DRAFT RESISTANCE-SEATTLE has been self-described in its own literature in December, 1967, as being an organization which "is instrumental in delaying the induction of from five to ten persons a week. But the situation will soon move beyond individual acts of resistance...Demonstrations, fund-raising, and educational activity must focus on the most active resistance to American militarism evident in the country today..."

The Peace and Freedom Party of Washington State and Students for a Democratic Society are characterized in the appendix.

The Fellowship of Reconciliation is an international organization founded at Cambridge University, England, in December, 1914, and extended to the United States in November, 1915, with headquarters in New York City, New York. From its inception the organization has functioned as a semi-religious, socialist-pacifist group. Activities of the Fellowship of Reconciliation have included opposition to peacetime conscription, advocacy of pacifism, work to abolish the Selective Service Act and poll taxes, campaigning for racial equality, advocacy of the establishment of a permanent fair-employment-practices commission, and abolition of the use of the atomic bomb. RE: DEMONSTRATION DURING APPEARANCE
OF VICE-PRESIDENT HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

On October 1, 1968, a representative of the Secret Service at Seattle said about 15 persons were ejected forcibly from the interior of the Seattle Arena for disruptive heckling, scuffling, and other activities during the HUMPHREY meeting. Approximately 150 to 200 others left the auditorium at the request of law enforcement authorities. No arrests were made among these demonstrators. The source said the only arrests or detentions he knew of during the entire affair were those of the two juveniles mentioned earlier. He said [REDACTED] (supra) did considerable talking during the meeting. [REDACTED]

On September 29, 1968, LYLE BURT, Political Reporter, "Seattle Times," a daily newspaper, had an article on page one of that issue which stated about 20 members of the Peace and Freedom Party were ejected from the meeting. Hecklers accused Mr. HUMPHREY of being complacent regarding the deaths of Vietnamese, and said, "We have come to arrest you--not talk to you." [REDACTED]

On September 29, 1968, SHELBY SCATES, Political Writer of the "Seattle Post-Intelligencer," a daily newspaper, reported on page one of that issue that "jeering anti-war demonstrators disrupted a massive rally for Vice-President HUBERT HUMPHREY last night, accusing him of 'crimes against humanity' before police gave their leaders a bums' rush out of the Seattle Center Arena." [REDACTED]

"The hecklers, many of them members of the Peace and Freedom Party, marred an otherwise tumultuous turnout for HUMPHREY..." [REDACTED]

"We have not come to talk with you," said a bearded youth with a bullhorn when HUMPHREY offered him time to speak. [REDACTED]

"We've come to arrest you for complicity with deaths in Vietnam. We have come to charge you with crimes against humanity..." [REDACTED]

On October 1, 1968, the "University of Washington Daily," a student newspaper, carried an account on page six of the WINSLOW participation plus additional comments. A reproduction of the article is attached. [REDACTED]

The PFP and Calvin Winslow

Amalgamation of the Radical Ideal

By Eric Nalder

Daily Staff Writer

Saturday night at the Seattle Center Arena, vice presidential candidate met vice president. The ideological distance, between candidate Cal Winslow of the Peace and Freedom Party (PFP) and vice president Hubert Humphrey was only minutely symbolized by the distance between Winslow in the balcony and Humphrey on the stage.

The differences led to some sharp words. Sharp words led to yet another lesson in politics, dealt out by secret servicemen reinforced by a covey of Seattle lawmen.

It was just another day in the life of a radical campaigner.

Winslow, 25, a doctoral candidate in history at the University, was nominated on primary day, Sept. 17, to run with the Peace and Freedom "vote without wretching candidate" Eldridge Cleaver.

Although his candidacy is limited to Washington, Winslow's selection gives him a position of significant leadership in local radical politics.

Mass Base

This interview was conducted at Winslow's house in the Central Area. After some discussion of his early years at Antioch and Leeds College in England, we began by asking Winslow what brought him to the Peace and Freedom Party.

WINSLOW: The Peace and Freedom Party is sort of a new development in radical politics. It began in California where a number of different groups with radical orientation came together to attempt to build a mass base for the anti-war and black liberation movement. Before that time, the left was scattered. There were the old sectarian parties, there was the new left, there were protest groups, the draft resistance group, and the black liberation groups all acting on their own with no co-ordination, no common direction.

Having the same problem in Seattle, we looked to the California experience. We went to the Peace and Freedom Party conference held this summer and attempted to give that party a new perspective on politics, a more radical perspective. We were successful in doing this. In making it more radical, we vitalized it, made it much larger, made it what we think will be a much more successful radical movement.

DAILY: Who do you mean by we?

WINSLOW: When I say we, I mean a number of radicals in the Seattle area, who before this time had been working in a number of smaller organizations. They include a number of people from the Vietnam Committee on campus, a large number of the SDS group on campus, a number of students and a large number of older people, working people who came to the party to give it a radical perspective. "We" basically means people who had been working with Draft Resistance, SDS, and the anti-war movement.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Party Differs

DAILY: How does the Peace and Freedom Party differ from SDS and the Vietnam Committee?

WINSLOW: First of all, the Peace and Freedom Party is a multi-issue group. We see war, for instance, as just one aspect of the oppressive American system. The Vietnam Committee is a single issue group and sees its function as only protesting the war. We in the Peace and Freedom Party see the struggle for black liberation as tied up with the struggle against the invasion of Vietnam by the United States.

We think that our struggle against the system, or our struggle for liberation and against the war in Vietnam must be related to both. SDS is just a student group and we have always known in SDS that we could never be very successful unless we expanded our base to include more than just students.

Students are one of the most radical groups in America right now, but to make any fundamental changes we've always known that we would have to go beyond just students. So in the Peace and Freedom Party we are going to make an attempt to get to other groups. We have already been successful to a certain degree by forming an alliance with the Black Panther Party. From there we are going to try to make inroads into the working class in Seattle.

Cal Winslow

I hope I've made it clear that we're not really in contradiction to, say, the Vietnam Committee or SDS, but we feel that our organization is the best way to work for a change in the whole system and not just one particular aspect of it. This is the best way to change protest groups into a mass movement of opposition to the system.

Confrontation Politics

DAILY: We watch what is happening at Columbia already. We watch what is happening on other campuses around the country already and we wonder what it is going to mean in the way of confrontation on our campuses now. How do you envision the use of confrontation politics by people in the Peace and Freedom Party and how do you feel about confrontation politics yourself?

WINSLOW: I look at confrontation politics as one tactic which the political movements can use.

Confrontations, I think, usually are the result of irreconcilable differences. At Columbia, the administration was adamant about building a gym in a park which was used by the black community. The students were equally adamant about preventing the building of the gym. Confrontation took place.

If the university had changed its course, I think there would have been no confrontation. We will use confrontation if that is the only way to achieve our goals. If we can achieve our goals in other ways we are just as willing to use other means. We see goals which we have in mind as the most important thing. How we achieve them I think will depend upon the response of the administration of the University.

If it continues to be impossible to prevent the University from being an instrument of the war of aggression against the Vietnamese, it seems to me that sooner or later there will be a confrontation between students and the University. If the University changes its course there may not be a confrontation on that issue.

DAILY: After Chicago, would you say that people are more ready to lay it on the line?

WINSLOW: I think a lot of people have found out just what kind of a political sham the two party system is in this country. It was an educational experience for millions of Americans.

I'm sure that a lot of people who once told us to go to the Democratic Party, to support dove candidates, to work from within, will now have a more difficult time saying that to us.

I also think that a lot of people who did take that road, who attempted to work from within and found themselves bleeding in the streets of Chicago will think twice before they try the Democratic Party again.

DAILY: What do you feel about incendiary tactics, such as those alleged to have been used against the Navy ROTC?

WINSLOW: I don't think that burning down buildings is the best way to bring an end to the war in Vietnam at this point, but I find it hard to criticize whoever thought that it might help. It seems to me that the burden of responsibility for an act like that lies with the government of the United States which is forcing young people to serve and die in a cause which they detest.

DAILY: Now some questions about the candidates. Are you running Eldridge Cleaver as a protest vote or as a serious candidate?

WINSLOW: We don't think that we are going to win this election, but we are very serious about our movement. What we want is not a large number of votes, but votes from people who are committed to our platform and to a radical reconstruction of American life. So our party is not going to end in November when the elections are over.

Dissent:

When Do Protesters Become A Threat to the Candidate?

By STEPHEN H. DUNPHY

The "politics of protest" present a difficult problem to police and Secret Service agents who are charged with protecting political candidates — when do the protesters cross the line and become a threat to the candidate?

The problem confronted officers and agents Saturday at the Seattle Center Arena when Vice President Humphrey faced a shouting, unruly group of demonstrators.

Secret Service agents said that the protesters were asked to leave when, in the agents' judgment, the situation had become perilous to Humphrey.

ONE AGENT said that several persons near the protesters started to fight with them when they refused to be quiet. He said the protesters were asked to leave for their own safety and because officials thought the situation might develop into a riot. Ultimately force had to be used to get some of the demonstrators out of the Arena.

Another time, the agent said, some of the group began to threaten the vice president. The agent said that some shouted, "We came here to arrest you, Humphrey!"

"Nobody arrests the vice president," the agent said.

WHY WERE the protesters not arrested? Police and Secret Service officials agree on these points in respect to arrests:

• There were ample violations of the law — disturbing the peace, obscenities, disrupting a public meeting— for arrests to be made, but making identifications stick in court would be difficult.

• Police and Secret Service offices are assigned to certain areas to form a protective screen around the candidate and they can not leave them to chase the protesters after they have been dispersed.

• A person's "rights" at a political rally extend beyond those in other situations.

• Arrest would be just what the protesters wanted.

Disturbing the Peace Isn't Violence, Say 5 Candidates

By ANDREA VOGEL

Five Peace and Freedom Party candidates for state and national office said here yesterday they do not condone violence and do not consider disturbing the peace a form of violence.

The group, most of whom were present at a rally for Vice President Humphrey Saturday, defended their verbal harassment of Humphrey. They said the violence was on the part of police who eventually evicted them when they would not allow the vice president to speak.

Calvin Winslow, 25, one of several Peace and Freedom Party vice presidential candidates and a history teaching assistant at the University of Washington, said of the heckling tactics:

"We're having violence committed against us all the time — in Chicago and even in Seattle last Saturday. Disturbing the peace is not violence, as far as I'm concerned. Nor is shouting at a public meeting."

Winslow said he did not believe use of a public-address system to drown out Humphrey was a denial of the vice president's freedom of speech because "Humphrey has had ample opportunity to be heard "on television and at other times.

Other candidates present were Walt Crowley, 21, associate editor of The Helix and candidate for state representative, District 32-A, and Flo Ware, 53, apartment-house manager and candidate for Congress, 7th District.

Also present were Michael Leavy, 22, a candidate for lieutenant governor who is awaiting sentencing Friday for failing to report for draft induction, and Judith Shapiro, 24, candidate for Congress from the 1st District.

FREE UNIVERSITY OF SEATTLE (FUS)

In its issue of September 30, 1966, "The Spectator", a student publication of Seattle University, carried an article on the formation of FUS at the University of Washington (UW), Seattle, Washington. It stated, in part, that RON RICHARDSON, a junior at the UW who is one of the founders of the movement in Seattle, stated the "free" does not refer to money but to academic freedom. "The Student and teacher will meet together on common grounds to develop course content, curriculum, and to discuss direction of the school. In contrast to departmentalized education, courses will bridge several disciplines, emphasize controversy and clash of ideas . . ." The free university "basically represents dissent with the present system. People wouldn't spend their money and teachers would not volunteer their services unless this dissent existed."

1APPENDIXPROGRESSIVE LABOR PARTY - WASHINGTON STATE, aka
Pacific Northwest Progressive Labor Party

[REDACTED] advised the founding convention of the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) was held in New York, New York, on April 15 - 18, 1965, for the purpose of organizing the Progressive Labor Movement (PLM) into the PLP. The PLP convention indicated its ultimate objective was the establishment of a militant working class movement based on Marxism - Leninism.

The March, 1966, issue of "Spark," self-described as the "Western Voice For Revolution" and published by the PLP, carried an article on page two entitled "PLP in Northwest." This article stated the first PLP organization in the Pacific Northwest was formally established at a convention held in the State of Washington the last week of January, 1966, attended by sixteen delegates and several guests. The convention elected a District Committee and unanimously voted to apply for affiliation to the PLP.

[REDACTED] furnished a copy of a ten-page document entitled, "Position Paper on Mass Political Action and Elections Policy," by CLAYTON VAN LYDAGRAF. This document states "discussion material prepared by the Pacific Northwest Progressive Labor Party, PO Box 25674, Seattle, Washington."

[REDACTED] advised that in early May, 1967, [REDACTED] and that the PLP no longer had a functioning unit in Seattle, Washington. On April 11, 1968, [REDACTED] stated that there were no organized PLP units in Washington State at that time and that there has been no formal PLP meetings or functions held in Washington State since the latter part of August, 1967.

1APPENDIXSEATTLE COMMITTEE TO END THE WAR IN VIETNAM (SCEWV)

At a press conference held in Seattle, Washington, on March 10, 1966, a SCEWV spokesman advised that SCEWV was an autonomous organization which had been in existence for about two months and whose sole purpose was to contest U.S. Government policy in Vietnam. It was stated that all, including communists, who were opposed to the war in Vietnam for any reason were acceptable to SCEWV.

It was explained that the power of veto prevented any one faction from capturing SCEWV, and that the function of SCEWV was to offer a range of alternatives to the present administration policy in Vietnam.

[REDACTED] furnished a document prepared by SCEWV which reflected that people active in SCEWV represented a broad spectrum of political and religious beliefs and that all basic decisions were made by an elected steering committee representative of the larger groups supporting SCEWV.

[REDACTED] that SCEWV headquarters were located at 4126 Roosevelt Way N.E., Seattle, Washington.

[REDACTED] that SCEWV has no formal membership other than a steering committee which formulates SCEWV policy.

[REDACTED], that at various times during that period, past and/or present members of the Communist Party, Progressive Labor Party - Washington State; Seattle Branch, Socialist Workers Party; Freedom Socialist Party and Workers World Party, Seattle Branch, were included as members of SCEWV steering committee.

She said four of the seven were from the "left" but did not go into detail. She said the group had problems of an organizational nature because it was new, and she thought she could help.

[REDACTED] stated a meeting of the University CP Club was held at Seattle on April 2, 1963. [REDACTED] reported the most influential peace organization in Seattle was SWAP.

[REDACTED] meeting of the North Central CP Section Committee was held at Seattle. [REDACTED] said attention should be placed on three political questions - peace, civil rights, and labor. Under peace, he said CP clubs should inject the Women Act for Peace campaign into the election campaign. At another Section meeting, February 5, 1966, [REDACTED] was praised for effective peace work and for her help in developing unity among the peace forces. Section-wide concentration was urged in assisting SWAP to visit 1,000 workers on the Vietnam issue.

[REDACTED] a Northwest District CP Committee meeting was held at Seattle [REDACTED]. After lunch, the entire group participated in passing out leaflets pertaining to racial matters and the Vietnam war which carried the name of SWAP, 5411 Ravenna Avenue Northeast, Seattle, Washington 98105, which address has been used consistently by SWAP and is that of [REDACTED]

APPENDIX

WORKERS WORLD PARTY SEATTLE BRANCH

[REDACTED] advised the Seattle, Washington, Branch of the Workers World Party (WWP) was formed in August, 1959. [REDACTED] the Seattle Branch, WWP, was affiliated with and followed the aims and purposes of the National WWP, which had headquarters in New York City. [REDACTED] advised they believed the Seattle Branch, WWP, was active at that time following the aims and purposes of the National WWP.

[REDACTED], the WWP had no office headquarters in Seattle and there appeared to be no current organized activity of the WWP in the Seattle area.

[REDACTED], it is understood there is no branch of the WWP in Seattle and [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] in Seattle, although the Party does have several sympathizers.

SUBJECT: NATIONWIDE TV SPEECH
BY VICE PRESIDENT HUMPHREY
Saturday, 10/12/68

DATE 7-19-82 BY SP-3 CJS/PA
[REDACTED], of the Vice President's office, called me at 1:25 this afternoon. He stated the Vice President plans to give a nationwide TV address this coming Saturday night, 10/12/68, and plans to be somewhat defensible in his talk concerning crime.

[REDACTED] then stated the Vice President had instructed him to get in touch with us to determine the annual cost of crime in the United States (he added that the Vice President did not know if there was such a figure in existence; consequently, he hoped to show that crime did not cost very much).

I told [REDACTED] that the annual cost of crime was approximately 27 billion dollars per year, and that the Director had recently instructed that a new survey be made, which undoubtedly would reflect an even higher cost of crime. [REDACTED] expressed great surprise at this large figure.

[REDACTED] told me that the Vice President will make a point that Candidates Nixon and Wallace, although speaking factually concerning crime, have yet to make any serious proposals regarding what they will do about the situation once they get in office. Stewart told me that the Vice President intends to point out that he is for much higher salaries for police officers; for enlargement of the FBI and all FBI training facilities; and for better equipment for police.

[REDACTED] asked me if the FBI Academy at Quantico had initiated a program of taking in 2000 police officers per year, instead of the usual 200. I told him we had been unable to step up our program thus far simply because the administration had frozen funds allotted for construction of new buildings at Quantico. Stewart stated the Vice President did not know this, but would be interested in hearing about it.

[REDACTED] asked me if I had any proposals which could be of assistance to the Vice President. I told him I had none, over and above what he had already mentioned the Vice President planned to use.

He stated that in the past year or so, she had begun placing political overtones into her letters and that the letters became more and more frequent in April or May, 1968.

[REDACTED] stated that although at no time are there any overt threats as such in the letters, he felt it best that the matter be brought to the attention of the FBI. He stated that the letters actually are setting forth the subject's political feelings and preferences with regard to candidates. b7c

[REDACTED] made available seven letters or memorandums from [REDACTED] which in part referred to Vice President HUBERT HUMPHREY or Presidential candidate GEORGE WALLACE, which are enclosed as a part of this memorandum as follows:

dances," I forget which, and we were offered our choice (it seemed a grand choice, too) of sauterne or tomato juice.

It was the first party to which I had worn a black tie. My clothes were new, my shave was new and I, too, was very new. I was so new that I made the mistake of offering to carry the plate of the young lady I was escorting, along with my own plate, back to the buffet table for seconds of creamed chicken in timbales and petits pois.

And, in the process of carrying the two laden plates back to our seats, my cummerbund, newly acquired and only dimly understood, became undone. I was in the center of the room when I felt it begin to slip, and I clapped my elbows tight against my sides to stop it. But it continued to slide down about my hips.

Lowering myself to a half-crouch, and jabbing my right elbow into my upper thigh, I became aware that the plate I held in my left hand had emptied itself of peas and chicken, and I felt this warm, moist mass flowing along my arm, inside the sleeve of my dinner jacket.

THIS WAS NOT a Real Society dinner party. I know because, a few days later, when I told this story in all its detail to a lady who was a member of Real Society, she said, "Do you mean they served Sauterne and not Dubonnet? How dreadful!" She might have added, too, that no young gentlemen of Real Society would have found himself in such a predicament. He would not have carried a young lady's plate to the serving table. He would have let her take care of herself.

Real Society people, I once

You must learn to recognize, even though you may have not yet seen one, a Real Society person. And one way to do this is to remember a few things a Real Society person is not.

People who go regularly to charity balls, who have been photographed dancing with the Duke of Windsor, who have played poker on the yacht of a Greek shipping magnate, are not necessarily all members of Real Society. Some may be, but most are the other kind.

There are Real Society people who have never set foot on a yacht of any sort and who, if the Duke of Windsor walked into the room, would fail to identify him.

CHEER SPLASH has nothing to do with Real Society. There were few Real Society people in attendance, for instance, at the wedding of Luci Johnson. ("An August wedding in Washington?" people murmured.) Nor were there Real Society people at the wedding of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco. ("I hear that they met," said a Philadelphia Society woman at the time, "at the home of a mutual friend in Ocean City, N.J. But how can that be? No one has gone to Ocean City for years.") To this day, the best Philadelphia people make a point of explaining that they did not attend these nuptials; there are a number of princesses in Real Society, but Grace is not one of them.

When a splash does occur at a Real Society function, it occurs by coincidence or by accident more often than by design. The wedding of Janet Jennings Auchincloss, a Real Society occasion, generated a good deal of inadvertent splash—and upset the Bride so much that she burst into tears.

Children who are not taught to experience their environment with their eyes and ears invariably develop speech problems. They cannot describe what they have not experienced.

Mrs. Bryson noted that many pupils have not advanced beyond grunting and groaning and pointing when they enter school. Slum children often have parents who are unable to answer questions and openly discourage communication in the home, she added.

FELIX MADDOX, principal at the C. W. Hill School, estimated that disadvantaged pupils come to school with active vocabularies of fewer than 1,000 words. Children from more affluent homes often have vocabularies ranging from 5,000 to 20,000 words.

In addition to lacking basic communicative skills, disadvantaged children come to school knowing virtually nothing about pencils, paper, paint, scissors and other tools of primary grades.

A deprived child may not even have a clear image of himself because he has never seen his face in a mirror or a photograph. He may lack self-confidence because he does not know who he is or why he is alive or what he is supposed to do.

"These kids come to school convinced that they are not going to succeed in anything they do," Mrs. Bryson said. "They come from homes where failure screams at them from the walls and ceilings."

BESIDES LIVING in an affluent society which rejects them for economic reasons, many deprived children feel defeated by racial and language differences.

And children of poor parents, regardless of the color of their skin or the language they speak, often have physical ailments that higher-income children either avoid or have corrected.

Local educators agree that children from deprived homes are not necessarily incapable of learning. Some of these children come to school as well equipped to learn as children from better homes.

Dr. John Martin, assistant superintendent for instruction for Atlanta school system, noted thought, do not listen to what other people are saying. But I was wrong. I was wrong because their ears are attuned to different sounds, they respond to different cues. It is not that they miss ordinary conversations, but they pick up different drifts. It is as though most people were on AM and they were on FM.

Once, at a Satchidananda Vedding in the 1940s one guest was overheard whispering to another, "Did you know that she was for Wallace?" There was a pause, and then the other guest said thoughtfully, "Really? Wallace who?"

An Englishman, who has made a hobby of studying American Society, feels that Real Society people are indeed different from you and me. "You can spot them immediately," he says. "They have a special way of talking, a special way of thinking and a special look. They even smell a special way. I love the way they smell."

Though I am still unable to identify Real Society people by their odor, his other points of difference seem perfectly valid. And these differences provide the most formidable obstacles to the social climber.

SUCH IS THE nature of Society that a person can live his whole life, quite happily and quite successfully, without being aware of Society, or feeling its effect any way. Only when he attempts to move into it does he discover that it was there all along, like a wall, stern and unscalable, a wall with a small grilled door in it—locked.

Perhaps a better image than a wall with a door in it would be a series of walls, arranged in a crazy-quilt pattern like a bit of New Hampshire farm country seen from the air.

Social climbing is like a game. You play it by climbing the walls and crossing the little squares between, one after another. Progress is slow and arduous, and often you must rely on guesswork. Through it all, your goal is Real Society, and as you approach its fringes, the going becomes harder.

The "Social Register" is no longer—if it ever was—a reliable guide to who is Real Society and who is not. The little black and red "stud book" has always been published for profit, and has depended on its listees' willingness to be listed, as well as on their subscriptions.

The "Social Register" grows thicker in times of economic boom, and shrinks when the economic pendulum falls the other way. The number of "Social Register" families may wax and wane, but the size of "Real Society" remains constant. Many Real Society families ridicule the "Register" now, and make the familiar comment, "It's just a telephone book." In New York, for instance, it is still smaller and more wieldy than the Manhattan directory. As often as not, however, when an entrant is "dropped" from the "Register," he has simply neglected to—or chosen not to—fill out the necessary annual forms. Still, many Society people feel as the writer Louis Auchincloss does. "The 'Social Register' has gotten so enormous," he says, "that it looks rather peculiar if you're not in it."

that disadvantaged children often have characteristics which tend to offset their disadvantages.

"DEPRIVED CHILDREN" often exhibit a peculiar persistence in attacking a single problem," he said. "In many cases, they have an ability to cope with an unfriendly, even hostile environment."

Dr. Martin added that many so-called "slow gifted" children can be found in the city's ghetto schools. These are children who can achieve success by working at a slower pace than those who learn easily.

Educators in Atlanta have found they can successfully teach children from disadvantaged families if they use the right techniques and employ the right people.

Memorandum

TO : The Director

DATE:

10-3-68

FROM : N. P. Callahan

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Robert F. Kennedy

Pages H2417-H2418. Congressman Poff, (R) Virginia, pointed out that a few weeks ago Vice President Hubert Humphrey released to the public a document that purported to be the report and recommendations of his Task Force on Order and Justice. - - - I was instantly struck by the fact that Mr. Humphrey's advisers appeared somewhat unconcerned about organized crime since only three of 49 pages were devoted to that very important subject. I was also amazed to note that the Humphrey task force did not deal at all with title III of the recently enacted omnibus crime bill. This relates to court supervised electronic surveillance and, in my view, there can be no serious compilation of organized crime measures which avoids taking a position, one way or another, on the use of electronic surveillance. Mr. Poff included an article from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat entitled 'Humphrey Copped Havesdrop Proposal in Crime Panel Report' written by Edward W. O'Brien.

PEOPLE" BECAUSE HE WAS INVOLVED IN A HOMICIDE WHEN HE WAS A KID.
HE MADE CONTINUAL REFERENCES TO HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN, AND STATED
HE COULD NOT IDENTIFY HIMSELF OR THOSE ALLEGEDLY FORCING HIM TO DO
THE ACTS, AS THEY WOULD "RUIN HIM." THE ONLY THING HE WOULD SAY CONCERNING "THESE PEOPLE WAS THAT THEY WERE "SOUTHERN PEOPLE" AND THEY WERE FROM OUT OF TOWN. HE WAS SPECIFICALLY ASKED HOW HE INTENDED TO "GET" THE CANDIDATES, AND HE STATED "I HAVE A GUN. HE WAS ASKED INFORMATION CONCERNING THE WEAPON AND REFUSED TO TELL ANYTHING ABOUT IT, SAYING ONLY, THE PROPER PROTECTION SHOULD BE AFFORDED THE CANDIDATES IN ORDER TO STOP HIM.

THREAT AGAINST THE
VICE PRESIDENT

B. APPROX 1946

UPI news release datelined St. Louis, Missouri, stated that Zimmerman, aged 22, was arrested in St. Louis, Missouri, with a loaded weapon shortly before Vice President Humphrey appeared at a downtown street rally. According to the dispatch, Zimmerman reportedly had told fellow employees that the office window would be a good point from which to shoot. Zimmerman allegedly told police he had been joking.

ASAC Krupinsky, St. Louis, was telephonically contacted concerning this dispatch and told to check into the matter to determine whether it involved an attempt on the life of the Vice President.

ASAC Krupinsky said a teletype was being prepared tonight which would contain full details. (received)

SUBJECT: The Congressional Record

Pages 812408-812411. Senator Proxmire, (I) Wisconsin, placed in the Record the address delivered by Vice President Humphrey before the 1968 National Convention of the American Legion. He pointed out that Mr. Humphrey spoke on one of the burning issues in the presidential campaign--law and order. Mr. Humphrey in commenting on his arrival in New Orleans, stated "It isn't often that the nominee of the Democratic Party can be introduced by a famed and respected Republican. - - - I thought for a while when I was landing out at the airport and coming here to greet you that you legionnaires were just trying to tell me something. Stepping off the plane I saw that lawyer from Chicago, Jack Gleason. I saw Trial Lawyers Bacon and James. I saw Ian role, and then I ran face to face with the FBI and Gene LeRoach, and I pleaded not guilty."

INFORMATION CONCERNING

On September 29, 1968 at approximately 2:00 PM, the subject attempted to check a parcel at the ticket counter of Western Airlines, Seattle-Tacoma Airport. He wanted to carry this parcel on board the aircraft with him. Airline officials advised him that the parcel was too large for carry-on by a passenger and would have to be put into the baggage compartment. During the discussion, he advised airline officials that the parcel contained golf clubs. Airline personnel became suspicious because of the weight of the package and it was opened at the ticket counter before it was checked. Upon opening, it was determined that the box contained a .308 caliber semi-automatic rifle loaded with a six shot clip. The box also contained a machete. The subject advised officials that he said it was golf clubs in order to avoid any trouble. He said that he was on his way to Juneau, Alaska to do some hunting.

Airline officials were also concerned about a question that subject had asked earlier during a discussion at the ticket counter. He had inquired about the time Vice President HUBERT HUMPHREY was due to depart Seattle. Mr. HUMPHREY was scheduled to depart the Seattle area later the same afternoon. Airline officials declined to provide him any information. Subject said he was a personal friend of Mr. HUMPHREY's and that he was curious as to the time he planned to leave Seattle.

When questioned by Airport Security Police, subject produced a Washington, D.C., [REDACTED] for identification. [REDACTED]

Re: PROPOSED DEMONSTRATION AGAINST

[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] that the Nashville Women for Peace and Social Justice (NWPSJ), a local anti-war group in Nashville, was calling for a demonstration to be held at the War Memorial Building, Nashville, Tennessee, October 1, 1968, against the appearance of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey when Mr. Humphrey appeared at that place to make a speech in connection with his campaign for President of the United States. [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] b7d

An article appeared on page one of the October 1, 1968, Volume 80, No. 5, edition of the "Vanderbilt Hustler," self described as an independent student newspaper, captioned "Women to Demonstrate at Humphrey Speech." The article in part related that a demonstration had been planned for Vice President Hubert Humphrey's visit to Nashville on October 1, 1968. The article identified Claire Peterson, chairman, of the NWPSJ, who reported that members of her organization had been informed that assembly for the demonstration would be held at 12 noon in Memorial Square. The article quoted Mrs. Peterson as saying, "As many members as can will be dressed in black. Some of us will be standing in silent protest and others will probably be holding signs." The article indicated that about 15 demonstrators were expected to appear.

Attached hereto is a copy of a handbill distributed to the crowd during the appearance of Vice President Humphrey at Nashville when he spoke at the War Memorial Building on October 1, 1968.
