specifically, the electorate, believe that since the Nixon regime came into power, troops in Vietnam have been drastically reduced, and "American casualites have also decreased." In fact most of the troops that have been withdrawn from Vietnam have been assigned to other countries in Indochina and around the world—those troops are certainly not returning to the United States. American casualites may have been reduced but they still average more than 100 deaths per week which, while they may be acceptable statistics to the Nixon Administration, are 100 deaths a week too many.

Also, Nixon doesn't even bother to mention either the abominable number of Asian deaths that the United States is responsible for in Indochina which have not decreased in the last 20 months or the ecological wasteland that now constitutes Indochina after the U.S. defoliation exercises.

The political settlements that Nixon would impose on the Vietnamese people are also not new proposals. The United States has been saying all along that "we seek a political solution that reflects the will of the South Vietnamese people." And as it has made that statement, it has opposed free elections, it has put in and deposed pupper South Vietnamese regimes and it has practised its "search and destory" missions, it bombing raids and its other virtually genocidal missions against the

Nixon's second proposal consists of the implementation of an "Indochina peace conference." This is also not a new proposal by any means—it was proposed by Johnson five years ago, and by the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam (NLF) ten years before that.

Nixon sees the conference as something like a re-enactment of the Geneva Conference of 1954 and would have us believe that "the essential elements of the Geneva Accords of 1954 and 1962 remain valid as a basis for settlement." If Nixon really believed that, then today there would be no U.S. troops in Vietnam, the country would be unified and there would have been free elections a long time ago.

Instead, the United States retains 400,000 troops there; even now, Nixon's proposals don't even refer to reunification of the country (perhaps the most essential element of the Geneva Accords) and the United States has continued to prevent free elections in the country from as far back as 1954 when Ho Chi Minh and the government in the northern zone stated that the political struggle "demands that our people avoid every provocation and use peaceful measures to win democracy, freedom and general elections to unify our country."

People will surely not forget that it was the United States that less then two months after the Geneva Conference of 1954 convened the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), opposed free elections and started militarily building up South Vietnam in direct violation of the Geneva Accords. It is amazing

"American casualties have also decreased. In fact most of the troops that have been withdrawn from Vietnam have been assigned to other countries in Indochina and around the world—those troops are certainly not returning to the United States. American casualties may have been reduced but they still average more than 100 deaths per week which, while they may be acceptable statistics to the Nixon Administration, are 100 deaths a week too many.

Also, Nixon doesn't even bother to mention either the abominable number of Asian deaths that the United States is responsible for in Indochina which have not decreased in the last 20 months or the ecological wasteland that now constitutes Indochina after the U.S. defoliation exercises.

The political settlements that Nixon would impose on the Vletnamese people are also not new proposals. The United States has been saying all along that "we seek a political solution that reflects the will of the South Vletnamese people." And as it has made that statement, it has opposed free elections, it has put in and deposed puppet South Vletnamese regimes and it has practised its "search and destory" missions, it bombing raids and its other virtually genocidal missions against the people of Vietnam.

Solution?

Another part of the proposed U.S. political solution is that that "solution should reflect the existing relationship of political forces in South Vietnam." That means that presumably the existing force of the Thieu-Ky-Khiem dictatorial regime should be reflected in political solution. This proposal is completely inconsistent with any concept of a "fair solution" since the Thieu government is a power in and of itself, not representative of anybody or any group except perhaps the government of the United States.

A proposal of the PRG and North Vietnam regarding a political solution is that the corrupt government of President Thieu, Vice-president Ky and Premier Khiem should step down and be replaced by a coalition government representative of all South Vietnamese political groups. This government's sole function would be to institute free elections. Neither the PRG or North Vietnam have indicated that they are interested in a "takeover by one party" as Nixon infers.

If anyone is interested in insuring "the takeover by one party and the right to exclude whomever they wish from government," the United States is, as can be seen in its con-

FUCEFUL CHANGE
ESTÜBUSAMENT

Instead, the United States retains 400,000 troops there, even now, Nixon's proposals don't even refer to reunification of the country (perhaps the most essential element of the Geneva Accords) and the United States has continued to prevent free elections in the country from as far back as 1954 when Ho Chi Minh and the government in the northern zone stated that the political struggle "demands that our people avoid every provocation and use peaceful measures to win democracy, freedom and general elections to unify our country."

People will surely not forget that it was the United States that less then two months after the Geneva Conference of 1954 convened the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO), opposed free elections and started militarily building up South Vletnam in direct violation of the Geneva Accords. It is amazing that Nixon now has the gall to call for another Indochina conference and the audacity to state that the Geneva Accords will serve as a basis for settlement when the United States has so grossly violated those accords. Furthermore, the form that the conference will take is quite ambiguous.

Nixon implies that the fighting going on in Indochina is all part of one war and that North Vietnam has somehow attacked every country in that region. What he fails to recognize is that the war being fought in each country is being fought by indigenous liberation forces and that any sort of Indochina conference would be completely illegitimate without representatives of each national liberation organization

Perhaps the common factor that has confused Nixon into believing that there is one war in Indochina has been the role of the United States in supporting every force of reaction in the area and opposing every force of liberation.

Even if an Indochina peace conference were to be convened, the United States would have no business participating in it. It is as if a man breaks into another man's house, rapes his wife, murders his children, steals all his belongings and then decides he wants to negotiate to decide who get to keep what. Since the United States shouldn't have gone into Indochina in the first place, it certainly has no right to be involved in any negotiations.

Proposal

Nixon's proposal for withdrawal of troops is also not new. The United States placed such of itself, not representative of anybody or any group except perhaps the government of the United States.

A proposal of the PRG and North Vietnam regarding a political solution is that the corrupt government of President Thieu. Vice-president Ky and Premier Khiem should step down and be replaced by a coalition government representative of all South Vietnamese political groups. This government's sole function would be to institute free elections. Neither the PRG or North Vietnam have indicated that they are interested in a "takeover by one party" as Nixon infers.

If anyone is interested in insuring "the takeover by one party and the right to exclude whomever they wish from government," the United States is, as can be seen in its continued support for the corrupt dictatorial regimes in South Vietnam. One could even safely say that free elections could not presently take place in South Vietnam since the South Vietnamese government does not allow the dissemination of any opinions that are anti-government or pro-Communist.

The last of Nixon's proposals—those referring to prisoners of war have some interesting overtones. Nixon makes an astute observation when he compares the wars of liberation in Southeast Asia with one another. But those struggles are similar to struggles going on in other countries such as Guatemala, Greece, South Africa, Spain and, indeed, in this country. If Nixon is really sincere when he proposes that "all prisoners of war, without exception and without condition, be released now to return to the place (sic) of their choice" then we can look forward soon to the release of domestic political prisoners such as Bobby Seale, the Soledad Brothers, John Sinclair, as well as all draft resistors and many, many others all prisoners of the same war that the United States is fighting in Southeast Asia.

POWs

There are other prisoners of that war, imprisoned in South Vietnam, whom Nixon does not even allude to. Those are political prisoners, imprisoned by the South Vietnamese dictatorship under statutes such as Decree Law 093-SL/CT which outlaws "the diffusion, circulation, distribution, sale, display in public places" of all "moves which weaken the national anti-Communist effort." It is unlikely that the present

(Editor's note: The following is an open letter to Chancellor Charles E. Young from William H. Johnson, M.D., of the Medical Center.)

Chancellor Young

I am shocked that priorities at UCLA are such that hours have been severely shortened at the Biomedical and other campus libraries for budgetary reasons.

It is inconceivable to me that what must be the single most important university function in achieving the primary goal of learning should be the first rather than the last service to be curtailed. The cost of keeping the libraries open for those few evening hours must be miniscule in comparison to the costs ing them.

Use of the library in the evening is more than essential to me and my colleagues for continuing intellectual growth, as pressing hospital duties consume the major portion of our timeduring the working day.

I urge you to reconsider this decision and to restore library services to their previous adequate and appropriate level.

Arabic

In reply to last Friday's (October 9) open letter to Chancellor Young by the Organization of Arab Students regarding the condition of the Arabic language department, I feel the complaint by the O.A.S. to be detestable.

In all probability, most of the of developing and maintain- members of the O.A.S. are foreign students. There is no reason why the Arabs, or any foreign students for that matter, should complain about the condition of their respective language departments at UCLA.

Most of the Arabs are here not to study the Arabic language anyway, and if they are so perturbed about the manner in which UCLA is handling the Arabic language, the Arabs should return to their native homelands and study Arabic there.

According to you, the peace can be achieved only through American withdrawal and by removal of the present legitimate government. I am sure you would like to see a Soviet-style government in South Vietnam, with a one party system and "free" elections, where party candidates receive 99 per cent of the votes and the opposition leaders are murdered or jailed!

When Mr. Nixon, Vice-President Agnew, Senator Murphy and Mayor Yorty call the students and others who prefer peace at any price "bums, cowards and traitors," they refer to those who prefer this Communist-style peace.

So there is more to Nixon's "peace proposals" than meets the eye. Most of the proposals have been presented before, if not by the United States, by the Vletnamese. Nixon has not indicated that he is willing to depart one iota from U.S. policy of the last 10 years.

It has been pointed out before and it is no coincidence that the proposals came less than a month before the elections in an obvious attempt to pick up peace votes for Republican candidates. In all, it is unlikely that the "generation of peace" that Nixon is so happy about will come into fruition. If it does, it will not be as a result of any of Nixon's policies.

DEMONSTRATION SPONSORED BY WORKER STUDENT ALLIANCE FACTION OF SDS AT SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA NOVEMBER 3, 1970

On October 30, 1970, sources one and two advised that the WSA faction of SDS (See Appendix) planned to hold a demonstration at San Jose, California on November 3, 1970. The purpose of the demonstration was to show support for automobile workers on strike against General Motors Corporation (GMC). SDS was being supported in planning this demonstration by the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) (See Appendix).

Source Two advised that on October 30, 1970, individuals residing at Management Berkeley, California, made up leaflets for the demonstration entitled "Heads They Win - Tails We Lose". On the evening of October 30, 1970 a Gay Liberation dance was held at the Pauley Ballroom on the campus of UCB. Gay Liberation is a group on the UCB campus which advocates complete sexual freedom of all types. The band which played at this affair was "The Cleveland Wrecking Company".

During the dance a wedding was held between two male homosexuals. It was difficult to determine male from female, in many cases, because of the manner in which these individuals dressed. The following individuals connected with a group known as the Committee Against Racism (CAR), were observed at this dance:

About 3:00 p.m. on the afternoon of October 30, 1970, a group of individuals gathered at 2210 Tenth Avenue, Oakland, to pick up bundles of "Challenge", the PLP newspaper. Among the group which gathered were the following:

After picketing the Oldsmobile dealer, the demonstrators would then go from door to door in the community to collect food and clothing for the striking General Motors (CM) workers. A discussion was held concerning what action would be taken if the police attacked the demonstrators. It was decided the demonstrators would not retreat but would fight. It was also decided that if the demonstration was broken up by the police, then they would regroup on the campus of San Jose State College. Stencils for leaflets were brought to the meeting from Berkeley, and it was decided to prepare more leaflets. was also decided that these leaflets concerning the automobile strike would be distributed at local area high schools, (last name automobile plants, factories and stores. unknown) argued with and because in his opinion PLP was exercising too much control over the is reportedly with one of the San demonstration. Source two reported that about 2:30 p.m., on November 3, 1970, a group of between 25 and 30 individuals met at the intersection of Dana and Bancroft Streets in Berkeley. They organized themselves in car pools for travel to the San Jose demonstration. While the car pools were being organized, some people reportedly from a Denver or Salt Lake City SDS group, were arrested for distributing leaflets on the UCB campus in order to further advertise the San Jose demonstration. Among those who gathered for the car pools were the following:

The car pools arrived at San Jose about 3:30 p.m., and at that time, approximately 100 people had gathered in St. James park. Among the individuals at the park were the

and is reportedly a Professor at San Francisco State College.

At approximately 5:30 p.m., about 300 people had gathered at St. James park and the speeches commenced.

Front for Palestine, spoke, and since this was a national election day, said the elections are a hoax. Spoke and urged that all political prisoners be set free, especially students arrested in campus disorders. A Mexican-American who could hardly speak English spoke and urged suport for the striking automobile workers. His proficiency in English was so poor that no one could understand him. (Phonetic) also spoke and asked those present to support the striking workers.

Spoke on the issues involved in the automobile strike against GMC and said automobile dealers in San Jose should be picketed.

At approximately 7:00 p.m., the demonstrators marched from St. James park to the Phillips Oldsmobile dealership. The dealership was closed and all the cars were gone. There was a sign in front of the door which read closed, so our salesmen could go vote. As a result, the demonstrators ended up picketing an empty building. They handed out leaflets and remained at this location for about 20 minutes. No incidents, arrests or property damage were observed during the demonstration.

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY (SDS)

Students For A Democratic Society (SDS) as commonly known, came into existence at a rounding convention held during June 1962, at Port Huron, Michigan. From an initial posture of "participatory democracy," Marxist-Leninist ideology of various shadings became predominant during 1968-1969 with debate centering on how best to create a revolutionary youth movement. SDS moved from involvement in the civil rights struggle to an anti-Vietnam war position to advocacy of a militant anti-imperialist line linking up the oppressed peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America with the black liberation movement in the United States. All major factions within SDS embrace Marxism-Leninism and identify internationally with China, Cuba and North Vietnam as countries leading the world-wide struggles against the United States. However, the Soviet Union was regarded as imperialist and with the Communist Party, USA, "revisionist" in nature.

SDS operated under a national constitution which called for an annual National Convention (NC) and quarterly National Council meetings wherein programs were initiated and debated. Three national officers were elected annually with a National Interim Committee to run the organization. Regional offices and Interim Committee to run the organization. Regional meetings but college chapters elected delegates to the national meetings but college chapters elected delegates to the national meetings but each functioned independently on local matters. Its official each functioned independently on local matters. Its official publication "Fire" (formerly "New Left Notes") last appeared in December 1969.

Internal factionalism of serious proportions developed during 1968-1969 and the following three factions evolved as a result of a split at the June 1969 NC: Weatherman, Worker Student Alliance, and Revolutionary Youth Movement. The effect of the split on SDS chapters throughout the country was divisive. Some split on SDS chapters throughout the country was divisive. Others, aligned with one or the other of the three major factions. Others, aligned with one or the other of the three major factions.

The SDS national office in recent years was located at 1608 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois. It was closed in February 1970.

The Weatherman and Revolutionary Youth Movement groups no longer consider themselves associated with SDS and the Worker Student Alliance group refers to itself as the true SDS.

PROGRESSIVE LABOR PARTY (PLP)

"The New York Times" city edition, Tuesday, April 20, 1965, Page 27, reported that a new party of "revolutionary socialism" was formally founded on April 18, 1965, under the name of the PLP which had been known as the Progressive Labor Movement.

According to the article, "The Progressive Labor Movement was founded in 1962, by MILTON ROSEN and MORTIMER SCHEER after they were expelled from the Communist Party of the United States for assertedly following the Chinese Communist line."

A source advised on June 3, 1968, that the PLP held its Second National Convention in New York City, May 31 to June 2, 1968, at which time the PLP reasserted its objective of the establishment of a militant working class movement based on Marxism-Leninism. This is to be accomplished through the Party's over-all revolutionary strategy of raising the consciousness of the people and helping to provide ideological leadership in the working class struggle for state power.

The source also advised that at the Second National Convention MILTON ROSEN was unanimously re-elected National Chairman of the PLP and were elected as the National Committee to lead the PLP until the next convention.

The PLP publishes "Progressive Labor", a bimonthly magazine; "World Revolution", a quarterly periodical; and "Challenge-Desafio", a monthly newspaper.

The April 1969, issue of "Challenge-Desafio" sets forth that "Challenge is dedicated to the peoples fight for a new way of life---where the working men and women control their own homes and factories; where they themselves make up the entire government on every level and control the schools, courts, police, and all institutions which are now used to control them."

Source advised on May 8, 1969, that the PLP utilizes an address of General Post Office Box 808, Brooklyn, New York, and also utilizes an office in Room 617, 1 Union Square West, New York, New York.

BLACK PANTHER FARTY (BPF), Also Known As Black Panther Party for Self-Defense

According to the official newspaper of the BPP, the BPP was started during December 1966, in Oakland, California, to organize black people so they can take control of the life, politics, and the destiny of the black community. It was organized by BOBEY G. SEALE, BPP Chairman, and HUEY P. NEWTON, Minister of Defense, BPP.

The official newspaper, called "The Black Panther", regularly states that the BPP advocates the use of guns and guerrilla tactics in its revolutionary program to end oppression of the black people. Residents of the black community are urged to arm themselves against the police who are consistently referred to as "pigs" who should be killed.

The newspaper, in its issue of September 7, 1968, had an article by the then Minister of Education, GEORGE MURRAY. This article ended with the following:

"Elack men. Black people, colored persons of America, revolt everywhere! Arm yourselves. The only culture worth keeping is revolutionary culture. Change. Freedom everywhere. Dynamite! Black power. Use the gun. Kill the pigs everywhere."

The BPP newspaper, issue of October 5, 1968, had an article introduced with the following statement: "We will not dissert from American government. We will overthrow it."

DAVID HILLIARD, Chief of Staff, BPP, in a speech at the San Francisco Polo Field on November 15, 1969, said "We will kill Richard Nixon."

DAVID HILLIARD, in the "New York Times", issue of December 13, 1969, was quoted as follows: "We advocate the very direct overthrow of the government by way of force and violence."

Copies of the position paper have been mailed to individuals reportedly opposed to the national leadership. Copies have also been sent to and of the Revolutionary Marxist Caucas, who have previously published a paper critical of the national leadership.

Recipient offices are requested to advise Los Angeles of any comments from informants concerning the effect of this paper in their local areas. Also, names and addresses of any WSA faction members, who are known to be critical of the national leadership should be furnished.

It appears that the WSA is attempting to eliminate all opposition to the national leadership from local chapters prior to the National Convention now tentatively scheduled for December 1970

In the event the counter-intelligence proposals will be submitted to the Bureau.

Re Bureau letter to Los Angeles, deted 8/31/70.

Enclosed herewith for the Buroon is one copy of on erticle which opposed in a Progressive Labor Party (PLP) periodical, concerning PLP forgeries.

For the information of the Bureru. "Challenge -Descrio", official publication of the PLP issue of 11/1/70. contains on article recusing police appealed of forgeries in an effort to thwart the efforts of the PLP, and gave as on example, "an old memo book of one of our leading members was sent to us, with police phone numbers obviously written into it, accompanied by an unsigned letter alledging to be some of our members characters this percon with being a police spy.

It is believed that they refer to the A diary, but is very interesting to note that they never call it's disry, they never identify the telephone numbers, nor do they identify the member accused of being this spy.

The Los Angeles Office, using 11 of the presentions utilized in the post, will once again communicate with , PLP, and remind him that his acquisations might be accurate in some cases, but that a group here in Los Angeles still believe that police spy and on the payroll of a police agency.

The Los Angeles Office is triping this view because ic under suspicion there is a very good chance that and that is waiting to see what the article in the PLP newspaper brings about. If no additional letter is received, he can take the attitude that the first letter was a fraud; if he receives another accusing letter. The Nos Angeles Office will rewin thert for any information regarding this counterintelligence program, and will so advise the Bureau of any information.

Cops spend thousands to mis-print PLP's program • Mail out racist cartoons and egg on nationalist attacks • Those using these police lies ought to think where that action leads.

A rapid-fire series of police forgeries and lying attacks on PLP have appeared in recent weeks, testifying to the fact that we must be making progress. If the enemy steps up its attacks, it is admitting our gains.

On the one hand they have attacked us externally, by a nation-wide attempt to stop workers from buying CHAL-LENGE-DESAFIO at auto plant gates through use of goons, cops, the UAW and company guards. This is also happening in many other industries (Kennedy Airport in New York, steel in Chicago and California, G.E. in Lynn, Mass., etc.).

Now they are also trying to split us both internally, member against leader, as well as from various minority groups — black, Puerto Rican, Jewish, etc. These take the form of either distortions of things we have said or lies made up out of the whole cloth. The following has occurred in recent weeks:

1. A "PLP National Committee Report" was sent to many Jewish, black and other organizations containing both distortions of a recent PLP report as well as a whole section which was a complete fabrication. It was sent with our return address, a few with wrong addresses being returned to us.

2. A PLP internal report on the expulsion of various working-class enemies from our ranks, sent out with a front page and inside section either distorting our position or making it up.

3. A racist comic strip cartoon distorting the abovementioned internal report showing the worst kind of stereotype of a black person, sent to many members and friends of PLP as well as others.

4. An old memo book of one of our leading members was sent to us, with police phone numbers obviously written into it, accompanied by an unsigned letter alleging to be some of our members charging this person with being a police spy.

6. A leaflet distributed in New York under our name which completely distorted and fied about our program and an accusation that one of our members hit a member of the Young Lords with a "lead pipe." While some cops may have put out a "PLP leaflet" and even attacked someone while posing as a PLP member, probably to incite Latin American people against us, none of our members ever hit any Young Lord with a lead pipe or put out such a leaflet.

Various police agencies of the government are obviously behind these forgeries. The first four were sent to people whose names and addresses and ties to PLP could only be known by the cops, and they cost thousands of dollars to print up and mail, an expense that would only be undertaken by a police agency with plenty to spend for this sort of thing. The fact that various nationalist organs have used these forgeries to leap to attack us (the "communist" Morning Freiheit for one) shows their aim is for use against our working-class line.

To be attacked by the enemy is a good thing. The fact that various nationalist organizations have jumped to use these police forgeries before even checking their validity ought to cause them to think about where their own politics lead.

We will continue to keep our readers, members and friends informed about any such forgeries in the future.

Copies of this paper were sent to known conservative members of the California legislature and one was sent to Governor RONALD REAGAN. In addition, a series of telephone calls from "parents of irate students" were made to local

3. PENDING COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ACTION

By airtel dated 10/23/70, the Bureau approved a program to promote factionalism in the Worker-Student Alliance (WSA) faction of SDS.

has prepared a position paper which is highly critical of both the local and national WSA leadership and this paper has been given widespread publicity among the SDS membership.

In addition, this paper has been distributed in other cities, to other SDS members, and it is fully expected that it will cause complete consternation among the SDS membership.

SUBJECT: Jewish Defense League

Rabbi Meir Kahane, Founder and Executive Director of the Jewish Defense League, recently toured Southern California and Arizona to organize chapters in this region.

Because the JDL plans additional organizing activities in the western states soon, our Board recommended that we remind all B'nai B'rith units of the ADL and B'nai B'rith positions concerning the Jewish Defense League.

Background

To understand better what follows, please see the attached article on "The Jewish Defense League," reprinted from the ADL Bulletin, November, 1969.

ADL's Position

As a member of the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council (representing 9 national and 82 local Jewish agencies) ADL subscribed to its statement of September 21, 1969 declaring:

"The National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council ... is opposed to vigilantism, whatever its auspices, and firmly rejects the paramilitary operations of the Jewish Defense League as destructive of public order and contributory to divisiveness and terror. Jewish security - indeed, the security of any ethnic or racial group - does not lie in taking the law into one's own hands."

ADL's National Executive Committee on February 1, 1970 again expressed opposition to the JDL because, as Arnold Forster, ADL General Counsel, said, "If all groups were to form their own so-called 'defense leagues' this country would be headed toward national polarization and violence fast approaching anarchy."

B'nai B'rith's Position

On January 19, 1970, the Board of Governors of B'nai B'rith stated

· Also Marie Contract

"We deplore the extremist tactics preying on anxieties that lead an organization such as the Jewish Defense League to engage in vigilante actions inimical to Jewish teachings and tradition. Impassioned appears to raw emotionalism, violent backlash and taking the law into one own hands, can only create a divisive destructiveness. Spuriously labeling such activities 'Jewish' makes them no less invidious. We therefore urge our units not to extend the privilege of their platforms to representatives of the Jewish Defense League."

Recent JDL Activities

In November, 1970 the Soviet Aeroflot Office in New York City was bombed. JDL's Rabbi Kahane, while denying any knowledge of or connection with the bombing, told the press that he "applauds" whoever placed the bomb.

Top leaders of Orthodox Judaism in this country immediately denounced the Jewish Defense League as "destructive" and "irresponsible."

A few days later, Mrs. Golda Meir, Prime Minister of Israel, sharply denounced the bombing and said that these acts were not only irresponsible but also damaging "... to our just struggle and play into the hands of our enemies..."

Just a few weeks ago, a very impressive and highly effective mass demonstration in New York City protesting Soviet persecution of Jews was turned into an ugly riot when Rabbi Kahane and members of the Jewish Defense League charged police barricades.

Newspaper readers were greeted the next morning by such headlines as: "Jews Riot. Five Policemen hurt," which diverted attention from the size and importance of the demonstration.

The struggle in behalf of Soviet Jews is with the Soviet Union and not with the City of New York or its Police Department. Continued violent action by the JDL and other like-minded groups will only succeed in alienating the vast community and mass media support we succeeded in generating.

Rabbi Moshe Feinstein, one of the world's greatest authorities on Jewish Religious Law, speaking at the 72nd Biennial National Convention of the Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America declared, "the actions of the Jewish Defense League directed against governments and states are contrary to the Torah which prohibits us from such deeds of violence."

We understand why some people listening to Rabbi Kahane's simplistic solutions to complex problems might be persuaded that Jews ought to arm themselves and learn self-defense; but we have faith and confidence in the ability of most Jews to appreciate the fact that such appeals are both inappropriate and largely counter-productive.

The Jewish Defende League

Their "arotection" wasn't needed but there they were with chains, bats and stick

Monticello, N.Y., was much like any other in the mountains—a main cottage, cabins, a place to swim, and in an open space, the American flag fluttered from a rustic pole. But this particular camp attracted unusual attention when it opened last July. In the 90-degree heat of a humid afternoon, when campers elsewhere were canoeing on a lake or trudging a nature trail through the woods, the 150 youngsters at Camp Jedel were punching, slapping and kicking each other around. They were learning karate.

This was the camp operated by the Jewish Defense League, an organization founded about a year and a half ago for the declared purpose of protecting Jews by whatever means were deemed necessary in the face of what was seen as their dire peril. Law and order, according to the JDL, was disintegrating and anti-Semitism was rampant. The campers, therefore, would be trained in karate; they would learn to shoot rifles; they would study the history of "Jewish underground fighters." Come fall, there would be weekly target practice at a rifle club in Manhattan and karate drill five nights a week at the arganization's own Shori Dojo Club. And I "trouble" developed in the streets of the city, they would meet it head-on.

Sending its own troops to defend Jews was already established procedure for the Jewish Defense League. On a Friday night last May, Temple Emanu Fl, one of

A vigilante group falls victim to the tactics it claims to oppose.

New York's most prestigious synagogues was deemed a trouble spot. James Forman was expected to appear to present reparations demands to the congregation. Forman did not show up—but members of the Jewish Defense League did.

No one connected with the temple had requested their "protection"; the senior rabbi had, in fact, set up a plan of action with the New York City Police Department. A large number of uniformed police were conspicuously present when the "defenders" arrived. The rabbi and others tooked on in dismay as the JDL members lined up near the temple building armed with heavy chains, baseball bats and sticks.

What would have happened bad Forman appeared? On other occasions when IDL "troops" met their antagonists there was violence and arrests—nine on one occasion, four on another—on such charges as criminal trespassing, obstructing government administration and possession of a blackjack (an adult IDL coordinator in the last instance). There are obviously varying opinions on what constitutes law and order.

The Foundate and leader of the Jewish Did le League is a 39-year-old ordained rabbi, Meir Kahane, who believes that the major Jewish organizations have failed to protect America's Jews from anti-Semitism which he sees as "exploding" all over the country, "We could have pogroms here like those of Eastern Europe," Kahane contends.

With this warning. Kahan has been traveling around the country attempting to set up chapters in various large cities. He claims a membership of 6,800-with about 75 percent of the total in the New York metropolitan area where this fall the JDL added another dimension to its activities: politics. Newspaper ads asked for contributions to assist the JDL in its "battles on hehalf of Jewry and America" and to help the Jewish Defense League "in its struggle to defeat John Lindsay," the city's incumbent Mayor. In its open venture into politics, the JDL also used crude flyers to describe the Mayor as "Hi-Tax LindSay (sic)" and to charge him through innuendo with condoning anti-Semitism.

The charge against Lindsay had its roots in the city's school crisis a year earlier-when in the course of a long teachers' strike, extremists and anti-Semitic incidents nearly drowned out the original issues. The difficulties had been exacerbated by harsh words from all sides. Some of the harshest appeared in the huge headlines of the Jewish Press, a Prooklyn weekly for which Meir Kahana had been a feature writer before his founding of the Jewish Defense League. Kahane used the pages of the Jewish Press to publicize the IDL and its activities. He also used them for sensationalistic articles about the activities of certain anti-Semitic black racists.

Stressing the problems of Jewish teachers, Kahane looked for IDL recruits among the members of the striking United Federation of Teachers, UFT president Albert Shanker, in a publicies: article in the union's magazine, denounced what he called "the JDL's paramilitar, program." The Jewish Defense League's methods, he went on to say, "will serve to perpetuate the conditions of black tor; and white fear in which all group hatre? and suspicions, including anti-Semitient, will grow. This is inevitable where find in democratic government and the orderly process of law is abandoned in fever of independent vigilantes with clubs and guns."

The Jewish rioss also contributed on the moment's frightened polarization is a such headlines as "Peace Group Collection War On Jews," and "An Eye-Witte and Hate And Negro Anti-Scottism while the paper shared Echesolic that all Jews must saick together again.

nounting enemies, this did not seem to apply to Jewish organizations. One issue carried a page one story headlined "B'nai B'rith Gives $100,000 Gift To Black Militant." An unidentified Jewish Defense League spokesman was quoted as saying that it was "simply incredible that a Jewish defense organization such as B'nai B'rith" should have funded "a foe of Jewish teachers," a man unsympathetic to "Jewish rights, who would "subject every Jewish teacher in a Black district to a mental and—perhaps—physical pogrom."

The president of B'nai B'rith District 1 immediately sent a telegram to the editor labelling the allegation "an utter lie" and demanding a retraction. The B'nai B'rith official called a subsequent quasi-retraction "completely unsatisfactory," and in a letter to the editor declared:

"The story itself seeks to put you in the position of an objective arbiter between an organization making the charges (the Jewish Desense League) and our organization denying them. The fact is that the organization you quote is closely tied to your own publication. Hence, you are the one responsible for the story and the detrimental effects it might have."

LAST MONTH the Jewish Press sought to sever its close ties with the JDL. Rabbi Sholom Klass, the paper's publisher, announced that Meir Kahane had been dropped from the staff because he had chosen to devote his time to the JDL rather than to his salaried job. Klass also denounced Kahane and JDL general counsel Bertram Zweibon for what he called their "irresponsible behavior" in waging "a campaign of vilification against Mayor John Lindsay." The two, he said, "are now utilizing the organization as a personal club." Klass, however, hinted that Kahane's staff job might still be open to him if he would work a full five-day week and if the tone of the JDL became less

Meanwhile, Rabbi Kahane continues to stump the country for his organization. A soft-spoken but dramatic orator, he reminds his audience of the millions murdered during the Nazi holocaust, building up to the JDL punchline (and slogan of its paramilitary camp): "Never Again."

This is the Jewish Defense League's basic emotional appeal—and its basic fallacy. The proposition that American Jews must band together behind a cadre of street fighters flying the banner of "Never Again" implies that prison camps and gas ovens are in preparation. Kahane seems to see American Jews as living in a fiercely hostile society—living, as it were, in Nazi Germany or in Israel surrounded by 40 million enemies. It is a strange view of a country in which Jews have more security and acceptance than ever or anywhere before. Further, it is a presumptuous insult to those who died in the holocaust and to those who live in real peril in the Middle East today.

What is wrong, some ask, with the idea of Jews defending themselves? What is obviously wrong is the faulty premise that any breakdown in law and order is specifically a Jewish problem, as if Jews are the only victims of crime and violence. If each religious, ethnic and national group were to form its own vigilante "defense" league, this country would be headed toward a national situation of polarization and violence fast approaching anarchy. No minority group can survive by going it alone, by resolving differences by force and numbers in the streets. There are indeed problems; there is racism and anti-Semitism and crisis in urban centers. But answers lie in calm reconciliation and positive resolution of the nation's ills. There are no answers in the slogans and tactics of the Jewish Desense League.

There is instead what a New York Post editorial labeled "The Business of Hysteria" where "grave problems of law enforcement can only be aggravated by the emergence of semi-vigilante units proposing to usurp the functions of the police."

THE NATIONAL Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council—representing 82 local Jewish community agencies and nine national groups including the Anti-Defamation League, the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress and the Jewish War Veterans—summed up the views of the responsible and experienced Jewish leadership in the United States:

"The National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council . . . is opposed to vigilantism, whatever its auspices, and firmly rejects the paramilitary operations of the Jewish Desense League as destructive of public order and contributory to divisiveness and terror.

"Jewish security—indeed, the security of any ethnic or racial group—does not lie in taking the law into one's own hands. That kind of simplistic approach to the complicated problems of our time can only produce warring groups, not solutions.

"Jews must not tolerate anti-Semitism, as black citizens must not tolerate racism. But the answer to such provocations cannot be found in clubs or physical battle. The evils of our society and the extremists in our midst must be countered through peaceful processes consistent with democratic goals. The task is to work together in a coalition of all respectable elements of the community to achieve social conditions which will eliminate the breeding grounds of rage and fear.

"By such means, the organizations comprising the NCRAC have consistently sought and continue energetically to seek realization under law of that security for Jews to which the Jewish Defense League declares its commitment. They are the only means by which Jewish security can be truly assured.

"Unfortunately, the Jewish Defense League has fallen victim to the very tactics it claims to oppose. We consider its activities no less harmful and dangerous because it has called itself 'Jewish'."

advised prior to the convention that it appeared that travel expenses of individuals considered pro-PLP were apparently subsidized in an effort to pack the convention with people whose votes could be controlled.

ing individuals who attended the convention, advised that most individuals from the Los Angeles area had never previously attended an SDS meeting, which supports the theory that the convention was packed.

that about $20,000 had been estimated by those planning the air travel at San Francisco as the cost of chartering the plane for the West Coast.

It would appear that the superior financing behind the WSA/PLP makes it possible to buy support and remain in power. In the past, the PLP organization in Los Angeles has always had large sums of money, much of which was supplied by PLP member that

It is felt that the financing of WSA activities would be fertile ground around which a COINTELPRO might be developed.

Re Los Angeles letter to the Bureau dated 12/28/70.

POTENTIAL COUNTERINTELLIGENCE ACTION

By airtel dated 1/19/71, the Los Angeles Office made available copies of a confidential memorandum showing the official position being taken by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, Los Angeles, California, toward the militant and destructive Jewish Defense League. This office will closely follow the continued attitude of Anti-Defamation League (ADL) toward the Jewish Defense League (JDL), noting that the ADL is an organization with much influence in the Jewish community.

The Los Angeles Office continues to focus its counterintelligence program on the California State College at Los Angeles, Chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society. The informant there has been instructed to disrupt and to still try to oust (See Below). If this is successful it will then be indicated to the California State College at Los Angeles authorities that the Students for a Democratic Society Chapter is an illegal organization on campus, and hopefully expel Students for a Democratic Society from campus.

Committee (SMC) in an attempt to expel SDS-Worker Student Alliance National Interim Committee (NIC) member CLIFF LARDINOIS and three other PLP members from the California State College at Los Angeles Chapter of the SDS-Worker Student Alliance (WSA). If this resulted it would deal a real blow since an NIC member would be expelled from his own chapter and of course embarrass and discredit the national leadership of the SDS-WSA. Before this program could be instituted LARDINOIS became disenchanted with the PLP, is considering organizing a caucus against the national leadership, and has indicated that he might resign from the SDS.
