BRIBERY; CONFLICT OF INTEREST

On December 13, 1979, an article titled "Mayor Got Big Discount On Mortgage" appeared on page A1 of The Washington Post. The article was written by Milton Coleman, Washington Post Staff Writer. This article stated, in part, that "Mayor Marion Barry admitted yesterday that he and his wife accepted a discount of 3.25 percent on a mortgage rate for their new home from a District bank, saving them $242 a month in loan payments." The article goes on to say that, "Most area banks give employees discounts on prevailing mortgage rates, but as a rule, the discounts are less than one percent." "The Barrys received the discount on their $100,000 loan, the mayor said, because Effi Barry has been a member of the board of the savings and loan association since shortly after her husband took office."

The article continues, "Last week, when reporters began asking questions about financial arrangements for the purchase, Barry summoned a reporter from The Washington Star to his office and disclosed most of the details, but he did not reveal that he had received a discount on the mortgage rate. William B. Fitzgerald, President of Independence Federal, told The Washington Post that the Barrys had received no preferential treatment. He said that the loan had been made at 12 percent, the going rate at the time." The article advises, "Board member Effi Barry ackowledged in an interview last Friday that she and her husband received a discount, but she said she could not recall the rate of their mortgage."

The article states, "....Richard Cohen, a columnist for The Washington Post whose writing has immensely irritated Barry, suggested that Mrs. Barry had gone on the Board primarily because her husband was Mayor. Cohen also suggested that it was a conflict of interest for Mrs. Barry to serve on the Board because all of the other directors of the bank were partners in a $143 million hotel, office and commercial project to be developed on city-owned land downtown."

The article continues, "As one of the eight members of the Independence Board, Mrs. Barry, who is Director of Conference Management for Pacific Consultants and, according to her husband, earns $60,000 a year, votes on all board business except that directly affecting her. Her joining the Board in May was viewed by some political observers in the city as the culmination of a well planned effort by Fitzgerald to curry favor with the Barry Administration. In last year's crucial Democratic Pimary for Mayor, Fitzgerald was an ardent supporter of and fund-raiser for one of Barry's opponents, former City Council Chairman Sterling Tucker." The article advises that, "One person familiar with development practices in the city, who asked not to be named, said yesterday that Mrs. Barry's presence on the board would be of invaluable help in Fitzgerald's effort to expand his development activities."

The article discusses Fitzgerald's development activities by stating, "Capital Landmark Associates, in which Fitzgerald is a principal partner and holds 8.5 percent interest, was chosen last month by the Redevelopment Land Agency to build a $143 million downtown project near the Gallery Place Metro stop at 7th and G Streets, N.W. The designation was only preliminary, however, and neither one of Barry's two appointee's to the RLA Board-Lawyer Nira H. Long and City Housing Director Robert L. Moore - voted for it. By the time Fitzgerald's group gets into the real nuts and bolts negotiation of developing the site, Barry will have had a chance to appoint a third person to the five-member RLA Board - making his appointees the Board majority."

In analyzing mortgage discounts given to bank employees, the article states, "Interviews with several savings and loan association presidents in Washington indicated that while the practice is common, it is not universal and discounts given to bank employees are normally small compared to the one the Barrys received. Thomas J. Owen of Perpetual Savings and Loan Association said all of his employees receive discounts of one-half percent. Three of his nine directors have received discounts, Owen said. William F. Sinclair, President of American Federal Savings and Loan, said his association has no standard policy and has not given a loan to a director in two years. Robert A. Barton of Interstate Federal said most employees get discounts of no more than one-quarter percent."

MARION BARRY, MAYOR

On December 14, 1979, an article titled "Mayor Is Spared Usual 'Point' Fee In Mortgage Deal" appeared on page A1 of The Washington Post. This article was also written by Milton Coleman. This article states, in part, that "Mayor Marion Barry, who was given a cut-rate mortgage that would have saved him $242 in monthly payments, got an additional $1,000 break when his savings and loan firm waived its customary requirement that the borrower pay a 'point' at the time of settlement, it was disclosed yesterday." The article goes on to say that at the time Mayor Barry got his loan, most borrowers from Independence Savings and Loan were being assessed one point on their loans. The article states, "....Barry was not charged a service fee because of the Mayor's wife Effi is a member of the Independence Board of Directors."

The article continues on by stating that at the time of Barry's loan, other mortgage borrowers from Independence Savings and Loan were being charged 12 percent interest on their loans, plus a one point fee. Barry got his loan for 8.75 percent with no point fee. The article advised that "Jay Janis, Chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings and loan associations, said the 3.25 percentage-point difference between the market rate and the rate of the Barry loan warranted investigation." The article states, "Most area banks and savings and loan associations give discounts but they are usually less than one percent." The Independence Savings and Loan defended itself in the article by stating that the 8.75 percent charge to Barry was one percent more than the rate it was borrowing money from its lenders.

On December 14, 1979, an editorial titled "Mayor Barry's Special Interest" appeared on page A14 (Editorial Section) of The Washington Post. The writer of the editorial is not stated. The editorial begins, "At first, Mayor Marion Barry did not mention to reporters that the financing for his new house included a discount interest rate on the mortgage. Then, his bankers said the mayor got no discount. Meanwhile, the Mayor's wife said there was a discount but she didn't remember how much." The editorial continues, "...., and it is certainly wrong for the Mayor - who has a direct influence over the local banking and development business - to accept special offers from a bank now." The full contents of the last paragraph in this article is as follows:

> "So the Mayor is right to refuse the discount. He was wrong to have accepted it in the first place. As Mayor, he is in a position to help the Independence Federal Savings and Loan Association, which gave him the lower interest rate. As Mayor, he is also in a position to help the members of the bank's Board of Directors who may have private business with the city government. This amounts to a conflict of interest for the Mayor. There is little difference between what the Mayor did and accepting an outright gift from a businessman; and a spokesman for the D.C. Board of Elections and Ethics said city officials may not legally accept personal gifts of over $100. Gifts, as defined by city law on ethics, include favors, services and loan gratuities. What the Mayor accepted, temporarily, for his personal benefit was a low-interest loan that would have amounted to an $87,000 gift to be given over the next 30 years. If that isn't an outright gift, it's certainly a heavy consideration."

PUBLIC CORRUPTION SURVEY

FIRST QUARTER FISCAL YEAR 1980

TITLE: MARION BARRY, Mayor,
Washington, D. C.
Bribery; COI

FILE NUMBER: WFO 58-1805

IDENTITY OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS
AND POSITION HELD: MARION BARRY, Mayor

LEVEL OF GOVERNMENT: District of Columbia

DATE CASE OPENED: January 8, 1980

DATE COMPLETION OF IN-VESTIGATION ANTICIPATED: November, 1980

SUCCINCT SUMMARY OF FACTS AND STATUS OF INVESTIGATION:

Captioned matter was initiated based upon various articles and editorials appearing in The Washington Post during the month of December, 1979. These articles/ editorials stated that MARION BARRY had purchased a home in Washington, D. C., at a cost of $125,000. BARRY obtained a $100,000 mortgage loan at the Independence Savings and Loan (IS&L), Washington, D. C., to finance this purchase. The loan was issued at an interest rate of 8.75%, which reportedly was 3.25 percentage points lower than the "going rate" of 12% being charged other mortgagors by IS&L during this time period. In addition, BARRY was not charged a one point fee of $1,000 at the time he and his wife, EFFI, got the loan. According to the articles, most mortgage borrowers from IS&L at this time were being charged a one point fee in connection with their mortgage loans.

The articles point out that BARRY, in accepting the 8.75% mortgage loan, would have saved $242 a month when compared with the same mortgage loan at a 12% interest rate. This amounted to a savings in excess of $87,000 over the life of the loan.

BARRY called a press conference on December 12, 1979, during which he announced that he and his wife had accepted a 3.25 percentage point discount on their mortgage loan. BARRY continued by stating that in the face of "intense press speculation and false innuendos," he was relinquishing the discount in order to "scrupulously avoid any action that might cast the slightest doubt on the integrity of myself or my wife or the bank."

According to the articles, newspaper reporters initially started investigating the financial arrangements surrounding the mortgage loan during the week prior to December 12, 1979 (the press conference date). During this time period, BARRY was interviewed and although he revealed most of the details related to the loan, he did not mention the discount. WILLIAM B. FITZGERALD denied that any preferential treatment was afforded the BARRYs and added that the loan was given at a 12% interest rate. On Friday, December 7, 1979, the mayor's wife, EFFI, told reporters that she and her husband had received a discount, but she couldn't recall the mortgage rate. On the same date, the Washington Star quoted unnamed sources as saying that a one-half percentage point discount had been given to the BARRYs. Neither BARRY, his wife, nor FITZGERALD would confirm this report. The newspaper articles do not specifically state anyone factor which induced BARRY to call the press conference during which he disclosed the discount.

BARRY defended the 8.75% interest rate by stating that the "discount," i.e., the 3.25 percentage point difference, was justified since his wife is a member of the board of IS&L and she was taking advantage of an employee discount. However, newspaper reporters interviewed various officials of savings and loan institutions, other than IS&L, and discerned that although these other institutions gave discounts to their employees in connection with mortgage loans, these discounts amounted to only one-quarter to one-half percentage point reductions off the "going rate" being charged to non-employees by the institutions.

WILLIAM B. FITZGERALD, president of IS&L, is a principal partner in and holds an 8.5 percent interest in a partnership named Capital Landmark Associates (CLA). CLA was chosen to build a $143 million project near the Gallery Place metro stop. The selection of CLA as the developer for this project was made by the Redevelopment Land Agency (RLA) an agency within the District of Columbia, Department of Housing and Community Relations. Two RLA board members, NIRA H. LONG and ROBERT L. MOORE, are BARRY appointees. However, both these individuals voted against the selection of CLA.

The extent of any additional financial dealings CLA, WILLIAM FITZGERALD, or IS&L has with the RLA or the District of Columbia, particularly dealings which BARRY himself directly influences, is currently unknown.

An article appearing in the January 12, 1980 edition of the Washington Post revealed that EFFI BARRY is an assistant vice president for marketing for Pacific Consultants, a California-based firm. The article points out that Pacific Consultants has had 40 to 50 contracts with the Small Business Administration (SBA) totaling $3 million to $5 million dollars. The article provides no information as to whether or not Pacific Consultants ever had or currently has contracts with the District of Columbia.

Although captioned matter was opened on January 8, 1980, no investigation has been conducted to date. This is in response to a request by Assistant United States Attorney [redacted] Fraud Section, Washington, D. C. AUSA [redacted] requested this delay [redacted] b5 b6 b7C

The potential Federal violations involved in captioned matter include possible violations of Federal bribery, conflict of interest and/or gratuity statutes.

RESULTS OF PROSECUTION: None

AREA OF IMPACT: The impact of an investigation into captioned matter would be substantial. BARRY, a Negro, is mayor of a city in which a relatively high percentage of the population is Negroid. Further, BARRY appears to be a popular mayor, especially within the Negro communities. Investigation into captioned matter would almost certainly result in numerous adverse comments about the FBI's investigation, particularly in the area of racial bias. The extent of any additional ramifications consequential to this investigation is undeterminable.

What the Mayor accepted, temporarily, for his personal benefit was a low-interest loan that would have amounted to an $87,000 gift to be given over the next 30 years. If that isn't an outright gift, it's certainly a heavy consideration.

INTORDUCTION OF IMPEACHMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS 96TH.
1ST. SESSION
OF
THE MAYOR OF WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

12TH, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 1979

NATURE of IMPEACHMENT*

1. Provision of the Constitution 2001-2003.[1]
2. Rules of Jefferson's Manual. Sections 2004, 2005
3. Trial proceeds only when House is in session. Section 2006.[2]
4. Accused may be tried after resignation. Sections 2008-2007.[3]
5. As to what are impeachable offenses. Sections 2008-2021.[4]
6. General consideration. Sections 2022-2024.[5]

2001. "Treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors" require removal of President, Vice President, or other civil officers from office on conviction by impeachment.-The Constitution, in Article2, section 4, provides:
The President, Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States shall be removed from office on impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors.

2002. Impeachment are exempted from the constitutional requirement of trial by jury.-The Constitution, in Article 3, section2. provides:
The trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury.

2003. Cases of impeachment are excluded by the Contitution from the offenses for which the President may grant repieves and pardons.-The Constitution in Article 2, section2, provides :

The Presidentshall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offenses against the United States,except in cases of impeachment.

2007. The Senate decided, in 1876, that Wiiliam W. Belknap was amenable to trial notwithstanding his resination of the office before his impeachment for acts therein.
In the Belknap trial the managers and counsel for respondent agreed that a private citizen, apart from offense in an office, might not be impeached.
On May 4, 1876,[9] in the Senate, sitting for the impeachment trial of William W. Belknap, late Secretary of War, the President pro-tempore announced that the Senate had addopted the following:

Ordered, That the Senate proceed first to hear and determine the question whether W.W.Belknap, the respondent,is amenable to trial by impeachment for acts done as Secretary of War,notwithstanding his resignation of said office;and that the managers and counsel in such argument discuss the question whether the issues of fact are material and whether the matters in support of the jurisdiction alleged by the House of Representatives in the pleadings subsequent to the articles of impeachment can be thus alleged if the same are not averred in said articles.

On the first question, whether or not the respondent was amenable to trial for acts done as Secretary of War, notwithstanding his resignation, the argument natrually devided itself into three branches.
1. May a private citizen be impeached,irrespective of whether he has held office or not?
2. May a private citizen who formerly held an office be impeached for acts done as an incumbant of that office?
3. Assuming that a person may not be impeached after he is out of office for acts done in office, does a resignation, after proceedings for impeachment begin, confer immunity?

CONTINUE PAGE II

As to the first question, may a private citizen be impeached, Mr. Montgomery Blair,of counsel for the respondent,said:[10]

Upon the first question I do not know how the managers are to maintain the jurisdiction of the court upon any principle than that which was asserted in the Blount case, which was that " all persons liable to impeachment" (Annals of Congress of 1797, vol. 2, p. 2251), because, as was alleged there all persons are liable in England, the country from which we barrow the proceeding, and to whose laws and usages we must therefore look for the extent of its application. But as to the court on that occasion overruled this doctrine, and the decision has been acquiesced in for seventy-eight years, the mangers ought not now to except this court to overrule it.

And Mr. Manager Scott Lord, speaking for the House of Representatives,said:[10]

The learned counsel, Mr. Blair, suggested that we should be driven to the position of asserting that a citizen who had never held office was impeachable. We claim no such thing. We claim first, and admit, that the authorities have settled that a mere citizen can be impeached; and if the authorities had not settled it, the Constitution, not by express words, but by is intent, does exclude the idea of impeachment as against a mere private citizen.

[9]First session Forty-fourth Congress, Senate Journal, p.928; record of trial, p.27 [11]Page 34.

MR. MATT H. CARPENTER held that there were two theories in regard to impeachment-one that the proceeding was so broad that private persons might fall within its reach, as in England, and the other that impeachment "was only a proceeding to remove an unworthy public officer". And he declared that one of these theories must be accepted, and that there was no middle ground. He then proceeded at length to cite authorities [15] to show that a private citizen might not be impeached, and then said;[16]

Bearing in mind this method, when we read that the " House of Representatives shall have the sole power of impeachment,and the Senate the sole power to try impeachment;" and learn from the debates in the convention that impeachment was intended as a method of removal from office; in other words, for the officers who may be removed by this method, which, we find in section 4 of article 2, as follows;
" The President ,Vice President, and all civil officers of the United States, shall be removed from office on impeachment,etc".
There is a strong implication arising from the provision that punishment in cases of impeachment shall extend no further than removal from office, or removal and disqualification, that impeachment only lies against those in office. But section 4 of article 2 is perfectly conclusive.

ARGUMENT FOR CONSIDERATION OF IMPEACHMENT READS AS FOLLOW:

We are living in a Federal City where,as nowhere else on earth, the citizens of the Nation's Capitol do not truly enjoy "the blessings of honest Government".

CONTINUE PAGE III

By 1776, the people of the thirteen colonies had grown weary of the harsh laws and heavy taxes imposed by England. Their representatives to the Second Continental Congress finally adopted the Declaration of Independance on July 4, 1776. It was a grave step, for the colonist knew they would have to fight their mother country for independance. Since the colonist had no representatives in Parliament, they considered Parliamrnt's power to tax them unjust.

United States citizens have always been, and always will be, willing to fight for their country and for what they know to be right.

The Ninth and Tenth Amendments safeguard the people of the United States by putting a limit on the powers of the federal government. These amendments state that the government of the United States has only those powers granted to it in the Constitution, and that the powers neither granted to the central government nor denied to the states belong to the states and to the people themselves.

Impeachment Methods. If the House of representatives impeaches (accuses) a government official for misconduct in office, the Senate-and only the Senate-has the power to try the impeachment. It becomes an impeachment court.
A two-thirds majority vote of members present is necessary for conviction.

In Case of impeachment and conviction, the officeholder may be removed from office and forever barred from holding "an office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States.

We know that our Constitution is a model for all freedom-loving nations to follow.

The makers of the Constitution wished to make sure that the federal government would not take away the hard-won liberty of the new nation's citizens. Therefore, they insisted that the brand-new Constitution provide some guarantee that certain individual rights would never be taken away.

The First Amendments list five personal liberties, or rights. We value these rights very highly today. They are freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the right to assemble, and the right to petition.

It IS FOR THIS PETITION I FILE THESE BILL OF PARTICULARS AGAINST THE ACCUSE MAYOR, MARRION S. BARRY, JR. OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AS FOLLOW:

1. 107 or about ADMINISTRATIVE AIDES?

Would you not say this with-holding ($75,000.00) a violation of Federal Law?

Barry, Jr., President of the D.C.Board of Education, and Co-Executive Director of Pride Inc. was the contractor awarded. INTRODUCTION OF IMPEACHMENT TO THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS 96TH

1ST. SESSION

OF

THE MAYOR OF WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

ARGUMENT FOR CONSIDERATION AND BILL OF PARTICULARS CONTINUE:

I question the language expressed during the inauguration as follows;

Honored guest,fellow citizens:

I am extremely pleased that Thurgood Marshall administered the oath to me as I take office as the second elected Mayor of the District of Columbia. Mr. Justice Marshall;you characterize the great strength, commitment,and compassion of the American ethos-and you are a living symbol of the struggle for justice,equality,and human dignity.

As I accept this seal of government,which symbolizes the transfer of responsibility,I pledge my Administration to continue that spirit and struggle. With the passing of this seal,we witness the completion of a transition of not just two months,but of ten years.

Taken under consideration of the statement, " we witness the completion of a transition of not just two months,but of ten years" link to his part played in the Riot (INCITING) of 1968 when he and other friends ran down 14 St. and said; indirect quote, Burn this city down? It is also known that he and other accomplice came over to Wheeler Road S.E. and did the samething?

As the Mayor of this city, I look forward to forging a more responsive and responsible government with the men and women of the City Council. We have learned the value of mutual trust and respect,and we will dedicate ourselves to shaping the destiny of this city in an atmosphere of good feeling,patience, understanding and cooperation. Together,and with the help of all of you, the citizens of this community, we can and will get the job done.

Again under consideration of the statement, " We have learned the value of mutual trust and respect" is the answer to the $8,000.00 increase of both the Mayor and City Council perquisition?

It is with the following statement I close the argument for impeachment and rest this matter with the hands of the United States Senate for the grounds of impeachment and other stated charges.

If we have the courage to follow our visions,we can discover a new vitality of spirit and commitment to change. If we find opportunities where others have have found obstacles,we can build our lives upon a new foundation. If we value cooperation over conflict,neighborhood stability over chaos and disruption,compassion over complacency, economic justice over profit,and human decency over the destruction of humanity,we can accomplish what others have only promised and forgotten.

The following grounds I find the accused guilty;

|---|---|
| OBSTRUCTIONISM | POLITICAL MALFEASANCE |
| OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE | RACKETEERING |
| BUREAUCRATIC DICTATION | EMBEZZLEMENT |
| BUREAUCRACY | POLITICAL MALPRACTICE |

It has come to my attention that investigation into [redacted] matter is beginning to focus upon contractual activities of the City of Washington and the propriety of this activity as it applies to the granting of various contracts. Specifically, one area of inquiry will explore contracts granted to OAO, Inc., that involve the purchase of computer hardware and software.

I understand that OAO was granted a contract with the D. C. Government following the filing of a lawsuit by OAO contesting the award of a contract to IBM. I will soon leave Federal service and become an executive for OAO. I believe it is therefore appropriate that I formally recuse myself from all aspects of this investigative effort. I will not be involved in any briefings, review any communications or in any way be kept apprised of the conduct of this investigative activity. I will not in any way involve myself in the investigative direction of this matter.

I do this in order to avoid any possible perception of conflict of interest. Any inquiries that are received by me from FBI Headquarters will be referred to ASAC's BINNEY [redacted]

Memorandum

To : ASAC [redacted] (46-11140)(P)(C-2) Date 9/12/86
ADMINISTRATIVE DIVISION

From : ASAC DAVID G. BINNEY
CRIMINAL DIVISION

Subject : MARION S. BARRY, JR.,
MAYOR,
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA;
FRAUD AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT -
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA GOVERNMENT;
(OO:WFO)

On 9/12/86, [redacted] telephone number [redacted] who is employed [redacted] WDC, was contacted by writer because she had complained previously about Agents contacting a city employee. [redacted] stated that two city employees had been contacted during evening hours at their residences. [redacted] stated this had caused alarm on the part of the employee, and [redacted] requested that contacts of city employees in this investigation be done while the person is at his or her employment and not at their residences.

[redacted] indicated that, if such contact continued, she would seek a temporary restraining order to prevent contact outside of a person's employment. Writer responded, "That should be interesting."

[redacted] was advised by the writer that it is the FBI's policy to be as unobtrusive as possible in making interviews, but that oftentimes it was more productive in an interview to meet a person face to face rather than setting up appointments to meet at a later time. [redacted] advised that the level of employee being contacted is GS-7 through GS-9, low-level employees who are not used to "Gestapo-like" tactics of contacting employees at their residences. The writer took exception to her characterization that these were "Gestapo-like" contacts. [redacted] was advised that writer would discuss this matter with the investigative Agents to insure that the sensitivities of those persons be considered when contact for interview was being made.

To : SAC, Washington Field (46A-11410) (P) Date September 24, 1986

From : SSA [redacted] b6 b7C

Subject : MARION S. BARRY, JR., MAYOR,
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA;
FRAUD AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT-
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA;
OO:WFO

Authority is requested for [redacted] to work 8 hours overtime b6 b7C on Saturday, September 27, 1986. [redacted] will be working on RBASE data entry and is familiar with the system. Weekend work is necessary because of the lack of available computer terminals during normal working hours.

[redacted] is assigned to enter a large volume of data obtained from b6 b7C the D.C. Government into the RBASE system. The analysis of this data through the system is crucial to the investigation. Inasmuch as [redacted] will not be able to work on the assignment after October 10, 1986, and computer terminals will be available on weekends, the 8 hours overtime allocation is necessary.

INVESTIGATIVE INSERT

Re: MEETING WITH THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA (D.C.) AUDITOR'S OFFICE ON 8/26/86 CONCERNING ACCOUNTING PROCEDURES AND FINANCIAL INFORMATION- EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE MAYOR (EOM)

The following individuals attended the above meeting:

SA [redacted] FBI
SA [redacted] FBI
SA [redacted] FBI
[redacted] D.C. Auditor
[redacted] D.C. Auditor
[redacted] D.C. Auditor

b6
b7C

[redacted] advised that his office has never performed an audit of the EOM, however, the D.C. Auditors have performed the following audits on agencies that are indirectly associated with the EOM:

ESCHEATED ESTATES FUND - Review - 3/20/85
Review of transactions between the UNIVERSITY OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA and the OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY- 9/5/85

During the meeting the following topics were discussed and information obtained:

PROCESSING OF BUSINESS AND TRAVEL EXPENSES

All business and travel expenditures are funded through the General Fund (#100).

Funds are disbursed to reimburse an advance money to individual employees or to pay vendors directly.

If a vendor is to be paid directly, a purchase order (FMS400) will be written up and approved by an agency head. The information will be inputted in to the city's Financial Management System (FMS) so a check can be created by the Controller's Office. Vendors who do business with the city on a recurring basis are assigned an identifying number (Dunns number)

46A 11410

[redacted] (A)

b6
b7C

If an employee is seeking an advance or reimbursement of funds, a purchase order can be used, but the individual would have to be assigned an identifying number (RUBBS number). Usually, reimbursement or advances are accomplished by submitting a Travel and Related Expense voucher, FMS-432. For advances and reimbursement, the employee would itemize his expenses , i.e. conference fee, perdiem, transportation, on the FMS-432, and would submit it so an agency head for authorization. The information is then inputted into the FMS, and a check is prepared. Advances are for 80% of the amount requested.

D.C. government credit cards, AMEX, do not require an accompanying form and the monthly statement is reviewed, approved by an agency head, and inputted into the FMS for payment to the credit card company.

It takes 17 days to get a computerized check out from the Controller's Office. As a result, this can be bypassed, and a manual check can be issued, also by the Controller's Office. It is possible to obtain a check within one day.

Individuals authorized to approve payment of expenditures usually do not approve there own; however, no rule is known that would prevent this from happening.

FUNDS AVAILABLE TO THE EOM:

As far as is known, all expenditures, except for the Constituent Fund, are processed through the General Fund.

BUDGETARY REVIEW:

All agencies submit budgets which they are held accountable to. The D.C. budget is reviewed and approved by Congress.

The Controller's Office is responsible for monitoring spending, and it was understood that budget line items (object classes) could not be excluded without the Budget Office's approval. Within a budget line item, funds can be reallocated by the agency head. If a budget transfer is required between agencies, D.C. Council approval is necessary and if budget reallocation is needed between appropriations, then Congressional approval is necessary. Also, if an agency should exceed the budget on an object by 20% or more, D.C. Council approval is necessary.

ENTERPRISE FUNDS:

There are only a few Enterprise Funds operating in D.C.:

Water and Sewer
D.C. Lottery
Cable Television
Washington Convention Center
D.C. General Hospital

The EOM has influence over all of the above funs, but [redacted] felt that the Water and Sewer fund came under the most control. b6 b7C

IMPREST FUNDS (Petty Cash):

Most, if not all agency have petty cash funds, but the imprested balances are low, usually $50-$100.

AVAILABLE FINANCIAL DATA:

The D.C. Auditor's Office has two FMS terminals and will let the FBI use these terminals to access information.

DOCUMENTS PROVIDED BY THE D.C. AUDITOR:

Volume 1 - Fiscal Year 1986 - D.C. Budget

Re Memo to SAC, dated 9/24/86.

A car, [redacted] is being used by b7E this agent in the investigation of the above captioned case. On Tuesday, September 30, 1986, this vehicle, a [redacted] Virginia tag [redacted] was parked [redacted] Washington, D.C. During the time the vehicle was parked, some damage occurred to the driver's side rear door. The damage included some scuffing and a small area, approximately 1" square, where the paint was removed. It is not known how the damage occurred, [redacted] was advised of the condition of their automobile.

[redacted]LE PARISIEN, 2629 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D.C., when made aware of the identity of the interviewing agents and the nature of the investigation, provided the following information: b6 b7C

Mayor MARION S. BARRY and EFFI BARRY have been customers [redacted] shop. The BARRYs' purchased a Tanuki Fur, #12724, for $4,770 on 11/23/82, to be paid for over 18 months. It took the BARRYs three years to make all of the payments on the fur complaining about the coat's workmanship during that time. Although the BARRYs' account was considered paid in full, they actually still owe interest on the installment sale. A schedule of payments is as follows: b6 b7C

| Date | Amount | Type of Payment |
|---|---|---|
| 11/19/82 | $500.00 | Unknown |
| 3/18/83 | $1,333.55 | Unknown |
| 10/5/83 | $500.00 | Cash |
| 3/19/84 | $500.00 | Money Order |
| 3/19/84 | $500.00 | Money Order |
| 10/29/84 | $500.00 | Cashier's Check |
| 4/10/85 | $500.00 | Cashier's Check |
| 4/10/85 | $500.00 | Cashier's Check |
| 12/9/85 | $500.00 | Cash |
| 12/24/85 | $500.00 | Cash |
| Total | $5,833.55 | |

[redacted] refused to turnover any records without a subpoena. When individuals purchase a fur coat they usually pay on time and make their payments using a personal check. In some cases when a customer's check bounces, [redacted] will require a more secure form of payment, i.e. money order or cashier's check. In the BARRYs' case, [redacted] considered it unusual that the BARRYs would make their payments by cash, money order, and cashier's checks. b6 b7C

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

1 Date of transcription 12/2/86

DWIGHT S. CROPP, Director, Office of Intergovernmental Relations, District of Columbia (D.C.), was interviewed at his place of employment, District Building, D.C. CROPP, being made aware of the identities of the interviewing agents and the nature of the interview, provided the following information:

CROPP has held the following positions in the D.C. Government:

-Director, Office of Intergovernmental Relations, 10/85-Present

[redacted] b6 b7C

-D.C. Secretary and Special Assistant to the President, UDC, 9/83-2/84.
-D.C. Secretary, 1/79-8/83.

CROPP has had a total of 27 years of Federal and District service and maintains his civil service status. CROPP's current supervisor is CAROL THOMPSON although most of the time he reports directly to Mayor BARRY. While employed [redacted] b6 b7C was his supervisor and during his tenure as D.C. Secretary, CROPP reported to Mayor BARRY.

CROPP was responsible for the Mayor's Discretionary Fund and Ceremonial Fund beginning in January, 1979, taking over the fund from MARTIN SCHALLER, the D.C. Secretary under former Mayor WASHINGTON. A checking account was opened to administer these funds, and CROPP kept the check book and balanced the account. The Discretionary Fund is budgeted for $2,500 per annum and the Ceremonial Fund is budgeted for $15,000 per annum; both are funded from the D.C. General Fund. An account number for these fund exists in the D.C. Government's Financial Management System (FMS). These confidential funds are available to the Mayor for ceremonial purposes including the following:

DP

-gifts for visiting dignitaries
-official receptions
-ceremonial documents
-ribbons
-items to use in the Mayor's office i.e. flowers

No written guidelines or reporting requirements exist for these funds, but the Mayor has to certify that the funds are not being used for personal use. There are no written certifying documents.

A problem came up when CHISLEY'S FLORIST sent a bill to the Mayor's office for $3,200 for center pieces at Mayor WASHINGTON's home. This bill was never paid, and CHISLEY'S FLORIST was still asking for payment as late as 1982. A good explanation of the expenditure was never provided. It was told to CROPP that Mayor WASHINGTON entertained officials at his home and that was the reason for the flowers. The bill was referred to Mayor WASHINGTON for payment. CROPP maintained control of the funds until June, 1984, [redacted] From February, 1984 to June, 1984, CROPP was still the signatory on the bank account, however, [redacted] was handling the record keeping and would call CROPP and bring checks [redacted] to sign. When the funds were turned over to [redacted], a new bank account was opened. When CROPP was handling these funds, money stayed in FMS and was withdrawn when needed maintaining small balances in the checking account. Some bills, large ones, were paid directly from FMS and charged to the Ceremonial/Discretionary Fund's budget line. A checking account, separate from FMS, was opened due to investigative reporter [redacted] investigation on the Ceremonial Fund through FMS. [redacted] was able to extract from FMS payments to liquor stores and florists and for gifts all of which were official functions. CROPP was the signatory, [redacted] was the alternate signatory on the bank account from 1979 to 1984. [redacted]

b7C

In 1979, [redacted] was hired [redacted] but also reported directly to the Mayor and IVANHOE DONALDSON. Generally, [redacted] would let CROPP know what was going on. [redacted] along with [redacted] and not CROPP. Either [redacted] or CROPP could initiate Ceremonial/Discretionary Fund payments through FMS.

b6
b7C

Prior to 1983, records have been shredded because they pertained to a different administration. There was no record retention policy at the time. [redacted]

[redacted] b3 b6 b7C

Most of the time, receipts supporting disbursements were kept; however, during the holidays, there might be a slip up. During the Christmas of 1983, there was a disbursement for stamps for invitations and there could have been checks to cash for $500.00. The money could have gone to [redacted] b6 b7C or a small vendor. Many vendors request payments in cash because of the District's bad reputation in paying its debts during 1981-1983.

Public laws 180, 1947, and 93140, 1973, govern the Ceremonial Fund that was established as an auditable fund but is certified by the Mayor. There has never been a written certification and Public Law 180 is unclear as to its requirements.

CROPP has never been asked to make an expenditure of a personal nature and does not know anything about the Ceremonial/Discretionary Funds since he gave it over [redacted] b6 b7C

The Mayor's office has a petty cash fund of $100 and checks are normally written to cash to fund petty cash. Approximately $50-$100 per month was used at the snack bar in the bottom floor of the District Building. [redacted] b6 b7C and either CROPP [redacted] would provide her with money for petty cash, which was not imprest. During the holidays cash expenditures would go up.

[redacted] left the D.C. Government [redacted] and went [redacted]

CROPP was not part of any of the discussions pertaining to the WASHINGTON POST's Freedom of Information Act (FOIPA) Request.

[redacted] was reassigned [redacted] is involved in a project [redacted] which he reports directly to the Mayor. [redacted] came to the D.C. Government [redacted] per the recommendation of IVANHOE DONALDSON, and went to work [redacted] Prior to that, [redacted] worked [redacted] for DONALDSON. DONALDSON was BARRY's campaign manager in both the 1978 and 1982 elections. [redacted] is loyal to the Mayor [redacted]

b6

CROPP has not spoken to the Mayor about this interview, but HERB REID, Council to the Mayor, was made aware of the meeting.

Mayor Got Big Discount On Mortgage

Barry to Give Up New 8.75% Loan On Southeast Home

By Milton Coleman
Washington Post Staff Writer

Mayor Marion Barry admitted yesterday that he and his wife accepted a discount of 3.25 percent on a mortgage rate for their new home from a District bank, saving them $242 a month in loan payments.

In the face of what he termed "intense press speculation and false innuendoes," Barry said he would relinquish the discount in order to "scrupulously avoid any action that might cast the slightest doubt on the integrity of myself or my wife or the bank," the Independence Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The Barrys received the discount on their $100,000 loan, the mayor said, because Effi Barry has been a member of the board of the savings and loan association since shortly after her husband took office. A spokeswoman for Independence said discounts are given to all employes at the institution—"including the janitor"—and that other lenders have similar policies.

Most area banks give employes discounts on prevailing mortgage rates, but as a rule the discounts are less than 1 percent.

At the time the Barrys got the loan, Oct. 15, the going rate for such home mortgages was 12 percent. Barry said yesterday that he would pay at that rate. As a result, his monthly payments to Independence for principal and interest on the loan would be $1,028.62 instead of $786.71.

Barry made the announcement yesterday at a brief press conference in his office, hastily called in the wake of what evolved as the first public question of Barry using his office for personal benefit since becoming mayor nearly a year ago.

"We have decided that the monetary value to us of the interest discount is certainly not worth the intense press speculation and false innuendoes that have been put forth in several news stories," Barry said.

"We also do not wish to create unwarranted difficulties for Independence . . . an institution which is well known for its community oriented goals, such as providing housing loan money to inner-city residents."

The Barrys' purchase of a $125,000 house at 3607 Suitland Rd. SE has been a sensitive and well guarded subject to the mayor. He said yesterday he had tried to "keep the purchase of my home . . . out of the public view" because he considered it a personal matter.

Last week, when reporters began asking questions about financial arrangements for the purchase, Barry summoned a reporter from The Washington Star to his office and disclosed most of the details. But he did not reveal that he had received a discount on the mortgage rate.

William B. Fitzgerald, president of Independence Federal, told The Washington Post that the Barrys had received no preferential treatment. He said that the loan had been made at 12 percent, the going rate at the time.

On Friday, however, The Star quoted unnamed sources and reported that the Barrys had received a discount of ½ percent. Neither the mayor, nor Effi Barry, nor Fitzgerald would confirm the report.

Fitzgerald told The Post it would be unethical for him to disclose any discount rate or even outline the association's policy. All such discounted loans have to be approved by the board. However, board Chairman Rudolph Arkin said he could not remember what discount had been given to Mrs. Barry.

The Barrys received the unusually low interest rate because of the "cost" formula used by Independence. That formula allows loans to be made to preferential customers at a rate that is only 1 or 2 percent above the interest rates it offers to depositors and certificate purchasers whose money provides the funds for the mortgage.

The 1 or 2 point difference is to cover the costs of handling the loan and to ensure that minimum profits are made from the deal.

Board member Effi Barry acknowledged in an interview last Friday that she and her husband received a discount, but she said she could not recall the rate of their mortgage. Several days afterward, she said she would no longer discuss the loan because it was "a private matter."

She said she did not know she would receive an employe discount until the house purchase went to settlement. And she said she was upset about all the attention the purchase was receiving in the news media.

"We have purchased the house as private citizens," Mrs. Barry said. "If there is so much interest in how much we paid, the city should provide a residence (for the mayor) and there would be justification for all this publicity."

Yesterday's press conference came one day after Richard Cohen, a columnist for The Washington Post whose writing has immensely irritated Barry, suggested that Mrs. Barry had gone on the board primarily because her husband was mayor. Cohen also suggested that it was a conflict of interest for Mrs. Barry to serve on the board because all of the other directors of the bank were partners in a $143 million hotel, office and commercial project to be developed on city-owned land downtown.

The mayor said nothing yesterday to indicate that Mrs. Barry would leave the savings and loan board. According to several sources, however, her resignation had been discussed earlier. But some persons close to the mayor were concerned that her departure from the board would be viewed as giving in to pressure from the press.

As one of the eight members of the Independence board, Mrs. Barry, who is director of conference management for Pacific Consultants and, according to her husband, earns $60,000 a year, votes on all board business except that directly affecting her. Fitzgerald said she receives a monthly fee of $250, standard for board directors.

Her joining the board in May was viewed by some political observers in the city as the culmination of a well planned effort by Fitzgerald to curry favor with the Barry administration. In last year's crucial Democratic primary for mayor, Fitzgerald was an ardent supporter of and fund-raiser for one of Barry's opponents, former City Council chairman Sterling Tucker.

One person familiar with development practices in the city, who asked not to be named, said yesterday that Mrs. Barry's presence on the board would be of invaluable help in Fitzgerald's effort to expand his development activities.

Washington Post

"It's a good contact at city hall; you have a way to carry messages to the mayor and to go to (potential development financiers) and say, 'Hey, I've got the inside track at city hall.' You can say, 'You don't have to worry. We have the mayor's wife on the board.' That's the kind of thing that is said in board rooms around here. It's just never reported."

Capital Landmark Associates, in which Fitzgerald is a principal partner and holds 8.5 percent interest, was chosen last month by the Redevelopment Land Agency to build a $143 million downtown project near the Gallery Place Metro stop at 7th and G streets NW.

The designation was only preliminary, however, and neither one of Barry's two appointees to the RLA board—lawyer Nira H. Long and city housing director Robert L. Moore—voted for it.

By the time Fitzgerald's group gets into the real nuts and bolts negotiations of developing the site, Barry will have had a chance to appoint a third person to the five-member RLA board—making his appointees the board majority.

"Anybody who wants to nitpick you in a project like that can just put you to death," the development source said. "I've seen many a developer throw up his hands and walk away and say you can have this project."

Barry declared yesterday that discounts similar to those given to him and his wife are common in the Washington area. Interviews with several savings and loan association presidents in Washington indicated that while the practice is common, it is not universal, and discounts given to bank employes are normally small compared to the one the Barrys received.

Thomas J. Owen of Perpetual Savings and Loan Association said all of his employes receive discounts of one-half percent. Three of his nine directors have received discounts, Owen said.

William F. Sinclair, president of American Federal Savings and Loan, said his association has no standard policy and has not given a loan to a director in two years.

Robert A. Barton of Interstate Federal said most employes get discounts of no more than one-quarter percent.

Just a Little Candor Would Help Barry

AT FIRST, YOU SEE, there was nothing to report. There was this home the mayor had bought and there was this mortgage he secured and it was, as it should be, the sort of deal you and I could get. It was also not the truth.

Then the story started to unravel. The Washington Post reported the words of the mayor and his banker, but the Washington Star said something different. It said that the mortgage the mayor got was something of a bargain. It said he got an 11.5 percent mortgage instead of the standard 12. This was because the mayor's wife, Effi, had recently been appointed to the board of the bank that had made the mortgage loan to the mayor.

This then became the story. The new story had it that the mayor and his wife had received the same deal as anyone else who worked for the bank. The other members of the board got their mortgage at 11.5 and so did Effi Barry and her husband. Mind you, no one talked figures. You were supposed to believe that the actual amount was 11.5. It was not, of course, but few knew it then.

The president of the bank knew it, but he said nothing. When I wrote about it, no one called in and asked for a correction. I said the ½ percent difference amounted to $37 a month. I was wrong—way wrong, but no one in the interest of accuracy moved to stop me. I even talked to the public relations person for the bank. She called me. We talked of the 11.5 percent figure and she asked me if I thought the mayor could be bribed for so little.

See COHEN, B7, Col. 1

money. It is a question like, when did you stop hitting your wife. There is no way to answer.

Effi Barry knew better. She was on the board of the savings and loan, after all. She at first said she knew of the discount and she said she couldn't remember how much it was, and then she said it was personal—none of your business. Now she knows what it is. Her husband has told her and the world. It is 8¾ percent, which is a whole lot of money away from 12 percent or even 11.5 percent. It is not the sort of loan anyone could get. It is not even the sort of loan a favored customer could get. It is the sort of loan you can get if you went into a time capsule and went back five years.

No matter. The mayor was into the bank for quite a lot of money. It is more money than anyone thought and it may be more money than he says. When he was asked at the press conference who had paid the settlement fees, he turned on his heels and walked out. The mayor may in fact have paid them, but considering his lack of candor recently, it is not an unfair question.

There is something at stake here that has nothing to do with money. It has to do, instead, with a perception—with a sense of a place. Washington is a clean place. It is clean, in part, because it is perceived as clean. This is not a town where you have to bank at a certain bank to get construction permits and this is not a town with a favored insurance agency and this is not a town where construction projects come to a stop because some inspector has not been paid off. Some of this changes the minute people perceive a cozy relationship between the mayor, with all his power, and a certain bank. And there is no cozier relationship than accepting a whopping discount on a mortgage.

So it is a good thing that the mayor has come out in the open with details of his mortgage. It would be even better if he would divulge all the details and it would be the best of all if he would learn that it just looks awful for a mayor to take a favor from any firm that does business with the city and then cover it up—pretend to tell the truth when the truth is otherwise.

The temptation is to congratulate him. The temptation is to say—and it is true—that it takes a big man to come clean. But he has done so grudgingly, done so without saying that he has learned that his business is the people's business. He stepped deep into a conflict of interest, covered it up, refused to reveal the details, allowed people to believe things that were not true, and then came clean only in response to pressure. He lost more than money on this caper.

He's lost some trust.

Mayor Is Spared Usual 'Point' Fee In Mortgage Deal

By Milton Coleman
Washington Post Staff Writer

Mayor Marion Barry, who was given a cut-rate mortgage that would have saved him $242 in monthly payments, got an additional $1,000 break when his savings and loan firm waived its customary requirement that the borrower pay a "point" at the time of settlement, it was disclosed yesterday.

A "point," which represents one percent of a mortgage, is a service fee charged by lenders to help cover the cost of administering the loan.

At the time Barry got his mortgage from Independence Federal Savings and Loan Association on Oct. 15, most borrowers from that institution were being assessed one point. But Barry paid none, according to William S. Fitzgerald, president of Independence.

Fitzgerald said yesterday that Barry was not charged a service fee because the mayor's wife Effi is a member of the Independence board of directors. The institution's directors, officers and employes are given mortgages at the minimum cost to the savings and loan association, Fitzgerald said.

At the time the Barrys received the loan, Independence was charging most other borrowers 12 percent interest plus a one point fee. The Barrys received an 8.75 percent loan. Independence officials said discounts are given all directors and employes of the institution.

Barry said on Wednesday that he, would relinquish the 3.25 percent reduction and pay at a 12 percent rate in order to "scrupulously avoid any action that might cast the slightest doubt on the integrity of myself, or my wife or the bank."

Yesterday, Herbert O. Reid, the mayor's legal counsel, said Barry would not say if he would also pay any points to Independence. "The mayor is not making any further comment on that," Reid said.

Hubert R. Merrick, executive vice president of Independence, said he could not immediately say if any point would be assessed to Barry, who is scheduled to make his first $1,028 mortgage payment today.

Barry, facing the first incident in which he may have used his office for personal gain since becoming mayor Jan. 2, had hoped to put the controversy to rest with Wednesday's short press conference.

Yesterday, Jay Janis, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings and loan associations, said the 3.25 percentage-point difference between the market rate and the rate of the Barry loan warranted investigation.

"This is something I am looking into right now," Janis said. He declined to comment further, he said, because, "It is under review."

Federal regulations permit financial institutions to give discounts on mortgage loans to their directors and employes. Most area banks and savings and loan associations give discounts but they are usually less than 1 percent.

Fitzgerald said he made the loan at 8.75 percent because that was 1 percent more than the amount Independence was paying at the time to borrow money from large lenders and to attract depositors.

Fitzgerald said that he believed federal regulations would have allowed him to make the loan at an even lower rate, 5.5 percent, the amount being paid to savings depositors. But he chose the higher amount to guarantee a profit of 1 percent, Fitzgerald said.

"From my perspective, it's normal," Fitzgerald said of the Barry loan. "I could have charged him 5.5 percent, and we charged him 3.25 percent more."

Fitzgerald said yesterday that he had called an investigator from the bank board yesterday "to reasure myself and reassure him of our compliance with the laws and regulations." Fitzgerald said, "I anticipate at some point they will probably want to review the loan and talk to me."

Aides to the mayor described him yesterday as being somewhat "stung" by the controversy surrounding the loan. But he was also confident that his admission on Wednesday that he had received a discount and his announced intention to forfeit it, had begun resolution of the issue.

Mrs. Barry, who was appointed to the Independence board in May, shortly after her husband took office, still has 2½ years remaining on her term. Asked yesterday if he had considered asking her to step down earlier, Fitzgerald responded, "Absolutely not."

Mayor Barry's Special Interest

AT FIRST Mayor Marion Barry did not mention to reporters that the financing for his new house included a discount interest rate on the mortgage. Then his banker said the mayor got no discount. Meanwhile, the mayor's wife said there was a discount but she didn't remember how much. Now Mayor Barry has announced that the discount was a substantial 3¼ percentage points off the current 12 percent interest rate. Leaving aside the "point" the bank says he wasn't charged at settlement, the discount interest rate would have meant a savings to the mayor's family of more than $87,000 over the 30-year life of the loan. The mayor said he has decided not to take the lower interest rate; he will pay the full 12 percent.

Mr. Barry was, of course, hardly the only politician or VIP in Washington (or Maryland or elsewhere, for that matter) to have been given preferential treatment by a bank or business. It has been the custom for banks to give Cabinet officers, senators and other powerful people special deals. It was wrong for those special arrangements to be made then, and it is certainly wrong for the mayor—who has direct influence over the local banking and development business—to accept special offers from a bank now. The mayor's justification for taking the special interest rate has been that his wife, as a member of the bank's board of directors, was entitled to the discount. But that explanation is weak. The fact is that he is the mayor and he is sharing the benefit.

So the mayor is right to refuse the discount. He was wrong to have accepted it in the first place. As mayor, he is in a position to help the Independence Federal Savings and Loan Association, which gave him the lower interest rate. As mayor, he is also in a position to help the members of the bank's board of directors who may have private business with the city government. This amounts to a conflict of interest for the mayor. There is little difference between what the mayor did and accepting an outright gift from a businessman; and a spokesman for the D.C. Board of Elections and Ethics said city officials may not legally accept personal gifts of over $100. Gifts, as defined by city law on ethics, include favors, services and loan gratuities. What the mayor accepted, temporarily, for his personal benefit was a low-interest loan that would have amounted to an $87,000 gift to be given over the next 30 years. If that isn't an outright gift, it's certainly a heavy consideration.

Convention Center to Set Off $400 Million Building Boom

By Kenneth Bredemeier
Washington Post Staff Writer

Developers here are preparing to spend more than $400 million to build at least two dozen hotels and office and commerical buildings within six blocks of the new downtown Washington Convention Center, now scheduled for ground breaking in April.

The vast construction effort, along with the $98.7 million convention center itself, is expected by 1984 to alter drastically the face of Washington's old downtown, transforming a decaying, all-but-ignored section of the city into an extension of the already flourishing business district west of 15th Street NW.

Eight new hotels with more than 3,600 rooms are planned within a six-block radius of the center, as well as at least 14 new office buildings with a combined space of more than 5.5 million square feet, three times the size of Tysons Corners shopping center.

The financially hard-pressed city government expects these new hotels and office and commercial buildings to yield about $26 million in new tax revenues by 1984, but the figure could go even higher.

The 3,600 new hotel rooms would represent a 22 percent increase above the 16,400 hotel rooms in the city now.

Ever since Congress approved construction of the convention center last year, land values in the immediate vicinity of the site have jumped markedly—sometimes doubling from $50 a square foot to $100 for prime commercial property. Real estate investors in the area say that as construction on the center actually starts, and as the projected mid-1982 opening nears, land values will continue to increase.

Much of the new hotel, office and commercial construction undoubtedly would have occurred eventually without the building of the long-debated, much-delayed convention center. But numerous developers say that the imminent construction of the center, along with other factors, leads them to believe that multimillion-dollar construction projects in the old downtown sector make good economic sense.

While some of these developers say they have hired architects to draw plans for their buildings, most are still cautious, waiting just a bit longer to make absolutely certain that the convention center will become a reality.

"Have they broken ground yet?" asked real estate investor and developer Richard S. Cohen, who plans a 500-room hotel and commercial complex directly to the east of the center, in the block bounded by Eighth, Ninth, H and I streets NW. "As soon as they break ground, I'm going to start. I'm only waiting for them. Lenders are skeptical [about the convention center] until Congress approves and ground is broken."

Congress, after years of discussing a variety of convention center proposals, gave its final approval for the center 13 months ago. Surprisingly, in a city where construction delays are the rule rather than the exception, the District government is precisely on schedule with its pregroundbreaking operations.

Ninety of the 102 families living on the site of the prospective convention center, 9.7 acres bounded by Ninth, H and 11th streets and New York Avenue NW, have been relocated to other housing and the rest are expected to be gone in the next two weeks. Forty-eight of the 71 stores or commercial enterprises in the area have moved or gone out of business and the city expects the remainder to be moved out by Feb. 1.

"We have a lot of bars who want to stay in business over New Year's," to ring in the new decade, explained the city's relocation chief, Jim Woolfork.

The city expects demolition work on part of the land to start Jan. 4 and be completed by March 1. The District government has owned the land for nearly a year, since it exercised its powers of eminent domain and filed suits to condemn the land.

Owners of 36 of the 70 parcels have agreed to the amount of money the District offered them for their properties. A jury settled another case and five juries are expected to make condemnation awards on the other parcels early next year, according to city officials.

Under the $98.7-million convention center financing plan approved by Congress, the city is paying $21.4 million to buy the land and is financing that purchase through two existing taxes. A total of $8.8 million has already been collected from the city's hotel room tax—60 cents per occupied room per night—and from half the proceeds of the city's franchise tax surcharge on corporations and unincorporated businesses.

The city is borrowing the remaining $77.3 million from the federal government and will have $6.6 million in annual mortgage payments for 30 years to repay the debt. The city expects to cover that debt, as well as an estimated $500,000 in annual convention center operating costs, from the new tax revenues generated by the extra development near the center.

If the relocations and demolition continue according to schedule, city officials hope to start construction April 1.

While there are almost certain to be earlier tenants in the building, the National Solid Waste Management Association is the first group to book a convention, for May, 1985.

The seeming inevitability of the convention center, along with access to nearby Metro subway stations and the lack of developable land west of 15th Street, has also helped to boost sharply the value of property in the old downtown.

Commercial land that sold just a year ago for $50 to $60 a square foot

Washington Post

may go today for $100 or more, according to several developers and investors in the area.

Joseph Tashof, a real estate investor, said he bought 11,000 square feet of land at 10th Street and Massachusetts Avenue a year ago at $55 a square foot and sold it three months later for $65, thus turning a quick $100,000 profit after subtracting his expenses.

Tashof recently advertised another parcel, a 16,350-square-foot tract a block from the convention center, for sale at $80 a square foot and said three people are "actively bidding" on it.

Tashof said he is not worried about getting rid of the property. "If I don't sell it for $80 (a square foot) this month," he said, "I'll probably sell it for $100 two or three months later. It's like sitting on gold.

"When the first 50,000 people start going into the center, prices will be $250 to $300" for a square foot of land, he predicted.

Several developers said the heightened interest in land in the old downtown is partly related to the fact that there is little land left on which to construct office buildings in the K Street and Connecticut Avenue corridors.

Though many small businessmen say the proposed convention center development will price small businesses—and many customers—out of the area, several developers and real estate investors said they have a feeling downtown Washington is returning to life. The convention center, they say, is one tangible example of that.

"The convention center gives everyone more confidence, the lenders, the developers, the (commercial) tenants," said S. Jon Gerstenfeld, who plans to start construction late next year on a $25 million commercial and retail complex on the west side of 14th Street, between New York Avenue and H Street.

"People 2½ years ago hadn't built east of 16th Street," said Robert L. Cohen, part-owner of a new office building under construction on Vermont Avenue, south of Thomas Circle.

"Now the whole area is cleaning up ... the Pennsylvania Avenue development, the convention center ... they've given people much more confidence. It's not as speculative anymore," Cohen said.

Even with the new faith in old downtown, several developers are maintaining the skepticism that developer Richard Cohen voiced about his plans for a 500-room hotel adjacent to the convention center.

"I want to make sure the shovel is dug," said real estate investor Jerome Golub, who with various relatives owns six tracts near the convention center. But he is waiting to see some evidence of construction on the center before starting development on his own land.

[redacted] advised that Mayor Barry and other unknown members of his staff let a fradulent condition exist inasmuch as the property was originally advertised as being about 15,000 square feet when it actually contained about 80,000 square feet. He also alleged that the Mayor and his staff conspired to award the contract for the lease of the property to a firm [redacted] He also alleged that the closed-door meeting where the decision to award the contract to the Du Pont Recreation Corporation was illegal. [redacted] also displayed a document which quoted District of Columbia Code 1-261 (b), Section 103, which stated that citizens' participation is required prior to the awarding of any contract, and [redacted] stated that this was not done. b6 b7C

[redacted] further advised that although the contract for the Du Pont Circle Exchange has not been officially awarded, [redacted] have developed a source in City Hall who has supplied them with much of the above information. They advised that they were most anxious to register a complaint with the FBI prior to the contract being awarded. [redacted] also stated that [redacted] initially took their complaint to the United States Attorney's Office, Alexandria, Virginia, and were instructed to report it to the FBI. b6 b7C

Complainants were advised that prosecution venue in this matter is in Washington, D.C. Complainants stated they understood but wanted to make their complaint a matter of record on September 24, 1982, and could not go to Washington on this date. Complainants were further advised that the information would be turned over to the Washington Field Office (WFO) and that further contact by the FBI would be from WFO agents. Complainants stated they would have no problem in travelling to Washington, D.C., for further contact, but they wanted their complaint dated September 24, 1982.

As all violations appear to be in Washington, D.C., no further investigation remains in Alexandria, and this matter is considered RUC.

Dupont tunnel lease rigging claimed

By Pamela Kruger
WASHINGTON TIMES STAFF

The District government has been accused a second time of rigging the leasing of the Dupont Circle Trolley tunnels to favor a close friend and a personal banker of Mayor Marion Barry.

Sources close to the process charged yesterday that a seven-member panel responsible for advising Mayor Barry in awarding the lucrative contract deliberately played down community preferences Thursday, when they made their recommendations.

The director of the Department of General Services John Touchstone said yesterday that because he had not received the panel's recommendations, he could not comment on the charges. After reviewing the panel's recommendations, Touchstone said he will send a final recommendation to the city administrator, Elijah Rogers, who then will make the final decision.

The former director of DGS, Harold Henson, voided the city's first advisory panel and recommendation in November, after mounting public criticism from the District Auditor and Dupont Circle community groups.

That three-member panel had decided in a closed-door meeting Sept. 21 to award the contract to a health and recreation firm whose president is the mayor's close friend and personal banker, William Fitzgerald Sr.

Barry's wife, Effi, sits on the board of Independence Federal Savings and Loan Association, of which Fitzgerald is also president.

The two other proposals — a fresh-fruit market and a columbarium (a storage site for cremated bodies) offered the city more money.

The new panel, composed of five city officials and two community representatives, was described by one source as being "a set-up."

The first three meetings were occupied respectively by a discussion of general procedure, oral presentations by three developers, and a meeting with two community leaders.

At the end of the third meeting, some panel members requested that the criteria be changed so that the proposals' impact on the community would receive greater weight.

Under the original General Services request for proposals, DGS listed eight factors that would be used to evaluate the proposals. The proposal's compatibility with the community was only a subsection of one of the eight factors.

Jones reportedly refused to consider the idea of giving greater weight to the community because he said that the process could not be changed in midstream. But DGS official Elbert Ransom Jr., who was overseeing the tunnels, informed Henson in an internal memorandum dated July 1 that "the percentages were not in the (requests for) proposals so we have some latitude to change them."

In fact, the weighting of the eight factors was changed once before the first panel met and made its Sept. 21 recommendation.

Jones did not return phone calls yesterday. Rogers denied any knowledge of the inner workings of the panel.

"I have not spoken to Mr. Jones," he said. "I think it's inappropriate to comment on rumors and speculation."

An official in the firm that wants to develop the tunnels into a columbarium, said yesterday that his firm has "been talking to lawyers all along."

"We are prepared to sue...if the city awards the contract to Fitzgerald," the official said.

The Dupont Circle Advisory Neighborhood Commission voted Wednesday that the weighting should be changed. The commission and Dupont Circle Citizens Association both support the market proposal because they say the Dupont Circle community needs a fresh food market, and that it would present the least negative impact on the community.

In addition, the community has been working with the city's Office of Planning to convert the area's abandoned Jewish Community Center into a health and recreation center.
