(1927), travel diary of a flying trip thru the Near East; and AIRWAYS, INC. (1928), another play. ORIENT EXPRESS has illustrations in color from paintings by the author. Being as adept with the brush as with the pen, he has also designed scenery for the production of his plays.

In 1931 he will publish a book of fiction, called 1919, and a translation, with illustrations, of Blaise Cendrars' PANAMA.

...a heedless fledging. He is still too shy to speak
...and even over the radio."

dos Passos himself once explained that he writes for "historical" accuracy and in "low moments" consoles himself with the thought that if his work should prove otherwise worthless, it at least gives an exact picture of an epoch--not necessarily in detail (altho he likes his details exact) but in spirit. Knuckling down to censorship makes him extremely angry, he says, because he believes that accuracy is the historian's only virtue.

MANHATTAN TRANSFER (1925) has been called the "Rhapsody in Blue of contemporary American Fiction." Sinclair Lewis describes the book as presenting "the panorama, the sense, the smell, the sound, the soul, of New York. It is a long book--nearly two hundred thousand words, no doubt. . . . The book covers some twenty-five years of growth and decay of not only the hundred or more characters, but of the whole mass of the city--the other millions of characters whom you feel hauntingly behind the persons named and chronicled." He has managed this by omitting transitions. "It is indeed, the technique of the movie, in its flashes, its cut-backs, its speed."

THE 42ND PARALLEL (1930) is a novel of the same type as MANHATTAN TRANSFER, but more intricate. It deals with the rise of industrial democracy in America from three different angles simultaneously--that of a child growing up in it, from the dramatic-historical point of view, and from the critical-interpretative point of view. Nine biographical sketches include such American leaders as Carnegie, Rockefeller, Edison, and Burbank.

dos Passos' other works include: ONE MAN'S INITIATION (1917), a novel; A PUSHCART AT THE CURB (1922), verse; ROSINANTE TO THE ROAD AGAIN (1922), essays; THE GARBAGE MAN (1926), a play; ORIENT EXPRESS

DOS PASSOS, JOHN

John Roderigo Dos Passos was born in Chicago, January 3, 1898. He received his A. B. degree cum laude from Harvard in 1916 and since then has lived in Chicago, New York, Washington, Cambridge (Mass.), London, Brussels, Madrid, and Paris.

During the war Dos Passos served with the Haries Volunteer Ambulance Service in 1917, the Red Cross Ambulance Service in Italy in 1918, and the U. S. A. Ambulance Service in 1918 and 1919. He was honorably discharged as a private in Gievre, France, July 11, 1919. After the war he married Miss Kate Smith of Chicago.

Dos Passos is so near-sighted he wears glasses about a quarter of an inch thick. One time when he went to a bull-fight abroad with Ernest Hemingway, he got into the ring to try his own hand. When the bull charged he moved the red sash instead of leaping aside and was caught between the animal's horns. Disaster was averted by Hemingway.

Recently Dos Passos has developed a strong social consciousness. He is not a Communist, but sympathizes in every way with Soviet Russia and the workers of the world. During the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, Dos Passos was arrested in the picket line in front of the Boston State House and incarcerated in the same cell with Michael Gold, editor of the NEW MASSES. Dos Passos contributes frequently to the NEW MASSES and other radical periodicals.

An interviewer wrote of him: "John Dos Passos isn't like his books at all. You'd rather expect the man who won renown by his championship of the private soldier and his other ultra-sophisticated volumes to be a cynical citizen who has seen thru the thin shams of existence eons ago. But quite to the contrary. Don Passos is brimming with youthful enthusiasm. When he wrote THREE SOLDIERS (1921) he [redacted] of the Office of Naval Intelligence, 90 Church Street, New York, N. Y., on February 10, 1944, furnished further files and correspondence originally from the office of the Japan Tourist Bureau, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The identity of [redacted] as the source of this material and information should be kept confidential. Where these papers and letters consist of writing in the Japanese language, translations have been made by Special Employee [redacted] and the material discussed hereinafter is being kept as an exhibit in the file entitled "JAPAN BOARD OF TOURIST INDUSTRY", New York File No. 100-49565, being Exhibits 1A, 120 and 121. The above-mentioned material contained copies of correspondence which appeared to have been originally on the stationery of the Library of Congress, Washington, Office of the Librarian, which were addressed to [redacted] Japan Institute, Inc., 630 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and signed by ARCHIBALD MAC LEISH.

DECLASSIFIED BY 2322ON 11/5/79 gaj/adm per letter from Navy dated 11/5/78

Background information on DOS PASSOS taken from the book LIVING AUTHORS by the H. W. WILSON COMPANY, New York, in 1937, on pages 105 and 106 was set forth on separate pages attached to the above-mentioned letters from MAC LEISH. It is not known however whether the information concerning DOS PASSOS had been furnished to [redacted] by MAC LEISH or whether it had been obtained by the Japan Institute from other sources. Two photostatic copies of the background information concerning DOS PASSOS are being sent to the Bureau as enclosures herewith and one copy is being sent to the Washington Field Division.

A letter dated April 11, 1940, indicated that DOS PASSOS "sounds right to you". MAC LEISH wrote that he would get in touch with DOS PASSOS upon his return to Washington. By inference it would seem that some prior conversation or correspondence concerning DOS PASSOS had taken place between MAC LEISH and [redacted]

By letter dated June 3, 1940, MAC LEISH informed [redacted] that he had by then an opportunity to discuss [redacted] general plan with Mr. JOHN DOS PASSOS, who, however, advised MAC LEISH that it would, unfortunately, be impossible for him, DOS PASSOS, to go to Japan in the foreseeable future. DOS PASSOS stated, however, that he appreciated being thought of. MAC LEISH indicated that he had no other suggestions to make at that time. INDEXED 177-2477-1

An examination of all other material of the Japan Tourist Bureau disclosed no other copies of correspondence concerning this matter, nor other information concerning DOS PASSOS, nor the connection of MAC LEISH with the Japan Institute or the Japan Tourist Bureau. (u)

Declassified per letter from Navy dated 11/5/78 11/5/79

Dos Passos 'Reports' Himself

By Samuel Sillen

THE publishers of John Dos Passos' Tour of Duty (Houghton, Mifflin) claim that Dos Passos is "not presenting a personal point of view" in this book. No sir, no "sermons" here. This is straight reporting, a "stenographic report" of what Dos Passos heard in the Pacific and in Europe as a war correspondent for Henry Luce's Life.

Evidently the publishers are not acquainted with Dos Passos' writings of the past 10 years. A good chunk of the book is nothing but a "stenographic report" of his own previously published views. Dos Passos did not have to go abroad to "hear" that Russian soldiers rape, murder, loot. His reports "from the spot" have only one advantage. He can put quotation marks around his own viciousness and palm the whole business off as objective reporting.

The editors of Life ran seven weekly installments of Dos Passos' Russian-rape fantasies which recall the propaganda broadcasts of the Berlin radio during the war. Another section was printed by the editors of the Social-Democratic New Leader. And now it's all respectably packaged in a $3 book.

But intelligent people are not falling for this unadulterated bunk dressed up as reporting.

In the current New Republic, Richard Watts, Jr., former Herald Tribune writer, cuts through Dos Passos' pretensions of objectivity.

Watts finds the first part of the book, dealing with the Pacific, an able piece of reporting. Then something new is added. The Russians have arrived.

Once Dos Passos has reached Europe his reporting seems "fabricated and organized to meet a point of view." In the Pacific, Dos Passos sounded like a reporter, but he seems "an editorial writer disguised as a reporter in Vienna and Neurnberg."

"There is, for example," writes Watts, "a very one-sided debate on the Soviet Union between 'a man of 50 and a man of 25, both wearing the same khaki,' in which the youthful advocate of the Russians receives a pretty complete thrashing. I certainly do not doubt that the argument took place, with the result as noted. By reporting it Dos Passos lives up to the billing that he 'lets those on the spot do the talking'."

"But I wonder if he merely overheard it. Isn't he the triumphant older man in the story? Isn't that rather presenting a personal point of view?"

WATTS makes some very pertinent and telling comments.

"There is the report on 'What the Russians call war criminals,' with the explanation that they are usually 'merely political opponents of the regime,' a defense such gentlemen as Laval and Quisling found to their liking.

"There is the frequently expressed belief that we should stop 'appeasing' the Russians, which, if Dos Passos will forgive me, is most constantly used by editorial writers who didn't mind appeasement when it had to do with the Germans.

"Finally there is the scorn for the 'type of official who made a sort of specialty of getting along with the Russians.' Somehow, at this point, it is not difficult to believe that a number of the chapters appeared first in Life and the New Leader."

Watts notes ironically that Texas reactionaries recently attacked Dr. Homer Rainey because as president of the state university he had allowed Dos Passos' U.S.A. to be required reading in an English course. The reactionaries created the impression that Dos Passos was scheming under Moscow orders to make Texas a component part of the Soviet Union. "Tour of Duty," says Watts, "certainly doesn't give this impression. Indeed, its passages on the Russians have a way of sounding as if they might have been written by a man who suspected that the Bolsheviks did have some designs on Texas."

That's what endears him to Henry Luce.

A Stars and Stripes reporter asked Dos Passos in Paris "Have you ever thought, sir, what you'd think of yourself? I mean what your old self that was in Paris while they were making the peace at Versailles would think of your own self that is here writing for the monopoly interests?"

Dos Passos couldn't answer that one very satisfactorily.

"Though it is hard not to take a certain pride in the courage and tolerance of the American people in allowing their deadly enemies to set up this new sounding board for propaganda in their midst, pride is largely overlaid by our shame in the fact that so many of our fellow-citizens have allowed themselves through ignorance or delusion or mere corruption to become the dupes and tools of the masters of the Kremlin who, having destroyed the liberties of the peoples of Russia and half Europe, will not rest until they have ruined the last remaining strongholds of freedom in the West.

"Now is the time for us to speak out. We do not pretend that our civilization is perfect or anywhere near it, but we do believe and we must shout that belief into the ears of cowards and traitors, that given peace and freedom to experiment we can improve our social system and mold it into the beginnings of a decent civilization. That peace and that freedom are what the masters of the Kremlin cannot afford to let us have. Given peace and freedom, the world will rid itself of the false and obsolete dogmas. This is the time to tear the masks of peace off Communist propaganda and Communists.

"We must take this opportunity to expose that tyranny which deludes people and dupes them into believing that the future of mankind belongs to the police state. When that exposure has taken place their despotism will perish from its own poison. Only in liberty can a decent society be built, and it is the free men of the world and not the slaves who will build it."

RECOMMENDATION:

A review of the above information reflects that although Dos Passos was probably a Communist and subsequently a Trotskyite he has in recent years become definitely anti-Communist. In view of this, it does not appear that an investigation of Dos Passos is warranted, and if you agree, no investigation will be instituted.

✓ The "New York Times" of May 13, 1947, stated that John Dos Passos attacked the American Authors' Authority as an effort by Communists to control American thought. (100-340922-83)

During the summer of 1947, Dos Passos indicated to a Bureau agent in Boston that his political sympathies were now "to the right."

The January 9, 1949 issue of the "Worker" was extremely critical of the subject's novel, "The Grand Design" calling it a "crude smear of the New in which is utilized the remnants of the aging Dos Passos' technical skill to discredit the progressive upsurge of the 30's; to ridicule anti-Fascism; to redbait and to smear, smear, smear." It stated that Dos Passos is marching doing the big money's bidding. (100-360070-A)

Walter Winchell on April 5, 1949, furnished information to the cooperation at any time it was necessary to contact him and during the interview he suggested that if the Bureau was interested in obtaining further information concerning the Communists and their activities that [redacted] and his wife, [redacted] be contacted for information concerning Communist activities during the Harlan, Kentucky mine strike. He also suggested that [redacted] (PH) of Washington, D. C. who edits Human Events would be a good source of information concerning Spanish Civil War activities. It should be noted that he described [redacted] as being violently anti-communist. u b7C colony there. He added that [redacted] wife of [redacted] put up money for this organization and asked him personally to go to Ecuador. He remarked that [redacted] had money in her own right.

Further he suggested that possibly [redacted] [redacted] of Johns-Hopkins University would be an excellent source for information pertaining to developments in Russia during the period of 1929.

DOS PASSOS declared that he has always been interested in civil rights and is a member of the American Civil Liberties Union and during the Socialist Workers Party case being tried under the Smith Act he felt that this was a small organization and that these people did not represent a real danger to the United States. He also commented that he has made contributions to the American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born. At the time he contributed he was not aware of it's being controlled by the Communist Party.

DOS PASSOS remarked that recently he has been leery of conferences and committees. Therefore he has not permitted his name to be used as sponsor and he stated that he has not been solicited by these groups. u

During the interview DOS PASSOS identified [redacted] as being a member of the staff of New Masses. He added that he was not aware if [redacted] was a Communist Party member but he was firmly within the grip of the Communist Party. He remarked that he was unaware of an organization or concern in New York City known as John Dos Passos, Ltd. and added that in 1940 he was residing in Providencetown, Massachusetts. Likewise he added that [redacted] was unknown to him and that he does not recall having any connection with the Workers' School. He remarked, however, that it was possible that they may have used his name at the school but he himself had no official connection with the school. He advised that he did not attend the Congress of Intellectuals, Writers, and such which was held in Mexico City the latter part of 1948 and the early part of 1949.

During the interview DOS PASSOS appeared to be cooperative but was hazy concerning details. He offered further ability to speak the Russian language.

He remarked that while in Spain he had little contact with the Abraham Lincoln Brigade and most of the persons whom he contacted were those attempting to get out of Spain due to the Russian treatment they were receiving. He did recall meeting GEORGE ORWELL, the English author who wrote the book "1984". He commented that at that time ORWELL was sympathetic toward the Communist but he later turned against them. He recalled also seeing [redacted] in Spain and he believed that she was not a Communist but was greatly sympathetic to their cause.

DOS PASSOS declared that he was not acquainted with any German writers except [redacted] whom he knew in Spain. He stated that [redacted] was a Communist writer and he turned against them while in Spain. He remarked that [redacted] is now in Mexico and described him as "an honest fellow". 4

DOS PASSOS remarked that through [redacted] and his wife he became interested in seeking a refuge for [redacted]. He claimed that he became active in the John Dewey Committee which had as its purpose seeking refuge for [redacted] in Mexico. He was active along with [redacted] the Mexican painter who has been in and out of the Communist Party. He remarked at this time [redacted] was out of the Communist Party but he has since returned. DOS PASSOS stated that he had never met [redacted]. However, he has read his works but was never interested in his philosophy. His only interest in the Committee was to seek refuge for [redacted] as he felt that [redacted] was getting a raw deal." He declared that his last contact with the Spanish Civil War refugees was in 1940 in New York City, at which time he was affiliated with the New World Resettlement Fund, Incorporated, which was definitely an anti-communist organization seeking a refuge for non-communist Spanish refugees. In this connection, DOS PASSOS informed that he went to Ecuador to help set up a making a movie and that prior to going to Spain they went to the Abraham Lincoln Brigade Office in New York City to obtain information about going to Spain and while there in the office he recognized several Communist faces. However, he was unable to recall any names. He added that concerning the movie in which he and [] were interested they contacted [] who had great ability as a movie director.

DOS PASSOS related that he was not aware of [] Communist activities until they started making the movie, at which time [] attempted to introduce Communist propaganda into the movie and it was over this point that he broke with []. DOS PASSOS declared that he himself was interested in depicting the history of Spain and the contribution of the Spanish people in the movie. This movie was known as "Spain in Flames" and he commented that when this movie was shown in the United States his name was not connected with the movie, inasmuch as the Communists were down on him at this time. DOS PASSOS remarked that at the time of his going to Spain he was unaware of the complete job of the infiltration which the Communist had completed and he remarked that he exposed this Communist infiltration among the international brigades in his book "Travel Between Wars" which he declared was a collection of magazine articles written by him on his experiences in Spain. He said that he was in Spain only six weeks and that much of the time he was there he was attempting to discover what had happened to [] who was a teacher at Johns-Hopkins University who had returned to Spain in an attempt to help the Republic Government. DOS PASSOS remarked that he ascertained that [] had been shot by a Communist outfit as the Communist had apparently believed him to be unreliable. u

He remarked that [] had taken part in the negotiations between the Spanish and the Russians due to his

RH 100-8649

He pointed out, however, that there were occasions when his name was used without his authorization and he pointed out that his name was used without his consent in sponsoring the American Committee Against War and Fascism. He pointed out too that a lot of these groups were mere paper organizations. He advised that the last endorsement he recalled giving the Communist Party was in 1932 when he endorsed BROWDER and FORD as presidential candidates in the Communist Party. He commented at this point that his attraction to the Communist Party at this time was to its "nuisance value".

DOS PASSOS recalled that in 1935 he was in Hollywood, California for a period of six weeks while working with a Spanish movie. It was at this time he was aware that the Communists were working in the Screen Writers Guild and declared that [REDACTED] was very active in this guild and he described LAWSON as a Communist. He added that he saw [REDACTED] in Hollywood and he believes that this is the last time he had ever seen him. He commented that [REDACTED] a novelist, was in Hollywood at this time and was also active in the Screen Writers Guild. DOS PASSOS remarked that during the time he was in Hollywood he was ill and it was necessary for him to work from his bed. U

During the Spanish Civil War DOS PASSOS claimed that he was instrumental in helping organize a committee to see that arms were sent to the Spanish Republic Government. This committee was known as the American Friends of Spanish Democracy. He declared that he attempted to keep the Communists off this committee. He identified [REDACTED] (PH) who now edits "Human Events" in Washington, D.C. as assisting him in this committee and stated that as a result of his work in this committee [REDACTED] became violently Anti-Communist. DOS PASSOS claimed that his theory at the time of the Spanish Civil War was that if United States should help the Spanish Republic it was the only way of keeping the Communist out of Spain. He declared that in 1937 he went to Spain with [REDACTED] for the purpose of up in his home. He pointed out that [] later denounced DOS PASSOS. DOS PASSOS commented that [] wife was an important person in the OGPU and commented that this was the only person of this type whom he has ever met. He commented that Russia at this time was not so politically organized and he did not come in contact with "political people". He added that he was regarded as a leftist writer and was allowed to travel easily in Russia. He further commented that this was a period of "openness" and a period of "Be kind to Americans". Therefore there were no restrictions placed on their travel. He declared that he did not meet any member of the American Communist Party in Russia and that he himself was there primarily to study the theater. He did recall meeting [] who was working in Russia for an American publication. He described [] as "a stupid woman". He further recalled meeting [] of Johns-Hopkins University who was there studying with []

He recalled making a trip with [] in Russia. It was his belief that [] was "unpolitical". He also recalled meeting [] in Russia where [] was connected with United Press. He declared that it was about this time that [] was getting "fed up with the Russians". DOS PASSOS stated that he got this impression from [] who talked quite frankly with him. DOS PASSOS concerning himself stated that he was being very open minded during his visit as he was interested in "seeing what the Soviet Union had". He stated that he has made no trips to Russia since his visit in 1929.

Concerning various front organizations organized during this period such as the American Committee for Relief of Russian Children, DOS PASSOS claimed that he could not recall specifically this organization but he did lend his name to be used in the sponsorship of such organizations because he was interested in cementing relations with the Soviet Union and seeing that the Soviet Union was recognized.

in their own cause and was not interested in helping other miners. This book came out in about 1933. By 1932 DOS PASSOS recalled that he was writing more articles for the New Republic and had about ceased writing for New Masses. He recalled that he had covered the 1932 conventions for New Republic. He commented that it was around this period that he became leary of the true character of the Communist Party and he recalled meeting [redacted] in New York City in Greenwich Village. He could not recall the details of this meeting other than the fact that he had just met [redacted]

DOS PASSOS informed that while in New York he was instrumental in organizing the "New Playwrights Theater", and he stated that he was a director of this organization and named the following as also directors: MIKE GOLD, whom he believed his true name to be IRVING GRANNICH and a writer for the "Daily Worker"; M. JOSEPH BASSHE, who is now deceased; [redacted] and [redacted]

He claimed that this organization was active from 1926 to 1929 and they were interested in producing plays. He added that he did not believe that the Communist Party attempted to take over this organization. However the Communist Party was interested in the group known as "Group Theater". He recalled that in the spring of 1929 he went to Russia to study the Russian Theater. He added that this trip was financed by [redacted]. He remarked that he had been to Russia several years before in the fall of 1921 at about the time the Soviets took over. He claimed that he was traveling at this time as a tourist and was attracted to the country and made trips through the Caucasus and he did not enter Russia proper. During the 1929 visit to Russia which lasted until October or November of 1929 he recalled meeting FADYEEV (ALEXANDER FADYEV), the Russian novelist whom DOS PASSOS claimed was very friendly to him and put him

Concerning the Harlan, Kentucky mine strike, DOS PASSOS informed that he and [redacted] were indicted in Kentucky on state charges but the matter was later quashed. He pointed out that the indictment was brought against them after they had left Kentucky.

DOS PASSOS made reference to the book "Harlan Miners Speak" which he claimed was an excellent documentation on the events in the Harlan, Kentucky strike. In making reference to this book, he named the following as being active in the Harlan mine strike: [redacted]

[redacted] whom he declared was not a member of the Communist Party, [redacted] whom he cannot recall, [redacted] u whom he believed to be a Communist Party member [redacted]

[redacted] a woman whom he believed was a Communist Party member, [redacted] whom he described as very close friends of his. He commented that he does not know if the [redacted] were ever members of the Communist Party but if so they left it shortly after joining. He recalled that the [redacted] had a struggle with the Communist Party. He identified [redacted] as being connected with Yale University and that his wife, [redacted] writes for Fortune Magazine and that both reside at New Haven. b7C

[redacted] whom DOS PASSOS claimed that he could not recall; [redacted] a newspaper man whom DOS PASSOS claimed was not a member of the Communist Party; [redacted] whom DOS PASSOS could not recall, and [redacted] whom DOS PASSOS claimed was not a member of the Communist Party; DOS PASSOS stated that the above comprised the Harlan Miners Committee.

DOS PASSOS commented that his book "Adventures of a Young Man" depicted the accurate picture as he observed it during the Harlan, Kentucky mine strike. He claimed that this book reflects that the Communist Party was only interested [redacted] He declared that in 1922 or 1923 when New Masses was re-organized they had no idea of affiliating with any political party and the theory behind the magazine was to make it "a native American thing". He advised that the Editor in Chief of the New Masses at this time was one [redacted] (PH) and he declared that he wrote several articles for the publication but since he was traveling most of the time he was not in close contact with the office.

He added that when [redacted] joined the New Masses the Communist Party took over this publication and [redacted] resigned. He believed this to be about the time of the Sacco Vanzetti case. He advised that [redacted] was an admitted Communist and during the time he was connected with the New Masses it was Communist controlled. He stated that [redacted] has always been straight forward and has admitted his Communist membership but [redacted] later broke away from the Communist Party. DOS PASSOS declared that he contributed to the New Masses up until 1931 or 1932. He claimed that it was at this time that he began to be a little "stand offish" about the Communist but since he found them useful as a pressure group he continued his association with them. U

He went on to state that during the period of the Harlan, Kentucky mine strike he worked directly with the Communist Party. He stated that he accompanied [redacted] to Kentucky to gather material concerning this strike and at this time he got the impression that the National Miners Union was controlled by the Communist Party. DOS PASSOS stated that after his return to New York City from Kentucky he had a conversation with [redacted] who was general secretary of the Communist Party and it was at this time he discovered that the Communist Party was "trying to make a monkey out of him and they were not sincere in their help of the Kentucky miners." He explained that it was at this time he found that the Communist Party was only interested in fostering its propaganda and motives and was not sincere in their aiding of the under privileged as they had led him to believe.

On June 3, 1952 Special Agents [redacted] and [redacted] interviewed the captioned subject at his home located at Spence's Point, Westmoreland Post Office, Westmoreland County, Virginia. It was ascertained that the subject resides at this address the year round where he operates a 2,000 acre farm in addition to preparing his writings. At the outset of the interview DOS PASSOS informed that he was never a member of the Communist Party, although he related that he had close association with the Communist Party at various times. He pointed out that inasmuch as he was never a member of the Communist Party he was not in a position to definitely state that a person was a Communist Party member and when he referred to a person as a Communist it was based entirely upon his personal belief due to his dealings with the Communist Party.

He declared that the first time he came in contact with the Communist Party was during 1924 and 1925, at which time he was vitally interested in the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti. He pointed out that as a writer he was interested in seeing that the true facts concerning the Sacco Vanzetti case appeared in the newspaper and since the "Daily Worker" was the only publication who appeared desirous of printing the true facts in this case he became closely associated with the "Daily Worker" and the Communists at that time. He pointed out that he was not aware of the true motive of the Communist Party at this time. In this connection he declared that he wrote several articles for the "Daily Worker". He was unable to identify any of the "Daily Worker" staff with whom he was in contact, although he did recall the name of [redacted] whom he believed was connected in some capacity with the "Daily Worker". He added that in connection with the defense of the Sacco Vanzetti case he met [redacted] of Washington, D. C. whom he declared was not a member of the Communist Party, and [redacted]

An undated letter on stationery bearing the letterhead of the American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born, listed Dos Passos as a sponsor of this organization. A confidential informant advised that Dos Passos was a sponsor of the Fourth Annual Conference of the American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born in 1940. The American Committee for the Protection of Foreign Born has been designated by the Attorney General of the United States pursuant to Executive Order 10450.

The letterhead on the stationery of the Civil Rights Defense Committee listed Dos Passos as vice chairman and a member of the National Committee in 1941 and 1943. The Civil Rights Defense Committee was formed August 1, 1941, for the purpose of raising funds and defending eighteen members of the Socialist Workers Party who were being tried in Minneapolis for conspiring to overthrow the United States Government. A confidential informant of known reliability advised that the Civil Rights Defense Committee was a front organization for the Socialist Workers Party. The Socialist Workers Party has been designated by the United States Attorney General pursuant to Executive Order 10450. u

The "Daily Worker" of September 2, 1946, severely criticized the book "Tour of Duty" by Dos Passos. It was described as a stenographic report of what Dos Passos had heard in the Pacific and in Europe as a war correspondent for "Life" magazine. The "Daily Worker" article criticized the book for its anti-Soviet Union "fabrications."

The "New York Times" of May 13, 1947, stated that John Dos Passos attacked the American Authors Authority as an effort by Communists to control American thought.

The January 9, 1949, issue of the "Worker" was extremely critical of Dos Passos's novel "The Grand Design." It stated that "Dos Passos is marching in the regiments of reaction and as Henry Luce's literary lap dog" faithfully doing the big money's bidding."

An article entitled "The Masks of Peace" by John Dos Passos appeared on the cover of the April, 1949, issue of "Plain Talk" and stated in part "that peace and freedom

No investigation has been conducted by this Bureau concerning the above-named individual. A review of the files, however, reflects that the May 19, 1930, issue of the "New York Times" listed a group of persons affiliated with John Reed Clubs, who signed a protest against alleged anti-Communist propaganda. Included on the list was the name of John Dos Passos. John Reed Clubs of the United States were cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities as "named after the founder of the American Communist Party." The "Western Worker" announced in its November 30, 1936, issue that Dos Passos would be a contributor to the 25th Anniversary Edition of "New Masses" on December 10, 1936. The "Western Worker" has been cited as "a Communist newspaper," by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities. "New Masses" has been cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities as a "Nationally Circulated Weekly Journal of the Communist Party, whose ownership was vested in the American Fund for Public Service."

Stationery bearing the letterhead of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy listed Dos Passos as a member of the Executive Committee of this organization in 1937 and 1939. The American Friends of Spanish Democracy has been cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities which stated "in 1927 and 1938, the Communist Party threw itself whole-heartedly into the campaign for the support of the Spanish Loyalist cause, recruiting men and organizing multifarious so-called relief organizations such as American Friends of Spanish Democracy."

The "Daily Worker" an east coast Communist newspaper, in its issue of April 6, 1937, listed Dos Passos as a member of the Advisory Board of Frontier Films. Frontier Films has been cited as a Communist front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities.

INTERVIEW OF DOS PASSOS BY BUREAU:

[REDACTED]

As a result of the above information, Dos Passos was interviewed by Bureau Agents on June 3, 1952. He was cooperative in furnishing considerable information as to his previous Communist affiliations. He denied ever being a member of the Communist Party. He stated his first contact with the Communist Party was in approximately 1924 when he became interested in the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti. Subsequently, he contributed articles frequently to the "Daily Worker" and "New Masses" until 1939. During the Harlan, Kentucky, mine strikes he worked closely with the Communist Party. Following this latter experience he met Earl Browder in New York and he thereafter decided that the Communist Party was "making a fool of him." He also stated that he had made trips to Russia in 1922 and 1929 in connection with his literary activities. In 1937, during the Spanish Civil War, Dos Passos and Ernest Hemingway were in Spain for the purpose of making motion pictures of the activities. Dos Passos subsequently had a book published entitled "Travel Between Wars" exposing the infiltration methods of Communism. During the interview he named several individuals with whom he was in contact during the period he was sympathetic to Communism. (97-2497)

Communism. He has been the subject of attacks by the "Daily Worker" and other Communist publications. During September, 1948, one William B. Smith, when interviewed during another investigation, stated that Dos Passos had denounced Communist leadership since 1937 and that since that date he had been one of the more prominent liberal writers who were violently anti-Communists.

As an indication of Dos Passos' attitude toward Communism there follows information which was contained on the cover of the April, 1949, issue of "Plain Talk" magazine. The article is captioned "The Masks of Peace" by John Dos Passos.

"Though it is hard not to take a certain pride in the courage and tolerance of the American people in allowing their deadly enemies to set up this new sounding board for propaganda in their midst, pride is largely overlaid by our shame in the fact that so many of our fellow-citizens have allowed themselves through ignorance or delusion or mere corruption to become the dupes and tools of the masters of the Kremlin who, having destroyed the liberties of the peoples of Russia and half Europe, will not rest until they have ruined the last remaining strongholds of freedom in the West.

"Now is the time for us to speak out. We do not pretend that our civilization is perfect or anywhere near it, but we do believe and we must shout that belief into the ears of cowards and traitors, that given peace and freedom to experiment we can improve our social system and mold it into the beginnings of a decent civilization. That peace and that freedom are what the masters of the Kremlin cannot afford to let us have. Given peace and freedom, the world will rid itself of the false and obsolete dogmas. This is the time to tear the masks of peace off Communist propaganda and Communists.

"We must take this opportunity to expose that tyranny which deludes people and dupes them into believing that the future of mankind belongs to the police state. When that exposure has taken place their despotism will perish from its own poison. Only in liberty can a decent society be built, and it is the free men of the world and not the slaves who will build it."

FAMOUS AUTHOR

LIKE TO KNOW WHY

T-Men Are Probing Political Beliefs of John Dos Passos

By JOSEPH CLOUD

The Treasury Department today is investigating the present "political ideology" of John Dos Passos, influential American novelist, playwright, poet and essayist.

Mr. Dos Passos would like to know why.

If any agency of the Federal Government wants to know his political opinions, he said, why doesn't it read his recent books

"I'll admit I've been a sort of maverick," he told The Washington Daily News in a phone conversation from his farm in Westmoreland County, Va., "and my opinions have changed fairly frequently. But why should the Treasury Department care?"

WHAT HE IS

He said he would characterize himself, as of now, as a "Jeffersonian Democrat—with emphasis on the Jeffersonian."

But, he asked, "What business is that of the Treasury Department?"

(In the 1920's and 30's, when he made a substantial mark in the history of American literature with such novels as "Three Soldiers," "Manhattan Transfer," "The 42d Parallel," and "The Big Money," Mr. Dos Passos was generally recognized as an ardent and embittered pacifist and a "liberal" with a pronounced list to the left.

(In more recent years, his attitudes have mellowed with age and he has been accused by some "liberals" of having swung too far to the "right.")

IT'S DONE

Two Treasury officials, Frances J. Gafford, Assistant to the Secretary and personnel security officer, and Fred J. Douglas, in charge of Treasury law enforcement, had no immediate answer, although Mr. Douglas said such an investigation was not necessarily an irregularity.

Treasury agents, he said,

JOHN DOS PASSOS
"A sort of maverick"

"frequently interview people for reasons which have no connection with employment or criminal activities, although not necessarily to learn their political opinions."

THE SEARCH

Here's how it came up

Last Tuesday morning, a young man who identified himself as a Treasury agent asked to look at newspaper files on Mr. Dos Passos. He said his investigation was "very hush hush," but it was not connected with income tax matters.

He said, specifically, he wanted to know if Mr. Dos Passos had "recently changed his political ideology."

"Is Mr. Dos Passos applying for Government employment?" the T Man was asked.

"No, he is not," said he.

"Is he suspected of a crime, or of having knowledge of a crime?"

"No, indeed."

"Then why are you investigating him?"

"We want to know his opinion—as of the present."

"For what purpose?"

"Oh, we think he may be helpful to us in a certain matter, but we never reveal the purpose of our investigations."

THE AUTHORITY

"What right has the Government to investigate what anyone thinks if it isn't in connection with employment or a crime of some kind?" the T Man was asked.

"We investigate a great many opinions," he said.

"By what authority?"

"By the authority vested in this," said the agent, displaying his Treasury credentials. "Almost every agency in town has investigators. You certainly know that The Government has a right to any information it wants about anyone."

"Where did you get that idea?"

"That's how we operate," the Treasury agent said.

DOESN'T KNOW

"We'd like to look into this," Assistant Treasury Secretary Gafford said later. "Many times the agents don't know the specific purpose of the investigation they are making. They are simply told to investigate a certain person and are not always told why. It may be in connection with employment, or the promotion of an employee, or the transfer of an employee to a sensitive position."

"Of course," he went on, "there may be many reasons for investigations—for one thing, people sometimes give references and it may at times be necessary to investigate the background of the references."

Mr. Dos Passos said

"I have no idea why. The FBI might be interested in some of the many communists I've known—but the Treasury—I just can't figure it out. It does sound as if the Federal Government now has 'Thought Police.' What right does the Government have to investigate the political opinions of any private citizen?"

"And if they want to know mine," he said, "why the hell don't they ask me?"
