The two thereafter discussed handling the hit and using double-ought buckshot and planning to have pistols with them. They claimed that there is double-ought buckshot in the desk at the Paddock under the control of the HARVILL is very anxious to have present and calls telling to come to present and calls telling to come to pull the victim over and get out and get into the victim's automobile, acting like he, HARVILL, wanted to talk to the victim.

and the fact that FRANK WORTMAN and tree together most every afternoon. In the parently has become friendly because his wife is permitted to keep regular dates with ENNIS feels is not reliable. ENNIS comments that is supposed to be the boss and gives out the "hits". He comments that he does not know why his trying to give out "hits":

ENNIS and HARVILL thereafter discussed some scores ENNIS has cased in Branson (Missouri) over the past week and described them as the supermarket and jewelry store. ENNIS claims the way to handle the scores would be to set fire to a building at one end of the town to draw attention away from the burglaries. They agreed that might be able to open the safes. This is believed to be

At about this time entered the conversation, according to source. The three of them thereafter examine a .12 gauge shotgun and some ammunition. It was agreed that they will have to go to the Paddock and get some double-ought buckshot. They further agree that since the viction of the "hit" is presently at home they might as well try to catch him, but ENNIS preferred to do it at night; however, HARVILL said that day or night was all right with him.

HARVILL and the hereafter discussed the kind of gloves they had. ENNIS claimed he has some hits he is supposed to handle and refers to these victims as being two brothers, that both of them have got to go and indicates it should be in the near future.

By teletypes dated September 10, 1963, the Bureau was advised of the above contemplated hits.

Kansas City was advised by airtel September 11, 1963, of the above-mentioned scores.

As the Bureau was advised, it appeared to agents familiar with criminal activities in the East St. Louis area, that WILLIAM SCOTT, Aka Willard Scott, Scotty, was the logical victim HARVILL and the others planned to hit; further as a result of information source furnished on September 9, 1963, agents observed that SCOTT's automobile was at home with his coat hanging in the rear; further HARVILL and were observed near SCOTT's residence shortly after 5:30 PM, September 9, 1963.

At approximately 9:45 PM. September 10 1962 found slain in SCOTT's 1963 Cadillac at 32nd and St. Clair Avenue, East St. Louis, Illinois. SCOTT was killed with five shots which local authorities state came from a .38 caliber weapon.

Source advised at 9:44 PM, September 10, 1963, ENNIS received a phone call at which time ENNIS commented, "What's up - OK" and thereafter immediately left returning in approximately 33 minutes. At 11:23 PM, September 10, 1963, ENNIS called apparently at the Paddock Lounge, East St. Louis, Illinois, asking if anyone had talked to

At 3:10 AM, September 11, 1963, unknown man and woman entered ENNIS's trailer through arrangements previously made by phone call signals at 2:59 AM.

On September 12, 1963, source advised ENNIS was working for the hoisting engineers in the Alton, Illinois, area for a short time.

apparently drove ENNIS in connection with this job. Thereafter ENNIS described this job as being on the night the dynamite was set at the Kroger Store doorway. ENNIS claimed the fuse was crimped or something and quit burning about three feet from the package. ENNIS claimed he took care of the fuse and that he had to do something because his fingerprints were on it. Commented that somebody may have been trying to work ENNIS into a short sentence. ENNIS agreed and wondered what might have happened to him if someone had found his fingerprints on the package at the Eroger doorway.

Prior to ENNIS leaving, ne called, apparently the Paddock, stating he is leaving right away and would be back Sunday night, September 15, 1963.

On Sunday night, ENNIS returned to his trailer, according to source and at 11:33 PM, he called ENNIS advised that he is back in town.

At 12:45 AM, September 16, 1963, ENNIS called an unknown person and asked what has happened and asks if the "old man" is back yet.

At 12:55 PK, September 16, 1963, ENNIS made a phone call to an unknown person, possibly Paddock Lounge and asks it there. Apparently ENNIS is told is not present at which time, Exkis stated "he knew he was due".

ENNIS during this call, makes the comment" Where's that at

I go near there - I go west from Springfield - I knew I'd been near there". EXNIS then commented he is not working.

- HARVILL "No one told me exactly how to hit this (obscene) only reason they told me is cause I know him I guess."
- ENNIS "I told them just how I felt about the while (obscene) thing."
- HARVILL "I just told and plainly, he ain't going with me (obscene) I don't give a (obscene) the (obscene) things are in the car, let him get and go on whoever he wants to go with him look at this big (obscene) first one I ever seen like this." (apparently examining a gun)
- ENNIS "I cased two scores down there in Branson (Missouri)I'll guarantee you they are the sweetest (obscene)
  I ever saw in my life these are easy I ain't going to mess with them till I talk to and make sure it won't cause him too much trouble. They have a volunteer fire department and one policeman a shift."
- HARVILL "Is that the little town you and me went to to buy them gloves? where the stop light the highway comes dead, and you got to go left Don't they have a sheriff?"
- ENNIS "Pick out a nice big building and torch it on the other end of town and you can just run in and out of these (obscene) joints."
- HARVILL "That way they get attention away from it."
- ENNIS "It stops all that door shaking, prowling, and (obscene) like that the rest of the night. It takes two hours to fight that (obscem) fire - by time they're through - we're ready to go. There's one supermarket - that's easy - 8:00 AM it opens up - people waiting in the drive - they never stop all day - got a safe in there - it's older than (obsceme)."

HARVILL - "How you know he keeps it in there?"

ENNIS - "You'd have to go down and check. That (obscene) jewelry store - hum: I watched him that evening muts the diamonds in the safe. Boy, that's one good thing about jewelry - put a torch to the safe, and you won't burn the (obscene) stuff.
might be able to open that safe."

HARVILL - "What kind is it?"

ENNIS - "Double door Mosler."

HARVILL - "Do you forget when you learn them (obscene) things - When you're gone away for awhile, do you forget?"

ENNIS - "No. - the only one that can drill a niggerhead wouldn't tell to be used to watch him all time - tried to explain it to me - come down one inch - shoot back and so forth."

HARVILL - "Did you talk to ENNIS - "That's why I did it - told me - why (obscene) if I'd taught that (obscene) they'd been no more scores."

HARVILL - "What happened?"

ENNIS - "Why she had three rings on her hand worth $4,000.00 - His ring alone was insured for $8,500.00."

September 9, 1963 (ont'd)

HARVILL - "Did you see 'em?"

ENNIS - "He couldn't get the (obscene) car in gear."

HARVILL - "What kind of car was it?"

ENNIS - "DeSoto sports coupe - I was standing there waiting for the car to back up and to come and put the lights on them. I was going to take her first and his billfold and rings. I waited fifteen minutes - waiting to get the car out of gear - finally I said scoot over - put this (obscene) in gear hit the button - put it in reverse - slid over, and we drove out.

HARVILL -"What's so hard about that?"

HARVILL - "I never seen this (obscene) thing - it holds three shots" (talking about a gun)

610

ENNIS - "Is plug out?"

HARVILL - "I don't know, I never looked."

ENNIS - "They're all built that way cause all states passed that law."

HARVILL - "They have huh - they took it apart and everything else?"

ENNIS - "Well, how the (obscene) would he know - he couldn't get a BB gun apart?"

Door slams. (Apparently enters.)

HARVILL and ENNIS comment of some playing cards from (Noises and sounds follow as though a gun is being taken apart.)

HARVILL - "It's 12 gauge -

ENNIS - "No (obscene) plug in it."

ain't a mark on it - jar must have knocked him down - missed the (obscene) all together - didn't even have a good grip on it."

HARVILL - "I went by at 3:30, and his (obscene) car's not there, and went by at 4:30, and he's there - both of them - had his coat in the back seat, and looked like he might leave - we might just as well see if we can just catch that (obscene)."

- "Tonight?"

HARVILL - "(obscene) right now in the daytime."

ENNIS, HARVILL, and discuss gun and putting three shots in it - pulling gun.

HARVILL - "Not unless you got that (obscene) in your car."

- "If I don't hit that (obscene) with the first shot."

HARVILL - "It ain't him - I'm talking about someone else."

"Well you're (or we're) going to have pistols."

HARVILL - "Yeh - but."

HARVILL - "That's all MEL used to screen."

- "When MEL hit, that's all he used (MEL BECKMAN) - three shot - you got the right kind of shells for that _____ - These shells they got ain't right. - You ain't got no 00."

ENNIS - "Yeh - I got a whole box of 00."

- "Will they fit this? That's what we need They got twos - number two - buck shot - bird shot. Give us some 00."

ENNIS - "Ain't got."

- "Where they at?"

ENNIS - "Locked in the office." (Paddock Lounge)

- "Let's go by there and get them."

HARVILL - "Where you going to get them from - at the Paddock in the office?"

ENNIS - "GORDON ought to know where they are."

HARVILL - "GORDON doesn't have the key to him and drawer."

- "Let's go b Ch he's gone though, ain't he?"

HARVILL - "Them there things there are liable to (obscene) us up - just wound him or something."

HARVILL - "That's right."

"Them others are 00, and 00 are what you got to have."

ENNIS - "OO Magnum loads."

"Remember like we used on them goose - number two magnums - they might do it - but they're liable to not do it. That's what I said the other night, we ought to have the right kind of shells - Let's go down there and see if we can get 'em. -I got some at home, but they's all sixteens."

ENNIS - "Better have gloves."

HARVILL - "What the (obscene) kind of gloves I have - like these?"

informant subsequently advised that ENNIS was to enter Alexian Brothers Hospital on the morning of 10/28/63 and was to have a lung removed on the morning of 10/29/63. Concerning this informant advised that ENNIS anticipated being hospitalized from 10 to 14 days and would be "moving slowly" from 60 to 90 days.

Informant advised on 10/21/63 that ENNIS was visited by a woman known as and, informant subsequently advised that ENNIS was in touch with this woman throughout the week of 10/21/63 and took her with his to informant further advised that the cleaned in trailer for him, has done his laundry, has shopped for him, and has offered to help him make his car payments while he is hospitalized and recuperating. ENNIS, according to informant, pays monthly car payments of $207.59.

On 10/21/63 informant also advised that ENNIS was "broke" and was attempting to sell an outboard motor for $100 cash, although he had $135 invested in this motor. Informant stated that ENNIS remarked that he and "three other guys are getting $70,000 credit per month and have to pull our money to cross the bridge." (This apparently has reference to the policy game in the East St. Louis, Illinois, area which is currently closed down and which has recently been reported in the newspapers to be approximately a $70,000-per-month operation. ENNIS is a partner in the policy operation, along with JAMES JAY KAGE and GEORGE "STORMY" HARVILL. Partner Informant advised on 10/22/63 that on that day ENNIS had made a reference to "the boss" and then classified this by saving. "I mean the number two man,

On 10/22/63 informant advised that ENNIS stated that he was "in the outfit," but that he was not making any money. He referred to "STORMY" (GEORGE HARVILL) as being "in the outfit." and stated that "STORMY" had told him that he; "STORMY." could not get a job because of being "in the outfit." ENNIS complained about not making any money and stated that it was necessary for him to go to work and also stated that "the outfit will have to do something to keep me in." In connection with conversation concerning "the outfit," the name was also mentioned. ("The outfit" undoubtedly refers to TRANK "BUSTER" WORTMAN's organization; and

17. Remarks (By SAC): This imstallation has been of extreme value to the Springfield Division in connection with the criminal intelligence program as well as coverage on the WORTMAN gang and other E. St. Louis area hoodlums. Some of the material obtained has been outstanding. In the past, several weeks, ENNIS has had a full-time legitimate job and has not been present during day-time hours and because of this job he now retires rather early. It is anticipated with the racing season closing in the E. St. Louis area that there will be more activity at ENNIS' trailer.

It is recommended that the installation be contimued.

18. Recommendation by Assistant Director:

(If this surveillance involves cryptanalysis, include statement that decrypted material is or is not sufficiently important to continue decrypting.)

9. On 8/7-9/63, information was received that ENNIS was associating regularly with various K. St. Louis hoodlums; that ENNIS was planning to open a golf drive-in and putt course; that he was regularly in touch with members of the WORTHAN gang.

On 8/12 and 13/63, information was received that ENNIS associated with FRANK WORTMAN; that ENNIS was planning some burglaries in the southwest Missouri area, including some possible bank burglaries along with the Information also was received that FRANK WORTMAN was drinking heavily but was still the leader of the WORTMAN gang and activities of specific members of the WORTMAN gang were discussed in detail.

During early September, 1963, information was received that ENNIS was WORTMAN "has" further, that the WORTMAN game has influence over the E. St. Louis Police.

WORTMAN gang were planning a "hit". The victim was believed to be WILLARD SCOTT. On the evening of 9/10/63, SCOTT was killed in gangland fashion just outside the city limits of E. St. Louis. Individuals planning the above "hit" as mentioned, were ENNIS, GEORGE "STORMY" HARVILL, and and the future. Was specifically identified as the present boss, who is the one that gives out the specific "hits" and he is responsible directly to FRANK WORTMAN. There was further discussion of planned "scores" and identity of the towns where ENNIS had cased some "scores" in the southwest Missouri area. There has been continued discussion of the members of the WORTMAN gang and activities, personalities, conduct, and associations have been brought out.

Authority granted to continue Continue to furnish the Eureal weekly airtel summar of significant information obtained from this source. Submit your recommendations regarding continuation of this misur two weeks prior to the expiration of this authorization.

For your future information and guidance, the following should be noted: The Bureau should be forwarded only the original of the FD-143. Re FD-143 was submitted in duplicate. In the event you recommend continuation of a misur installation, under Item 17 of the FD-143, you should state that it will be continued for a ninety-day period, UACB.

This misur is in a trailer occupied by Lewis Ennis in East St. Louis, Illinois. Ennis is a member of the notorious Frank Wortman gang. This installation has reported that Frank Wortman, although drinking heavily at the present time, was stil in command of his organization. It has reported that is still closely associated with Wortman and that the Wortman gang has considerable influence with the East St. Louis police. Of particular significance, misur reported of the planning to kill Willard Scott by Ennis and George Harvill and Source also reported that was the one who is currently giving out instructions for Frank Wortman. Since this source has furnished a keen insight into the racket activity in East St. Louis it is recommended that it be continued for a ninety-day period.

During July and August of 1963 the Evening Journal of East St. Louis, Illinois reported that the East St. Louis City Council was considering a new ordinance establishing closing laws for taverns. The St. Clair County Board of Supervisors passed a new closing ordinance for taverns in the unincorporated areas of St. Clair County effective July 1, 1963.

On October 8, 1963 the Evening Journal, East St. Louis, Illinois, reported that the East St. Louis City Council, as of that date, unanimously passed an ordinance which provides that closing laws for all East St. Louis Taverns will now be at 1:00 AM except Saturdays and Sundays when it will be 2:00 AM. It is noted the present holders of night club licenses in East St. Louis can stay open until 4:00 AM. This law coincides with the present new St. Clair County closing ordinance. The East St. Louis City ordinance becomes effective January 1, 1964.

In connection with hearings before the city council during August of 1963 concerning this closing ordinance, GORDON FOSTER of the Paddock Lounge, East St. Louis, appeared as a representative of various taverns and night clubs objecting to the new closing ordinance, stating that such an ordinance would put many places out of business and cause unemployment among bartenders, waitresses and similar employees. JOHN J. HOBAN, former States Attorney of St. Clair County and an East St. Louis attorney represented various taverns and night clubs in the course of the above mentioned hearings.

The St. Louis and Springfield Offices of the FBI have been conducting investigation which developed when a jurisdictional dispute arose concerning the handling of some pipe on a job known as the "Pea Ridge Job", which was a $40,000,000.00 mine construction job at Sullivan, Missouri. Under provisions of the National Pipeline Contractors Association, the work of unloading and stringing pipe on the job had been assigned to Laborers' Union. The Pipefitters Union of St. Louis, claimed this should be handled by the Steamfitters and Pipefitters Union. Attempts to settle the dispute met with negative results. The Pipefitters Union involved is Pipefitters Local 562 of St. Louis, Missouri.

V. COURT ACTION CONCERNING WORTMAN AND WORTMAN ASSOCIATES

On October 8, 1963, oral arguments were heard by the United States Court of Appeals in Chicago concerning the appeal of FRANK WORTMAN of his conviction of income tax violations. MORRIS SHENKER of St. Louis, Missouri, represented WORTMAN. SHENKER has publicly stated that the case would be taken to the United States Supreme Court if the Court of Appeals denies the appeal.

On August 20, 1963 FBI Agents of the Springfield Division testified before the St. Clair County Grand Jury regarding activities of the policy gambling racket. States Attorney JOHN W. KARNS, JR. and Assistant States Attorney JAMES BANDY of St. Clair County had requested the appearance of the agents. The St. Clair County Grand Jury returned an indictment against JAMES JAKAGE for gambling in connection with the policy racket on four specific dates beginning in February, 1962 and ending in April of 1963. KAGE was released on $2500 bond and on arraignment of the indictment entered a plea of not guilty. KAGE's attorney, ROBERT RICE, of East St. Louis, Illinois, has advised he feels the state statute under which KAGE was indicted is unconstitutional.

Springfield, Illinois October 31, 1963

FRANK LEONARD "BUSTER" WORTMAN; EDWARD T. "TED" WORTMAN; JR.

A confidential informant of the Springfield Division of the FBI since August, 1963, has furnished the following information concerning the Wortman "outfit":

On August 8, 1963, informant advised members of the Wortman Gang, including Lewis Ennis, considered Gordon Foster, who is presently running the Paddock Lounge, as a "loudmouth" and an individual who thinks he is "tough" and that Foster drives business away from the Paddock Lounge, Ennis further berate for being "dumb" and a "dimwit," and that "Stormy" Harvill was betting heavily at the race track and losing a considerable amount of money. Ennis further stated Harvill was in "bad straits" financially.

won $600 one evening at the Fairmount Race Track. Informant furnished information that members of the Wortman Gang were concerned over a new East St. Louis city ordinance that is presently before the City Council which would limit closing hours of taverns and night clubs. The concern was brought about because a place like the Paddock Lounge would have to close at 1:00 a.m. most nights; and, this would interfere with the business of this establishment, which caters to late-hour activities up to 4:00 and 5:00 a.m. According to source, it was agreed that things were "rough" in St. Clair County because county officials had already passed such an ordinance.

According to source, George "Stormy" Harvill was "going bad" and may possibly "take everybody with him." Frank Wortman allegedly gave Harvill a sum of money recently, which Harvill lost at the race track. According to source, Wortman is drinking very heavily and does most of his drinking and, Wortman is very worried and has a lot of troubles. The possibility of taking over the Wortman "outfit" was considered, that Ennis believed the "outfit" was falling apart; however, it was felt that if Wortman's appeal in his tax case were to be settled in Wortman's favor, there would be 30 men ready to go with Wortman. Further, if this happened, there would be some rough activity by the Wortman Gang.

On August 13, 1963, informant advised Ennis, along with discussed pulling some bank burglaries in the southwestern Missouri area. At this same time, trips of Frank Wortman to Chicago, Illinois, during the winter months were discussed. Ennis was to make a trip to the Columbus, Ohio, area somewhere about August 22, 1963, by plane.

According to informant, members of the Wortman Gang including Ennis, had been in touch with of St. Louis, Missouri.

According to informant, along with Lewis Ennis, discussed prostitution activities. They stated Frank "Bus" Wortman was against pimping and further that Wortman knew who was involved in such activities because Wortman had a "guy" in the Sheriff's Office of St. Clair County, namely,

A situation was also discussed on September 4, 1963, concerning an incident when a pistol was pulled on some customers at the Paddock Lounge, East St.
Louis, Illinois. The East St. Louis Police were aware of the incident but did nothing about it and cautioned "the guys" to "slow it down."

According to informant, on the evening of September 9, 1963, Lewis Ennis, George "Stormy" Harvill, had a discussion concerning a "hit" that was to take place. The "hit" was planned for that day or as soon as possible. There was considerable planning and discussion concerning handling of the "hit," including the type of weapon or weapons to be used and the place to handle the "hit." The victim was at his residence as of September 9, 1963, and had been observed there by Harvill. The circumstances of the victim being at his residence were discussed.

FRANK LEONARD "BUSTER" WORTMAN; EDWARD T. "TED" WORTMAN, JR.

MU

According to source, at the same time the above individuals went over some plans for additional "hits," which involved two brothers, not further identified.

was described as the "boss" who hands out the "hits" under the present understanding of the Wortman Gang.

On September 10, 1963, at approximately 8:30 p.m., William Scott, also known as Willard Scott and "Scotty," was shot and killed while seated in his 1963 Cadillac at 33rd and St. Clair Avenue, East St. Louis, Illinois.

According to informant, Harvill was very anxious to handle the "hit" previously mentioned as soon as possible and was not particular whether it was done in the daytime or wanted to go along on the "hit," but he was not to be permitted to do this because Harvill and the others fel was a very poor shot and was not reliable. It was agreed among the three individuals mentioned above that was very close to Frank Wortman; and, they were together almost every day. There was some disagreement among the members of the group, was trying to hand out "hits" when actually this was the duty assigned to Ammunition to handle "hits" was available at the Paddock Lounge; and, this could be obtained by contacting either of time and also was in touch with at the Paddock Lounge to determine if there had been any activity.

On September 13, 1963, informant advised one of the contacts of the Wortman Gang is

In this connection, assisted Ennis when this individual was involved in "something big." This situation involved the dynamiting of a Kroger Store in East St. Louis, Illinois. Ennis allegedly had to take care of the fuse attached to the bomb when it became crimped and quit burning. The bomb exploded in the doorway of the Kroger Store at 9th and Illinois Avenue in East St. Louis, Illinois, in the spring of 1963.

Informant advised Ennis and Harvill have discussed some "scores" in the southwestern Missouri area that Ennishad "cased," which involved a supermarket and jewelry store; and, it was considered possible that would be valuable on the jobs because he was an excellent safe man.

According to source, in connection with the southwestern Missouri area, Ennis and

On October 6, 1963, informant advised that Ennis was discussing members of the Wortman Gang and indicating that Harvill was ill mannered and had no feelings for anyone but himself. Ennis further discussed pressure from law-enforcement authorities, and particularly from the Federal authorities, in all fields of criminal activity, including prostitution. Ennis, according to informant, on October 15, 1963, complained of financial problems and the fact that he had to go into a St. Louis hospital in the near future to have a lung removed.

On October 16, 1963, informant advised of a $30,000 burglary in St. Louis, Missouri, some time in the past when a considerable amount of merchandise was taken, including a $2,500 fur coat. George "Stormy" Harvill was involved in this burglary, along with one believed to be identical to

On October 22, 1963, informant advised that Ennis was discussing the Wortman Gang and referred to Ennis told informant of his interest in flying and the fact that he is taking flying lessons regularly; and, Ennis stated he was in the "outfit" and that it was hard for anyone in the "outfit" to get a legitimate job, including individuals like Harvill. Ennis claimed that even though they were in the "outfit," they were not making any money; and, something would have to be done to keep the "guys" in the "outfit" going. Ennis complained that he and three other individuals are credited with $70,000 a month, but that they actually have to pool their money for bridge fare across the river. (This is believed to refer to the policy gambling racket wherein Ennis, Harvill, and James J. Kage operate as a four-man partnership.)

Ennis told informant he recently obtained $500 which was to pay taxes in connection with the policy operation, and that Harvill received $600. Ennis claimed that this was agreed upon, and that Kage was apparently told to pay them the money and the $500 paid to him and and $600 to Harvill; and, after this was paid, there was no more money left "in the place."

On October 22, 1963, informant advised Frank Wortman is endeavoring to sell his large residence on Source said ENNIS claimed the doctor who did the operation was a good friend of his and was the one who took care of "all of us". ENNIS talked about having just been on a 600 mile trip and also talked about having been to LEO DUVALL's over the previous weekend. ENNIS complained about not being able to get out and about or drive his automobile.

During the late morning and early afternoon of December 9. 1963 source advised ENNIS was talking with and during this period they were trying to arrange to rent a trailer for an unknown woman. Was telling ENNIS about a poker game where STORMY HARVILL was involved and that one of the players caught HARVILL and one of the other individuals cheating. Heft ENNIS company, according to source, in the early alternoon just prior to 1:00 PM. Source did not indicate that ENNIS had any other contacts or visitors.

As the Bureau, St. Louis and Kansas City Divisions are aware, ENNIS was found shot with two holes in his head, seated in the passenger's side of his 1963 Buick, shortly after Midnight on December 10, 1963, near St. Charles, Missouri.

United States Court of Appeals

For the Benenth Circuit

Nos. 13941 and 13942 September Trem, 1963 January Session, 1964

United States of America,

Plaintiff-Appellee,
v.

Frank Leonard Wortman and Gregory Moore,

Defendants-Appellants.

Appeal from the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Illinois.

January 14, 1964

Before DUPPY, CASTLE and MAJOR, Circuit Judges.

Majon, Circuit Judge. Defendants Frank Leonard Wortman and Gregory Moore separately appeal from judgments entered July 17, 1962, following a jury verdict finding them guilty of conspiracy. The indictment, returned January 11, 1960, originally contained nine counts, all of which were disposed of prior to trial except 1, 2, 3 and 4. Counts 1, 2 and 3 charged Frank Leonard Wortman (afterwards referred to as defendant Wortman to distinguish him from his brother, Edward Wortman) with attempted evasion of his personal income tax for the years 1953, 1954 and 1955. Count 4 charged that defendant Wortman, Elmer Sylvester Dowling, Edward Wortman, Gregory Moore, Sam Magin and George Frank conspired in the manner and for the purposes and objectives subsequently shown. Because of a physical condition, Frank was not tried. The jury was unable to agree as to Edward Wortman on the substantive counts (1, 2 and 3). Defendant Wortman, Moore and Dowling were convicted on the conspiracy count.

Magin was acquitted. Dowling died subsequent to the trial.

After a trial which lasted more than six weeks, the case was submitted to the jury on the afternoon of Thursday, February 22, 1962. The jury deliberated the remainder of that day, all of Friday, Saturday and Sunday (9 a.m. to 9 p.m. each day), and returned the verdict above noted at about 4 p.m. on Monday, February 26.

Defendants argue that numerous prejudicial errors were committed which require a reversal of the judgments. Leaving for further consideration, if necessary, many of the issues thus advanced, we shall first consider the contention that a large amount of immaterial, incompetent and prejudicial evidence was admitted over defendants' objections and that the proof of a conspiracy, if any, was not that charged.

We think in the beginning, for reasons which we hope will subsequently become apparent, that the material averments of the conspiracy should be set forth. It alleges in customary language that defendants Wortman and Moore, together with the other persons heretofore named, from July 1, 1944, and continuously thereafter to and including the date of the filing of the indictment (January 11, 1960), conspired and agreed together:

"a. Wilfully to defraud the United States of America of income taxes due and owing for the calendar years 1944 to date from defendant Frank Leonard Wortman.

"b. Wilfully to defraud the United States of and concerning the exercise of its governmental function and right of ascertaining, computing, levying, assessing, and collecting income taxes due and owing to the United States of America for the calendar years 1944 to date by defendant Frank Leonard Wortman.

"c. To commit certain offenses against the United States, to-wit:

(1) The crime of wilfully attempting to evade and defeat a large part of the income taxes to be due and owing to the United States of America by the defendant Frank Leonard Wortman, for the calendar years 1944 to date in violation of Section 145 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 (26 U.S.C. 145 (b)) and Section 7201 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (26 U.S.C. 7201).

(2) The crime of knowingly and wilfully faisifying, concealing and covering up by trick, scheme and device, material facts in matters within the jurisdiction of an agency of the United States, viz., the Internal Revenue Service of the United States Treasury Department, during the period from 1944 to date, in violation of Section 1001 of the Criminal Code (18 U.S.C. 1001).

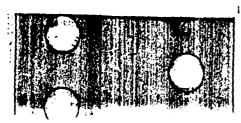

"2. It was a part of said conspiracy that the defendant would conceal and continue to conceal the nature and extent of the proprietary and financial interest of the said Frank Leonard Wortman in various partnerships, associations and corporations, and the sources, nature and amounts of his income for the calendar years 1944 to date.

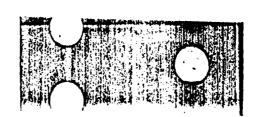

"a. It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would cause false and misleading entries to be made in the books and records of (1) the partnership known as Gregory Moore et al., (2) a partnership known as Plaza Amusement Company, and (3) a proprietorship known as Paddock Liquor Company, all for the purpose of concealing the financial interests therein of Frank Leonard Wortman.

"the It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would organize and operate gambling casinos in the form of partnerships, and that in the operation of said gambling casinos the defendants would fail to keep proper books and records concerning their operations, would fail to file certain partnership returns of income required by law, would file inadequate and incomplete partnership returns of income, would cause false and fraudulent books and records to be kept in connection with the casino operations, and would cause to be prepared certain false and fraudulent partnership returns of income, all for the purpose of concealing the true income of said casinos and of the said Frank Leonard Wortman.

"e. It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would cause property and interests in business ventures to be concealed in the names of persons other than Frank Leonard Wortman, for the purpose of concealing the interests of Frank Leonard Wortman therein.

"d. It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would cause false and misleading entries to be made in the books and records of Jack Langer's Mounds Club, Inc. and Plaza Amusement Company, Inc., for the purpose of concealing the true ownership of said companies and the capital investment therein by said Frank Leonard Wortman.

4.3. It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would cause to be prepared and filed false and fraudulent individual income tax returns of Frank

Leonard Wortman."

Then follows the enumeration of twenty-five overt acts (five of which were eliminated at the trial) alleged to have been performed in furtherance and in execution of the

It is significant to note from the allegations of the indictment that the alleged conspiracy was pursued by all the named defendants for a period of almost sixteen years for the benefit of and as an aid to defendant Wortman in his income tax matters in one way or another. None of the other alleged conspirators (including Moore) were to have received any benefit from or been aided by their sixteen years of concerted action.

The Government's proof in the main relates to five different business enterprises operated over a period of sixteen years: the Hyde Park Club, the National Amusement Company, the Plaza Amusement Company, the Paddock Restaurant and the Premier Club (also referred to as the Peerless Club and the Paramount Club). The testimony concerning the first three named businesses was admitted solely with reference to the conspiracy charge. That concerning the other businesses was admitted primarily on the substantive charges against defendant Wortman upon which the jury failed to agree. It appears, however, that the Government also relies upon this testimony in support of its theory of a continuing conspiracy.

THE HYDE PARK CLUB,

This Club, organized February 5, 1943 as a partnership, was engaged in the operation of a gambling casino. The partnership consisted of seventeen partners, all named and their respective interests set forth. Moore, with a 71% interest, was named as a partner. Defendant Wortman was not named. This partnership after some four years of operation terminated its business.

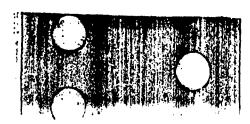

In 1950, Wm. C. Long, a Revenue agent and the first Government witness, commenced an examination of Moore's income tax return for 1947, during the course of which he wrote Moore, "It is noted that you only reported one half of your distributive share of net income from the partnership, 'per a partnership agreement.' Please furnish this office with a copy of such agreement for inspection purposes so that it can be established if a partnership existed us concerns your distributive share of income . . . .. Moore responded, "I am enclosing the only copy of this agreement that has been duly signed and witnessed . . . .. The agreement (hereinafter called the Moore-Wortman agreement), purportedly signed by Moore and defendant Wortman, bore the names of Moore's wife and his attorney, John W. Joynt, as witnesses, and recited:

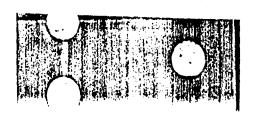

"Frank Wortman, aforesaid, is to place in the custody of Gregory E. Moore, aforesaid, $5,000.00 in cash to be used if and as needed in the furtherance of the business of the Hyde Park Club and is to receive in return from said Gregory E. Moore one half of all monies received by Gregory E. Moore as profits from the Hyde Park Club. "The name of Frank Wortman shall not appear on the partnership of the Hyde Park Club for obvious reasons. But the interests of both Wortman and Moore will be carried in the name of Gregory E. Moore in the Hyde Park Club partnership as reported to the United States Government, Bureau of Internal Revenue. This interest amounts to 71% of the profits which is to be divided 34 percent to Wortman and 34 percent to Moore. If, at a later date, the percentage of interest in the Hyde Park Club is increased to Moore the profits will still be divided on a 50-50 basis, i.e., 1 to Wortman and 1 to Moore; but the name of Wortman shall not appear on the original partnership agreement of the Hyde Park Club at any time.

"Gregory E. Moore acknowledges herewith receipt of $5,000.00 in cash from Frank Wortman on July 1,

"Frank Wortman acknowledges now that he received $6,910.14 during the year 1944 from Gregory E. Moore as profits from the Hyde Park Club; and Frank Wortman acknowledges that he received from Gregory E. Moore $7,872.75 as profits from the Hyde Park Club for the year 1945.

"This agreement dated as of January 10, 1946, as a Nunc Pro Tune agreement for verbal agreement of July 1, 1944.

"This agreement can be terminated by either party on ten (10) days notice verbal or written.

"Signed by Frank Wortman and Gregory E. Moore. Witnessed by John W. Joynt and Mrs. Gregory E. Moore."

The correspondence between Long and Moore, together with the Moore-Wortman agreement produced by Moore, were admitted in evidence over defendants' objection that they were incompetent as hearsay and immaterial as to all defendants other than Moore. It is at once evident that these exhibits, particularly the agreement, if erroneously admitted were highly prejudicial. The conspiracy is alleged to have commenced July 1, 1944, the date on which the agreement became effective by reason of its Nune Pro Tune provision. The agreement constitutes the foundation upon which the Government's case is based insofar as it relates to conspiracy. It permeates and colors the picture during the entire period of the alleged conspiracy. A study of the Government's brief affords abundant support for this appraisal.

The Government commences its statement of facts under the heading, "The starting point of the conspiracy—Hyde Park Agreement," and as to that business relies entirely upon the Moore-Wortman agreement and the use to which it was put by Moore in his controversy with the Revenue Service. In its summary of argument, the Government states:

"The evidence established that the appellants entered into a written agreement in January, 1946, to confirm their oral agreement of June 1, 1944, the gist of which was that the fact that Wortman had a financial interest in the Hyde Park Club would be concealed from the Internal Revenue Service."

Again it states:

"As we have shown, the appellants entered into a written agreement on January 10, 1946, to confirm the terms of their oral agreement of July 1, 1944, which provided that (1) the financial interest of Wortman in the Hyde Park Club would not appear on the partnership records 'for obvious reasons'; (2) Wortman's interest would be concealed under that of Moore and the two would share equally in that portion of the Club's profits which ostensibly belonged to Moore; (3) Wortman's name would not appear on the partnership agreement at any time; and (4) 'the interests of both Wortman and Moore will be carried in the name of Gregory E. Moore as reported to the United States Government, Bureau of Internal Revenue,' The appellants abided by this agreement and none of the annual partnership returns of the Hyde Park Club disclosed Wortman's interest. It was not until mid-1950 that Moore, faced with a $30,000 tax deficiency after an investigation of his own tax returns by Treasury agents, disclosed the agreement with Wortman as proof that he (Moore) had been justified in reporting only 50% of his ostensible profits in the venture."

In its argument that the evidence established a single rather than separate conspiracies as contended by defendants, the Government states:

"Wortman and Moore, by reason of their knowledge of the plans' essential features and general scope, as shown by their Hyde Park agreement, were joined together by that knowledge and by their single common goal."

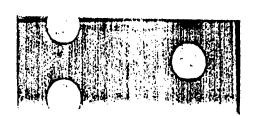

In response to defendants' statement that "there is no evidence at all that appellant Moore had any connection with appellant Wortman during the period from 1947 to 1953," the Government states:

"Indeed, though Moore was temporarily absent from the conspiracy during these years, he later became a key figure in the gambling casino, and as we have shown, his conduct at that time in furtherance of the conspiracy clearly reveals that he never intended to terminate his express agreement with Wortman to defraud the revenue."

Finally, in support of its theory of a continuing conspiracy, the Government states:

"To begin with, the express terms of the 1946 written agreement showed that appellants had already devised a scheme to prevent the Internal Revenue Service from learning that Wortman had an interest in the Hyde Park Club."

Some of the circumstances leading up to Moore's supplying the Revenue agent with the Moore-Wortman agreement have already been shown. The original agreement was not produced, and both the Government and defendants denied having it in their respective possessions. There was testimony that a typewritten copy was made, with the original returned to Moore. A photostat of this type-written copy was offered and admitted, without the slight-est competent proof that defendant Wortman signed the agreement, that he directed or authorized it to be done on his behalf, or that he had knowledge of its contents.1 Agent Long testified that he received from Moore "a signed agreement." He made no pretension of knowing or being fumiliar with the signature of Wortman; in fact, he was not questioned in that respect. There was not even testimony by the typist who made the copy as to whether the name of Frank Wortman on the original was in typewritten or handwritten form. In Moore's letter to Long, he stated that he was enclosing a copy of the agreement "that has been duly signed and witnessed." Obviously, this statement by Moore was not admissible against or binding on defendant Wortman. Moore's wife and his attorney, who purportedly witnessed the signatures, were not called as witnesses. Revenue agent Victor R. Glenn, a witness for the Government who disallowed Moore's claim, refused to recognize the Moore-Wortman agreement. The agent on cross-examination stated, "It was my contention that Mr. Wortman was not, and nobody has ever alleged that Mr. Wortman was, a partner in the Hyde Park Club."

We might determine on this record that defendant Wortman is a man of ill repute, but it taxes all credulity to believe that he is so deficient in mentality that he became a party to a written agreement with Moore that from then on he would conceal his assets from the Revenue Service and for two years previously had done so. It is not strange that the Government offered no proof that defendant Wortman signed the agreement and made no explanation as to why the Revenue Service refused to recognize it as bona fide.

The Moore-Wortman agreement was admitted against defendants Wortman and Moore without any reservation at a time when admittedly there was no proof of a conspiracy; in fact, it was offered for that purpose. It was a declaration by one alleged conspirator against another, made out of the latter's presence and without proof that he had in any manner authorized it. We cite a few of the many cases which have held such declarations imadmissible. Kralewitch v. United States, 336 U. S. 440, 443; Glasser v. United States, 315 V. S. 60, 74; Carbo et al. v. United States, 314 F. 2d 718, 735; Dennis et al. v. United States, 302 F. 2d 5, 10; Tripp v. United States, 256 F. 2d 308, 311.

In Glasser, the Court stated:

*** • * such declarations are admissible over the objection of an alleged co-conspirator, who was not present when they were made, only if there is proof allunde that he is connected with the conspiracy."

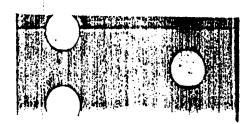

In Tripp, the Court stated:

"The existence of the conspiracy cannot be established against an alleged conspirator by evidence of the acts or declarations of his alleged coconspirators done or made in his absence. Such declarations are admissible against him only where there is proof aliande of his connection with the conspiracy."

In Panci, the Court commented upon the prejudicial nature of testimony of an alleged co-conspirator admitted in violation of the rule, which is pertinent here:

"Leaving the hearsay testimony out of consideration destroys the case in fact. Taking it into consideration destroys it in law."

<sup>1</sup> C.J.S., page 1286, states, "The signature to a writing is placed there for the purpose of authenticating it or to give notice of its source, and for the purpose and with the intent that the individual signing the writing shall be bound thereby," and on the following page. "A signature may be made by the purported signer himself * * * or through someone duly authorized by him, but the name of a person attached to a paper dose not make it his act and deed unless he put it there himself or caused or permitted it to bu put there by another." See Roberts v. Johnson et al., 212 F. 2d 672, 474, and Joseph Demansio Fruit Co. v. Orane et al., 79 F. Supp. 117, 128 (footnote), affirmed 128 F. 2d 569, 570.

The trial court recognized the rule by instructing the jury:

"In considering whether or not a particular defendant was a member of the conspiracy, you must do so without regard to and independently of the statements and declarations of others."

The Government in its argument that the testimony under discussion was properly admitted states:

"If the appellants became members of a conspiracy on July 1, 1944, to conceal material facts from the Internal Revenue Service—as we submit they obviously didthere is certainly no substance to the argument that proof of that agreement and the activities which followed it should have been excluded from evidence."

In the abstract, we see nothing wrong with this argument, but it is beside the issue. The point is that at the time the Moore-Wortman agreement as well as the other exhibits which we have discussed were admitted, there was no proof aliunde of a conspiracy. The agreement was admitted to establish the conspiracy without proof that defendant Wortman was a party to it.

The income tax returns of both defendant Wortman and Moore disclose that as early as 1944 there was some arrangement between them by which the latter was to pay to defendant Wortman one-half of the profits which he re-ceived from the Hyde Park Club. Defendant Wortman in his 1944 tax return showed "Greg Moore" as the source of Hyde Park income. For some reason not disclosed, the Government did not offer defendant Wortman's tax returns for the years 1945, 1946 and 1947. Moore's returns for these years disclosed that he had paid to defendant Wortman one-half of the profits which he received as a partner in Hyde Park. A revenue agent testified that his investigation disclosed that defendant Wortman for each of the years 1944 to 1947, inclusive, had reported in his tax returns the same amounts which Moore had stated in his returns as having been paid. Such fact is no proof of a conspiracy to evade taxes or defraud the Government. More importantly, it is no proof that defendant Wortman entered into the Moore-Wortman agreement, and the Government does not so contend.

Assuming that the Government before the jury analyzed the Moore-Wortman agreement as it does here, its prejudicial effect is further emphasized. In its brief it states:

"While Wortman annually reported this income on his tax returns, both he and Moore, during these years, abided by their agreement and at no time disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service Wortman's financial interest in the Hyde Park partnership."

This assertion fails to distinguish between the Hyde Park partnership and the Moore-Wortman agreement. Defendant Wortman was not a partner in the former and thus had no financial interest therein to disclose. The Government states:

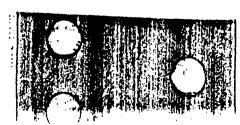

"The partnership returns of the Hyde Park Club for the years 1944 through 1947, inclusive, did not list Frank Wortman as a partner."

The uncontradicted proof is that he was not a partner. The Government asserts:

" • • nor did either Moore or Wortman, despite the existence of their 'partnership agreement,' file or cause to be filed a partnership information return showing the distribution of this income."

Whether the law required them to do so is arguable. The Revenue Service in 1950 rejected Moore's claim that a partnership agreement existed. In any event, Moore filed his tax returns showing the amounts paid by him to defendant Wortman and the latter filed returns disclosing receipt. The Government asserts that defendant Wortman concealed the $5,000.00 cash which, according to the agreement, he paid to Moore, which "would naturally tend to frustrate an investigation of Wortman's net worth." This is a flimsy contention and its validity, if it has any, would depend upon a number of factors. Assuming that the net worth period concealment would be to the Government's benefit rather than that of defendant Wortman. The fewer assets disclosed at the beginning, the more there would be at the end of the net worth period.

We think it pertinent to observe that the Moore-Wortman agreement was by its terms limited to the Hyde Park Club. The parties appear to have so recognized because Moore had no association with defendant Wortman from the time the Hyde Park Club ceased to exist in 1947 until 1953, a period of six years. The Government attempts to meet this situation by reliance upon the rule that once a defendant is shown to be a party to a conspiracy he remains so until he takes some affirmative step to disassociate himself from it. There is no case, however, so far as we are aware, where the alleged conspiracy was shown by an express agreement of the parties, which by its own terms fixed the time of termination and thereafter the parties pursued their own separate ways for a period of six years. Such being the situation, it is not discernible how the agreement can be relied upon as the foundation for a conspiracy which endured for sixteen years.

We now return to Moore's controversy with the Revenue Service, wherein he produced the Moore-Wortman agreement in support of his claim that he was cutified to credit on his gross income for payments made to defendant Wortman, allegedly by virtue of the agreement. This contention was denied by the Commissioner and a deficiency assessed against Moore which on appeal by Moore was sustained by the Tax Court. A settlement was afterward reached and a stipulation entered into between the Revenue Service and Moore by which the latter was given credit on his taxes for the amounts he had paid defendant Wortman. In this way, the Government received some $18,000 more than it would have had it recognized the Moore-Wortman agreement, for the reason that Moore was in a higher income bracket than Wortman.

The Court over objection admitted against Moore and defendant Wortman a petition dated January 25, 1951, for a redetermination of Moore's income taxes for the calendar years 1945, 1946 and 1947, signed by John W. Joynt, counsel for Moore, as well as a stipulation entered into May 9, 1952, agreeing to and settling the amount of tax to be paid by Moore. The Court also admitted as against Moore and defendant Wortman three petitions signed by Moore, dated March 13, 1958, for refund of taxes paid by him for each of the years 1945, 1946 and 1947. We need not recite in detail the contents or allegations of these exhibits. It is sufficient to note that all were submitted in connection with Moore's contention that he was entitled to a reduction in the deficiency assessed against him by reason of the Moore-Wortman agreement, or to a refund of such taxes because of the Tax Court's refusal to recognize it. Typical of the material shown in these exhibits is the following allegation in his petition for a redetermination of the deficiency assessed against him:

"This partner [defendant Wortman] or joint-venturer owned jointly with petitioner a share in the enterprise in question and deposited with petitioner a sum of money, which sum was placed in the hands of petitioner and was to be used for financial purposes related to the enterprise, if and when necessary. These facts were known and agreed to by the other partners to the enterprise.2 Upon the declaration of a dividend of the earnings of the partnership, petitioner paid to his joint-venturer fifty per cent of the sum received on each of the years in question and said joint-venturer thereupon declared such payments as income and paid taxes thereon. The agents in charge of the St. Louis, Missouri, Division of Internal Revenue disallowed as deductions the said sums paid by petitioner to his said joint-venturer."

In our judgment, all of these exhibits which were read to the jury were highly prejudicial and erroneously admitted. In the first place, they were mere marratives by Moore of past facts, particularly as to the claims for refund filed some fourteen years after the occurrence. Logan ct al. v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 309. Secondly, they contained assertions by one alleged conspirator against another, with which the latter had nothing to do. Such declarations are madmissible. (See cases heretofore cited in support of this rule.) Thirdly, they were not admissible against either Moore or defendant Wortman because they did not prove or tend to prove the charge as made; in other words, they were not relevant. In Fissick et al. v. United States, 329 U.S. 211, 217, the Court stated:

against the others where it is in furtherance of the

In Krulewitch v. United States, 336 U.S. 440, 443, the Court stated:

<sup>3</sup> The Government on brief, citing this statement in Moore's petition, asserts, "The facts concerning the Moore-Wortman agreement were 'known and agreed to by' the remaining partners of the Hyde Park Club." This is an erroneous and misleading assertiou. The statement in Moore's petition was admitted only as to defendants Wortman and Moore and not as to other partners of the Hyde Park Club. The Government's statement does highlight the prejudicial nature of the admission of this testimony as to defendant Wortman.

and caled horasistan

" • • • it is firmly established that where made in furtherance of the objectives of a going conspiracy, such statements are admissible as exceptions to the hearsay rule."

In Lutwak et al. v. United States, 344 U.S. 604, 617, the Court stated:

"But such declaration can be used against the coconspirator only when made in furtherance of the conspiracy."

A study of the conspiracy charge is convincing that the declarations of Moore contained in his Tax Court proceeding were not in "furtherance of the objectives of the conspiracy." As we have noted, the objective of the alleged conspiracy was to aid defendant Wortman in one way or another in his tax matters. In brief summary, it was alleged that the defendants conspired to defraud the United States of income taxes owed by defendant Wortman; to defraud the United States in the exercise of its governmental function and right of ascertaining, computing, etc. the taxes owing by defendant Wortman; to assist defendant Wortman in the evasion and defeat of his income taxes; to conceal by trick, scheme and device material facts within the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Service; to keep false books and records so as to show their gambling operations in names other than defendant Wortman, and to cause to be prepared and filed false individual income tax returns of defendant Wortman.

Defendant Wortman, as far as the record discloses, was a stranger to Moore's Tax Court proceedings. He had no interest therein, financial or otherwise. The proceedings and the declarations of Moore contained therein were solely on Moore's behalf, made in an effort to obtain a reduction in his income tax deficiency. They bore no relation to tax matters with which defendant Wortman was concerned. Certainly the proceedings or any of the allegations made therein did not show a concealment by trick, scheme or device on the part of Moore or defendant Wortman. In fact, all of Moore's activities with reference to his tax matters under discussion were the very antithesis of secrecy or concealment. They were all in the open, spread upon the records of the Revenue Service. We think there is no escape from the conclusion that Moore's petition for a reduction in his tax desciency, the stipulated settlement agreement and his claims for refund bore no relevancy to the charge of conspiracy as made. They were erroneously admitted as to both defendant Wortman and Moore, and were particularly prejudicial to the former.

In view of what we have heretofore shown, it is evident that the Government relies upon its proof relative to National Amusement Company and Plaza Amusement Company on the premise of a going conspiracy. As we have held, its reliance on its proof relative to the Hyde Park Club is misplaced. However, inasmuch as the proof regarding these three businesses was admitted solely on the charge of conspiracy, and National Amusement and Plaza were operated within the same period of time as Hyde Park, we shall briefly discuss them. In doing so, it is pertinent to note that Moore was in active charge of National Amusement and Plaza, as he was in Hyde Park, Defendant Wortman had no interest in Hyde Park, owned 14% of the shares in National Amusement and 20% in Plaza.

THE NATIONAL AMUSEMENT COMPANY.

On December 12, 1944, Moore purchased from one Peter Brandt for a price of $22,500 all of the outstanding stock in National Amusement Company, a corporation engaged in the operation of phonographs and amusement devices. Shortly thereafter (the record does not disclose the exact date), Moore, defendant Wortman, Edward Wortman, Elmer Dowling, Thomas A. Pagan, Louis C. Smith, Barney Barts and Frank O'Mara (the last four named not alleged to be conspirators) organized the "Gregory E. Moore, et al., partnership," to which the shares purchased from Brandt by Moore were transferred.

On March 15, 1945, the National Amusement Company was incorporated, the stock of which was owned by the Gregory E. Moore, et al., partnership. Moore as President-Treasurer of the company caused a corporate tax return to be filed for the year 1945. No return was made by the partnership for the year 1944, and in the 1945 corporate return Moore answered, "No," in response to a question, "Did any " a partnership " a wown at any time during the taxable year 50% or more of the corporation's voting stock?"

In 1945, Moore in his individual capacity brought suit against Brandt from whom the stock in National Amusement Company had been purchased, alleging fraud, for the purpose of forcing Brandt to repurchase the stock. On April 25, 1946, by reason of a settlement agreement, Brandt repurchased the stock for $112,500. The purchase price, at Moore's request, was paid to him in the form of checks, each dated April 25, 1946. The largest check was in the amount of $89,172.42; the other four checks were last endorsed by the National Amusement Company and Brandt could not recall whether these checks were redeposited to his account or to that of National Amusement Company. Moore received the amount of the largest check in cash. In 1946, Moore filed a tax return on behalf of the corporation, which disclosed the purchase price of the stock, its sale price, the gross long term capital gains and the capital investment. This return named the partners and the amount of the capital investment and net long term capital gain for each. Shortly after making this return, checks were drawn by Moore, payable to the Internal Revenue Service, for the capital gains tax of each of the eight partners.

The Government argues:

"While each check purported to pay the tax on the distributive share received by that member of the partnership, it was the position of the Government that Moore and Wortman had engaged in a course of conduct designed to prevent the Internal Revenue Service from ascertaining the amounts actually received by each partner."

It seems to us that the inference of concealment is dispelled by the fact that in March 1947, a partnership return signed by Moore was filed for the year 1946. The Government concedes that by this return it was furnished the desired information. In its brief it states:

"This partnership return disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service for the first time, the financial interest of both Moore and Wortman in the National Amusement Company."

Thus, in March 1947, the parties revealed what the Government infers they concealed in 1946.

The Government offers much documentary evidence purportedly to show the concealment of assets by Moore and defendant Wortman in connection with the operation of the National Amusement Company, which in the main rests upon the premise that Moore paid Brandt $22,500 for the stock, shortly afterward sold it back to Brandt for $112,500, and that in some way this profit was not accurately accounted for. In its brief it states, "At least $54,000 of the proceeds of the sale had been withdrawn from Moore's bank account and disappeared from view." The Government without proof indulges in the dubious inference that this money was received by defendant Wort-

This argument, in our view, is completely unnihilated by information elicited on cross-examination of Government's witness Brandt which, we hope inndvertently, is not mentioned either in the Government's statement of facts or in its argument. Brandt testified as follows:

"Q. Now, with reference to-you said that you sold this company for, I believe you testified, $22,500? "A. Right.

"Q. Was that twenty-two thousand, was that the entire price or was there some indebtedness?

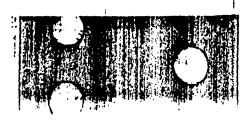

"A. There was indebtedness. How much indebtedness!

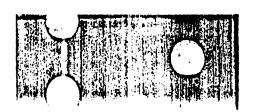

I would say approximately ninety thousand.

Approximately ninety thousand dollars?

Yes."

Brandt made it plain that when he testified that he received from Moore $22,500 for the sale of the stock he was referring to cash received, with the indebtedness assumed by Moore. When he repurchased the stock from Moore for $112,500, it was free and clear of indebtedness. Brandt did not specifically know who cleared the indebtedness or in what manner. He testified, however, that under his agreement with Moore he was to receive the property free and clear, that Moore promised to take care of the indebtedness and that Brandt later ascertained that it had been paid. Thus, the purchase of the stock in National Amusement Company by Moore for $22,500, with a company indebtedness of $90,000, and its resale by Moore to Brandt for $112,500, cleared of all indebtedness, indicates there was no profit in the transaction. It also should be remembered that defendant Wortman was not shown to have had unything to do with the activities of National Amusement Company other than to own 14% of its stock. He was not responsible for the activities of Moore, absent proof of a going conspiracy.

THE PLAZA AMUSEMENT COMPANY.

On March 1, 1947, Plaza Amusement Company was incorporated. It was an operating company for phonographs, pinball, pool and shuffleboard games. The company had previously operated as a partnership from May 1, 1946, consisting of the eight partners, including defendant Wortman and Moore, who had been stockholders in National Amusement Company. The corporation issued 250 shares of stock (par value $100) fully paid, for a total capitalization of $25,000, the stock being issued to and held as follows: 50 shares each by Dowling, Barts and defendant Wortman; 33 shares each by O'Mara, Smith and Edward Wortman, and 1 qualifying share by Edward Heiby, attorney for the corporation. It may be noted that no stock was issued to Moore and it appears that he had no connection with the corporation. In fact, as previously noted, Moore at that point dropped out of the picture and had no connection with defendant Wortman until some six or seven years later.

The cash receipts book and general ledger of the corporation disclose that during the period from March 22, 1947 to October 9, 1947, inclusive, a total of $98,400 was loaned by the stockholders to the corporation. The Government states that according to the corporate records $68,170 of this amount was loaned to the corporation by its attorney, Heiby, who was the owner of only one share of stock. This statement is hardly accurate. What the record shows is that the cash receipts book in connection with this loan noted "Heiby," which might mean the loan was made by him or by some other party through him. Otherwise, the proof does not disclose who advanced the loans.

On October 21, 1947, the loan accounts in the amount of $98,400 were closed out and the liability transferred to the capital account. A Revenue agent who was a Government witness, with reference to this transfer testified, "It was not taxable when placed in stock. It was an investment in capital." On the same date the loan accounts were transferred to capital, an additional 1000 shares of capital stock of the corporation of the par value of $99,900 were issued to the existing stockholders as follows: 200 shares each to Dowling, Barts and defendant Wortman; 133 shares each to O'Mara, Smith and Edward Wortman, and 1 share to the bookkeeper, Ann Barrett, for which she was charged $100. Thereafter from October 1, 1947 to August 31, 1948, additional sums were advanced to the corporation and carried in the general ledger as loans from its stockholders, without designating which stockholder or stockholders made such loans. In August 1949, the balance remaining in the "Loans Payable Stockholders" account totaled $40,600. By August 31, 1950, the account was closed out by the issuance by the corporation of four checks, three of which were made payable to four individuals and endorsed by all, without disclosing the amount received by each."

The Government concludes its statement relative to Plaza Amusement Company by summarizing the activities of the alleged conspirators up to early 1948. This summary again emphasizes the Government's dependence upon the Moore-Wortman agreement allegedly entered into in connection with the Hyde Park Club. In its brief, referring to the Hyde Park Club, it states:

"Wortman's cash investment therein together with his interest in the Hyde Park profits for the years 1944 through 1947, had not been disclosed to the Internal Revenue Service in accordance with his agreement with Moore."

The Government reiterates its theory relative to National Amusement Company, which we have heretofore discussed, and again ignores the fact that a company indebtedness of approximately $90,000 was discharged as a part of the transaction in connection with which Brandt paid Moore $112,500 for the stock.

The Government emphasizes two circumstances in connection with Plaza Amusement Company: (1) that the books did not disclose the amounts loaned to the corporation by the respective stockholders, and (2) that the distribution of the balance of the corporate funds was made by checks in such a manner that it could not be determined the amount received by each. As already noted, the loans made by the stockholders were transferred to capital which, according to the testimony of a Revenue agent, was a non-taxable investment. It may be recalled that Moore was not a stockholder in Plaza

<sup>2</sup> Sometime during the period under discussion Barts and O'Mara, original stockbolders, disposed of their shares to the corporation or other stockholders. George Frank, the accountant for Playa Amusement Company, was unable because of a physical disability to appear as a witness, and Edward Heiby, attorney for the corporation, died October 5, 1947.

Amusement Company and that defendant Wortman both before and after the stock increase owned 20% of its shares. It is a dubious inference from the manner of the distribution that 80% of the shareholders were engaged in concerted action to aid defendant Wortman in tax evasion or in concealing assets from the Revenue Service. Moreover, the income tax returns of defendant Wortman for the years in question were in possession of the Government but not offered in evidence. It would seem that the Government, with knowledge of the amount distributed to the shareholders, could have determined from defendant Wortman's tax returns whether he accounted for his proportionate share.

In view of what we have held, no good purpose could be served in stating or discussing the situation as it relates to the Paddock Restaurant and the Premier Club (also referred to as the Peerless Club and the Paramount Club). The operation of these businesses followed those which we have discussed. They involved a different period of time, and in the main different persons were connected with their operation. Whether the evidence as to them shows a conspiracy and, if so, the parties thereto, and whether it was a different conspiracy from that alleged or a continuation thereof, are questions which we need not decide. Numerous other contentions advanced by defendants need not be resolved. Our exhaustive study of this voluminous record bolsters our appreciation of the statement in Krulewitch v. United States, 336 U. S. 440, 453, by Mr. Justice Jackson (concurring opinion):

"As a practical matter, the accused often is confronted with a hodgepodge of acts and statements by others which he may never have authorized or intended or even known about, but which help to persuade the jury of existence of the conspiracy itself. In other words, a conspiracy often is proved by evidence that is admissible only upon assumption that conspiracy existed. The naive assumption that prejudicial effects can be overcome by instructions to the jury, cf. Blumenthal v. United States, 332 U. S. 539, 559, all practicing lawyers know to be unmitigated fiction. See Skidmore v. Baltimore & Ohio R. Co., 167 F. 2d 54."

That statement could have been written for this case. With an indictment difficult to comprehend because of its verbosity; with voluminous exhibits, many of a technical nature; with evidence admitted on promise by the prosecutor that it later would be connected and with the jury left to make the determination; and with a trial that lasted six weeks, it is a matter of grave doubt as to whether the verdict reached after four days of deliberation resulted from a proper appraisement of the record, confusion or exhaustion.

Nothing we have said is any reflection on the manner in which the case was tried by Judge Juergens. We doubt if any other Judge could have done better. The unfortunate situation arises from the inherent nature of the crime of conspiracy, particularly as it was sought to be employed by the dovernment in this case.

We hold that the evidence which we have previously discussed was erroneously admitted. The error was prejudicial inasmuch as it was calculated to produce a substantial influence on the jury verdict. As was stated in Krulewitch v. United States, 336 U. S. 440, 444:

"In Kotteakos v. United States, 328 U. S. 750, we suid that error should not be held harmless under the harmless error statute if upon consideration of the record the court is left in grave doubt as to whether the error had substantial influence in bringing about a verdict. We have such doubt here."

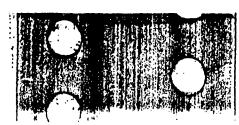

The judgments are reversed and the cause remanded.

Beginning on January 15, 1964, the Evening Journal of East St. Louis, Illinois, published a series of articles reporting the close association between East St. Louis Police Sergeant ROBERT P. GIBBS and "hoodlum" LEWIS "BUDDY" ENNIS. described as a victim of a gang-style slaying December 10, 1963. The series of articles reported that ENNIS and GIBBS each held a half interest in a lot they were buying on the lots of Table Rock Lake near Reeds Spring, Missouri. The article states GIBBS and ENNIS, on May 14, 1962, entered into an agreement to buy an undeveloped lot in the Arrowhead Estates Sub-Division for $1,395.00; that payments were $100.00 down, and balance to be paid at $30.00 per month at 6% interest. The payments have been made with checks signed by GIBBS and the balance owing on the property is $521.17. GIBBS in the articles is described as age 37, residing at 755A North 14th Street, East St. Louis, Illinois, having been on the police force since November 19, 1953. His wife, DORTHEA, also known as DOTTIE, GIBBS, is secretary to Attorney JOHN J. HOBAN of East St. Louis, Illinois, and formerly St. Clair County States Attorney.

ENNIS, in the articles, is described as age 38, a bartender, and associate of area gang boss, FRANK "BUSTER" WORKMAN. It states ENNIS formerly worked as a bartender at the old Terrace Lounge in East St. Louis, then operated by WORKMAN's associates. The articles point out that found in ENNIS' trailer in the 1300 block of Cottonwood Drive, Canteen Township, East St. Louis, Illinois, were dynamite blasting caps, firearms, facemasks, and a letter describing a robbery in Indianapolis, Indiana. The articles point out that in ENNIS' personal phone book were the names of ELMER DOWLING, GEORGE HARVILL, and JOHN HOBAN, East St. Louis Attorney, as well as numerous other persons.

One of the articles states that the newspaper contacted Sergeant GIBBS and GIBBS stated he knew ENNIS for many years and used to go fishing at Table Rock Lake, where he found a lot that he liked, but could not finance the deal and, therefore, ENNIS went in with him, GIBBS, on one-half interest. GIBBS stated to the press he "couldn't see anything wrong in this". GIBBS further said that he was aware of ENNIS' background, but ENNIS "never did anything out of line around me. I had ENNIS do a lot of work around my apartment. He was a good carpenter and cabinet maker."

These news articles further point out that immediately adjacent to the property GIBBS and ENNIS were buying was the Fin and Feathers Resort operated by LEO H. DUVALL, and his wife, Mrs. DORIS LUCILLE "LUCY" DUVALL. The news articles point out the DUVALLs formerly operated the Old Last Stop Tavern at Benld, Illinois, in about 1953, and that DUVALL is an ex-convict, and further that DUVALL and ENNIS were close associates. The article states DUVALL worked in the East St. Louis area as an operating engineer, while his wife ran the resort during good weather season. DUVALL is described as a long-time friend of various East St. Louis hoodlums, police characters, and members of the WORKMAN gang.

The articles point out that the newspaper learned DUVALL owned an airplane and was a licensed pilot. This plane was described as a Cessna 140, bearing registration number N2455N.

As of January 17, 1964, the Evening Journal reported this airplane was at the Lakeside Airport in Madison County, Illinois, and further that ENNIS had been taking flying lessons in this plane and also was believed to be a licensed pilot. This is a floor-placed airplane and, according to the press, DUVALL had used it to transport numerous East St. Louis area hoodlums to his resort in Missouri. Individuals who were taken in the plane were listed as WILLIAM "BILL" WELCH, CHARLES "JEFF" HOLLIS, WILLIAM "BILL" SANDERS, ROY CONRAD, GEORGE NELSON, and ENNIS, along with Sergeant GIBBS.

DUVALL, according to the news articles, drives a late model Buick automobile, bearing Missouri license PS3968; that DUVALL and his wife reside in a trailer at the site of their Fin and Feathers Resort in an isolated area of Stone County, Missouri. DUVALL is described as having a brother, EVERETT GEORGE DUVALL, residing at 1426 East Lake Drive, Granite City, Illinois.

The Belleville News Democrat on November 20, 1963, reported the following:

"Sheer, Foster Owe $109,138, IRS Contends"

"WASHINGTON -- The Internal Revenue Service has accused Robert E. Sheer and Gordon L. Foster, associates of rackets boss Frank 'Buster' Wortman of failure to report $196,839-in gambling profits and has ordered them to pay $109,138-in taxes and penalties.

"Sheer lives at 641 Royal Heights Road, Belleville, and Foster, a distant relative of Wortman at 317 Hillsdale Drive, Collinsville, according to IRS records.

"Sheer and Foster were sentenced in 1960 to a year in federal prison for non-payment of the 10 percent federal excise tax on gambling receipts. The government claimed they grossed over $1 million a year between 1955 and 1957 on a handbook operation in the Alorton Motel, southeast of East St. Louis.

"This handbook served as a clearing house for bookies in Madison and St. Clair Counties, the government charged.

"In the new civil income-tax case, the IRS said Sheer reported only $460 in taxable net income in 1956 and 1957, when his correct income was $84,411. He was told to pay $46,742 in additional income taxes and a $2336 penalty for negligence.

"Foster, according to IRS, reported only $5933 in taxable income in 1955, 1956 and 1957. The government raised the total to $115,522.

"The largest changes by IRS were the addition of $69,459 to Sheer's income in 1956 and $71,654 to Foster's as profits from their gambling partnership.

"The government also billed Foster for tax on $3434 in income from the B-F Distributing Company and a $1785 profit on the 1957 sale of Red Rooster tavern north of East St. Louis.

"Sheer was credited with a $3186 loss on the 1957 sale of Roberts motel and tavern, 6500 Bond Avenue, East St. Louis, and an $813 deduction for interest 'paid to Schiele and Kramer, Inc., relative to 6500 Bond Avenue.'

"Morris A. Shenker, St. Louis lawyer, has denied the tax charges in behalf of both men.

"Trial was set for Chicago by Tax Court Chief Judge Norman O. Tiejens."

My dear Mr. Hoover,

Enclosed are some recent news clippings that may be of interest to you on "still at large" crime syndicate boss Frank "Buster" Wortman.

It seems to be general public opinion that his organization has been responsible for numerous murders in the St. Louis. Mo. E. St. Louis, Ill. area which have gone unsolved during the last 20 years.

You, no doubt in the early 50's lime lighted him with 99 other big time racketeers.....for bringing to justice----even if it was tax evasion. It is felt that you were responsible for getting action rolling. But "Busters" criminal lawyer (Morris Schenker) has been successful in preventing his conviction on tax evasion up to now.

Mr. Hoover, you can be assured that a lot of Missouri-Illinois citizens will be appreciative of any efforts you or your St. Louis office can devote toward bringing this gang to justice as local authorities seldom. seem to accompolish or solve too much along this line.

I'm sorry I can't give you any help other than to call your attention to this recent incident which was in the local area news...... as it may or may not be of interest to you.

WORTMAN SHOT, MAY HAVE BEEN TRYING TO HALT FIGHT AT HIS BAR

Wounded East Side Rackets Boss Left at Hospital by Two Unidentified Men

East St. Louis police were investigating a report that East Side rackets boss Frank (Buster) Wortman, who was seriously wounded Friday night, was shot when breaking up a fight in his Paddock Bar in East St. Louis.

Wortman was brought to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis about 7:40 a.m. yesterday by two unidentified men. He had been wounded in the left buttock. The small-caliber bullet passed downward through his abdomen and emerged from the left groin, police said.

It was learned that the fight at the Paddock Bar was between Barney Barts, alias George Aubright, and an East Side lawyer. After Wortman broke up the fight, the lawyer left in a taxicab.

Home Known as 'Moat'

Madison county sheriff's deputies went to the Wortman home near Collinsville, known as the "Moat" because of the water-filled ditch surrounding it. The lavish home is in Madison county.

ty.

The deputies learned that about 1:30 a.m. George (Stormy) Harvill, an associate of Wortman; a man identified as Art Birney (or Beirne), and a physician with offices in East St. Louis arrived at the Wortman home. There was a fourth man with them, identified only as Sparky.

When the group arrived at the door, the physician reported a sked a member of the Wortman family whether the doctor could sterilize some instruments.

However, before this could be done, the group left in Wortman's 1961 Lincoln sedan, the car in which they had arrived. East St. Louis police later examined do the car and found no evidence a of blood in it.

Daughter Visits Bar

The next event in the series of circumstances uncovered by whe Madison county deputies was a visit to the Paddock Bar by a daughter of Wortman, who inquired about Wortman.

At about this time, Harvill and o'Roy Conrad, a former policy writer and Wortman associate, in came into the bar. Seeing Wortman's daughter there, they asked her if she could get a change of clothing for Wortman.

She agreed to do so and left for the Wortman home in her car, followed by Conrad and Harvill in another car. The daughter noted lights in the office of the physician who had appeared at the Wortman home earlier.

At the "Moat," the daughter got a change of clothing and gave the garments to Harvill and Conrad.

They had just left when Edward (Ted) Wortman, brother of the gang leader, called the home to ask whether Conrad and Harvill had been there.

Asked for Wheel Chair
When Wortman was brought to the hospital, one of his companions went to the emergency entrance and told a nurse: "I will need a wheel chair."

When she returned with the wheel chair, the first man had gone but a second man was supporting Wortman and helped him into the chair. The man then left without explanation.

East St. Louis police said the of incident was seen by Brooklyn Police Capt. Herman Hudson, who was leaving the hospital at the time. Hudson said the cart was a 1961 or 1962 Oldsmobile of a light blue metallic color. Barts is said to drive a Cadillac of this general color.

It is noted that the state charge against Frank Leonard Wortman for making a threatening call to a telephone company official has not as yet gone to trial. Relet notes that no trial date has been set in this matter. When this matter has been resolved, you should submit your recommendations regarding installing a misur at the above location.

NOTE: Bulet 1/15/64 authorized Springfield to make the above installation after completion of the state charge against the subject for making threatening telephone call. SAC, Springfield, may possibly appear as a rebuttal witness during trial. Testimony expected to be limited to denial that FBI had telephone tap on Wortman's phone. Since this matter has not been resolved, recommend Springfield not be authorized to make installation in this instance.
