Laird Probed For Advisory Board Post

By RICHARD BRADEE
Sentinel Washington Bureau

Washington, D.C. — Melvin Laird is the subject of a new FBI investigation because he has agreed to serve as a member of the president's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, Laird's office and the White House reported Tuesday.

A White House spokesman denied published reports that President Ford plans to name Laird to replace Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

The spokesman quoted Ford as saying that he has told Kissinger that he can stay on as secretary of state as long as he wants.

Laird was on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

His secretary told reporters, "They are doing an update on him because he has agreed to serve on a nonpaying advisory board."

The White House identified the job that Laird agreed to take as the intelligence board, a group of prominent citizens outside the government responsible for advising the president about the foreign policy implications of activities of the CIA and other intelligence agencies.

In the past the board has been relatively inactive. Occasionally, however, board members have been given access to highly classified information about proposed CIA ventures.

Laird and Kissinger often were at odds while Laird was defense secretary and Kissinger was former President Nixon's national security advisor.

Kissinger has become an issue in Ford's campaign for re-election. Republican Ronald Reagan and Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) both have criticized Kissinger's agreements with the Soviet Union.

Laird Political Career Began in Wisconsin State Senate

Local Resident Quick to Climb

Melvin Robert Laird, Marshfield's most famous citizen, is not, as most of his newspaper biographers have assumed, a native of this city, where his parents and grandparents had lived before his birth.

The congressman who will take over the Pentagon in January was born in Omaha, Nebraska, on Sept. 1, 1922, while his father, the Rev. Melvin R. Laird, was pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church there.

The Rev. Mr. Laird had come here in 1911, and in 1913 married Helen Connor, a daughter of William D. Connor, pioneer area lumberman and former lieutenant governor of Wisconsin. The couple moved to Lincoln, Ill., soon after their marriage, and later to Omaha, returning to Marshfield in 1925.

The junior Laird attended public school and junior high school here, graduating from Marshfield Senior High School in 1940. He then entered Carleton College at Northfield, Minn., where he majored in political science and economics and received his A. B. degree with his class in 1944, although he was already in service then.

In 1942 he entered the U. S. Navy under the V-12 college training program, from which he graduated at St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn., in 1943. He then enrolled in the midshipman's school at the Naval Supply and Disbursement School, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., where he received his ensign's commission in April, 1944.

Laird served for 17 months aboard the destroyer Maddox, which was employed in Pacific duty with Task Forces 58 and 38 under Admiral William Halsey. He was wounded during a kamikazi (suicide) attack on the Maddox in January, 1945.

He was on active duty in the Navy for more than three years, and a month before his discharge, he announced his candidacy for the 24th district state senatorship left vacant by the death of his father on March 13, 1946. He had been married to a former Carleton classmate, Barbara Masters of Indianapolis, on Oct. 15, 1945, while on leave.

Laird easily won the Republican nomination from Clark County Assemblyman Walter E. Cook in August of 1946 and went on to take the state senate office without Democratic opposition. He was reelected to the full four-year term two years later.

He served on the Senate labor and management committee, the veterans' affairs committee, the joint committee to reorganize the department of taxation, the state educational commission, and as secretary of the Senate Republican caucus, during his first term.

Elected with Gov. Walter Goodland, he directed legislative floor activity for Gov. Oscar Rennebohm and for Gov. Walter J. Kohler Jr., and served on the Joint Finance Committee and Joint Legislative Council.

In 1952, when Rep. Reid Murray of the Seventh Congressional District considered retirement, Laird made plans to run for the district seat in Congress, and two weeks after Murray's death on April 29 of that year, he announced his candidacy.

* * *

Again he won the Republican nomination by an overwhelming margin, this time defeating Malcolm Rosholt of Portage County, and went on to win the general election in November with the largest vote total in district history — more than 95,000 to less than 36,000 for his Democratic opponent, Ernest Kluck.

At 30 one of the youngest of congressmen, he rose rapidly in the councils of his party, being placed on the powerful and important House Appropriations Committee early in his congressional career.

He was elected to a ninth term in the House last month and was expected to play a major part in legislative leadership in the new administration.

As chairman of the House Republican Conference and member of the Republican Coordinating Committee, he has been one of his party's chief strategists.

One testimonial to his capability was voiced by President Eisenhower several years ago when he named Laird as one of the 10 men in America best qualified to serve as President of the United States.

Leadership Role Never Disputed

A veteran of eight terms in the U. S. House of Representatives, serving the 15 counties of the Seventh Wisconsin District, Melvin Laird has long been widely recognized as an outstanding young national leader.

He is currently chairman of the House Republican Conference, one of the top leadership positions in the GOP. His credentials in the field of party policymaking are undisputed and perhaps unequalled in either party.

He has served on his party platform committees, both at the state and national levels, longer than any other living Republican. He first chaired a national convention platform subcommittee in 1952, was named vice chairman of the full committee in 1960 and chairman in 1964.

Since 1964 he has played a key role on the Republican Coordinating Committee, which is the party's highest policymaking body. Laird is recognized as the original proponent of this committee immediately following the 1964 election. He advocated its creation as a suitable vehicle for binding up the party's wounds and reestablishing party unity.

An author and editor in addition to his many other activities, Laird's third and most ambitious book is Republican Papers. It is a compilation of 29 papers by distinguished academics and Members of Congress on the major domestic problems of contemporary America.

He was also editor in 1964 of The Conservative Papers, a similar volume dealing both with domestic and foreign problems. He was author, in 1962, of A House Divided: America's Strategy Gap, a book dealing with the foreign and military problems of the United States.

Laird's interest in domestic problems has been heightened by his close involvement with the domestic crises of America due to his position as ranking minority member of the House Appropriations subcommittee on labor, health, education and welfare.

This committee determines the financing of such major programs as the anti-poverty program, the elementary and secondary education program and aid to the states for public assistance. Since his appointment to that important subcommittee, Laird has become identified as a major contributor to the nation's health and welfare. He has supported such agencies and activities as the National Institutes of Health and fostered private as well as public efforts in medical research.

As a high ranking member of the Defense Subcommittee, Laird has time and again demonstrated his insight into military strategy. There are scores of examples of his leadership in national security matters. It was his amendment several years ago that increased the funding for the Polaris submarine program over and above the recommendations of the Department of Defense and made it possible for the nation to have a larger number of Polaris missile submarines on station at an earlier date than would otherwise have been the case.

His two subcommittees, Defense and Labor, Health, Education and Welfare account for budget appropriations totalling more than two-thirds of the entire United States budget each year. When first appointed to the Appropriations Committee in 1953, the then 30-year-old Laird was the youngest congressman in U. S. history to be selected for that important committee assignment. By the beginning of the 90th Congress (1967), at the age of 44, Laird had become the only member of the HEW Subcommittee who had served on that committee since the department had been created.

Laird is the recipient of numerous awards, citations and honorary degrees. Among them is the coveted 15th Annual Albert Lasker Medical Research Award. This award constitutes the highest recognition for promotion of medical research. The honorarium received by Laird for doing more to promote our nation's health than any other public official was donated by the Congressman to medical research activities in Wisconsin.

* * *

Another coveted award which Laird received in the 90th Congress was the Distinguished Service Award of the American Political Science Association — an organization that boasts more than 13,000 academic members from colleges and universities across the country. In making the award, the Association cited

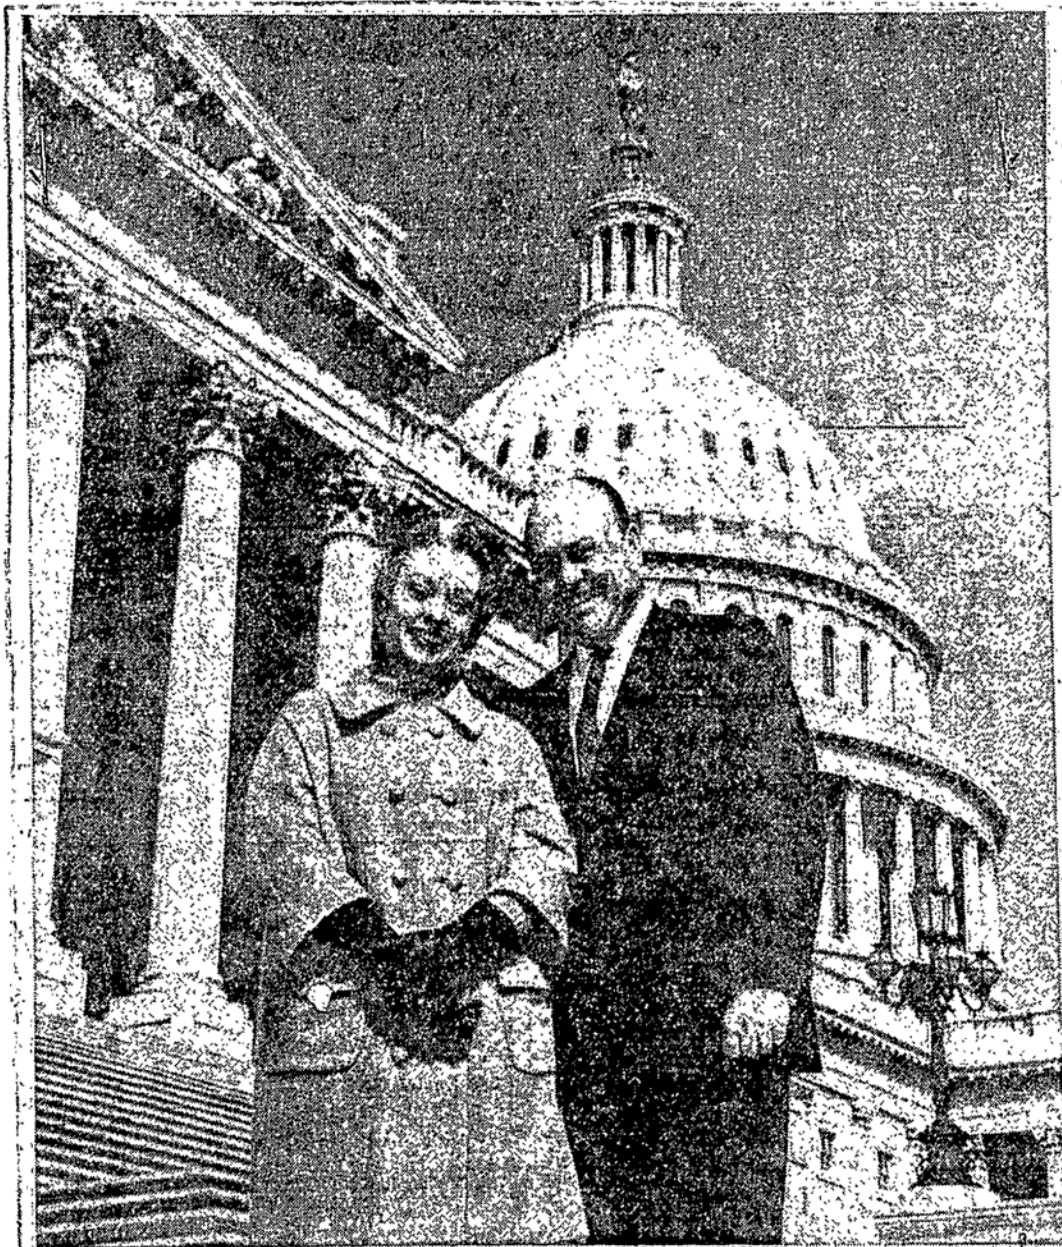

Laird as "a forthright and persistent advocate whose intellectual courage and ability have consistently enlightened and enlivened public discussion of the important issues facing the nation."

Laird has not only distinguished himself as a national figure but has also amassed an impressive record in his home state of Wisconsin. He has been a firm believer in the "grass roots" approach, traveling whenever possible back to his Seventh District to discuss the various issues of the day with his constituents.

FAMILY TOGETHER— legislator as busy as Melvin Laird has been during his congressional career finds it impossible to be with his family as much as he would like. This informal shot was taken on a recent occasion when Rep. Laird and his wife, Barbara, and their three children could all be together at their Washington residence. The congressman stands behind, left to right, David, Mrs. Laird, John and Alison.

IN CAPITOL'S SHADOW — A congressman probably poses for pictures against the background of the nation's Capitol more often than he cares to, but this was one time when Rep. Melvin R. Laird struck the familiar pose with genuine pleasure. With him here is his wife, the former Barbara Masters.

Laird's Father Was Senator, Clergyman and Businessman

The father of the nation's incoming secretary of defense was Marshfield's first state senator, a position his famed son was destined to achieve before becoming Marshfield's first representative in Congress.

Melvin R. Laird Sr., lumberman and former pastor, served in the Wisconsin upper house as the senator from the 24th District, which then included Wood, Clark and Taylor Counties, from 1941 until his death March 18, 1946.

Prior to serving in the Wisconsin Legislature, the senior Laird served as chairman of the Wood County Board of

For a time the senator and pastor-to-be taught rural school in Pike County, Ill., and was principal of Barry High School.

He received his M.A. Degree at Princeton University Divinity School and was a graduate student at the Universities of Wisconsin and Chicago. His Doctor of Divinity degree was conferred by James Millikan University in Dacatur, Ill.

Laird entered upon his ministerial career at the Presbyterian Church in Prairie du Sac in 1907. In 1911 he came to Marshfield as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, but left the city two years later to accept a pastorate at Lincoln, Ill. Later he became president of Lincoln College, a Presbyterian institution.

Although he had a growing family when this nation became embroiled in World War I in 1917, the young pastor and college president volunteered for service with the 335th Regiment and spent a year in France as its chaplain, serving in the Argonne and on other historic battlefields.

His young wife, the former Helen Connor, whom he married on April 16, 1913, made her home in Marshfield during her chaplain-husband's tour of duty in France and was one of the speakers at ceremonies here marking the Armistice Nov. 11, 1918.

After the war Laird became pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Omaha, Neb., where the new secretary Supervisors, having represented Marshfield's Seventh Ward for 12 years.

He was born on a farm at Griggsville, Ill., in 1888, attending rural schools and graduating from Griggsville High School. He received his B.A. degree from Illinois College at Jacksonville.

of defense was born in the Presbyterian Manse on Sept. 1, 1922, the third of four sons.

In 1925 the Rev. Mr. Laird gave up his ministerial post in Omaha to return with his family to Marshfield and enter the lumber business with his father-in-law, W. D. Connor, a former lieutenant governor of Wisconsin.

He found time, however, to continue to serve as a clergyman, frequently assuming duties of supply pastor here and in Stevens Point, Arpin, and other communities.

* * *

An active campaigner for his father when he sought the state senate office vacated by Sen. Walter J. Rush of Neillsville, who was not a candidate for reelection in 1940, was his son, Melvin Jr., just turned 18 at the time.

The senior Laird was the sixth Wood County resident to serve in the State Senate. His predecessors, all from Wisconsin Rapids (or the earlier Grand Rapids), were Charles M. Webb, Thomas B. Scott, Herman C. Wipperfurth, Theodore W. Brézau and Isaac Witter.

John W. Wyngaard, veteran statehouse correspondent whose column appears daily in the News-Herald, had this observation to make about the senator from Marshfield in June, 1943:

"One of the members of the upper house . . . who has made a strong impression by reason of his earnestness, capacity for work and study, and temperament, and a man who has won the universal respect of his colleagues is Melvin Laird of Marshfield.

"Never a narrow partisan, and yet a man who has effectively represented the Republican point of view in legislative activities this year, Laird has a rich background of professional work, a broad and thoughtful interest in public affairs, a quiet dignity and an effective speaking style which ought to put him in the forefront of any list of potential candidates for the governorship.

* * *

"There is now no hint that such a notion ever entered his head, but if the Republican organization is seriously engaged in examining the field of possibilities, he cannot escape serious and favorable notice."

Laird had the distinction of being the only clergyman in the State Senate, where he became chairman of the Committee on Agriculture and Labor, a member of the Committee on Legislative procedures, and chairman and member of important interim committees.

The 58-year-old senator had been a patient at Rochester, Minn., for two weeks before his death. He had undergone surgery eight days before death claimed one of Marshfield's most distinguished citizens.

Rapids Man Eligible for Laird's Post

WISCONSIN RAPIDS (AP) — Former State Sen. John Potter of Wisconsin Rapids emerged today as a possible candidate for Congress should Rep. Melvin Laird resign to become secretary of defense.

Potter, who served in the Senate from 1960-64, said he had reached no decision on whether he would seek the congressional seat held by his Republican colleague.

Several newspapers reported that Laird was expected to be tapped by President-elect Richard M. Nixon for the defense the report, Potter said, "catches me by surprise. This has come so fast. I think it's improper for me to even talk about it until a decision is made."

Potter, 44-year-old attorney, described himself as a "Laird Republican." Laird's 7th District is composed of 15 central and northern counties.

Under state law, Gov. Warren P. Knowles could call a special election should Laird resign.

Laird Reluctant to Leave House Job

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin will be secretary of defense in the Nixon cabinet—a wholly unexpected appointment of the most far-ranging importance.

Laird, who agreed Friday night to sacrifice his powerful position in Congress for the Pentagon post, will thus become a prime arbiter of the new administration's foreign military policy, and perhaps eventually strong man of the Nixon cabinet on a wide variety of issues. In particular, he will be a strong force for a quickly negotiated settlement of the Vietnam War.

Although he was an increasingly influential adviser to President-elect Nixon during the past campaign, Laird was not seriously considered for a cabinet post — at his own choosing. As the most powerful Republican in the House, he was reluctant to give up 16 years of seniority built up by the relatively early age of 46. Besides, Nixon wanted a Democrat in the Pentagon and appeared to have an impressive one in Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington (who had Laird's strong endorsement).

But much to the surprise of Nixon insiders, Jackson last week rejected the offer — thereby heeding the pleas of several Democratic senators who warned him Nixon would use him as the scapegoat for reduced domestic spending due to higher defense spending. Whether Jackson agreed with that view or not, he did feel — and so informed Nixon aides — that liberal Democrats in the Senate would make his life miserable as secretary of defense.

With Jackson out, with Gov. John Connally of Texas (another Democratic possibility) almost surely unavailable and with time running out, Nixon last week turned to Laird. After much discussion, Laird's agreement came Friday night and his appointment is to be announced by Nixon Wednesday in New York.

In leaving Congress, Laird sacrifices the near — certainty that he would soon be promoted from Republican caucus chairman to floor leader and the chance of one day being Speaker of the House.

But Laird is exchanging a Capitol Hill barony for a central place on a less parochial stage. Filling a post once held by such giants as James Forrestal, George Marshall, and Robert Lovett, he becomes a national and international figure.

Moreover, considering Laird's wide-ranging interests and energy, it is inconceivable he will not exert influence on non-defense and non-foreign policy matters such as social welfare schemes, the rebuilding of the cities, federal-state relations, fiscal policy, and Republican party politics.

Superficially, Republican Laird seems similar to Democrat Jackson: a hard-line anti-Communist in foreign policy. Highly regarded by the uniformed military and a sharp critic of Robert S. McNamara during his days as secretary of defense. Beneath the surface, however, Laird is considerably more subtle in his outlook.

In private conversation, for example, Laird tells friends he is neither a hawk nor a dove on Vietnam, adding: "I am a essimist." As such, he has long been anxious for quick negotiations and has acknowledged the probability of a coalition government in Saigon.

* * *

Similarly, Laird is not about to give the military a blank check for hardware spending and, indeed, is more cautious in that regard than the President-elect. In particular, he will move quite slowly in committing funds for the super-expensive anti-ballistic missile system (ABM).

McNamara privately considered Laird his toughest critic on Capitol Hill and his most difficult interrogator in congressional hearings. For his part, Laird privately regarded McNamara as a brilliant secretary of defense in his first three years when he achieved civilian supremacy over the military.

But Laird felt McNamara blundered in insisting on a common Air Force-Navy plane in the TFX case, in spending money for deploying an ABM thin system instead of less expensive research for a full system and, most important, in his prosecution of the Vietnam War.

As the 10th secretary of defense and the first to come from Congress, Laird carries no administrative experience into one of the world's toughest administrative positions but Gov. Nelson Rockefeller (who wanted the post himself) advised Nixon in Palm Springs, Calif., last week, that a McNamara-type administrator would be a mistake in the Pentagon today and what was needed now was a student and practitioner of geopolitics. In Mel Laird, Nixon has exactly what Rockefeller recommended.

Secretary Melvin Laird

The editorial below was prepared Sunday night before the unofficial stories of Rep. Melvin Laird's selection as secretary of defense had been circulated in this area, although there was reason to believe that the announcement would break prematurely. Speculation regarding other cabinet appointments will continue until President-elect Nixon makes formal announcement of his choices. Despite Nixon's silence up to this writing, it is now certain that the appointment as defense secretary has been offered to the Marshfield congressman and, with some reluctance on his part, accepted.

Despite the carefully attuned ears of the Washington press corps, the news reports on President-elect Nixon's cabinet selections are still couched in speculative terms. Indications are that the secrecy will soon be dissipated by the next chief executive himself.

Currently, correspondents are sure that California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, who has already been addressed by Nixon in public as "secretary," will head the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts has been tagged by speculation as the next secretary of transportation. Daniel P. Moynihan, a Democrat, is suggested as secretary of labor.

There is talk of Chicago banker David Kennedy as secretary of the treasury, and of Nixon's law partner, John N. Mitchell, as well as of former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, for attorney general. Gov. George Romney of Michigan has been mentioned as possible secretary of commerce.

Most of these men could serve in the cabinet only at some personal sacrifice. In most cases, only men who would have to abandon highly responsible positions to assist Richard Nixon would be attractive to him. He needs competent men, not political ladder climbers.

Of the dozen cabinet jobs to be filled, those in State and Defense are most critically vital. The new President cannot afford to pick errand boys who will do his bidding in those posts, but strong men upon whom he himself can lean with confidence.

State is a big mystery. With Rockefeller and Dewey eliminated, talk persists regarding Douglas Dillon, who served in the treasury under Kennedy and Johnson and is therefore suspect in some GOP circles. Or is William Scranton's assignment to the Middle East a preliminary to his appointment as successor to Dean Rusk?

Who will be the third member of the mighty triumvirate Richard Nixon will head? Democrat Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington was prominently mentioned in the speculation last week, but the word from Palm Springs Saturday was "no." Can Nixon, expected to clean house in Washington, afford to keep Lyndon Johnson's man, Clark Clifford, as master of the Pentagon? And how does Marshfield's own capable Melvin Laird fit into this great jigsaw puzzle? Perhaps we shall know the answers in a day or two.

Laird Called Nixon Choice for Defense

Marshfield Man Not Available For Comment

Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Marshfield is President-elect Richard Nixon's choice for secretary of defense, the nation was told today.

The Associated Press said the report was published in several newspapers. The Milwaukee Sentinel said it was told by an unidentified Nixon aide in Washington that Laird had agreed to accept the post and that a formal announcement was planned this week.

Similar reports were made by newspapers in Chicago and New York.

The Marshfield congressman could not be reached for comment. He was in Marshfield last week and was known by friends to have been called to Palm Springs, Calif., where President-elect Nixon was attending the Republican Governors' Conference.

play, "The Sebastians," with his mother, Mrs. M. R. Laird Sr., Thursday night.

It was also known here that Laird was extremely reluctant to leave his Seventh District seat on Congress, where he was considered by many observers and commentators to be the most powerful Republican in the House of Representatives, and was expected to become an administration leader in legislative activity.

It had been rumored that he had already declined one cabinet appointment. Presumably one of the arguments pressed by President-elect Nixon in persuading him to accept the defense appointment was his background on the House Appropriations Committee and its defense subcommittee.

The Associated Press, in its succeeded by her son, the late Richard Laird, in August, 1952, report today, said:

Laird, 46, a congressman from Marshfield in central Wisconsin since 1952, is chairman of the House Republican Conference and the ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee's welfare subcommittee.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., declined Sunday night in Seattle to comment on reports he had rejected an offer of the defense job.

Jackson said he is to confer with Nixon Friday in New York, but that he is not anticipating talk about an appointment.

discussed concerning the secretarial position. Appointment of Ford would leave the road open for Laird's possible advancement to House GOP leader.

Laird was a critic of an offer by President Johnson in October, 1966, to return U.S. troops from Vietnam if North Vietnamese forces were similarly withdrawn.

He helped urge GOP policy makers to pull away from the administration's Vietnam policy.

During the 1968 presidential campaign, Laird was often at Nixon's side. He was asked then if he would accept a cabinet post, and replied he was still thinking of staying in the House. Laird was an official of a lumber company when first elected to Congress. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1948, and was chairman of the 1964 convention's platform committee.

Four generations of his family have served in Wisconsin public office. He was elected to the state Senate in 1946, where his father had served.

Laird, a graduate of Carleton College in Minnesota, is the author of "A House Divided: America's Strategy Gap," and editor of "The Conservative Papers."

CAMPAIGNER

Politics Appealed to Laird in High School

Melvin R. Laird, at 46, has been a practicing politician for nearly all of his adult life, excepting three years he spent in the U. S. Navy. But perhaps only his close friends remember that he was an active campaigner even before he was old enough to vote or run for office.

Back in September of 1940 a small item appeared on the second page of a Marshfield News-Herald edition under the heading: Campaigner; Too Young to Vote But Young Laird Knows His Politics. It may have been the first time "Boim" Laird has his picture in the newspaper. The story read:

"Among the most active campaigners in Central Wisconsin during the primary election campaign now drawing to a close is a young Marshfield man who is still three years short of voting age.

"But although Melvin Laird Jr. has no vote of his own, he has done more than any voter in the 24th senatorial district, including Wood, Clark, and Taylor Counties, to push the candidacy of his father, Wood County Board chairman who aspires to the office of senator.

"Making use of the experience gained as a member of the debate team of Marshfield High School and as editor-in-chief of its yearbook, "The Tiger," young Laird, who was 18 early this month, set out to take an active part in his father's campaign.

"One of his earlier activities was the preparation of the Republican booth at the Central Wisconsin State Fair during the first week in September. From this he went on to the role of campaign orator, substituting at Republican rallies which his father was unable to attend.

"Rigging up his car with voice amplifying equipment, he stumped the three counties, made speeches, and conducted house-to-house canvasses in several cities and towns. Laird for Senator may be the proper slogan, but it was 'Laird and Laird' during the campaign."

Of course the senior Laird won, and was reelected four years later while Melvin Jr. was serving in the Navy.

Two of Laird's Brothers Killed

Tragedy is no stranger to Rep. Melvin R. Laird, the nation's new defense chief.

Two of his three brothers were killed, one in the Pacific during World War II and one in a highway accident at Madison.

Surviving is his youngest brother, Dr. David Laird, professor of English at Los Angeles State College.

His eldest brother, Ensign Connor Laird, was 29 when his Navy minesweeper capsized in heavy seas off Coos Bay, near what was then Marshfield, Ore., on Feb. 20, 1943. He was listed as missing in the original report of the disaster which claimed five dead and 13 listed as missing.

Brother Richard M. Laird was a Madison lumber dealer at the time of his death, Nov. 8, 1967, at the age of 52. He died in the flaming wreckage of his truck at an underpass, when the boom of a log-skidding machine being carried on the truck hit the top of the underpass.

Laird Missed Boat on One Major Event

No one knows better than a congressman's wife that politics frequently gets in the way of family affairs. But Barbara Laird, like many another politician's spouse, has learned to accept the way of life that goes with being married to a public figure.

One incident she will not forget occurred on a summer day in 1954 and was described as follows in the Marshfield News-Herald of July 17:

"Congressmen are supposed to know what's going on in their districts and Rep. M. R. Laird usually does, but sometimes things happen a little before they are expected to.

"That was the case yesterday when a new constituent arrived in the Marshfield congressman's district. Laird had planned to be on hand when the newcomer arrived, but they hadn't gotten together on the exact time of arrival.

"So Rep. Laird hastened to board a plane at Washington yesterday, but although he took 'the high road' instead of the 'low road,' David Malcolm Laird was in Marshfield before him.

"Congressman Laird arrived in the city last night and has been spending the day with Mrs. Laird, inspecting the new Laird with proper paternal pride, and renewing acquaintances with John and Alison, the other two members of the Laird family."

Mrs. Helen Laird Is Public Spirited

Personal participation in public service is no stranger to Mrs. Helen C. Laird, who resides at 208 S. Cherry Ave. here.

For this member of a widely known lumbering and manufacturing family, active leadership in the government of the state and nation has been a way of life.

Her grandfather was a health officer and Wood County board member, her father was a lieutenant governor of Wisconsin; her husband was a state senator, and her son, longtime Member in Congress.

Mrs. Helen C. Laird

from the 7th Congressional District, is now slated to assume the office of secretary of defense.

Mrs. Laird was one of the comparatively few women to serve on the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents.

She succeeded Walter J. Hodgkins of Ashland on the board in 1951, serving until May 1, 1959.

The appointment by Gov. Walter J. Kohler made it necessary for Mrs. Laird to resign from the Wisconsin Free Library Board, to which she had been named in June, 1950, by Gov. Oscar Rennebohm.

She was a member and president of the Marshfield Board of Education, on which she served from September, 1942, until June, 1946.

Mrs. Laird had been appointed to the board originally to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. D. J. Van Patter. She was elected to a three-year term in April, 1944, and served until making her decision to resign.

During World War II she was appointed one of 25 state directors of the Wisconsin War Fund, organized to support a broader standard of giving in the various war and community chest drives.

She also served from 1936 to 1939 on the Marshfield Free Library Board.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin in 1912, Mrs. Laird was one of the founders of the Beta chapter of Theta Sigma Phi at the University. When the honorary journalism sorority held its silver anniversary banquet for the Matrix Table in 1955 to honor 500 outstanding women of Madison and the University, Mrs. Laird was selected as toastmistress.

For many years she was secretary of the Connor Lumber and Land Company, being succeeded by her son in August, 1952.

Former Lieutenant Governor Defense Chief's Grandfather

A grandfather of Rep. Melvin R. Laird came to the Wood County pinery as an 8-year-old boy to carve out a career in both industry and politics, and capped his political life as lieutenant governor of Wisconsin.

William D. Connor was 80 years old when he died Nov. 20, 1944, in Phoenix, Ariz.

The 1945 Legislature said of him in a memorial resolution:

"An indomitable courage and tenacity of purpose carried him through crises to which men of lesser capacity would have succumbed.

"It is with regret and reluctance that the state witnesses the passing of another pioneer, another link with the past and the representative of another political era."

Connor had served more than 20 years as a member of the Wood County Board, for many years as its chairman. As a Republican, he became prominently identified with the case of Robert M. LaFollette Sr. and the Progressive party, particularly in the early years which saw the schism developing between the Stalwart and Half-Breed factions of the GOP.

Connor was born at Stratford, Ontario, Can., March 24, 1864, the son of Robert Connor, a native of Scotland. Robert's brothers, John and James, preceded him by a few months in the trek across Michigan and Wisconsin, finding what they sought in the northern area of Wood County in 1872.

Together the brothers cleared the land, planned the village of Ashburndale, built a store and post office, started a school and constructed a sawmill.

Young William D. Connor combined work in the sawmill with his schooling. He attended Lake Forest Academy and the State Normal School, hoping to become a lawyer, but the lumber business directed his life into that area.

He constructed the mill at Stratford, named for the place of his birth, and became president of the R. Connor Lumber Co. in 1896. The previous year main offices of the firm had been moved to Marshfield, for better supervision over two mills in Clark County and seven others in the area under cutting contracts. Connor Lumber and Land Co. headquarters were established in Laona in 1900.

Connor became increasingly prominent in political affairs. From 1904 to 1906 he was chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and served as lieutenant governor under James O. Davidson in 1907-08.

Previously he had been a delegate to numerous state conventions of the party and was a delegate to the national convention in 1904. During World War I he was chairman of the Wisconsin Council of Defense.

For many years he was president of the old American National Bank here and the First National Bank of Stevens Point.

Connor's interest was largely responsible for the establishment of the Marshfield Free Library, which he served as president for 15 years. He had been a trustee of Carroll College at Waukesha and of the now vanished Wood County Normal School in Wisconsin Rapids.

He married Miss Mary B. Witter of Wisconsin Rapids Aug. 11, 1886. She preceded him in death July 16, 1935.

The former lieutenant governor was 80 years old when he was stricken with pneumonia in June, 1944. He recovered sufficiently to leave the hospital here and go to Laona. That fall Wisconsin's changeable weather sent him to Phoenix, where he died three weeks later.

The roots of the Connor enterprises in Wood County were cut in 1954, when headquarters of the Connor Lumber and Land Co. was transferred to Wausau.

Connor's daughter, Mrs. Helen C. Laird, mother of the new defense secretary, and son W. D. Connor, continue to make their home in Marshfield. The other children are Gordon, Wausau; Richard, Laona, and Mrs. James D. Modrall, Albuquerque, N.M.

(LAIRD)

NEW YORK--RICHARD NIXON HAS CHOSEN REP. MELVIN R. LAIRD, R-WIS., TO BE HIS SECRETARY OF DEFENSE, THE NEW YORK TIMES SAID TODAY. LAIRD AND NIXON AGREED UPON THE APPOINTMENT FRIDAY WHILE FLYING TO THE REPUBLICAN GOVERNORS CONFERENCE AT PALM SPRINGS, CALIF., ACCORDING TO THE TIMES.

WASHINGTON COLUMNISTS ROLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK ALSO SAID TODAY LAIRD WOULD BE THE NEW DEFENSE SECRETARY.

LAIRD, WHO HAS GENERALLY TAKEN A HARD LINE ON VIETNAM, WAS OFFERED THE POSITION AFTER IT WAS TURNED DOWN BY SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON, D-WASH., ACCORDING TO BOTH REPORTS.

LAIRD, 46, IS CHAIRMAN OF THE POLICY-MAKING HOUSE REPUBLICAN CONFERENCE AND ONE OF THE MOST INFLUENTIAL REPUBLICANS ON CAPITOL HILL. THE CONGRESSMAN HAS INDICATED THE UNITED STATES SHOULD NOT SETTLE FOR ANYTHING SHORT OF A "FREE" SOUTH VIETNAM.

JACKSON, RETURNING TO SEATTLE, WASH., LAST NIGHT FROM HONOLULU, TOLD NEWSMEN HE WOULD MEET WITH NIXON IN NEW YORK ON FRIDAY, BUT ONLY TO DISCUSS NATIONAL SECURITY. HE REFUSED TO COMMENT ON REPORTS LINKING HIM TO THE CABINET POST.

The 12/9/68 issue of the "Washington Evening Star" reported that President-elect Nixon had chosen captioned individual to be Secretary of Defense.

Our files reveal that Laird was born on 9/1/22 at Marshfield, Wisconsin. He attended Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, graduating with a B. A. degree in 1942. He was elected to the 83rd Congress on 11/4/52, and has been re-elected to subsequent Congresses, for which we have congratulated him on a number of occasions, the most recent on 11/6/68.

Our files reveal that we have enjoyed cordial relations with him and have had limited but friendly correspondence, mostly of a constituent nature. He and his son toured the Bureau in 1959, and an autographed copy of "A Study Of Communism" was sent to him in January, 1963. Congressman Laird in return sent the Director a copy of his book, "A House Divided," which was autographed "to my friend J. Edgar Hoover, best wishes, Mel Laird." On 11/9/67, the Director sent him a letter of condolence on the death of his brother which resulted from a traffic accident in Madison, Wisconsin.

Laird is on the House Appropriations Committee. No arrest record was located concerning him.

WASHINGTON--PRESIDENT-ELECT RICHARD M. NIXON IS MAKING A SHARP BREAK WITH PRECEDENT IN SELECTING REP. MELVIN LAIRD, R-WIS., TO HEAD THE PENTAGON. LAIRD WILL BE THE FIRST DEFENSE SECRETARY RECRUITED FROM CAPITOL HILL.

THE BREAK IS PROBABLY INTENTIONAL, PORTENDING AN ERA OF SMOOTHER RELATIONS BETWEEN THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT, THE NATION'S LARGEST EMPLOYER, AND A CONGRESS WHICH MADE A PRACTICE OF CALLING LAIRD'S PREDECESSORS TO PERSONAL ACCOUNT FOR EVERYTHING FROM BOOT LACES TO BATTLESHIPS.

THE 46-YEAR-OLD CONGRESSMAN'S SELECTION FOR THE POST HAS NOT BEEN OFFICIALLY CONFIRMED BY NIXON HEADQUARTERS IN NEW YORK, BUT INFORMED REPUBLICAN SOURCES SAID THE APPOINTMENT WAS SET FOR ANNOUNCEMENT IN WASHINGTON TOMORROW EVENING WHEN NIXON UNVEILS HIS ENTIRE CABINET ON NATIONAL TELEVISION.

Laird Reported To Be Nixon's Pentagon Choice

GOP Veteran Wants Quick Viet Accord

By George C. Wilson
Washington Post Staff Writer

Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Wis.) is slated to be President Nixon's Secretary of Defense.

First word of the appointment came in a column by Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, distributed yesterday for publication in The Washington Post and other newspapers. They reported flatly that Laird will be Nixon's Defense Secretary.

Evans and Novak said that although Laird seems superficially to be a hard-line anti-Communist in foreign policy, he will be a strong force for a quickly negotiated Vietnam settlement "and has acknowledged the probability of a coalition government in Saigon."

Will Exert Influence

The columnists also said that Laird, with his "wide-ranging interests and energy" is certain to exert influence on such non-defense matters as fiscal policy, social welfare and the rebuilding of the cities. [Column appears on Page A21.]

Nixon aides confirmed last night that Laird has been asked and has accepted.

"It is 99 and 44/100 percent sure," said a Nixon aide. "The only thing that could go wrong would be if he (Nixon) changes his mind at the last minute—and he won't."

Laird has capitalized on his position on the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee to become his party's leading spokesman on military policy, and has proved to be more accurate than the Pentagon itself on the cost of the Vietnam war.

But as an eight-term Congressman, he has had little administrative experience that would prepare him for running the huge defense establishment. Moreover, he will be pitted against a Democratic Congress that remembers him as a hard-headed member of the opposition.

Nixon is expected to announce the appointment within the next few days.

Wanted Strong Voice.

Laird was offered the Pentagon post after Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) turned it down.

While explanations varied on why Jackson rejected the position, one source high in the Nixon camp said last night that the Washington Senator demanded more freedom of action than any President could grant.

Laird, who was at Nixon's side through much of the poltical campaign, was asked shortly after the election if he were interested in a Cabinet post.

The supposition at that time, according to Nixon aides, was that Laird might be interested in being Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The 46-year-old Congressman is the ranking Republican on the House Appropriations HEW Subcommittee and has shown intense interest in that field.

But Laird at that time said he wanted to stay in the House, presumably in hopes of eventually becoming the Republican leader there. He already is chairman of the House Republican Conference—the party caucus group.

After Jackson turned down the defense post late last week, Laird's name came up for fresh consideration. Another Congressman discussed for the job was Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, Republican leader of the House.

If Ford had become Defense Secretary, there was a good chance Laird would have advanced to the House Republican leadership spot.

Ford had been ranking member on the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee before becoming House Minority Leader. He thus could claim some military experience.

But Laird is on that same military subcommittee and has been the most outspoken Republican in the House on defense issues in recent years.

He took on former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and his comptroller, Robert N. Anthony, long before most of his colleagues thought it was safe.

Laird—first in closed appropriations hearings on the defense budget and later out on the House floor—tore into the Pentagon's estimates on what the Vietnam war was costing and put out some of his own which proved to be more accurate.

Always trying to find chinks in the Democratic Party's armor, Laird struck hard at President Johnson's promise in October, 1966, to withdraw American troops from Vietnam within six months, if Hanoi would do likewise and stop infiltration.

aid such a promise could be a disaster and that he could therefore no longer fully support the Johnson Administration's war policy. He worked to back the GOP away from the President's Vietnam policy so that the Republicans would not appear to be the war party during the election campaign.

This fear that the Republicans would look like hawks to the voters is believed to be behind Laird's claim during the campaign that President Johnson planned to bring some troops home from Vietnam—a claim hotly denied by the Pentagon.

Laird, as one of the hardest-nosed politicians in Washington, knew his assertion would undercut the Democrats if troops were indeed withdrawn. And, if they were not, it was the kind of political risk he frequently took for what he considered the larger interest of his party.

Nixon appreciated Laird's political acumen long before this year's presidential campaign.

Back in 1960, Nixon turned to Laird to push through the convention the compromise platform worked out by Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Nixon's chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination.

In 1964, Laird was chairman of the Republican Convention Platform Committee. This year, he traveled with Nixon as an influential adviser and edited a thick book called the Republican Papers.

As Defense Secretary, Laird will head an organization that employs 4.8 million people and will spend about $81 billion this year—half of the whole Federal budget.

Besides just the mechanical challenge of keeping such a vast establishment working, Laird will have to make some of the toughest policy decisions since World War II.

He comes to the Pentagon at the moment the United States must decide between going on to a whole new generation of costly weapons or settling for parity with the Soviet Union, hopefully through negotiations.

Laird has shown himself in his 16 years in Congress to be tough enough to stand up to the generals and the admirals who want to buy new weapons of mass destruction.

And his streak of real conservatism promises to make him reluctant to buy billions of dollars worth of new hardware unless he is fully convinced the plunge is necessary.

At the same time he will be Secretary of Defense for a President who charged the last administration with a "security gap" and warned of Russia's progress in strategic weaponry.

So Laird presumably will have to take steps that seem to close that gap without spending all the billions the military chiefs want to lay out for new weapons.

The likeliest course, giving the conditions the Defense Secretary inherits, is an increase in research and development toward new weapons without committing the Nixon Administration to buying them.

There are bound to be some other increases as well—such as building more than the 69 nuclear attack submarines McNamara set as the limit for the Navy. (Thirty-six are now operational.)

But any whole-hog buying of new weapons is considered unlikely.

For one thing, many military stocks have been depleted and other projects—such as building ships—were deferred because of the Vietnam War.

For another, many of these new weapon developments—such as the Sentinel anti-ballistic missile program—are just starting to run into big money.

These demands limit how much money Laird will have available in the Nixon budget for costly new weapons systems.

The new Defense Secretary is expected to buy time by conducting a broad review of military policy and the weapons for carrying it out rather than plunging right in and revamping Defense Secretary Clark Clifford's fiscal 1970 budget.

Laird also inherits the problem of the draft. Calls will be going up as the Nixon Administration takes office because of the cyclical nature of the war.

A larger than ever percentage of the men to be drafted in 1969 will be college graduates—the most articulate protesters against the Vietnam war.

Nixon has pledged to buy a volunteer army—but not until the Vietnam war is over. So Laird must find a way to correct inequities in the draft law in the meantime.

It is noted for the information of the Bureau that interview with FRANK EDWARD PANZER, associate of MELVIN R. LAIRD, was conducted in Room 239, Geriatrics Ward, Beaver Dam Lutheran Hospital, Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, 12/26/68. Prior to this interview Miss J. O'CONNELL, Attendant Ward Nurse, advised that Mr. PANZER had previously suffered a stroke and as a result of this malady was confined permanently to a wheelchair. She advised that Mr. PANZER had been under constant hospital care for his stroke and for generalized diabetes since 3/7/68. She further advised that PANZER experienced occasional attacks of unpredictable outbursts. She stated at the time that the interview was requested that Mr. PANZER currently appeared to be receptive to interview and, on the basis of this, contact was made with Mr. PANZER as indicated herein.

On 12/26/68, attempts to contact Senator CHESTER E. DEMPSEY at his residence, [REDACTED] reflected that Senator DEMPSEY was currently suffering from an undescribed communicable disease and was, at the time of contact at his residence, undergoing doctor's care and treatment. At this time [REDACTED], Senator CHESTER E. DEMPSEY, requested that re-contact be made by telephone later in the afternoon. Contact was made as requested with [REDACTED] and appropriate questions were relayed [REDACTED] Mr. DEMPSEY who was, at that time, still confined to his sick bed, making direct telephonic contact with Senator DEMPSEY impossible. It is noted for the Bureau that results of this interview are being reported after contact with [REDACTED] and subsequent relay of questions to Mr. DEMPSEY. Although the mechanics of such an interview are recognized as not the most desirable, the conditions requiring Senator DEMPSEY's bed rest necessarily restricted the conditions of this telephonic interview, the details of which are set out herein.

EMPLOYMENT

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agent NORMAN L. GRISWOLD:

AT LAONA (FOREST COUNTY), WISCONSIN

On December 24, 1968, THOMAS L. RASMUSSEN, Treasurer and Member of the Board of Directors, Connor Forest Industries (formerly Connor Lumber and Land Company), Laona, was contacted at his firm.

RASMUSSEN stated MELVIN ROBERT LAIRD, Jr., was formerly associated with Connor as he served as a Corporate Officer in two of Connor's wholly-owned subsidiaries, Laona-Northern Railroad Company, a short-line common carrier; and Connor Builders Supply Company. RASMUSSEN stated his records did not specifically identify LAIRD as Secretary-Treasurer of the Laona-Northern Railroad, but he assumed he was as he was a Corporate Officer. RASMUSSEN stated LAIRD was Secretary of the Connor Builders Supply Company.

RASMUSSEN stated company records indicated LAIRD began employment with the firm June 18, 1946, and voluntarily resigned his respective positions at a board meeting, August 15, 1952, at which time he was elected to the United States Congress. The above dates covered employment at both companies.

RASMUSSEN stated LAIRD, while employed from 1946 to 1952, had his office in the firm's general offices which during that period were located at Marshfield, Wisconsin. He said the general office was later moved to Wausau, Wisconsin, because of various company acquisitions made by Connor.

RASMUSSEN, who advised he had been employed at Connor for 46 years, stated he had personally known "Congressman Mel Laird for many years as a friend and co-worker during the period 1946 to 1952." He said the friendship and close acquaintance had been retained from the time LAIRD left the firm to the present. He said he was also acquainted with LAIRD's wife, BARBARA.

He said LAIRD, as an individual, possessed an excellent reputation among his friends, associates and constituents in the Seventh District of Wisconsin. "A House Divided: America's Strategy Gap"

"In a world 'half slave and half free' Congressman LAIRD deplores division among America's citizens on matters of foreign policy. A consensus would be arrived at, he feels, if we could have untrammelled discussion, or 'dialogue,' among ourselves... He believes that such agreement must inevitably settle on a tough policy of deterrence based on a clearly announced intent of reprisal and willingness to wage war to win and recover. Specifically, Mr. LAIRD would replace our 'underdog strategy' with threats of limited nuclear reprisals, arm NATO with nuclear defense weapons, test nuclear weapons in order to anticipate a new scientific breakthrough, train our troops in guerrilla warfare, restrict foreign aid to deserving neutral nations, and reduce taxes with an accompanying curtailment of nondefense expenditures"

Library Journal November 15, 1962

"The Conservative Papers"

"This volume was sponsored by a group of Republican congressmen who 'felt the need for a careful and scholarly re-examination of the foreign and domestic problems affecting the tranquillity of the United States.' The papers 'do not define the conservative position. But they represent the sort of thinking conservatives respect.' (Introduction) The title was suggested by the publication of 'The Liberal Papers,' edited by JAMES ROOSEVELT, 1962"

WFO 161-5232

MEL:mel

"Republican Papers"

"The editor has elicited contributions from Republicans and Democrats, conservatives and liberals, academicians and public officials who probe...the bundle of interrelated urban, economic and budgetary problems that beset us. The book, released simultaneously in paperback, is not offered as a Republican platform or a handbook for precinct captains, but as a means of energizing public debate. Saturday Review (August 6, 1968) Topics include: the federal system, crime, poverty, civil rights, housing, agriculture, social security employment, the budget, monetary reform, and congressional reform."

"This is not a conventional denunciation of the Democratic administration coupled with praises for the GOP... normally...expected in an election year... If these papers have any theme, it is that consideration of America's problems must involve more of the nation; it cannot all be left up to Washington." Library Journal, July, 1968.

Representative Laird is a member of the Subcommittee on Defense and the Subcommittee on Labor, Health, Education, and Welfare of the House Committee on Appropriations. Various Democratic and Republican members of the Committee on Appropriations, including its Chairman, Representative George H. Mahon (Democrat) of Texas, highly recommended him. Senators William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson, both Democrats, of Wisconsin also furnished favorable comments. Representative Laird was described as an outstanding legislator and an excellent choice for the position of Secretary of Defense. K

Investigation is complete except for checks of the files of the Veterans Administration and the Passport Office, Department of State.

Laird's Resignation Expected This Week

A-8 0 By Michael Gettler
Washington Post Staff Writer

Melvin R. Laird, President Nixon's chief domestic adviser, is expected to announce this week that he will leave his White House post next month, according to sources close to Laird.

The 50-year-old former Defense Secretary and eight-term congressman from Wisconsin is expected to take a position as a senior executive with Reader's Digest, these sources say.

Laird is also expected to associate himself with a number of other activities after leaving the White House, but the Reader's Digest post is said to be the principle one, associates indicate.

Reached by telephone last night, Laird declined to comment on his future activities.

Laird, who served as the Pentagon's civilian boss during the first four years of the Nixon administration, was coaxed out of semi-retirement on June 6 of this year to help shore up the White House staff tarnished and decimated by the Watergate scandal.

The easy-going and politically-savvy ex-congressman was brought in to take over many of the duties formerly held by John Ehrlichman, but more importantly to help restore White House relations with Congress.

From the start, Laird indicated that his White House tour was a temporary assignment, but associates say the former lawmaker did harbor some aspirations to be nominated for the vice presidency in the wake of the resignation of Vice President Agnew in October. After House Republican leader Gerald Ford was nominated for that job, Laird made it clear that once Ford was confirmed the new vice president could easily take over his role as the administration's friendly broker on Capitol Hill.

Laird's expected departure from the White House comes on the heels of the resignation of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York. Laird, privately and publicly, has frequently spoken highly of Rockefeller as one of his top choices for a number of jobs, including Defense Secretary. Some observers speculate that if Laird does show up in politics again, it may be in a campaign with Rockefeller.

We have today received requests from The White House for investigations of the following who are being considered for Presidential appointments, positions not indicated:

Robert Daniel Murphy, aged 81, honorary Chairman of the Board, Corning Glass International, New York, New York, and former Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs

Stephen Ailes, aged 63, President, Association of American Railroads, Washington, D. C., and former Secretary of the Army

Melvin R. Laird, aged 53, senior counsellor, "Reader's Digest," Washington, D. C., former Secretary of Defense, and former Counsellor to the President for Domestic Affairs

On February 17, 1976, the President announced the creation of an oversight board pertaining to intelligence operations with Murphy to serve as Chairman and Ailes to serve as a member. Another member of the board is Leo Cherne, Executive Director of the Research Institute of America, Incorporated, New York, New York. We previously conducted Special Inquiries concerning Cherne in April, 1971, and December, 1975, and those investigations were generally favorable.

ACTION: The requested investigations of Murphy, Ailes, and Laird have been ordered separately to the field and Bureau files are being checked. You will be advised of any unusual developments. The field has been instructed to conduct no neighborhood investigation in these cases without prior Bureau approval.

I FELT THAT USING MY NAME, BECAUSE OF MY FATHER'S POSITION, TO DRAW ATTENTION AND PUELCITY WAS A TERRIBLE MISTAKE AND SEEMED TO TAKE AWAY FROM THE BASIC PURPOSE OF
THE MORATCRIUM. IF YOU BELIEVE IN SOMETHING, PUBLICITY SHOULD NOT BE OF ANY IMPORTANCE. HOWEVER, I DO GIVE MY

I FEEL THAT THE VIETNAM WAR IS GROSSLY IMMORAL AND IT IS TIME FOR THE END. AS CONCERNED STUDENTS IN THIS COUNTRY WE

HE ADVISED THAT IF LAIRD WERE TO RE-ENTER THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT, HE WOULD PERFORM IN HIS USUAL OUTSTANDING MANNER. HE ADVISED THAT LAIRD'S DECISIONS ARE CAREFULLY WEIGHED AND THAT HE WOULD TEND TO GIVE POLITICAL CONSIDERATION TO THE SOLUTION OF PROBLEMS PLACED BEFORE HIM. HE ELABORATED BY SAYING THAT LAIRD, WHEN FACED WITH A DECISION, WOULD MAKE A CONSCIENCE DECISION AND WHEN THAT DECISION WAS MADE HE WOULD THEN CONSIDER THE POLITICAL RAMIFICATIONS AS THEY WOULD APPLY TO THE ADMINISTRATION THAT HE WAS SERVING.

HE KNEW HIM THROUGH HIS POSITION AS SECRETARY TREASURER OF THE WISCONSIN TELEPHONE COMPANY, A POSITION HE HELD FROM 1958 UNTIL 1971. SINCE 1971 HE HAS HAD NO PERSONAL CONTACT WITH THE APPOINTEE. IN HIS DEALINGS WITH THE APPOINTEE, WHICH WERE ONLY CONNECTED WITH TELEPHONE COMPANY BUSINESS AND OCCASIONALLY REPUBLICAN PARTY FUND RAISING MATTERS, HE HAS ALWAYS FOUND APPOINTEE TO BE A VERY SINCERE, KNOWLEDGEABLE, TRUSTWORTHY PERSON POSSESSING UNQUESTIONABLE LOYALTY. The information contained in this summary memorandum supplements information contained in an expanded name check dated November 15, 1984.

Agency Checks

Information has been received from the United States Attorney's Office, Baltimore, Maryland, indicating its files contain an index card reference to a case titled [redacted] versus Melvin Laird," and indicates that a "preliminary injunction United States Army" was filed concerning this case on September 29, 1969, and that a petition of habeas corpus was granted. The reference is incomplete; however, it does indicate the attorney handling this matter was J. Frederick Motz, who is the present United States Attorney, Baltimore, Maryland.

Mr. Motz has advised he recalled the case in general terms and believes it involved Mr. Laird as a respondent in his official capacity as Secretary of Defense. Mr. Motz stated that he believes the plaintiff, [redacted] was seeking an early release from the military. Mr. Motz also advised that to his knowledge Mr. Laird was never the subject of a suit filed against him personally.

A check of the records of the United States District Court, Baltimore, Maryland, indicate that 36 separate cases were filed against Mr. Laird, either as Secretary of Defense or in his name. The records also indicate that all 36 cases were filed and dispositions entered prior to 1979. All files concerning these cases have been transferred to the General Services Administration, General Archives Division, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where a release from a federal district judge is required for access to the files.

George Beall, United States Attorney for the District of Maryland during the late 1960's, was interviewed for information concerning these cases. Mr. Beall advised that to the best of his recollection these cases involved Mr. Laird in his official capacity as Secretary of Defense and were brought by conscientious objectors or those seeking early release from the military. Mr. Beall stated he knew of no cases in which personal suits were brought against Mr. Laird.

Barry J. Shillito, Chairman, Telebyte-International, 1301 Wilson Boulevard, Suite 900, Arlington, Virginia, telephone number 703-522-2550, whose principal residence is in San Diego, California, office address of 3761 Hartford Street, San Diego, California, telephone number 714-291-7311, home telephone number 714-227-4313, was interviewed regarding the government's purchase of titanium in 1972. Shillito thereafter furnished the following information:

Shillito was allowed to read two letters - the first letter from Senators Alan Bible and Howard W. Cannon to Melvin R. Laird, dated December 22, 1971, and a letter from himself to Senator Alan Bible, dated January 8, 1972, and after reading the communications he advised that he had no specific recollection of either receiving the Senators' letter or responding to it. He advised that as a matter of practice when Congressional letters were received concerning stockpiles the letters would have been directed to Vice-Admiral Eli T. Reich, who at the time was Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Readiness and had responsibility for matters concerning the stockpiling of strategic materials.

Shillito advised that in any matter involving one of the four Senate committees that his office constantly did business with he would have become involved. Concerning the subject matter of the Senators' letter, he more than likely would have discussed the subject matter with Vice-Admiral Reich and then would have made recommendations. He recalls that at the time that he had been doing a lot of work on matters concerning the stockpiles, an area that consumed a significant amount of his time.

Specifically, in regards to his January 8, 1972, letter, he advised that he has no specific recollection of having talked to [redacted]. He did advise that obviously his office did take action as a result of the Senators' letter by his staff making some phone calls.

NOTE: Request for expanded name check received October 25, 1984, from [redacted] the White House. Mr. Laird is currently employed as Senior Counselor, National and International Affairs, Reader's Digest Association, Incorporated, Washington, D. C. The expanded name check is complete and ostensibly favorable. The records of the United States Attorney's Office in Baltimore, Maryland, reveal that Mr. Laird was the subject of a preliminary injunction brought by the United States Army in 1970, and that a petition of habeas corpus was granted. No additional information is available as the Baltimore United States Attorney's Office destroys its records after ten years.

On November 15, 1984, [redacted] the White House Security Office, was advised by SSA [redacted] of the above information, and after consultation with [redacted] [redacted] to the President, indicated that no additional inquiries were necessary concerning the matter referred to by the records in the Baltimore United States Attorney's Office.

It is noted this expanded name check was delayed in being submitted due to voluminous files at FBIHQ which had to be reviewed concerning Mr. Laird and issues raised by the New York and Baltimore Divisions which required additional contacts with those divisions.

~~MELVIN ROBERT LAIRD~~

Summary

This summary memorandum contains the results of an expanded name check concerning Mr. Melvin Robert Laird, who was born on September 1, 1922, in Omaha, Nebraska.

Agency Checks

Information has been received from the United States Attorneys' Offices in Baltimore, Maryland, and Washington, D. C., where Mr. Laird currently resides and is employed, indicating their civil and criminal files contain no record concerning him, except the following:

A search of the docket records of the United States Attorney's Office in Baltimore, Maryland, disclosed that Melvin Robert Laird residing at 5703 Kirkwood Drive, Chevy Chase, Maryland, was the subject of a preliminary injunction brought by the United States Army in 1970, and that a petition of habeas corpus was granted. A representative of the United States Attorney's Office advised that no other information is available because records are only maintained for ten years and the records in question have been destroyed.

Central files at FBI Headquarters and in the Baltimore and Washington Field Offices, including the files of the Identification Division and appropriate computer data bases, contain no additional pertinent information concerning Mr. Laird.

Melvin Robert Laird

dated 9-29-69, concerning the above mentioned case but contained no additional information. J. Frederick Motz, United States Attorney for Maryland (U.S. Attorney for MD.), stated he handled the case and recalled it in general terms. Motz stated the case involved Laird in his official capacity as Secretary of Defense. George Beall, U. S. Attorney for MD. during the 1960's stated all such cases brought against Laird were in his official capacity as Secretary of Defenses, and involved conscientious objectors or those seeking early release from the military. Neither Motz nor Beall knew of any cases filed against Laird personally. Investigation is complete.

DEC 13 1984

MELVIN ROBERT LAIRD

The information contained in this summary memorandum supplements information contained in an expanded name check dated November 15, 1984.

Agency Checks

Information has been received from the United States Attorney's Office, Baltimore, Maryland, indicating its files contain an index card reference to a case titled "Richard R. Lohmeyer versus Melvin Laird," and indicates that a "preliminary injunction United States Army" was filed concerning this case on September 29, 1969, and that a petition of habeas corpus was granted. The reference is incomplete; however, it does indicate the attorney handling this matter was J. Frederick Motz, who is the present United States Attorney, Baltimore, Maryland.

Mr. Motz has advised he recalled the case in general terms and believes it involved Mr. Laird as a respondent in his official capacity as Secretary of Defense. Mr. Motz stated that he believes the plaintiff, Mr. Lohmeyer, was seeking an early release from the military. Mr. Motz also advised that to his knowledge Mr. Laird was never the subject of a suit filed against him personally.

A check of the records of the United States District Court, Baltimore, Maryland, indicate that 36 separate cases were filed against Mr. Laird, either as Secretary of Defense or in his name. The records also indicate that all 36 cases were filed and dispositions entered prior to 1979. All files concerning these cases have been transferred to the General Services Administration, General Archives Division, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where a release from a federal district judge is required for access to the files.

George Beall, United States Attorney for the District of Maryland during the late 1960's, was interviewed for information concerning these cases. Mr. Beall advised that to the best of his recollection these cases involved Mr. Laird in his official capacity as Secretary of Defense and were brought by conscientious objectors or those seeking early release from the military. Mr. Beall stated he knew of no cases in which personal suits were brought against Mr. Laird.
