Enclosed to this communication and contained in a separate 1A envelope is a nine-page article about James Wickstrom, dated Winter, 2004, from the Intelligence Report Magazine.

The article is titled, "Return of the Pastor." It highlights how Christian Identity Preacher James Wickstrom has been preaching hate for decades. The author continues by highlighting how Wickstrom's new role with an Aryan National offshoot group could make the fire-breathing Pastor one of the radical rights' most influential figure.

The magazine contains several photographs of Wickstrom.

RETURN OF THE PASTOR

James Wickstrom, one of Christian Identity's most vicious firebrands, has been relatively quiet for years.

Now that may be changing

BY SUSY BUCHANAN

Posed before a backdrop of a Tennessee forest, Jim Wickstrom spews his life history into a camera. It's late June, and Wickstrom has just been a victim of another attack, one of the many he claims to have suffered at the hands of his enemies over the years.

The latest assault on the "preacher" came this June 21 when someone burned down a furniture store in Hampton Township, Mich., where Wickstrom has been preaching "Racial Covenant Christian Identity" for the past three years.

Many of the audio- and videotapes he peddles over the Internet, representing his life's work, were burned or damaged in the fire. Wickstrom quickly put out a call over the Internet to sympathizers, stumping for financial aid in order to continue his ministry.

And so it is not surprising that just days after the blaze, the prolific pastor already is taking steps to replenish his media inventory. After all, the man has a business to run, and preaching violence against Jews is his bread and butter.

At 62, Wickstrom is bloated and shifty-eyed. The oversized aviator glasses he wears magnify his jowl and the general downward slope of his features. For this video, Wickstrom has encased his sausage-like physique in a red polo shirt, eschewing the formal sports coat and tie he favors at racist rallies. The film is a relatively calm accounting of his life and views as he outlines his career as a racist with arms folded over his bright red belly. Under these sedate circumstances, Wickstrom looks more like the Snap-On Tools salesman he was in the early '70s, in the time before his anger found an outlet — and an accelerant — in the theology of Christian Identity.

But "Wickstrom Unplugged" doesn't last for long.

Almost on cue, a voice off camera asks Wickstrom what he thinks should be done with the Jews, a topic that invariably brings out the Hulk in him.

Wickstrom's hands begin to gesticulate, his face reddens, and he launches into a tirade that demonstrates what has made him one of Christian Identity's most popular and volatile speakers.

"I'd like to see these Jews all be brought to the va [Veterans Administration hospital] and wooden chairs be put down on the lawn. Tie the Jews in. Bring these veterans down who have been mutilated, physically mutilated, their lives ruined without the opportunity of a family or children, and give them baseball bats and let them beat these Jews to death! Every one of them!" he bellows.

"Take these chairs and Jews after they're beaten to death, throw 'em in the wood chipper! And from the wood chipper let the remains go into a big incinerary truck, which is right behind the wood chipper, and give them the holocaust they rightly deserve!"

"Even the women and children?" he's asked by his interviewer.

"Take 'em all," he snarls. "Take 'em all and let none remain!"

Wickstrom Redux

Wickstrom's an aging, old-school Christian Identity racist whose career has seen better days. For a time in the early '80s, Wickstrom was one of the hottest haters in the country, preaching Yahweh's word across the Great Plains and the upper Midwest and stirring up an army.

America's farmers, in the grip of a devastating crisis, were a vulnerable audience. The government had urged them to expand their operations, then slapped them with a spike in interest rates. Banks called in loans. People lost farms, and Wickstrom's hard-core combination of antigovernment teachings and Bible-based racism drew substantial crowds. The fervently anti-Semitic, antigovernment Posse Comitatus grew in strength.

Wickstrom told them their economic hardship was part of a plan to destroy God's chosen people — the "White, Western Race" — and pointed to the Bible.

He told them debts and taxes were illegitimate and pointed to the Constitution. His conviction and passion were often mesmerizing.

But his message would start to decay.

Most of the legal advice he gave farmers created more problems than it solved. The "township" of Tigerton Dells that he and other Posse members dreamed up was seized by the very government its residents were plotting to overthrow.

Wickstrom and other Posse leaders would be arrested and incarcerated. The Posse began to fade, making way for the militia movement that would follow. The momentum it once had in its heyday, when Posse sympathizers numbered close to 50,000, came and went.

Despite his diminished presence in the movement today, Wickstrom's influence over the past 30 years has been considerable. And by the look of things, "Wick," as he is known, is not done yet.

Wickstrom is attempting to emerge from 15 relatively dormant years by very publicly aligning himself with one of two factions of the neo-Nazi Aryan Nations vying for control of Richard Butler's leaderless followers. Since Butler's death on Sept. 8, Charles Juba's version of Aryan Nations, based in Pennsylvania and by far the weaker of the two, is clamoring for respect they hope an association with Wickstrom will bring and have named him their religious leader. Against most of the evidence, Wickstrom and Juba are now claiming that they are the anointed heirs of Butler and rightful owners of the well-known Aryan Nations name, even though Butler publicly excommunicated Juba (see story, p. 6) from his Idaho-based organization in January 2000 and never took him back.

"My work as World Chaplain is only beginning, and I look forward to being a part of the Aryan Nations of tomorrow," Wickstrom wrote in an Oct. 11 press release in which he claims his appointment was part of a secret plan formulated years ago by Pastor Butler himself. In the statement, Wickstrom proclaims Juba's group the legitimate successor to Butler, and blames the confusion over which faction was the true Aryan Nations on a clever "cloak and dagger" operation designed to confuse the enemy while the organization was rebuilt.

Although it's doubtful he'll succeed in filling the shoes of one of the country's most notorious neo-Nazi leaders, Wickstrom is one of the strongest candidates and most recognizable names the Christian Identity movement has. He may have only been drawing a few dozen disciples to his furniture-store sermons in recent years — but consider that quality can be just as important as quantity when building an army for Yahweh. Among Wickstrom's converts are men like James Nichols, brother of Oklahoma City bomber Terry Nichols. When James devoted his life (and that of his incarcerated brother) to Aryan warriorhood on Oct. 5, 2003, Wickstrom was the first to shake his hand.

Still, some experts question Wickstrom's relevance to the movement of today.

"Wickstrom has lost saliency," says Leonard Zeskind, an expert on the Identity movement and the far right. "The terrain doesn't exist for him anymore."

Some of Wickstrom's closest supporters have condemned him for a relationship he began in August 2003 with another man's wife. So while Wickstrom's name was intended to bring legitimacy to Juba's faction of the Aryan Nations (which Zeskind dismisses as the "sewer end of the movement"), it's possible that his presence will actually hurt Juba.

Other observers aren't ready to count Wickstrom out just yet.

"Jim Wickstrom has a certain stature in the racist movement — one Juba doesn't have — and especially among the more religious, the biggest ones that are really into the Christian Identity aspect," says Floyd Cochran, a former Aryan Nations spokesman who now speaks out against racism. "With the death of Richard Butler, the Christian Identity aspect of the movement is now more focused on Wickstrom."

Kerry Noble, a former Identity adherent who has also left the movement, knew Wickstrom in the '80s agrees that Wickstrom's new position may be more than just a coda to his career. "The movement is lacking true leadership, and Wickstrom is the closest thing that most groups have."

Birth of a Salesman

Under different circumstances, Jim Wickstrom might have been making Chiquita banana stickers and Elmer's Glue labels at a Kimberly-Clark paper mill for a living instead of talking about putting people in wood chippers.

Wickstrom was born in 1942 in Munising on Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Although Wickstrom describes the town as Michigan's "Naples on the lake," the slogan is far grander than the dreary circumstances of the tiny, working-class town warrant. Times have always been tough in Munising, where the century-old paper mill on the lake's eastern shore looms large in the life of residents, and the annual average income is less than $13,000.

Wickstrom was the second of three sons. His father worked as a foreman at a sawmill. His mother was a homemaker. Wickstrom graduated from high school in 1960 and worked various jobs before joining the military in 1964. He served two years (not six, as he often claims), mostly as a warehouseman stationed in Fort Lewis, Wash., and in Okinawa, and never saw combat.

But Wickstrom did see black men surpass him in rank left and right. He was outraged at what he calls blatant "reverse discrimination," and it was the first time he remembers feeling racially aware.

Wickstrom was discharged as a private first class in 1966 and returned to an America he didn't understand. The sex, drugs and foul language of the '60s repulsed him, and he saw it as a sign America's character was weakening.

In 1970, he married the first of his four wives, Dianne, whom he met while working for Johnson Wax. In 1973, he ran a service station in Racine, Wis., without success, and then gave it up to go sell tools.

Soon after he left the service station, Wickstrom was hired by Snap-On Tools and began traveling as a salesman. The position suited him for a time, but Wickstrom was soon to discover tools weren't the only things he could sell.

Assuming Identity

It was 1975 when Wickstrom met tax protestor Thomas Stockheimer, a man who would introduce Wickstrom to the Posse Comitatus (Stockheimer founded the Wisconsin Posse Comitatus in 1970) and Christian Identity.

Wickstrom remembers that day well. His sales route took him past Stockheimer's "Little People's Tax Party" office each week. One day Stockheimer called out to him and posed a troubling question. "Do you know who you are? Do you really know who you are?" Stockheimer queried. "Do you know that you're an Israelite?"

Wickstrom was initially offended. He had little use for Jews and didn't much like being called one. But after hearing Stockheimer out, Wickstrom ended up leaving with two tapes in his pocket, William Potter Gale sermons entitled "Jacob the Double Blessed" and "Jews are of Cain."

The tapes were the first of many that told Wickstrom he was more than a pasty, pudgy salesman.

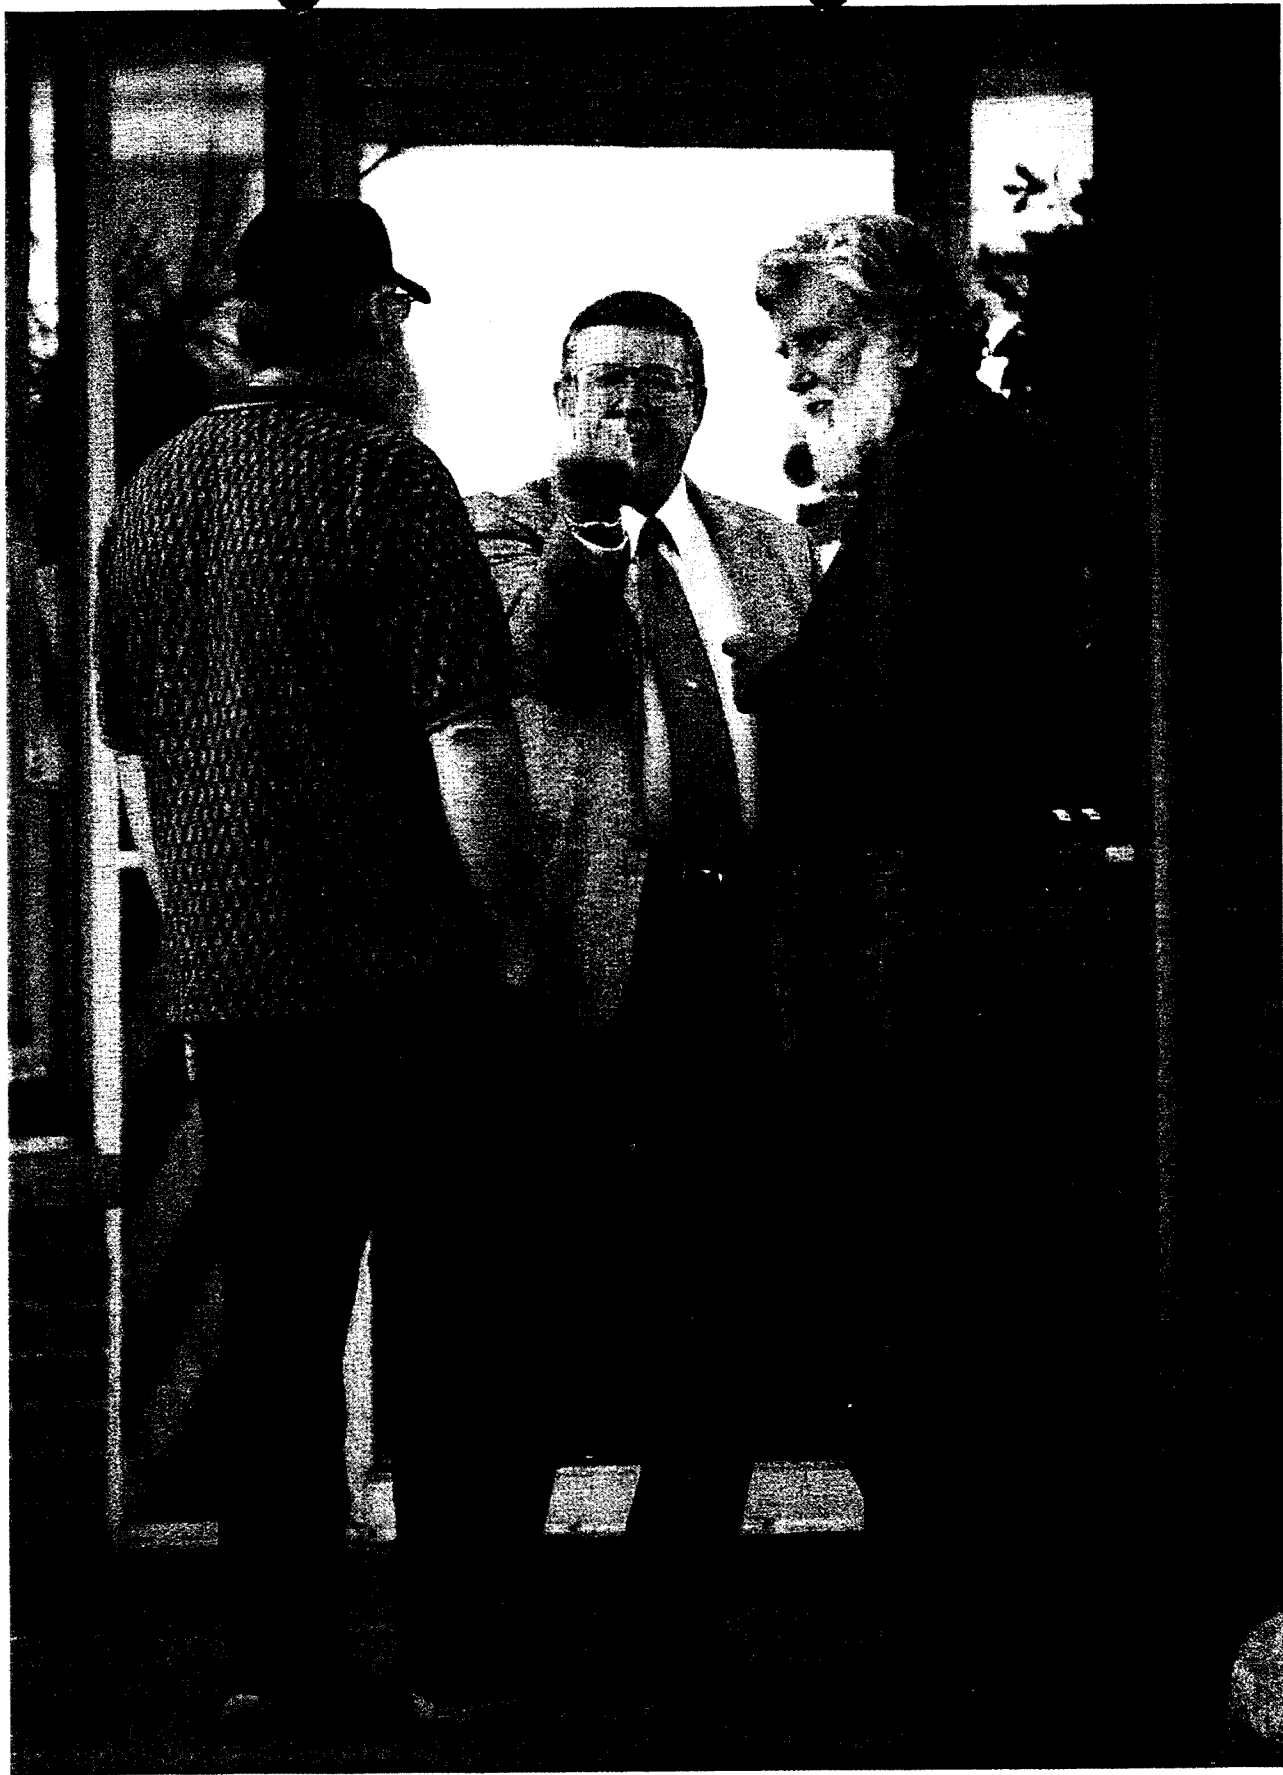

Christian Identity teachings told him he was one of God's chosen people and a member of the Israelite tribe.

They explained Jews were the demonic offspring of a sexual union between Eve and Satan.

They told him blacks were subhuman because they couldn't blush, no better than beasts of the field and mere tools of the Jews in their fight to destroy White Western man.

To Wickstrom, it made perfect sense.

He and Stockheimer set up a Bible study group in Wickstrom's basement which they gradually built up, studying Scripture and listening to tapes of Gale, one of Identity's great teachers and a founder of the Posse Comitatus, and other ministers. Soon, Wickstrom says, they were drawing 45 members each week.

Wickstrom had to go it alone without Stockheimer's aid after a short while. Stockheimer had assaulted an IRS agent in 1974. When his appeal failed in July 1976, Stockheimer skipped town and spent the next four months on the lam.

Not long after Stockheimer's hasty departure, Wickstrom quit his job and moved his family to Schell City, Mo.

"I wanted to be with like-minded people," he explains.

Wickstrom bought land near fellow Identity minister Dan Gayman's property and taught history and geography at a small school operated by Gayman and another minister, Loren Kallstrom. He formed his own church in 1977, Mission of Jesus the Christ Church, and lived off tithes and donations.

But he would soon have a falling out with Dan Gayman. Wickstrom claims he discovered that the property Gayman was living on, which was supposed to have been deeded to the Life Science Church Gayman had established, in fact remained in Gayman's name. In late 1978, Wickstrom packed up his family and moved to Wisconsin.

The Farmers and the Dells

Wickstrom came at the invitation of Donald Minniecheske, who had formed a chapter of the Posse Comitatus and was beginning to create a Posse compound out of a tavern and several mobile homes located on 570 acres on the shores of the Embarrass River.

Wickstrom constructed a church out of two side-by-side mobile homes, and began what he calls his "rejuvenation" of the Posse Comitatus by naming himself "National Director of Counter Insurgency."

Wickstrom and Minniecheske formed their own make-believe town out of a bar and a few trailers. They called it the Constitutional Township of Tigerton Dells. Minniecheske had lost his liquor license for the tavern and dance hall he ran two years earlier. Wickstrom, who had decided he was to be the town's judge and municipal clerk, used his position to grant Minniecheske a new one.

He also began traveling throughout the farm belt, appearing at meeting halls, in basements, and at farm shows. "I knew that something had to be done. I knew that the ranchers and the farmers were being meticulously destroyed by the Jew banking system in America," Wickstrom says.

What he offered was an attractive, if somewhat fanciful, solution to their problems. Wickstrom told them that both taxes and the federal government were illegitimate. He told them they were sovereign citizens and that debt could be paid with fictitious money orders.

He called zip codes and driver's licenses examples of government tyranny that were to be abandoned.

He said it was up to the people to regain their power through direct action. He told them Jews, tax collectors, and other enemies of the people were to be lynched.

Floyd Cochran grew up on a dairy farm and heard of Wickstrom's work early on.

"In the '70s and '80s farming went through a drastic change. A lot of people I'd known a good part of my life went out of business," Cochran says. "Wickstrom was organizing farmers out West, appearing at farm shows and things of that nature telling farmers you are losing your place not because of something you did but because the Jews want to take away your farms."

Posse Power Peaks

The next three years would see a surge of support for Wickstrom's beliefs. Paramilitary training began at Tigerton Dells in 1980, and Wickstrom claimed that Posse seminars drew thousands of participants who were taught survival skills and covert military operations by high-ranking Vietnam vets.

That same year Wickstrom ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate on the far-right Constitution Party ticket and managed to garner 16,000 votes. In 1982, a local radio station began broadcasting his speeches and Wickstrom ran for governor. He boasted improbably that his Posse was more than 2 million strong. He continued speaking all over the country and met with great success. Soon, events would introduce the fiery preacher to an even wider audience.

When Gordon Kahl went to war with the government, it was Jim Wickstrom's big break.

On Feb. 13, 1983, the Posse became national news when law enforcement agents tried to arrest North Dakota Posse member Gordon Kahl on a probation violation. Kahl opened fire, killing two officers and injuring several others. Kahl escaped in the confusion and eluded law enforcement until June, when a standoff in Arkansas resulted in the death of Kahl and a sheriff.

Wickstrom loudly proclaimed Kahl the Posse's first martyr and, suddenly, the media was listening.

Wickstrom appeared on "20/20" with Geraldo Rivera, and on a memorable broadcast of "The Phil Donahue Show."

"The highpoint for Wickstrom was his appearance on 'Phil Donahue.' He completely snookered Donahue," says Daniel Levitas, author of The Terrorist Next Door and an expert on the Posse, adding that Wickstrom used Kahl as a rallying cry. "Wickstrom turned Kahl into a media megaphone."

Wickstrom toned down his racist rhetoric for the broadcast, and instead tailored his message to address the frustrations of the working class, emphasizing his love for country and strong Christian beliefs. Far from discrediting Wickstrom as a violent racist, the appearance was nearly an infomercial for Wickstrom's Posse.

But Wickstrom's turn as a television star was short-lived. Soon after Donahue, Wickstrom was charged with two counts of impersonating a public official relating to his activities in Tigerton Dells.

During the proceedings, prosecutor Douglas Haag successfully argued that "the question is whether or not a man with even marginal intelligence who can read and write the English language believes that he can put a fence around his back yard, set up a separate government and call himself a public official." Haag added that "if [Wickstrom] has a sincere belief that he is a public officer within the laws of the State of Wisconsin, I'm the Easter Bunny."

Wickstrom was convicted and received the maximum sentence, 13 1/2 months. But even with Wickstrom behind bars, the seeds he had planted in 1982 would take root in an unemployed trucker in Nebraska.

The results would prove to be deadly.

Hate Takes Root

Dennis Ryan, now 35, speaks in a gruff, gravelly voice that seems to suit the topic at hand — Dennis' childhood.

Dennis was 12 years old when his dad, Michael Ryan, told him to put down his football and pick up a rifle. That was the year his father met James Wickstrom, who told him Armageddon was coming and to prepare for battle.

Three years later, Dennis helped his father kill a man in Rulo, Neb.

In 1985, Dennis shot James Thimm

in the face. When Thimm, who had fallen out of favor with Mike Ryan, didn't immediately die, Mike had him chained inside a hog shed, kicked, beaten, and forced to have sex with a goat. At his father's request, 15-year-old Dennis shot off the man's fingers and partially skinned him. Thimm was anally raped with a shovel before Mike Ryan finally kicked him to death. The ordeal lasted two weeks.

Mike Ryan, a devotee of Wickstrom's teachings, had dutifully carried out his pastor's violent ideology, killing in the name of Yahweh. While Wickstrom has never lifted a finger to begin the race war he preaches is inevitable, in Ryan he found an apt pupil.

"I don't hold Wickstrom responsible for the crime I committed. I hold him responsible for getting my dad into it," Dennis tells the Intelligence Report. "Wickstrom didn't make my dad kill anybody, but he planted the seed. He planted it in my dad and then he helped it grow."

Daniel Levitas agrees. "There could not have been the tragedy in Rulo if there was not a James Wickstrom."

Mike Ryan had driven a truck for years until he broke his back, lost his job, and his family's luck took a turn for the worse. Out of work and in dire financial straits, Ryan began to cart his family around to different churches, never finding the message he sought until he heard Wickstrom speak in 1982.

"He was looking for something to believe in," recalls Dennis. "He didn't like blacks to begin with. I don't think he was ever a popular person growing up. I think that it was the right time for the wrong thing. He was weak and you don't let someone indoctrinate you into something like that unless you are weak-minded. He was all screwed up."

Some of the same frustrations Wickstrom had felt as a young man were mirrored in Ryan, and he too jumped into Identity with both feet.

"Wickstrom is dangerous to the extent of provoking others," says Kerry Noble. "He is typical of leaders. They won't do violent stuff, yet that's all they'll preach. They'll push buttons, but they are extremely cowardly."

Mike Ryan immediately took to Wickstrom's assurances that the end times and the battle of Armageddon were fast approaching. Wickstrom treated Ryan like a protégé, and soon steered several other of his supporters Ryan's way. Ryan, who through his association with Wickstrom was elevated to a position of power, gradually built up his own cultish following and began preparing them for battle.

"Jim Wickstrom was the reason Dad got into this stuff. He's the one who showed Dad how to talk to Yahweh, the reason we started getting guns and preparing for Armageddon," says Dennis. "He was always so amazed at all the weaponry and how well Jim Wickstrom and his followers in Tigerton Dells were armed."

Ryan moved his family farm from Whiting, Kan., to the farm in Rulo. He ordered them to steal farm equipment, livestock and weapons in the name of Yahweh.

The plan was simple and based on Wickstrom's teachings: "We were supposed to kill all Satan's people. Dad was supposed to be the King of Israel, and I was the Prince. He was supposed to die before the New Jerusalem was brought Zabawa warned that Ryan and his group were both capable of and willing to kill Jews and other perceived enemies of God.

Dennis says that Wickstrom was very much a part of those times, even after his father stopped going to hear him speak or attend paramilitary training sessions.

"Wickstrom wasn't physically a constant presence in our lives, he wasn't over all the time at the house or always on the phone with my dad, but he was there in that he was Dad's teacher," Dennis says. "We had all of his fliers and cassettes. Dad would even listen to Wickstrom sexual abuse. The boy survived until late March, when Ryan broke his neck in a fit of rage. Rick Stice helped bury his own son.

Months later, James Thimm would be buried nearby.

Dennis Ryan served 12 years on a second-degree murder conviction for his role in the death of James Thimm. Today, Dennis has been out of prison for eight years, has a family and works as a carpenter. He has no contact with his father, who remains on death row.

Dennis says his father's influence has left him cautious, slow to trust, and with

"I have a dream! If that goddamn nigger can have a dream, I can have a dream, too. I have a dream that in the days to come there won't be anyone who isn't white that's gonna be in America!"

down from Yahweh, and then I'd be the king," recalls Dennis, incredulous at the scenario he once put his faith in. "I believed it 110%. All the way. Hell, I helped kill a man for it, and I never once questioned it."

Before Thimm's murder, in 1984, Donald Zabawa, a former member of the Covenant, the Sword, and the Arm of the Lord, gave a confession to law enforcement as part of a plea deal. Zabawa's statement, a warning of what was to come, included what would prove to be an accurate assessment of Mike Ryan's activities and plans. Zabawa said it was well known that Ryan was considered "Wickstrom's main man in Kansas," and detailed the group's thefts and stockpiling of weapons.

while he was taking the garbage out."

Ryan ruled his flock through strict discipline and an atmosphere of fear. He had managed to convince them that Yahweh spoke to him and that Satan would soon be at their door. They obeyed without question.

But by January 1985, Ryan's religious fervor was consuming him. He became more and more violent, convinced that others were plotting against him. He began lashing out physically and inexplicably focused the bulk of his wrath and paranoia on Luke, the 5-year-old son of follower Rick Stice.

Ryan declared the child a spawn of Satan and convinced the boy's father to help inflict horrendous physical and little regard for organized religion. "I look at the Bible and it scares me because I know how people twist it and use it for their own benefit," he says. "I don't want some man up there telling me what God expects of me. I was told that before, and I killed someone."

Dennis takes a breath and continues. "So many people interpret the Bible so many different ways. I mean, take 9/11. That's their religious beliefs. They're no different than what my dad did except they actually carried it out. As far as killing thousands of people — that was his goal, too."

Levitas says that although Wickstrom had no direct role in the murders, "certainly the blood of the victims of Rulo is very much on his hands as a result of his recruitment of Mike Ryan." In his view, the events at Rulo are "a case in point that the speech of those on the far right often results in deadly action."

End Times

While Wickstrom was in jail for impersonating a public official, the government shut down the Tigerton compound for zoning violations. When he was released in the spring of 1985, Wickstrom moved to Pennsylvania. The terms of his probation forbade him from involving himself with the Posse Comitatus or any kind of political group for two years. But the irrepressible Wickstrom couldn't stay away for long.

Five years later, in 1990, Wickstrom would be sentenced to 38 months in prison for his role in a plot to print $100,000 in counterfeit bills to be distributed at the 1988 Aryan Nations World Congress and used to fund paramilitary activities. By the time he was released, the Posse had all but disappeared.

"Wickstrom's light has been fading ever since the compound at Tigerton Dells shut down. Wickstrom's heyday was in the period from 1978 to 1985. That was his period of peak influence," says Levitas. "Since then he's hopped around and been able to gather small groups of people around him, but he'll never return to his former stature in the movement."

In the 10 years since his release from prison, Wickstrom has been relatively low key. He has continued speaking to small groups across the country, selling speeches through the mail and the Internet, and also produced a weekly radio show for seven years. Wickstrom abandoned radio earlier this year, citing a desire to explore different directions.

But he has also kept busy exploring other men's wives. Rumors of womanizing have besieged the portly pastor for years, but no dalliance has been as flagrant and as divisive as the scandal he is currently embroiled in, which may be politically damaging for a preacher trying to make a comeback.

In the summer of 2003, Wickstrom took up with Kathleen Kallstrom, the wife of Identity minister Keith Kallstrom, who along with his father Loren Kallstrom had worked with Wickstrom during the heyday of Tigerton Dells.

Keith says Wickstrom secretly called his wife of 31 years for months. Then, on Aug. 15, 2003, Kathy made a trip to Wal-Mart and never came home. She made her way to Michigan and moved in with Wickstrom.

Keith Kallstrom was enraged, and the situation became so volatile that a council of Identity ministers, including Eli James, Dan Johns and Gary Blackwell, was convened in order to resolve the dispute between the men. In February 2004, Wickstrom refused to attend and lashed out at his peers, who Kallstrom says condemned Wickstrom's relationship with his wife.

"There are things that Jim Wickstrom teaches very well," Kallstrom says bitterly of his former friend. "But it's not just a matter of what you say and what you do, but how you lead your life. You do not stand behind the pulpit and preach the tenth commandment, 'thou shall not covet,' and then take another man's wife. You do not twist the word of God. You do not covet other people's blessings."

Although Wickstrom may have lost face with some of his peers, others have enthusiastically embraced him.

Charles Juba's Pennsylvania faction of the Aryan Nations hopes to capitalize on Wickstrom's stature. Days after Butler's death, Juba announced he was appointing Wickstrom "Chaplin" [sic]. An obvious choice for a group whose slogan for the coming year is "No Jew left alive in 2005," Wickstrom offers a message that after 30 years has neither mellowed nor strayed from its core — in fact, it appears to have intensified. Age may have turned Wickstrom from a vicious dog into a rabid one.

Wickstrom may not have the power of the Posse behind him these days, but he definitely has a vision for America that still draws a crowd, three generations later. One can only hope another Mike Ryan is not in the mix.

As he told a group of racist Skinheads last spring: "I have a dream! If that goddamn nigger can have a dream, I can have a dream, too. I have a dream that in the days to come there won't be anyone who isn't white that's gonna be in America!"

In response, a new generation of racists punched the air with their fists, crying "White Power!" and "Preach it!" as swastikas fluttered in the breeze. ▲

George Matousek, w/m, dob 03/23/1930, 5850 Hunter Road, Beaverton, MI 48612, 989-689-4855/989-879-3522, telephoned the BCRA and advised that he had several audio cassette tapes that he wanted to deliver to the FBI. The Investigating Agent knew Matousek from previous contacts, as Moutosek often delivered propaganda related audio/video tapes to the FBI. Matousek then described a phone conversation that he had hours earlier with James Wickstrom.

Matousek stated that Wickstrom told him this morning that a Reporter from the Bay City Times Newspaper, Bay City, Michigan, called him and wanted to interview Wickstrom. Apparantly, the Newspaper Reporter wanted to interview Wickstrom about a news-report that the FBI considered Wickstrom the "Bin Laden" of America. Matousek said that this was very troubling news for he and Wickstrom to hear, and that they both are considering ceasing all contact with SSA [redacted] and SA [redacted]

b7C

According to Matousek, Wickstrom refused to talk to the Reporter because the last time they spoke, the Reporter twisted things around to make Wickstrom look bad. Matousek went on to say that he doesn't trust SSRA [redacted] because he has read quotes by SSRA [redacted] and that everything that comes out of his mouth is against Wickstrom. Matousek said that he advised Wickstrom not to attend meetings if SSRA [redacted] is present because SSRA [redacted] demonizes Wickstrom, and because he went to the Synagogue last year and supported the jews.

Wickstrom was familiar with the investigating Agent from previous contact and he subsequently provided the following information:

Wickstrom stated that at approximately 11:30 a.m., on Friday, May 6, 2005, he observed a dark-colored vehicle drive slowly past his house. Synopsis: To update the receiving offices.

Full Investigation Initiated: 10/25/2004

Details: The purpose of this EC is to provide the receiving offices with an update pertaining to the captioned Subject.

Subject James P. Wickstrom, is a National Christian Identity Leader who resides in the Bay City Resident Agency territory. Christian Identity is a hate-filled religious sect descended from British Israelism which has come to dominate much of the leadership of the extreme right in the United States. Among its' beliefs are the notions that Jews are descended from Satan and that non-white races are inferior.

The most famous Christian Identity group is the Aryan Nations (AN); however, the religion can be found among groups ranging from Klan organizations to the Montana Freeman. It is reported that the sect has approximately 30,000 to 60,000 believers, but is disproportionately influential in the extreme right. Christian Identity believers tend to be among the most radical and committed members of the Anti-Government Extremist movement.

Wickstrom has a limited but national following who listen to his weekly teachings via cassette audio tape. The Anti-Defamation League described Wickstrom as an extreme hatermonger who uses Christianity to justify racism and anti-Semitism.

Based on the information contained herein, a Preliminary Investigation was initiated 04/15/2003 due to the possibility that criminal activity existed. The scope of the investigation was for the purpose of identification, ascertaining any connection to terrorist activities, and/or for asset development.

On 06/06/2003, Wickstrom was interviewed by SSA [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Detroit CT-1, and SA [REDACTED] BCRA. Wickstrom indicated that he was upset with the controversy that has been generated by the recently published article about him in what he called the "jew controlled" Bay City newspaper. Wickstrom advised that over the past two years, he has peacefully exercised his constitutional rights of freedom of speech/assembly and that the Bay City newspaper is to blame for creating the recent controversy.

On 02/13/2004, St. Louis Division conducted a search of U.S. Military records pertaining to Wickstrom. Wickstrom often claimed to have been a Vietnam veteran in the Infantry. A review of Wickstrom's records reveal that Wickstrom received an Honorable discharge from the U.S. Army on 01/31/1970 and that his specialty title was Supply Handler. Further review indicate that Wickstrom's only overseas service was from 10/10/1965 to 01/19/1966 in Okinawa. According to the Army personnel file, Wickstrom's highest appointed rank was Private First Class, which he obtained on 10/05/1964.

On 10/14/2004, the Bay City newspaper reported that Wickstrom had taken on a national leadership role with the AN group based in Pennsylvania. A news release from the AN said that Wickstrom was picked by AN leader [REDACTED] to lead the group because he was the most knowledgeable in Racial Identity teaching, is the most feared, and the most hated by the enemies of the AN.

In the winter of 2004, the Intelligence Report Magazine published an article titled "Return of the Pastor". It highlighted how Christian Identity Preacher James Wickstrom had been preaching hate for decades. The author continued by highlighting how Wickstrom's new role with an AN off-shoot group could make the fire-breathing Pastor one of the radical right's most influential figure.

In view of the information that Wickstrom was now closely associated with the AN, the PI was converted on 10/25/2004 to a Full Investigation.

At approximately 2:52 pm, SSA [] received a telephone call at his desk telephone in the FBI field office [] from a caller who identified himself as Jim Wickstrom. After an exchange of initial greetings, Wickstrom provided the following information.

Wickstrom celebrated with his Identity Church group the "Feast of First Fruits" over the past weekend. On Friday evening and Saturday, the Michigan State Police pulled over with traffic stops everyone attending the function as they were leaving the event. The police stopped about twenty cars over the two days. In some cases, the police, after the driver asked the reason for the stop, informed the driver that the car fit the description of a car seen driving recklessly, and, the police wanted to identify the car occupants. In some cases, the police gave no explanation for the stop.

The police ticketed one driver who was about 70 years old for reckless driving. This person noticed a van parked on the side of the road about one half mile from where the Identity Church event was taking place. He drove toward the van and the van pulled back onto the roadway. He then followed the van. A state police officer then pulled him over and stated that the state trooper was "told to give a ticket" to the driver for reckless driving.

When Wickstrom heard about these stops from the people who were being pulled over, Wickstrom called the county sheriff's office to determine if these stops were being done by real police or whether someone else was involved who were not police. The sheriff dispatcher told Wickstrom that no one at the sheriff's office was aware of the traffic stops. He was later told that in fact the stops were being done by real police. After Wickstrom's telephone call to the sheriff's office, the traffic stops stopped.

Wickstrom was concerned that the police were looking for trouble and to cause "another Gordon Kahl incident". Wickstrom noticed three to four unmarked cars watching his group and three to SSA [] received a telephone call at his desk telephone [] in the FBI field office from a caller who identified himself as Jim Wickstrom. SSA [] recognized the caller as James P. After an exchange of initial greetings, Wickstrom provided the following information.

He was "out of town" and could not meet with SSA [] on 06/24/2005 as previously arranged. He also wanted to "see how [SSA [] was doing."

In response to an earlier e-mail from Wickstrom, SSA [] assured Wickstrom that neither SSA [] nor SA [] had any issues with the FBI because of their meetings with Wickstrom and George Matousek; and, that SA [] transfer from the Bay City Residence Agency was not related to these meetings. Wickstrom advised that he became concerned about SSA [] and SA [] after he spoke to George Matousek. Wickstrom advised that Matousek had concluded that the FBI was transferring SA [] because of SA [] relationship with Matousek and Wickstrom. This is the only email address that I will communicate to you on.

I have been told that our "lunches" have created a hostile setting [redacted] [redacted] I am sorry to hear this, but it does not surprise me.
I figured that it would be just a matter of time and the hammer would come down.....and that our mutual meetings would come to a halt.

b6
b7C
b7E

I want you to know.....that [redacted] are the ONLY other two of your kind that I have come to trust and admire in over 30 years. The other was [redacted]....retired [redacted] branch...when, he too, was transfired [redacted] from Wisconsin [redacted]

Shortly thereafter.....he was transferred.

This is the medium of correspondence that I will have with you from now on.....if that is acceptable to you. I know all incoming calls are monitored (or they should be)...that come to your landline number in Detroit. As to your cell phone, I do not know??

If I have created a problem for [redacted]....I surely apologize as that was not the intent.

I pray that you and your entire family are in good health and are fine. We are fine here. From the earlier actions here by the massive State Police (?) happening here, I now am looking 360 degrees at all times again.

b6
b7C

Remember what I said to you the first time we met? What if just 25% of what I tell you and show you is true? Well...it is, and in fact, a lot more than 25% is true.

Be careful and watch your back at all times. Remember what the Proverbs say...."With much wisdom, comes much sorrow." There are many who do not want the truth to be known.

I await your reply to this email. I am also very sorry to hear about the situation with [redacted] That also didn't surprise me. Please convey my best to him. He is a damn good man. You both are.

Keith Eugene Kallstrom, date of birth October 30, 1949, who resides at 8217 South Peach Street, Broken Arrow, Oklahoma 74011, telephone number 918-852-1717, was interviewed at the Bay County Jail by Special Agent [redacted] and Detective Sergeant [redacted] Fire Marshal, Michigan State Police. Kallstrom was advised of the identities of the interviewing Agent and detective, and the nature of the interview. Prior to any questioning, Kallstrom was shown form FD-395, Interrogation Advice of Rights. Kallstrom was asked if he could read and write English. He responded that he could, but, that he unfortunately did not have his glasses, so he would be unable to clearly read any form. Kallstrom answered that he did understand his rights and that he would speak with the investigators, then signed the form. Kallstrom then provided the following information:

Kallstrom had not seen Wickstrom since 1982. However, he admitted that he had spoken with Wickstrom over the phone on a few occasions. Wickstrom sent [redacted] audio tapes of his sermons. Kallstrom stated that he believed that is how Wickstrom tried to get [redacted]

b7C

When asked about how Kallstrom felt towards Wickstrom, he stated he "cannot pray for destruction, but he can make charges". Kallstrom was asked to clarify what he meant by "charges" and he responded that he did not mean "charges" in the legal sense, but in the spiritual/Biblical sense.

During the interview, Kallstrom stated, without prompting, that he wanted to kill Wickstrom and [redacted] and that Wickstrom would be "judged under Biblical law".

Kallstrom advised that he left Oklahoma on Sunday morning and drove "20-plus hours" and "1,000-plus miles" to get to the Pinconning area.

Kallstrom stated that he had possessed the grenades found in his truck for approximately 30 years. However, he did not know why the grenades were in his truck. Later in the interview, when asked about the grenades again, Kallstrom stated that he had moved them from his home to his truck when [redacted]

Kallstrom told [redacted] that he was going to Arkansas for work. When asked why he did not tell [redacted] where he was going, Kallstrom responded that [redacted] did not need to know". Kallstrom has [redacted]

Kallstrom stated that since he arrived so late in the Pinconning area on Sunday that he "did not have time to look for [redacted]". When asked why he would make a 40-plus hour, round-trip drive from Oklahoma to Michigan, but then not take the time to look for [redacted] Kallstrom responded that "He showed me a better way". Kallstrom stated that "the Father told him to contact a lawyer about [redacted]"

When asked why Kallstrom felt obligated to drive 20 hours to "talk to [redacted]" as opposed to calling information and asking for her phone number, Kallstrom replied that he only owned a cell phone, that the 411 call would be considered long distance and was too expensive. He was then asked if it made sense for him to spend more money on gas, food, and lodging for the 40-hour, round-trip drive, than the information call cost. Kallstrom replied that he "just wanted to talk to [redacted] Kallstrom was asked why he didn't attempt to access the internet to locate [redacted] phone number or address. He stated that he did not have access or know anyone who had access to the internet. He was then asked why he did not attempt to go to a public library and access the internet from there. Kallstrom responded that it would have taken too much time.

When Kallstrom was arrested, he had been seen taking handcuffs on and off. When asked about that, Kallstrom stated he was "just playing" with the handcuffs. He advised that he bought the handcuffs approximately four weeks ago. he also advised that the weapons found in his truck were for his protection. Kallstrom stated that he needed protection from the Aryan Nations. He said that the Aryan Nations was a dangerous organization, but, he did not know this first-hand, he only knew of their reputation.

Kallstrom again stated that he "would like to see Wickstrom dead and [redacted]"

Kallstrom stated that he considered himself a "minister and judge between right and wrong". People "should be judged by those in the proper position".

The purpose of Kallstrom's visit to Michigan was to "pray for [redacted] He stated he was willing to "take the risk to talk to [redacted] if she could be located".

Kallstrom advised he knew of Leroy Marquiss. Marquiss testified against Kallstrom at Kallstrom's PPO hearing in 2004. Kallstrom came to Bay City, Michigan, in 2004 to fight the PPO order. Kallstrom wanted to argue the PPO order, because he "did not want it on his record". While in the Bay City area, Kallstrom met with [redacted] Kallstrom also met with [redacted] on Sunday July 31, 2005, two days before his arrest. He stated that he and [redacted] "talked about scripture" and have "become friends". However, Kallstrom did not stay with [redacted] while in the Bay City area.

Road. When asked what he did while he was in the Bay City area, Kallstrom advised that he prayed, ate, and slept. SA [redacted] estimated that Kallstrom spent an average of three hours per day eating. Based on a 24-hour day, that meant 21 hours were spent sleeping or praying at the rest stop. Kallstrom advised that "seemed about right".

Kallstrom admitted that he asked [redacted] for help in locating [redacted]. But, [redacted] did not help Kallstrom. Kallstrom stated that he "did not think [redacted] wanted me around Sunday night".

b7C

Kallstrom stated he "would be fine if Wickstrom was killed". Kallstrom admitted that he "could have killed Wickstrom when he knew where Wickstrom lived". He knew that Wickstrom lived in a home in Essexville, Michigan. In the summer of 2004, Kallstrom had driven by the house while Wickstrom and [redacted] were living there.

As a "minister of the word", Kallstrom said he could not kill Wickstrom. However, he called Wickstrom a "false preacher".

Realizing that he was going to miss a scheduled court appearance in Oklahoma on Monday morning, Kallstrom attempted to call his attorney, [redacted] of the Price Law Firm, Tulsa, Oklahoma, to inform him that he would not be able to attend the hearing.

The camouflage clothing that was found in Kallstrom's truck was to be used "in case he needed it to talk to [redacted]". Kallstrom stated that he would "do whatever it takes to talk to [redacted]". He has owned the camouflage clothing "for years". There "may be some dirt" on the camouflage clothing. A ski mask was also found in Kallstrom's truck. Kallstrom advised he has "never worn" the ski mask and that he believed [redacted] purchased it. The ski mask was painted for "camouflage for battle". He said he threw the ski mask in the truck "right before" he left Oklahoma.

Kallstrom rents the home he lives in. He was not certain who was the management company.

Kallstrom and Wickstrom have known each other from the early-1970s. Kallstrom advised that he "taught Wickstrom a lot". But, Kallstrom no longer considers Wickstrom a "good man".

Kallstrom is a minister in the Mission of Jesus Christ Church. The church has locations in Oklahoma and Missouri. The main location is 17540 East 112th Street North, Owasso, Oklahoma.

While in Pinconning, Kallstrom went to the Post Office [redacted] Kallstrom asked a female postal employee for [redacted] residence, but, the employee refused to give it out. Kallstrom told the post office employee that he needed to contact [redacted] regarding a family reunion. Kallstrom did not tell the employee that he was [redacted]. He stated he was hoping to get the opportunity to approach [redacted] at the post office.

b7C

Kallstrom admitted that he came to the Bay City/Pinconning area earlier than Sunday, which is contrary to what he originally stated. Kallstrom knew that [redacted] was in the Pinconning area because [redacted] had received a letter from [redacted] with a Pinconning return address.

Kallstrom stated that he had never met Leroy Marquiss, nor had he vandalized Marquiss' car.

The night of the fire at the Marquiss Furniture store, Kallstrom claimed that he had checked into a Holiday Inn in St. Louis, Missouri. He advised that he was in St. Louis so he could drive to Joplin, Missouri, to attempt to gain employment at Lowe's. He said the garden manager was a woman and the store manager was a man. But, he was unable to remember either one of their names.

When asked about the Holiday Inn receipt found in his car, Kallstrom advised that he used to keep all of his receipts, but someone "stole his receipts out of his house". He stated that he kept this specific receipt because after he spoke with SA [redacted] regarding the fire at the Marquiss Furniture Store, he knew he would be suspected and contacted by the police.

Kallstrom advised that he "always carried diesel fuel" in his truck.

b6
b7C

Kallstrom admitted that he saw [redacted] at her home in Essexville during the summer of 2004.

When asked if Kallstrom set the fire at the Marquiss Furniture Store, he responded that [redacted] would not come home if she knew I (Kallstrom) did anything." Kallstrom was then asked if he was in the area to kill Wickstrom, to which he replied: "If something happened to Wickstrom, [redacted] would know it would be me."

Kallstrom obtained Wickstrom's P.O. box from a friend who had access to the internet. However, Kallstrom stated earlier that he did not know of anyone who had access to the internet.

b6
b7C

Kallstrom stated that he had not been to the Rhodes/Pinconning area before the weekend.

Kallstrom stated that [redacted] was always a good woman until she met Jim Wickstrom."

Kallstrom gave the deputies consent to search his car, a gray 1985 Ford, crew-cab, pick-up truck, Oklahoma license plate X12931, VIN 2FTJW351XFCB27426, registered to Church of the Redeemer King. Upon searching the truck, deputies found a loaded AR-15 assault rifle, a loaded Remington 870 shotgun, a loaded Beretta 9mm pistol, hundreds of rounds of ammunition, camouflage clothing, a ski mask, and a camouflage tarp. A green, metal ammunition can was also located in the rear seat of the truck. When the deputies opened the can, they discovered four live hand grenades. At that time, the deputies ceased the search of the car, placed Kallstrom under arrest, and called in the Michigan State Police (MSP) bomb squad.

The MSP bomb squad cleared the vehicle and removed the grenades. The grenades were rendered safe with a PAN device and the all-clear was given for the search of the vehicle to commence. The grenade fragments were sent to the MSP Crime Lab for further analysis.

The search of the vehicle recovered numerous handwritten documents, a large Bible containing handwritten notes in the margins and loose pieces of paper inserted between pages. The notes contained names and phone numbers of Kallstrom's friends and associates, as well as the home and business addresses of Leroy Marquiss. Marquiss was the owner of a furniture store in Essexville, MI, where Wickstrom used to preach. Marquiss also testified against Kallstrom in a personal protection order (PPO) hearing initiated by [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] The furniture store was intentionally set on fire approximately one and one-half years ago. Kallstrom had been interviewed previously about the fire [REDACTED] but denied any involvement and provided a lengthy, out-of-state alibi. However, when he was asked about the fire subsequent to his arrest, Kallstrom admitted to being in the Essexville/Bay City, MI, area around the time of the fire, but denied any involvement in the fire. Kallstrom's cellular phone was also recovered from his truck.

Kallstrom showed up at the church every few months and asked to park his truck in the church parking lot. The times when Kallstrom would arrive coincided with the times when Wickstrom was holding his periodic meetings.

b7C

Kallstrom asked [REDACTED] help him find [REDACTED] refused but advised Kallstrom that maybe God would help him. [REDACTED] stated that he and Kallstrom prayed after that discussion.

The Sunday before he was arrested, Kallstrom came to the church. [REDACTED] advised that Kallstrom was clean and wearing a suit. [REDACTED] remembered this as the only time he saw Kallstrom like that. [REDACTED] confronted Kallstrom on his interpretation of the Old Testament. Kallstrom was shocked that she knew as much as she did. When discussing how Kallstrom decided to handle the situation with [REDACTED] Kallstrom told [REDACTED] "I've got my answer. I'm giving it over to the Lord." Kallstrom then asked [REDACTED] to come with him. [REDACTED] and Kallstrom have not spoken since Kallstrom was arrested.

b7C

[REDACTED] did not believe that Kallstrom was hostile or suicidal. However, he did believe that Kallstrom would do everything in his power to take [REDACTED] back. On a previous visit, Kallstrom gave [REDACTED] one hundred dollars to assist in finding [REDACTED] refused and tried to give Kallstrom back the money. However, Kallstrom said he could not accept the money because it was "seed money".

Kallstrom called [REDACTED] each time [REDACTED] ran off.

[REDACTED] advised that he did not think Wickstrom was "any better" than Kallstrom. He thought Wickstrom was more dangerous than Kallstrom.

[REDACTED] did not believe that Kallstrom had any intention of killing [REDACTED]. However, he did believe that Kallstrom would try to kill Wickstrom. [REDACTED] had no connection to Wickstrom.

b7C

Kallstrom would not have any problem taking Wickstrom physically. [REDACTED] believed that he had "talked Kallstrom down". [REDACTED] explained that Kallstrom was under the belief that he would not perform any act that would preclude him from becoming a pastor. Kallstrom could not be a pastor if he were divorced, and one cannot become divorced if the other is committing adultery.

[REDACTED] did not know that a personal protection order (PPO) existed on Kallstrom.

Kallstrom knew where Wickstrom [REDACTED] were living. [REDACTED] stated he thought that Kallstrom was waiting to find [REDACTED] as she drove by.

[REDACTED] did not know that Kallstrom was the one who filed for the divorce. He advised that if he would have known that he would not have helped Kallstrom as much as he did.

Kallstrom told [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] is a white supremacist. Kallstrom believed that Eve was seduced in the Garden of Eden and that is where blacks came from. Kallstrom told [REDACTED] that blacks did not have souls.

Kallstrom did not advocate a violent overthrow of the government. [REDACTED] advised that he believed this due to the way Kallstrom discussed the Angel of Death prayer.

[REDACTED] is a Baptist preacher in [REDACTED] Michigan. [REDACTED] is a white supremacist who lives in the thumb of Michigan.

Kallstrom did not discuss his anti-Semitic or white supremacist beliefs with [REDACTED]. Kallstrom said that [REDACTED] could be "within the realm of God's grace".

Kidnaping

James P. Wickstrom;

Synopsis: To set lead to Little Rock Division to interview

Details: For background, James P. Wickstrom is the World Chaplain of the Aryan Nations (AN) white supremacist organization. AN advocates hatred of the jews and blacks, and speaks of preparation for the coming invasion of United Nations troops onto U.S. soil. As a result, AN members are usually armed, maintain stockpiles of weapons, and are suspicious of law enforcement. Wickstrom also follows and preaches the Christian Identity movement. Christian Identity is a hate-filled religious sect descended from British Israelism which has come to dominate much of the leadership of the extreme right in the United States. Among its beliefs are the notions that Jews are descended from Satan and that non-white races are inferior.

Wickstrom had previously resided in the Bay City territory but moved to Madisonville, TN, in July, 2003. However, he suddenly moved back to the Bay City territory from Madisonville, TN, in October, 2003.

Wickstrom preached out of a furniture store in Essexville, MI, until 06/21/2004 when the store was burned down as a result of arson. No one has been charged with setting the fire. As a result, Wickstrom retreated to his home in Gladwin County, MI, and began holding services in Pinconning, MI. His following diminished as a result of the subsequent media attention and the lack of security provided to the followers.

Keith Kallstrom and Wickstrom have known each other for approximately 30 years. However, the two had a falling out and saw each other only periodically at Christian Identity assemblies across the country. A personal protection order (PPO), similar to a restraining order, was issued in Michigan against Kallstrom. He continually fought the ruling and came to Michigan for each hearing in an attempt to see [REDACTED] Kallstrom accused [REDACTED] of adultery and fornication and that only God could grant a divorce by death.

b7C

On 08/02/2005, Kallstrom was arrested in Pinconning, MI, approximately five miles away from the home where Wickstrom and [REDACTED] were living. Although Kallstrom stated he was in the area just to "talk to [REDACTED]" a search of his truck returned a loaded AR-15 with multiple loaded magazines, a loaded Remington 870 shotgun, a loaded Beretta 9mm handgun, and four live hand grenades. Kallstrom also possessed a set of camouflage clothing, a ski mask, a camouflage tarp, and a set of handcuffs. Upon his arrest, Kallstrom stated that he recently purchased the handcuffs for fun. However, the police were initially called because passers-by witnessed Kallstrom

Synopsis: To notify [redacted] and Detroit of possible fraudulent income scheme used by Domestic Terrorist members and/or groups; and to request SA [redacted] review information for possible IIR dissemination.

Details: Detroit Source provided information that above-captioned subject, James P. Wickstrom, has begun advertising for, hosting meetings on, and selling "gas pills".

Source advised that Wickstrom advertises the use of the "gas pills" to extend the gas mileage of the purchaser's car. The pills are designed to be placed in the gas tank of the purchaser's car, and through an unknown chemical process, the car would obtain better gas mileage. The "gas pills" were manufactured by a company in Europe (NFI) then distributed to the United States. Source did not know of what the pills were composed. Source advised that the pills could also be crushed into powder form and placed into the car's gas tank. Source believed that Wickstrom was selling the pills to capitalize on the public's fear and concern over the rise in gas prices.

MARGARET HARDING THE BAY CITY TIMES

BAY CITY — Keith Kallstrom said all he wanted to do was talk with his estranged wife when he traveled from Oklahoma to Michigan, carrying multiple firearms, ammunition and four grenades.

He never got the chance. Police arrested him Tuesday morning with a truck full of weapons, binoculars, a ski mask and handcuffs while he was stopped at a Pinconning gasoline station and restaurant. Federal agents say he possibly was targeting his former friend, James P. Wickstrom, a white supremacist now living in the Pinconning area. Kallstrom's wife, Kathleen, has worked for Wickstrom as his secretary and nanny.

"There was never any intent for me to cause crime," Kallstrom, 55, said via video feed during one of two arraignments Wednesday in Bay County District Judge Timothy J. Kelly's courtroom. "I have never been involved in any crime whatsoever. I have never harmed anybody or threatened anybody."

Prosecutors believe otherwise. The Oklahoma man faces five felonies involving the unlawful possession of weapons. The charge involving the grenades is punishable by 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Kelly also arraigned him on a charge of violating a personal protection order requested by his wife in 2004.

Kathleen Kallstrom told authorities last year that she felt threatened by letters her husband sent her as she worked for Wickstrom. In the letters, Kallstrom told his wife "the wages of sin is death" and warned her that according to "Yahweh," the penalty for fornication is death.

FBI officials have said they warned Wickstrom about Keith Kallstrom in the past.

During the arraignment, Kallstrom said he came to Michigan because his wife owes money in taxes, but was on his way home when police stopped him.

"I had been in prayer," Kallstrom said. "The Father told me I didn't have to do anything but go home and make a call to a lawyer."

A witness called 911 after seeing Kallstrom acting suspiciously and with a set of handcuffs at the Pinconning gasoline station. He told police he was practicing with the handcuffs in case he needed them for his wife.

"He poses a very serious risk," said Kurt Asbury, Bay County chief assistant prosecutor. "Not only to Ms. Kathleen Kallstrom, he also, I believe, poses a very serious risk and danger to the public at large."

Kallstrom said the assortment of firearms, camouflaged clothing, ski mask and binoculars found in his truck were not to cause harm to anyone.

"These weapons are for my protection," he said.

Kallstrom shook his head repeatedly while the police report was read in the courtroom. He insisted he only wanted to talk to his wife about taxes.

Asbury said that's unlikely.

"I don't believe that is credible, based on the evidence discovered and his past tumultuous relationship with his wife," Asbury said. "I don't buy it."

Kelly set bond at $1 million.

Keith Kallstrom said all he wanted to do was talk to his wife when he traveled from Oklahoma to Michigan, carrying multiple firearms, ammunition and four grenades.

He never got the chance to do that. Police arrested him Tuesday morning with a truck full of weapons, binoculars, a ski mask and handcuffs while he was stopped at a Pinconning gas station and restaurant. Federal agents say he may have been targeting his former friend, James P. Wickstrom, a white supremacist now living in the Pinconning area. Kallstrom's wife, Kathleen, has worked for Wickstrom as his secretary and nanny.

The charge involving the grenades is punishable by 15 years in prison and or a $10,000 fine. He was also arraigned Wednesday on a charge of violating a personal protection order taken against him by his wife and upheld by a Bay County judge in 2004.

White supremacist alleged target of man found with firearms

TIMES WRITERS

An Oklahoma man who was allegedly targeting white supremacist leader James P. Wickstrom was expected to be arraigned today in Bay County on state charges, with federal charges to come.

The man, identified by law enforcement officials as Keith Kallstrom, 54, was allegedly carrying an "assortment of firearms" and explosives in his vehicle when he was stopped by Bay County Sheriff's deputies at a combination McDonald's and Shell gas station on East Pinconning Road in Pinconning on Tuesday morning.

The man was scheduled to be arraigned by District Judge Timothy J. Kelly at 1:30 p.m. today.

Walt Reynolds, regional director for the FBI in Bay City, said authorities are concerned that the man was in mid-Michigan, and are investigating what his intentions were.

Reynolds said it's alleged that the man was targeting Wickstrom, a former friend.

"We have had intelligence in Wickstrom's, has a personal protection order against him from his wife, Kathleen. The woman was the secretary and nanny for Wickstrom when she had the order upheld by a Bay County judge in 2004, saying she felt threatened by letters her husband was sending her.

The man was arrested after police received a 911 call about a suspicious person sitting in a 1985 gray Ford truck, in the area of Pinny Lanes/The Cheesehouse & Diner.

"The caller thought he looked like he was sawing handcuffs off," Chlebowsky said. "He thought that was kind of suspicious."

The man cooperated with police when he was questioned, Chlebowsky said.

"I think he was surprised," Chlebowsky said. "There was no opportunity for him to do anything."

Bomb disposal officers from the regional crime labs in both Bridgeport and Grayling assisted officers, Chlebowsky said. He would not comment on the type of weapons found.

"We're still investigating where they came from and how they were obtained," Chlebowsky said of the weapons.

A joint investigation is ongoing, Reynolds said, looking at if the weapons were illegally obtained, among other things. The Sheriff's Office is working with the FBI, Michigan State Police, state fire marshal and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The officers who first responded had no idea what situation they would face, said Sgt. Daryl Middleton of the Michigan State Police.

"They took a potentially nothing complaint and handled it with professionalism and prevented a potentially catastrophic event," Middleton said.

White supremacist faces more charges

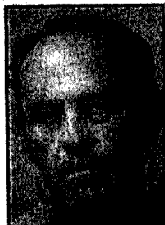

Authorities say suspect solicited murder of Aryan Nations leader

By TIM YOUNKMAN

TIMES WRITER

A white supremacist minister, already in custody on firearm and explosives possession charges, now has been charged with five counts of using the mail to solicit murder.

Keith Kallstrom, 54, of Tulsa, Okla., was arrested on Aug. 2, 2005, at a gas station near Pinconning after customers saw him acting suspiciously. Police found grenades and weapons in his possession and believed he was attempting to find his ex-wife and his former friend James P. Wickstrom, who were reportedly living together.

Kallstrom

Wickstrom is a white supremacist "Christian Identity" pastor and world chaplain for an Aryan Nations group. Wickstrom at one time operated out of a furniture store in Hampton Township that authorities say was burned down by an arsonist; no arrests have been made in that incident.

Kallstrom had been housed in the Bay County Jail pending arraignment and other hearings in U.S. District Court, but was moved recently to a cell at the Clare County Jail.

Bay County Sheriff John E. Miller confirmed that Kallstrom was moved to Clare County for his safety and to keep him away from witnesses in the Bay County Jail.

Kallstrom allegedly used the mail to solicit two other inmates to kill Wickstrom and Kathleen Kallstrom.

Walter Reynolds, senior supervisory agent of the FBI office in Bay City, said Keith Kallstrom was arraigned on all charges last week. He faces charges of illegal possession of firearms and four destructive devices (grenades), transporting explosive devices in violation of federal law, and five counts of soliciting murder by mail.

The solicitations occurred on Nov. 7, 14, 20 and 29, as well as Dec. 1, Reynolds said.

Further details of the murder plot were not released.

Miller said there have been no special security measures put in place for the two inmates who have become federal witnesses.

Their identities have not been released.

Reynolds said it is expected that Kallstrom will undergo psychiatric evaluation prior to his trial.

Kallstrom pleaded not guilty to all charges at his arraignment and he was remanded to jail without bond pending trial. A trial date will be set later.

A nationally known white supremacist who conducted meetings at a Hampton Township furniture store before an arsonist torched it, will preach again in mid-Michigan via the airwaves.

James P.

Wickstrom is a self-avowed racist whose "Christian Identity" teachings maintain that Jews descended from Satan and white Western Europeans descended from Adam.

A tape featuring him speaking will appear on the Midland Community TV public access channel in January. No firm date is set yet.

Wickstrom lives in the Pinconning area, according to the local FBI office. He has a post office box in Rhodes.

The 90-minute prerecorded show, "The Enemy Among Us," will air four times, said Melissa J. Barnard, director of the Grace A. Dow Memorial Library, where the MCTV studios are housed.

Tapes produced outside the studio are subject to available scheduling, Barnard said, and holiday programming has filled the roster this month.

While many might find Wickstrom's views objectionable, Barnard said, the broadcast is protected through Midland's strict adherence to the First Amendment, guaranteeing free speech.

As long as programming meets the rules - in particular that the person presenting it for broadcast resides in Midland County - it will air.

Randy Gray is the Midland contact. He also submitted a video, "This is The Klan," that aired on MCTV in October.

Gray said Tuesday that Wickstrom is not conducting interviews at this time and directed reporters to a Web site Wickstrom maintains.

[redacted] date of birth [redacted] Social Security Account Number [redacted] was interviewed telephonically by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] at his place of employment, [redacted] Michigan, telephone number [redacted]. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and the nature of the interview, [redacted] provided the following information:

b6

Since [redacted] and SA [redacted] last spoke [redacted] has not had any contact with KEITH KALLSTROM, either via telephone, mail, or electronic mail. [redacted] advised that he has made no attempt to contact KALLSTROM on his own.

[redacted] stated that since KALLSTROM stayed in the church parking lot the night before he was arrested, then KALLSTROM must have had the grenades with him on church property. He admitted that he was mad with KALLSTROM for possessing the grenades on church property and that KALLSTROM would probably not want to see him.

[redacted] described KALLSTROM as "not teachable". He further described that to mean that KALLSTROM had his own belief system within the Christian religion and would only try to argue with or convince others that his views were correct.

When asked about the "Death Angel" prayer that had been given to him by KALLSTROM [redacted] recalled that he could not locate it when he and SA [redacted] had previously discussed KALLSTROM, but he would again look for the prayer. [redacted] stated that he was so disgusted with the prayer and KALLSTROM's request, that he more than likely threw the prayer away shortly after receiving it.

b7C

KALLSTROM believed that if [redacted] and others said the "Death Angel" prayer at the same time, then the "Death Angel would visit" JAMES WICKSTROM. [redacted] told KALLSTROM that he could not participate in the prayer because it "called for the death of JIM WICKSTROM".

b6
b7C

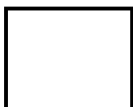

KALLSTROM requested that [redacted] who shared similar beliefs as KALLSTROM. KALLSTROM also wanted this couple to participate in the "Death Angel" prayer.

admitted that he contacted this couple, but, could not remember their names or telephone number. He did, however, recall that the couple were white supremacists, but did not share the exact same beliefs as KALLSTROM. The husband in the relationship described KALLSTROM as being "off the wall".

KALLSTROM believed in God in a singular manner, similar to how the Muslims believed in God, that god was omnipresent and was only one being. Whereas, true Christians believed that God was a three-entity being split amongst the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit.

b7C

It was impression that KALLSTROM believed if he were able to get enough people together to perform the "Death Angel" prayer at the same time, then WICKSTROM would die.

At the time of his arrest, Kallstrom was in possession of four live fragmentation hand grenades, a loaded Beretta 9mm handgun, a loaded AR-15 assault rifle, a loaded Remington 870 shotgun, over 700 rounds of ammunition, a pair of handcuffs, two pairs of binoculars, camouflage clothing, and a ski mask, among other items.

At the scene, during his transportation to Bay County jail, and during his interview by an ATF Agent and Bay County Sheriff's Office detectives, Kallstrom advised that he was in the area to locate [redacted] and attempt to reconcile [redacted]

b7C

However, during a subsequent interview conducted by the writer and Michigan State Police Detective Sergeant [redacted] [redacted] Kallstrom admitted that he wanted to kill James Wickstrom and that he wanted to take [redacted] back to Oklahoma, by force, if necessary. Wickstrom is a pastor within the Christian Identity movement and was the previous spiritual leader of the Aryan Nations.

Kallstrom was lodged at the Bay County jail and was subsequently indicted by Federal Grand Jury on possession of an explosive device and transportation of said explosive devices across state lines (Title 26, USC 5861(d) and Title 18, USC 922(a)(4), respectively).

Re: 7A-DE-98882, 01/20/2007

Kallstrom was subsequently indicted on five superceding charges of using the mail for the purpose of soliciting a murder (Title 18, USC 1958).

While incarcerated, Kallstrom was ordered to undergo a psychiatric evaluation. However, when Kallstrom arrived at the psychiatric center, he refused to submit to any of the examinations.

The writer attempted to obtain handwriting exemplars from Kallstrom on two occasions. The writer had obtained a court order from the Honorable David M. Lawson, United States District Court, Eastern District of Michigan, Northern Division, compelling Kallstrom to submit to the handwriting exemplars. However, Kallstrom refused the order and was later found in Contempt of Court.

Trial began on 01/08/2007 before the Honorable Thomas J. Ludington, United States District Court, Eastern District of Michigan, Northern Division, Bay City, MI. After three and-a-half days of testimony, the case was turned over to the jury to deliberate the charges. After approximately six hours, the jury returned guilty verdicts on all charges. Kallstrom was then returned to the custody of the US Marshals Service and was transported to the Milan Federal Detention Center (FDC), Milan, MI, to await sentencing.

Prior to his trial, Kallstrom was being held at Milan FDC. Kallstrom was transported from Milan FDC to the Bay County jail where he would be housed during the course of the trial. On the first day of trial, Kallstrom refused to clothe himself at the jail and did not want to go to the Federal Courthouse (FCH), which is directly across the street from the Bay County jail.

After being clothed and brought to the US Marshals office, which is located on the floor above the courtroom, Kallstrom complained of chest pain. Paramedics were called to the US Marshals office, but Kallstrom refused treatment. Kallstrom was then brought to the courtroom and placed at the defendant's table. Approximately 15 minutes into the AUSA's opening statement, Kallstrom fell out of his chair and laid on the ground complaining of chest pain. Paramedics were called again. During this instance, Kallstrom allowed himself to be treated. Paramedics attempted to run an EKG on Kallstrom, but he initially refused. Only after Judge Ludington interjected did Kallstrom allow the paramedics to run an EKG. However, Kallstrom did not fully comply with the paramedic's instructions, and the EKG returned an abnormal heart rate. As a result, the paramedic recommended that Kallstrom be transported to Bay Regional Medical Center (Bay Med) for further examination.

While in the ambulance en route to Bay Med, Kallstrom refused the protocol response treatment for unknown chest pain which was a saline IV, a dose of nitro-glycerin, four baby aspirin, and oxygen. Kallstrom stated that he did not take any medications and did not want any medications. The writer and two Deputy US Marshals assisted in transporting Kallstrom to Bay Med.

Upon arriving at Bay Med, Kallstrom again refused treatment and would not allow the attending nurse to administer a saline IV. The writer advised Kallstrom that the IV was not medication and was used for re-hydration. Kallstrom stated that he would accept the IV. However, when the writer left the room to interview the transporting paramedic and EMT, Kallstrom again refused treatment, including the IV. As a result, Kallstrom was returned to FCH. The trial resumed without any further interruptions that day.

That night at the Bay County jail, Kallstrom refused to return his spoon to the corrections officers (COs). As a result of his refusing orders from the COs and possessing a possible weapon, Kallstrom was pepper-sprayed once and Tasered four times.

The second day of the trial, 01/09/2007, Kallstrom again refused to come to FCH. During the trial proceedings, Kallstrom repeatedly stood up and announced that he wanted the trial to end and that he requested a mistrial. That night at the Bay County jail, Kallstrom fought with four COs and again had to be Tasered. During one of the fights, Kallstrom kicked one of the COs in the face requiring some minor medical attention.

During the third day of trial, 01/10/2007, Kallstrom sat at the defendant's table and did not speak to anyone, including his attorney. However, at the end of the day, during the writer's testimony, Kallstrom again complained of chest pain. At this point, Judge Ludington decided to end the proceedings for the day. It was determined that Kallstrom did not need medical attention. There were no altercations or incidents at the Bay County jail that evening.

On the last day of trial, 01/11/2007, Kallstrom did not speak and sat in his chair without moving. After the AUSA and defense attorney finished their respective closing statements, the case was handed to the jury for deliberations. After approximately six hours, the jury returned guilty verdicts on the morning of 01/12/2007.

Re: 7A-DE-98882, 01/20/2007

Kallstrom was then transferred to custody of the US Marshals. He was transported to Milan FDC the afternoon of 01/12/2007.

Kallstrom was initially housed in the FDC. However, prison personnel were concerned about his well-being because Kallstrom refused to speak or respond to anyone. He was then transferred to the Federal Correctional Institution (FCI) which is located adjacent to FDC. He was moved so prison personnel could segregate him and monitor his condition more frequently and respond to a potential incident more quickly. A video camera was placed in his cell and a CO was required to check on him every 15 minutes.

On 01/16/2007, Kallstrom complained of chest pains and was taken to St. Joe's Hospital in Ypsilanti, MI, at approximately 10:30pm. Kallstrom was given an IV, blood samples were taken, and he was treated for dehydration. However, the attending physician could not find a medical reason to keep Kallstrom and recommended that he be returned to Milan FCI at approximately 12:00am. He was returned to his segregation cell and COs continued to monitor him every 15 minutes.

However, at shift change on 01/17/2007, Kallstrom was found dead in his cell. The Washtenaw County medical examiner (ME) was called to the FCI and pronounced him dead. Kallstrom's body was transported to the Washtenaw County ME's office in Ann Arbor where an autopsy was performed. The preliminary autopsy indicated that Kallstrom suffered from dilated cardiomyopathy, a small scar and questionable anterior myocardial infarction in the inferior septum, severe coronary arteriosclerosis, and right coronary artery thrombosis. This was indicative of previous heart problems. The ME ruled, preliminarily, that Kallstrom died from a heart attack and the cause of death was deemed natural.

The writer has spoken with DOJ-OIG SA [redacted] on repeated occasions since Kallstrom's death. SA [redacted] advised that due to the nature of Kallstrom's death that an investigation would not be warranted.

b7c

It should be noted that Kallstrom was incarcerated from the time of his arrest on 08/02/2005 until his trial began on 01/08/2007. He had been incarcerated at the Bay County jail, the Clare County jail, and Milan FDC. During this time, Kallstrom did not have one disciplinary or medical incident. Kallstrom only had disciplinary or medical incidents during his trial.

The medical records and the preliminary autopsy report will be maintained in the 1A section of the file.

JAMES P. WICKSTROM, date of birth October 7, 1942, was contacted telephonically by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] WICKSTROM was aware of SA [redacted] identity from previous interaction. WICKSTROM provided the following information:

b6
b7C

WICKSTROM did not know exactly who would be attending the Rally Against Black Gang Terrorism (the Rally) in Kalamazoo, MI. He did state that he had been told the only people that were going to show up as counter-protestors were the black gangs.

The Rally was not a "Black Terrorism" rally but a "Black Gang Terrorism" rally. WICKSTROM stated that the Rally is not against blacks in general, but against black gangs specifically.

WICKSTROM believed the crimes for which the Rally is responding to, are hate crimes and should be investigated by the FBI. The individuals who attacked the victims were all wearing the same color shirts and only attacked the white victims because they were white.

WICKSTROM described the Rally as being a "peaceful grievance". He believed he is being forced to hold the Rally. WICKSTROM would rather have a barbeque than to have to attend The Rally. He stated "everyone is color blind". He was disappointed that the Kalamazoo District Attorney is "handcuffing" the local police.

b7C

WICKSTROM wanted capital punishment for "cop killers" and those who attack the police. He further stated that he wants "cop killers" and those who kill FBI Agents to be killed before they can reach court.

WICKSTROM advised that he would like to see 500 blacks attend te Rally and "saying the same thing" as those attending The Rally.

The Rally does not have anything to do with white supremacy, the Rally is about "personal grievances" (Writer's note: Wickstrom previously stated that the Rally was a "peaceful grievance", not a "personal grievance". It is believed that Wickstrom began his white supremacist beliefs after he was passed over in the military and the positions were given to "undeserving blacks". This comment shows Wickstrom's true intentions and the root of his white supremacist beliefs.).

Neither WICKSTROM nor any other organizers want any attendees to wear their uniforms or robes. Those who do wear uniforms or robes will be looked at as "Feds" and will not be able to attend the Rally. WICKSTROM wanted those who attend the Rally to be "citizens, not groups".

The attendees will not be refused their right to assemble. WICKSTROM heard that [redacted] was being given a hard time by the Kalamazoo police regarding being bussed into the rally site.

b6
b7C

WICKSTROM believed if the Kalamazoo police and elected officials had reacted sooner, then the Rally would not have been necessary.

Sergeant Major [redacted] who was a former US Army Green Beret, and served five tours in Vietnam, was planning on attending the Rally. [redacted] told WICKSTROM that he cannot sit by while this happens to his country.

b6
b7C

WICKSTROM again stated that he blamed the Kalamazoo prosecutors for "tying the hands" of the police.

WICKSTROM advised that he is proud to be white and that "blacks should be proud to be black, just like orientals should be proud to be oriental".

WICKSTROM was afraid that the police will not properly protect the rally attendees, which is why he asked the majority of the people to attend. WICKSTROM has discouraged attendees from bringing weapons.

WICKSTROM again stated that the rally was a "lawful and righteous grievance" and that the politicians should do their job or resign.

WICKSTROM admitted that he has not reached out to the local or regional black leaders. He advised that he believed the black leaders should be reaching out to the white community.

WICKSTROM described the current situation in Kalamazoo, Michigan, as "Black Apartheid", and that if the situation were 15 white men targeting lone black men that Jesse Jackson and Al Sharpton would have been in Kalamazoo and that the "Feds" would be all over the place cracking down on the white supremacists.

WICKSTROM handed SAs [] a copy of the flyers that were placed around Kalamazoo the previous weekend. WICKSTROM was concerned about an individual named [REDACTED] was a member of the ANTI-RACIST ACTION COMMITTEE (ARA) and WICKSTROM believed [REDACTED] was involved, either through actually committing or facilitating, the attack on a fellow white supremacist in New Jersey. WICKSTROM handed SA [REDACTED] a picture of a large, black man he identified as [REDACTED]. The picture was printed from a computer and had the following text with it (the grammar and spelling are as they are on the paper):

b7C

One People's Project Implicated in Violent Attack!

ACCORDING TO SOURCES IN NEW JERSEY, [REDACTED] USED HIS WEBSITE TO CALL FOR VIOLENT ATTACKS AT THE MORRISTOWN IMMIGRATION RALLY TODAY - AND SUCH ATTACKS HAPPENED!

b6
b7C

This is [REDACTED] well-known communist who got fired from his job as a police officer for leaking confidential police information to his anti-racist buddies and jew masters. He allegedly used his website, onepeoplesproject, to call for attacks at the Morristown rally today.

The rally was cordoned off, of course, with the mayor's supporters on the Town Hall lawn and the communists behind barricades on the other side of the street, with about a hundred police in between. [REDACTED] was allowed to roam freely around the supporters.

[REDACTED] can be a very personable guy, a lot like Al Sharpton in this respect, and he struck up conversations with dozens of people, including [REDACTED] who was later attacked!

b7C

While he was not chatting people up, he was on his cell phone, sending as much information as he could to his friends across the street. In other words, while [REDACTED] was grinnin' and shufflin' amongst da White folk, he was allegedly helping the Black Bloc ID them and fingering them for attack. Sources tell The Hal Turner Show that he almost certainly helped set up the ambush on [REDACTED] later in the day.

WICKSTROM then handed SA [REDACTED] another picture printed from a computer which he claimed was a picture of the ARA attacking the white supremacist in New Jersey. The picture had the following text with it (the grammar and spelling are as they are on the paper):

HUSBAND & WIFE ATTACKED, BEATEN, SERIOUSLY INJURED AT NEW JERSEY IMMIGRATION RALLY!

ANTI-RACIST-ACTION THUGS HIT WOMAN IN HEAD WITH PIPE, 15 STITCHES TO CLOSE HEAD WOUND

HUSBAND BRUTALLY BEATEN BY AT LEAST FOUR THUGS; IN SERIOUS CONDITION IN MORRISTOWN HOSPITAL!

Pro-White activist [REDACTED] who frequently posts on Stormfront.org, savagely attacked after Morristown, NJ anti-illegal-immigration rally. Between 8 and 12 pro-illegal-alien scumbags set-upon [REDACTED] and his wife. [REDACTED] car was looted and smashed. [REDACTED] has serious internal injuries; [REDACTED] required at least fifteen (15) stitches to close a head wound after ARA thugs based her with a pipe.

b6
b7C

WICKSTROM told his followers and those planning on attending the Rally to not bring any weapons or to start any trouble. However, he did advise them that any attendee could defend themselves should it be deemed necessary.

WICKSTROM wants the Rally to be peaceful and hoped that through "legitimate means", it will assist the locals in "resolving the problems in Kalamazoo".

During the conversation, SA [REDACTED] reminded WICKSTROM that violence, by either Rally attendees or counter-protestors would not be tolerated, and that the only way to effect change was through the proper execution of his constitutionally protected rights of speech, assembly, religion, etc. WICKSTROM advised that he fully understood and that was the reasoning for the Rally. SA [REDACTED] also advised WICKSTROM that violence would only tarnish the image he and the attendees were trying to project. WICKSTROM also agreed with SA [REDACTED] assessment.

The items provided by WICKSTROM will be maintained in the 1A section of the file.
