

FILE DESCRIPTION

NEW YORK FILE

SUBJECT David Greenglass

FILE NO. 65-15336

VOLUME NO. Sub B

SERIALS Newspaper clippings

NOTICE

THE BEST COPIES OBTAINABLE ARE INCLUDED IN THE REPRODUCTION OF THE FILE. PAGES INCLUDED THAT ARE BLURRED, LIGHT OR OTHERWISE DIFFICULT TO READ ARE THE RESULT OF THE CONDITION AND OR COLOR OF THE ORIGINALS PROVIDED. THESE ARE THE BEST COPIES AVAILABLE.

VOLUME

Sub File B
Newspaper Clippings

HEADQUARTERS FILES

REVIEWED BY

grr / jcnFile No: 65-15336Re: David GreenglassDate: 1/78

(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	6/17/50	Brooklyn Eagle	2	2
NR	6/17/50	Brooklyn Eagle	2	2
NR	6/17/50	Journal American	3	3
NR	6/17/50	Herald Tribune	2	2
NR	6/17/50	News	2	2
NR	6/17/50	Times	4	4
NR	6/17/50	London, Eng Daily Telegraph	1	3
NR	6/18/50	Herald Tribune	1	1
NR	6/18/50	Brooklyn Eagle	1	1
NR	6/18/50	Compass	2	2
NR	6/18/50	Journal American	1	1
NR	6/18/50	Journal American	1	1

File No: 65-15336

Re: David Greenglass

Date: 1/78

(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	6/18/50	News	1	1
NR	6/18/50	Post & Home News	2	2
NR	6/24/50	News	1	1
NR	6/24/50	Minor	1	1
NR	6/24/50	Times	2	2
NR	7/6/50	Times	1	1
NR	7/6/50	New Mexico - Santa Fe New Mexican	3	3
NR	7/6/50	Journal American	1	1
NR	7/7/50	New Mexico - Albuquerque Journal	2	2
NR	7/7/50	Times	1	1
NR	7/7/50	Herald Tribune	1	1
NR	7/7/50	Post & Home News	1	1

VOLUME Sub-File B
Newspaper Clippings

HEADQUARTERS FILES

REVIEWED BY JRPFile No: 65-15336Re: David GreenglassDate: 1/78
(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	7/7/50	NY News	1	1
NR	7/7/50	NY Compass	1	1
NR	7/7/50	NY Mirror	1	1
NR	7/7/50	NY Brooklyn Eagle	1	1
NR	7/13/50	NY Mirror	2	2
NR	8/29/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	3	3
NR	8/29/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	3	3
NR	8/29/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	3	3
NR	8/30/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4
NR	8/30/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4
NR	8/30/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4
NR	9/2/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4

File No: 65-15336

Re: David Greenglass

Date: 1/78

(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		*	Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	9/2/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4
NR	9/2/50	Jewish Daily "Forward"	4	4
NR	10/19/50	NY Mirror	1	1
NR	10/19/50	NY Compass	1	1
NR	10/19/50	NY Herald Tribune	2	2
NR	10/19/50	NY News	1	1
NR	10/19/50	NY World Telegram & Sun	1	1
NR	10/19/50	NY Times	1	1
NR	2/3/51	NY Mirror	1	1
NR	4/6/51	NY Post & Home News	2	2
NR	4/7/51	NY Brooklyn Eagle	1	1
NR	4/7/51	NY Herald Tribune	2	2

*Designated to or from Bureau and/or Albuquerque, New York

VOLUME

Sub. Title B

REVIEWED BY

JRP

File No:

65-15336

Re:

Newspaper Clippings
David Greenglass

Date:

11/78

(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		*	Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	4/7/51	NY News	3	3
NR	4/7/51	NY Mirror	2	2
NR	4/7/51	NY Times	4	4
NR	4/8/51	NY Compass	1	1
NR	4/6/51	NY Journal American	1	1
NR	4/7/51	NY Journal American	3	3-
NR	4/6/51	NY Journal American	1	1
NR	4/23/51	NY Post & Home News	2	2
NR	9/10/51	NY Post & Home News	1	1
NR	11/19/51	NY Post	1	1
NR	2/27/52	NY Post	1	1
NR	11/3/53	NY Times	1	1

*Designated to or from Bureau and/or Albuquerque, New York

File No: 65-15336

Re: Newspaper Clippings
David Greenglass

Date: 1/78

(month/year)

Serial	Date	Description (Type of communication, to, from)	No. of Pages		*	Exemptions used or, to whom referred (Identify statute if (b)(3) cited)
			Actual	Released
NR	11/3/53	NY Post	1	1
NR	11/6/53	NY Brooklyn Eagle	1	1
NR	4/27/56	NY Journal American	1	1
NR	4/28/56	NY Mirror	2	2
NR	4/28/56	NY Times	1	1
NR	4/28/56	NY Herald Tribune	2	2
NR	1/10/58	NY World Telegram & Sun	1	1
NR	2/4/58	NY Times	1	1
NR	2/4/58	NY Daily News	1	1
NR	3/21/58	NY World Telegram & Sun	1	1
NR	3/22/58	NY Herald Tribune	1	1
NR	3/22/58	NY Mirror	1	1

*Designated to or from Bureau and/or Albuquerque, New York

U. S. Department of Justice

(MATERIAL MUST NOT BE REMOVED FROM OR ADDED TO THIS FILE)

FEDERAL BUREAU of INVESTIGATION

MAJOR CASE

See also Nos.

65-15336
Sub A-2-B
Henry James O'Connell

SEIZED IN RED SPY RING—Head bowed, ex-GI David Greenglass, 28, is hustled to jail by U. S. marshals after being held in $100,000 bail in Manhattan Federal Court.

Ex-GI's A-Spy Role Stuns His Mother

She Thought He Was Pushing Barrow
At Super-Secret Los Alamos Project

The mother of David Greenglass was bewildered today by his admission that he was giving away atomic bomb secrets to Russia at a time when she thought he was "pushing an Army wheelbarrow."

Austrian-born Mrs. Tessie Greenglass, 42, who lives with her son's family in a ramshackle Lower East Side tenement at 245 Rivington St., said she knew nothing about her "babe's" Army career except that he received "several medals." She said she "hardly heard from him" during the period when he was working at the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb project.

Greenglass, 28, whose father was a Russian-born naturalized American, was arrested by FBI agents Thursday night on charges of handing over restricted information to Harry Gold, confessed Soviet spy courier, while at Los Alamos in 1950.

The FBI men revealed that by his own admission, Greenglass was a member of the Young Communist League in 1947. But Edward Scheidt, head of the New York FBI office, when asked if a security check had been made on Greenglass before his assignment to Los Alamos, refused to comment.

Greenglass, a graduate of Lincoln High School in 1940, attended Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute for several months.

His mother said she was surprised to learn that her son had authorities he had considered "running away or com-

Continued on Page 8

TITLE
CLASS
FROM BY B. K. P. Co.
DATED JUN 17 1950
FORWARDED BY N. Y. OI

44-38861
SUBS
REC-1
REC-2
REC-3
REC-4
REC-5
REC-6
REC-7
REC-8
REC-9
REC-10
REC-11
REC-12
REC-13
REC-14
REC-15
REC-16
REC-17
REC-18
REC-19
REC-20
REC-21
REC-22
REC-23
REC-24
REC-25
REC-26
REC-27
REC-28
REC-29
REC-30
REC-31
REC-32
REC-33
REC-34
REC-35
REC-36
REC-37
REC-38
REC-39
REC-40
REC-41
REC-42
REC-43
REC-44
REC-45
REC-46
REC-47
REC-48
REC-49
REC-50
REC-51
REC-52
REC-53
REC-54
REC-55
REC-56
REC-57
REC-58
REC-59
REC-60
REC-61
REC-62
REC-63
REC-64
REC-65
REC-66
REC-67
REC-68
REC-69
REC-70
REC-71
REC-72
REC-73
REC-74
REC-75
REC-76
REC-77
REC-78
REC-79
REC-80
REC-81
REC-82
REC-83
REC-84
REC-85
REC-86
REC-87
REC-88
REC-89
REC-90
REC-91
REC-92
REC-93
REC-94
REC-95
REC-96
REC-97
REC-98
REC-99
REC-100

RECEIVED
JUN 17 1950
JUN 17 1950

F. B. I.
JUN 19 1950
N. Y. C.
1950

Ex-GI's A-Spy Role Stuns His Mother

Continued from Page 1

mitting suicide" after Gold's arrest in May.

"This I can tell you," she said. "You have a child under your arms until a certain age and then you can't butt in."

Greenglass was arraigned yesterday on a conspiracy charge and held in $100,000 bail. He was taken to the Federal House of Detention, Manhattan, to await a hearing next Friday on the Government's motion to send him to New Mexico for trial. A complaint has been filed against him in Albuquerque.

Mrs. Greenglass came from her own tenement flat to stay at her son's several months ago when his wife, Ruth, 26, was burned in a gas stove explosion. The younger Mrs. Greenglass was brought home from the hospital yesterday but was not told of her husband's arrest.

'Very Good' to Tot

Greenglass' mother said her son was "very good" at helping out with his two children, Stephen, 4, and Barbara, 1 month. At his arraignment, he told the court he should be allowed to go home to make the baby's formula.

At Los Alamos, Richard Elliott, public relations director, said Greenglass was one of about 1,500 enlisted men who worked on the bomb.

Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime head of the Manhattan atomic project, said at South Norwalk, Conn., that Greenglass "might" have passed on important atomic information if he had obtained it from "someone in a responsible position" at the project.

"If he passed on only information he was legitimately entitled to know, I suspect it was not too important," Groves said.

FBI Seen Pressing All-Out A-Spy Drive

Speculation Rife On How Many in U. S. Aided Reds

Washington, June 17 (AP)—
The FBI may be engaged today in one of the most sweeping crackdowns on suspected spies and subversives in the history of the country.

Apprehensive Congressmen wondered just how many Americans participated with British scientist K. E. J. Fuchs in an international Soviet spy ring.

So far the FBI has rounded up three suspected members of the apparatus. It was silent on the possibility of further arrests, but many Congressmen speculated that the crackdown is not yet over.

They were angry that Russia apparently operated a widespread spy ring in the United States at the very time this country was helping her beat back the Nazi hordes during the war. All demanded the vigorous prosecution of all suspected of being her agents.

Three in Net So Far

The three Americans arrested so far are:

1—Harry Gold, 30-year-old biochemist of Philadelphia. He was arrested last month and, according to the FBI, confessed that he was the go-between for

Continued on Page 8

From NY

DATED

JUN 17 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

AC
16AC1
16AC2
16AC3
16AC4
16AC5
16AC6
16AC7
16AC8
16AC9
16AC10
16AC11
16AC12
16AC13
16AC14
16AC15
16AC16
16AC17
16AC18
16AC19
16AC20
16AC21
16AC22
16AC23
16AC24
16AC25
16AC26
16AC27
16AC28
16AC29
16AC30
16AC31
16AC32
16AC33
16AC34
16AC35
16AC36
16AC37
16AC38
16AC39
16AC40
16AC41
16AC42
16AC43
16AC44
16AC45
16AC46
16AC47
16AC48
16AC49
16AC50
16AC51
16AC52
16AC53
16AC54
16AC55
16AC56
16AC57
16AC58
16AC59
16AC60
16AC61
16AC62
16AC63
16AC64
16AC65
16AC66
16AC67
16AC68
16AC69
16AC70
16AC71
16AC72
16AC73
16AC74
16AC75
16AC76
16AC77
16AC78
16AC79
16AC80
16AC81
16AC82
16AC83
16AC84
16AC85
16AC86
16AC87
16AC88
16AC89
16AC90
16AC91
16AC92
16AC93
16AC94
16AC95
16AC96
16AC97
16AC98
16AC99
16AC100

100-1046-B

F. B. I.
JUN 19 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO

FBI Is Seen Pressing All-Out Drive on Spies

Continued from Page 1 of Communist espionage in this country.

Fuchs and Russian officials in this country during the war.

2—Alfred D. Slack, 48, a chemist. He was arrested in Syracuse Thursday night and charged with giving highly classified information on a secret wartime explosive. He will be tried in Knoxville.

3—David Greenglass, 28, a former army sergeant who was arrested in New York yesterday. Greenglass, who worked on "the bomb itself" at Los Alamos, N. M., was accused of slipping Gold secret atomic data.

In addition, the FBI took into custody yesterday Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, 52, formerly of the jet-propulsion laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, on charges that he swore falsely he was not a Communist.

The FBI emphasized, however, that Weinbaum's arrest had no connection with any other case.

Congressional atomic and espionage experts, who were shocked by Fuchs' arrest, have been aware the FBI was tracking down his American accomplices. But other lawmakers were apprehensive about the scope of Soviet espionage in this country.

Accuses Truman

In Winchester, Va., last night Representative Burr P. Harrison (D., Va.) said U. S. atomic secrets "were stolen almost at will by the Russians" despite assurances from Attorney General J. Howard McGrath that they are safe.

He accused President Truman of minimizing the danger:

Representative Clare Mager (D., Mo.) said Russia's policy of "spying on us while we were sending billions of dollars in supplies to help her in the war effort was outrageous."

"The theft of military information which then had no connection with the war cannot be justified in any way," he added.

Representative Harold O. Love (R., S. D.) said bluntly that "the whole thing smells bad."

"What was wrong in those critical days?" he asked. "Were there too many Hisses, Romingtons, Lees and Wallaces playing footsie with the Russians?"

"Although a lot of horses have been stolen, it's not too late to close the barn door. Our security must be tightened and traitors in government exposed and prosecuted."

It was pointed out that Greenglass could have tipped off the secret atomic bomb project or the actual secret to Soviet Russia.

Exactly what information Greenglass could have passed along was not made clear. The Government complaint mentioned only writings, documents, sketches, notes and information relating to nuclear fission.

Atomic authorities pointed out this could indicate he had confederates within the Manhattan (A-Bomb) Project at Los Alamos, N. M., where he was stationed as an Army sergeant.

Greenglass was accused of passing the secrets to Gold who in turn relayed American defense information to Klaus Fuchs, convicted British spy, who handed what the ring garnered to the Soviet Intelligence service.

DIPLOMATS NAMED.

For the first time Soviet diplomats were named in the espionage ring—Semen M. Semenov, former employe of the Amtorg Trading Corp., and Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former vice consul in the Soviet Consulate here, now closed. Both are back in Russia.

On Thursday, the FBI nabbed Alfred Dean Slack, 44, a paint chemist in Syracuse, and named him as another link in the spy chain to Gold and Fuchs.

No scientific flash like his alleged colleagues, Greenglass was the product of a lower East Side Bronx as 64 Sheriff st. A.E. was graduated from Haaren High School in 1940 and attended Brooklyn Polytech for one and a half semesters.

He was drafted into the Army April 3, 1943, and was stationed at Los Alamos from August, 1944, to February, 1946. He was honorably discharged Feb. 23, 1946.

His mother, Tessie, 68, a native of Poland, still lives at 64 Sheriff st. She was distraught over his arrest.

Greenglass's wife, Ruth, 26, returned yesterday to their home, a four-room cold water flat at 285 Rivington st., from Gouverneur Hospital, to be greeted by news of her husband's arrest. She was badly burned while cooking Feb. 14.

She since had a second child, Helen, 1 month, and had returned to the hospital last Monday for treatment of a fever. Their other child, Stephen, is four.

SPY SUSPECT . . . Former Army Sgt. DAVID GREENGLASS, 28, latest suspect linked to the international spy ring that handed America's atom secrets to Russia, leaves the Federal Court on his way to the Federal Detention Pen. Greenglass, held in $100,000 bail, awaits a hearing next Friday on removal to Albuquerque, N. M.

Journal-American Photo by T. McKee

Atom Spy

(Continued from page one)

no connection with the Greenglass-Gold-Black case or any other.

Edward Scheidt, special agent in charge of the New York office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Greenglass was questioned Thursday afternoon and admitted his part in the spy plot that night. He was placed under arrest yesterday morning on the basis of statements he had made, Mr. Scheidt said.

Mr. Scheidt quoted Greenglass as explaining his actions by saying: "I felt it was gross negligence on the part of the United States not to give Russia the information about the atom bomb because she was an ally."

Mr. Scheidt said Greenglass admitted having been a member of the Young Communist League in 1938, but denied being a member of the Communist party any time after that. He said the young man's father, Barnett Greenglass, was born in Russia and naturalized in the United States April 6, 1921. The elder Greenglass died March 7, 1949.

Greenglass, heavily built with close-cropped black, wavy hair, appeared for the arraignment at 1:50 p. m. with Herbert J. Fabricant, a member of the firm of Rogge, Fabricant, Gordan and Goldman, 401 Broadway. Mr. Fabricant said the firm had been retained by "a member of the family."

O. John Rogge, former Assistant Attorney General, arrived a few minutes later to represent the prisoner, and when he heard the amount of bail sought by the government he protested that it was "destroying the Constitution."

When Mr. Rogge finished, Irving H. Saypol, United States Attorney, said "Mr. Rogge should speak for himself." He pointed out the offense charged was punishable by death, and therefore bail need not be granted at all. He added that the prisoner had made statements indicating that he contemplated attempting escape or suicide.

Greenglass shook his head and opened his mouth to say something. Commissioner McDonald told him to let his attorney speak for him, and to stand next to his attorney so he could tell him what to say.

The knot of men before the bar in the tiny ground-floor hearing room shifted their position while Greenglass moved next to Mr.

Rogge. Mr. Saypol said the only hysterical person present was Mr. Rogge. Mr. Rogge denied it, and Commissioner McDonald interposed: "The only thing that makes us all a little hysterical is the seriousness of the charge. I fix bail at $100,000."

Greenglass was taken to the United States Marshal's office, where Mr. Rogge said he wanted to confer with his client. Mr. Saypol told reporters that Greenglass had said to F. B. I. agents that "after Gold was picked up if it hadn't been for his wife he was thinking of running away or committing suicide."

Mr. Rogge had previously referred to the prisoner's wife and two children, and Greenglass had said: "I have to go home and make the formula."

Mrs. Ruth Greenglass, the defendant's wife, was in Gouverneur Hospital during the arraignment. Her baby, Barbara Elaine, was born a month ago, but Mrs. Greenglass was returned to the hospital on Monday for further treatment of burns incurred on Feb. 14, according to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Tessie Greenglass. On that date a gas stove exploded and set fire to Mrs. Greenglass's clothes, burning her so badly she was in the hospital for two months. After the baby was born some of the skin grafts opened and became infected.

At 3:20 p. m. yesterday she went home in a private ambulance. She is twenty-six and has been married since November, 1942.

During her absence from home her mother, Mrs. M. J. Printz, has been taking care of the baby and her four-year-old brother, Steven. They live in a four-room cold-water flat on the third floor of 265 Rivington Street on the lower East Side where Greenglass moved after his discharge from the Army in 1946.

Greenglass was respected by his neighbors, and neither they nor his family had any suspicion of espionage or Communist activities. His mother, who comes from Austria, said: "You have a child under your arm until a certain age and then you don't butt in any more." His brother's wife, Mrs. Louis Greenglass, said "he was a good boy. They don't come any better." When she heard about the charge she said "impossible." Until the reporters came she had not known why Greenglass was arrested.

Neither Greenglass's mother nor his sister-in-law had ever heard of Harry Gold. His mother said Greenglass won some medals in the Army, but she did not know what they were or where they are now. She said he never talked about his work in the Army, and when she once asked him what it was he said "pushing a wheelbarrow."

His mother said his brother, Louis, is forty-one and he has another brother, Bernard, thirty-three. She said he also has a sister, but refused to give her name. His mother lives at 64 Sheriff Street, where Greenglass was born, around the corner from his Rivington Street home.

According to the F. B. I., Greenglass was born March 3, 1922, was graduated in 1940 from Haaren High School, attended one semester at Brooklyn Polytechnic High School the same year, and was inducted in the Army on April 8, 1943. He was honorably discharged in February, 1946. Later he attended Pratt Institute for one and a half semesters. The F. B. I. said he was a machinist earning between $75 and $130 a week, depending on overtime, and he was employed in Brooklyn. He did not name the employer.

Conspiracy Is Charged

The complaint against Greenglass charges that he conspired with Gold and "Antoni A. Yakovlev, alias John, and divers other persons to the deponent unknown . . . to communicate, deliver and transmit to a foreign government . . . documents writing, sketches, notes and information relating to the national defense . . . relating to atomic energy and nuclear fission." This was said to have occurred "from on or about Jan. 1, 1945," and that Greenglass gave information to Gold "in June or July, 1945."

The F. B. I. said Greenglass obtained his information himself, not from other spies.

Meanwhile, Slack, Gold's other alleged confederate, was being held incommunicado under a strict guard in Oneida County Jail at Utica. Clarence Doll, United States Marshal, said it was "extremely unlikely that any one except officials could talk to him or see him," according to the United Press.

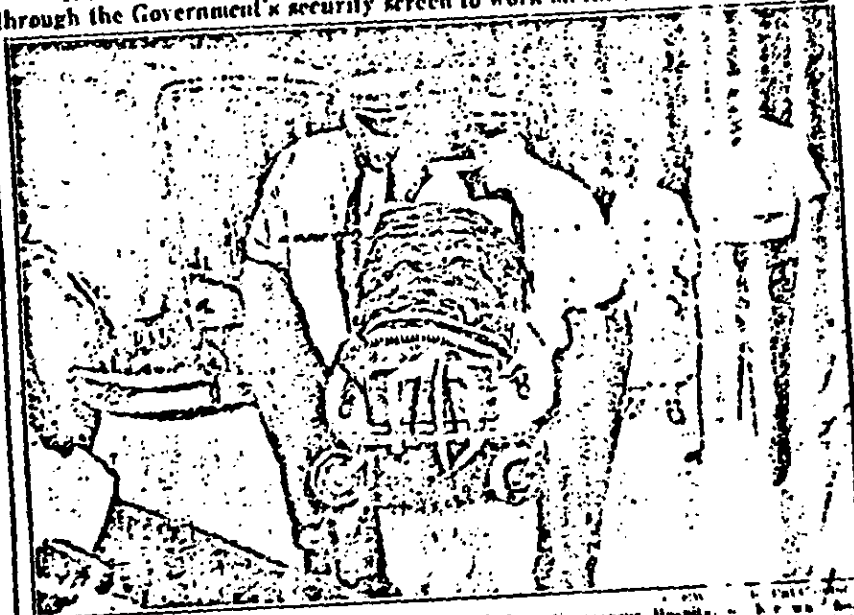

United States authorities were moving to have him extradited to Tennessee to stand trial. Authorities said extradition papers would probably be signed today by Judge Stephen W. Brennan in United States District Court.

In Washington, J. Edgar Hoover, F. B. I. head, said Slack admitted giving Gold a sample of an American-developed high explosive 80 per cent more powerful than TNT. Army officials identified it as RDX, a white crystalline powder invented in Germany in 1899 but never before produced cheaply enough for military use.

Jail Ex-Commie Youth As A-Traitor While GI

By Norma Abrams and Kermit Jachdiker

A former member of the Young Communist League who somehow slipped through the Government's security screen to work on the atom bomb at the Los While Mrs. Ruth Greenglass was being carried (above) from Eisenhower Hospital yesterday afternoon, her husband was in jail accused as a spy. She had developed cancer in her breasts.

Alamos, N. M., project was accused yesterday of betraying secret of his manufacture to Harry Gold, indicted in a spy plot.

The ex-YCLer David Greenglass, 28, St., a machinist, was jailed in $100,000 bail on charges of conspiring with Gold, an accused Soviet spy, to transmit to Russia information "relating to atomic energy and nuclear fusion." U. S. Attorney Irvin Greenglass actually was engaged in conspiracy while he was an Army technical sergeant.

Edward Schmidt, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, quoted Greenglass as giving this explanation:

"I felt it was gross negligence on the part of the United States to give Russia the information about the atom bomb, because she was an ally."

Second in 24 hours.

The arrest of Greenglass was the second in 24 hours in the reported field spy plot. Thursday, the FBI arrested chemist Alfred Frank Mack in Syracuse as an accomplice of Gold. Gold, a bomb-maker, was accused in an indictment of serving as an intermediary between its manufacture to Harry Gold, indicted in a spy plot. Gold was charged with passing on to the Soviets atomic energy information. The Alamos, N. M., project was accused yesterday of betraying secret of his manufacture to Harry Gold, indicted in a spy plot.

David Greenglass
Arrested by FBI.

19 1930

Y.C.

Arrest Ex-Commie Youth As A-Traitor While GI

(Continued from page 8)

it until Aug. 6, 1945, that the first atom bomb used in warfare was dropped on Hiroshima, Japan. The second atom bomb blast in history was set off in New Mexico on July 16, 1945.

Scheidt was asked if a security check had been made on Greenglass before his assignment to Los Alamos. He refused to comment. Mr. Fuchs, now serving a 14-year all term in Britain, frequently visited the U. S. during the war and postwar period and, as an official British Government visitor, had access to important atomic laboratory work at Los Alamos.

Picked Up Thursday

The FBI said that Greenglass was picked up at his home for questioning on Thursday. He did not make a statement, the FBI added, until after several hours' interrogation. His arrest was announced shortly after noon yesterday.

A hearing, aimed at removing Greenglass to New Mexico for reconstruction there, was held later before U. S. Commissioner Edward T. McDonald in the U. S. Courtroom, we're destroying our Constitution."

The Rogers oratory was deflected in opposing Saypol's request for $100,000 bail. McDonald replied that other defendants had been held in similar bail.

Makes Formula for Baby

Rogers said he supposed this was a reference to the case of Gerhart Eisler, Red agent who slipped his bail and the U. S. to become a big shot in East Germany. Rogers said Eisler never wanted to stay in the U. S. He pointed out that Greenglass lived in New York, had two children here. He turned to Greenglass: "You do have two children, don't you?"

Greenglass' face brightened. "Yes, I have to make a formula for my baby." He giggled again.

Rogers charged the Government was adopting a "Loyalty, Fair System" and said that setting of $100,000 bail would "wipe out our Constitution." McDonald disagreed.

Saypol declared he had been advised that after Greenglass was arrested "he spoke of escaping or committing suicide." Rogers quickly pointed out that Greenglass had just shaken his head. Rogers asked the defendant if he had made the statement Saypol had attributed to him, and Greenglass smiled and said he hadn't heard Saypol.

The matter was dropped there and McDonald fixed the $100,000 bail. Another hearing will be held next Friday.

Saypol later gave reporters a slightly amended version of Greenglass' statement about fleeing. The defendant reportedly told the FBI that after he learned of Gold's arrest, he thought of flight or suicide, but was deterred by love for his wife and children.

Faces Death Penalty

Inasmuch as wartime espionage was involved, the death penalty is a possibility.

The complaint that led to Greenglass' arrest stated that he conspired with Gold; Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former Soviet vice Consul in New York, and others on or about Jan. 1, 1945, to send Russian atom data. It charged that the conspiracy continued "for a considerable period."

According to FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover, Yakovlev is the "John Doe" named in the indictment returned against Gold recently by a Brooklyn grand jury.

By his own admission, the FBI said, Greenglass was a member of the Young Communist League in 1934.

He lives with his wife, Ruth, 35, and their children, Barbara, 11-12, 1 month, and Stephen, 4, in a four-room cold water flat in an East Side tenement. He was born in New York, a son of Harriet and Teena Greenglass. Harriet, who was born in Russia, became a citizen of the U. S. in 1921. He died a year ago.

Woman Color-Blindness

The defendant's mother, who is 64 and lives at 61 Sherrill St., around the corner from her son's home, told a reporter that Harriet Accused Mrs. Julia Stark, 41, conspired with Gold, N. Y., following her husband's arrest on espionage charges.

was. Saypol told McDonald that on the basis of the statement this defendant made, "it was charged that Greenglass conveyed to Gold information relating to individuals employed at the Los Alamos project of 'technical information relating to the manufacturing process of atom bomb'."

According to Saypol, Greenglass declared he felt the U. S. "was a testing on ally, Russia, ally."

Now and then during the hearing, Greenglass, a man about five feet 10 inches in height, with a round face and a crew haircut, giggled nervously.

O. John Rogers, retained by the family as Greenglass' lawyer, said all the nation had become "completely hysterical." He said that since the impact of "Fear and hyswas color-blind. He said bitterly that "if he were color-blind, he wouldn't be in all this trouble." This might have been a comment, rather than a remark, to Los Alamos.

Alfred Hearn Mack, chief of FBI point of view, said he was in U. S. Court in New York, following his arrest on charge of espionage.

He was graduated from Harmon High School in 1920 and attended Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute for a semester. He was inducted in the Army in 1941 and stationed at Los Alamos from August, 1941, to February, 1945.

Right after his discharge from the Army, according to his statement, he secured a position and left the Institute. He worked for a time for a company, then he had some work for a time. He knew what he was doing.

With political connections, he had been in the "Red" line.

"Never Talk to a Red," he never discussed his work with her.

His wife was held in New York while waiting for a hearing in Government House. Her treatment, gave both of them a hard time, and left the Institute after two months. She died of a heart attack Monday and was buried in the hospital. At the time of her death, she was taking a course in a private institution.

(Other pictures on page 12)

Chemist Awaiting Removal to Trans-Siberia

Saypol, June 11, 1951. A Soviet chemist awaiting removal to Trans-Siberia.

Trans-Siberia today to face charges of espionage in connection with Klaus Fuchs spy ring that stole atomic secrets to Russia.

Alfred Hearn Mack, 41, was held in Onondaga County Jail after pending local proceedings were moved to his transfer to New York. He was arrested last week by FBI agents here.

Admitted It, They Say

They said he had admitted espionage in connection with Klaus Fuchs spy ring that stole atomic secrets to Russia. Mack, 41, was held in Onondaga County Jail after pending local proceedings were moved to his transfer to New York. He was arrested last week by FBI agents here.

Gold's arrest resulted from information obtained by the FBI from Dr. Klaus Fuchs, Soviet spy, who was arrested in England.

"Quiet, Hard Worker"

Black, described by neighbors as quiet and hard working. He was the first of his family to attend college and before a U. S. citizen. He had been arrested after dining to his $72 a week point first job here from June 1, 1941, about 12 miles from New York.

FBI agents returned the car to him, but the license is being held.

EX-G.I. SEIZED HERE ON CHARGE HE GAVE BOMB DATA TO GOLD

East Side Machinist, Father of Two, Says He Felt Russia, as Ally, Merited Aid

HE WORKED AT LOS ALAMOS

Could Get Death Sentence—
$100,000 Bail Set—Scientist
Arrested in California

By EDWARD RANZAL

A 28-year-old former Young Communist League member who, while in the Army and working at the atomic bomb project in Los Alamos, N. M., in 1945, allegedly passed on atomic secrets destined for Russia, was arrested yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on espionage charges.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald, David Greenglass, a machinist, of 265 Rivington Street, was held in $100,000 bail. He was accused of handing highly restricted information on the atomic bomb to Harry Gold, Philadelphia biochemist recently indicted for passing information from the convicted British spy, Klaus Fuchs, to the Russian Intelligence service.

Because the overt acts were said to have taken place during wartime—the information assertedly was passed before the bomb was tested or dropped at Hiroshima—Greenglass if convicted faces a maximum penalty of death.

Had Considered Flight

The machinist, who is married and has two small children, told F. B. I. agents that since Gold's arrest last May 23 "I thought of running away or committing suicide."

Explaining his acts, Greenglass told the F. B. I.: "I felt it was gross negligence on the part of the United States not to give Russia the information about the atom bomb because she was an ally."

SAC
ASAC ATTORNEY
REC. 1
REC. 2
REC. 3
REC. 4
REC. 5
REC. 6
REC. 7
REC. 8
REC. 9
REC. 11
CHIEF
NIGHT SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

C.C.A.

TITLE

CLASS

FROM BY Time

DATED JUN 17 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUN 19 1950

N. Y. C.

ROUTED TO FILE

his wife and children, he had considered "running away or committing suicide" after Gold's arrest.

$100,000 Bail Is Fixed

The prosecutor said that in 1944 Greenglass was a technical sergeant assigned to the Los Alamos atomic bomb project. Later, Mr. Saypol told reporters that Greenglass had "worked on the bomb itself."

Mr. Saypol asked that bail of $100,000 be fixed.

O. John Rogge, attorney for Greenglass, contended that such a large amount was unreasonable. He said:

"Our Constitution provides that reasonable bail should be accepted, and the figure of $100,000 means that we've lost our heads in this country. It's getting so that we are destroying the provision of our Constitution, which provides for the fixing of reasonable bail. You're, in effect, saying he is un-bailable."

While Mr. Rogge was explaining that Greenglass always had lived in the United States and that he was married and had two children, the machinist interrupted:

"I have to make a formula for the baby."

Mr. Rogge continued: "If it weren't we are under the impact of a cold war of hysteria I would ask for bail of $2,500. I think $5,000 is reasonable."

Commissioner McDonald commented: "The only thing that makes us a little hysterical is the seriousness of the charge. Bail is set at $100,000."

EX-CL SEIZED HERE IN ESPIONAGE CASE

Continued From Page 1

cial agent in charge of the New York office of the F. B. I.

Born at 64 Sheriff Street, where his 68-year-old mother, Mrs. Tessie Greenglass, still lives, Greenglass has lived all his life on the Lower East Side. His father, Barnett, also a machinist, died a year ago. The latter was born in Russia and became a naturalized citizen in 1921. Mrs. Greenglass is a native of Poland.

A graduate of Haaren High School, Greenglass attended Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute for one semester in 1940. In 1948 he attended Pratt Institute in Brooklyn for one and a half semesters.

The F. B. I. said he had admitted that in 1938 he joined the Young Communist League, but did not indicate the duration of his membership.

Served at Los Alamos

He was inducted into the Army on April 5, 1943, and received an honorable discharge on Feb. 29, 1946. From August, 1944, until he was discharged he was assigned as a machinist at the atomic bomb project in Los Alamos.

Mr. Scheidt would not say if Greenglass received pay for the information he assertedly transmitted. Nor would he comment on how Gold was believed to have gained contact with the former G.I.

Seven years ago Greenglass married the former Ruth Printz and for the last five years they have been living in the Livingston Street tenement. They have two children, Steven, 3½ years old, and Barbara, one month.

The suspect, who has been working in a Brooklyn plant, earns from $75 to $130 a week.

Last February his wife upset a small gas burner in the bedroom of their four-room apartment. Her night clothes caught fire and she was burned seriously. Mrs. Greenglass returned to her home in a private ambulance yesterday.

Neighbors regarded them as a quiet couple. They were well thought of in the section.

While waiting to be arraigned, Greenglass appeared unconcerned, laughing and joking with an F. B. I. agent. When he appeared before Commissioner McDonald in light blue trousers, a white shirt without a tie, and khaki-colored windbreaker, he paid more attention to reporters' notes than to the proceedings.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol told the commissioner that Greenglass had said that but since Fuchs talked to F. B. I. agents in London. The first was that of Gold. On Thursday the F. B. I. seized Alfred Dean Black, 44-year-old Syracuse chemist. He admitted giving samples of a secret high explosive to Gold. Black, who worked at Kingsport, Tenn., where the secret explosive was manufactured, and later on the Manhattan atomic project at Oak Ridge, Tenn., is being held in Utica in $100,000 bail for transfer to Knoxville for trial.

Meanwhile, in Pasadena, Calif., Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, a Russian-born scientist who worked for three years at California Institute of Technology's super-secret jet propulsion laboratory, was arrested yesterday on charges that he had concealed membership in the Communist party. Accused of perjury and fraud against the Government, Dr. Weinbaum was held in $5,000 bail.

The espionage complaint against Greenglass was signed in Albuquerque, N. M., Commissioner McDonald set Friday for a removal hearing.

Link to Gold Charged
The charge reads: "In 1945, the month of June or July, 1945, the said Gold to Greenglass, as a result of the espionage activities of the said Gold, and at that time delivered to said Harry Gold information relating to the National Defense of the United States."

The complaint further declared that for a considerable period after Jan. 1, 1945, Greenglass "did, while the United States then and there being at war, conspire, combine, confederate and agree with Harry Gold, Anatoli A. Yakovlev, alias John, and diverse other persons" to transmit information to Russia. Yakovlev, a Soviet agent, has returned to Russia.

The charge declared that the men acted "with intent and reason to believe that it would be used to the advantage of a foreign nation, to wit, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

The principals, it was asserted, further conspired to transmit to Russia, directly or indirectly, documents, writings, sketches, notes and information relating to atomic energy and nuclear fission.

Greenglass, a chunky man who is five feet eight inches tall and weighs 190 pounds, was picked up at his home on Thursday afternoon by F. B. I. agents. At the beginning, the machinist broke down after several hours of questioning and gave a statement, according to Edward Scheidt, spe-

FORMER U.S. SOLDIER ON ATOM BOMB SPY CHARGE

TWO MORE ARRESTS BY F.B.I.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

NEW YORK, Friday.

A former United States Army non-commissioned officer, who was said to have worked on "the atomic bomb itself," was arrested here to-day on a charge of delivering atomic secrets to Russia.

At the same time a scientist formerly employed at a jet-propulsion laboratory in California was arrested on fraud and perjury charges. He is alleged to have concealed the fact that he had been a member of the Communist party.

The arrests were announced by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. They came within 24 hours of the arrest [reported in the later editions of THE DAILY TELEGRAPH yesterday] of Alfred Sick, 44, a chemist, who is charged with conspiring to supply Russian agents with secret information and samples of a powerful United States explosive.

The men arrested to-day are: DAVID GREENGLASS, 72, former N.C.O. in the United States Army, of Rivington-street, New York City, who until yesterday was employed as a machinist with a Brooklyn firm; and Dr. SIDNEY WEINBAUM, 52, a Russian-born scientist, formerly employed in the jet propulsion laboratory of the California Institute of Technology, near Pasadena.

LINK WITH FUCHS

The arrest of Greenglass, like that of Sick, is alleged to have a direct connection with the spy ring in which Dr. Klaus Fuchs was concerned. Fuchs is now serving a 14 year sentence in Wormwood Scrubs for betraying atom secrets to Russia.

Greenglass is accused of having conspired with Harry Gold, a Philadelphia chemist, who was arrested on May 23 on charges of helping Fuchs, and with Antoin A. Yakovlev (alias John) and others to deliver atomic secrets to Russia from about Jan. 1, 1945, and "continuously thereafter for a considerable period."

According to the official complaint these acts took place in New Mexico and elsewhere. In 1945 Greenglass was a technical servant working as a machinist at the Los Alamos atomic bomb installation in New Mexico.

It is also alleged that in that year, Greenglass met Gold in Albuquerque and delivered to him "information" transmitted on P. E. Cal. 512.

2 — SUPERVISOR
CLERK
UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

FROM

London-Eng. Daily Telegraph

DATE

6-17-50

FORWARDED BY DIVISION

62-6326-1
F. B. I.
JUL 12 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO 10-11

ESPIONAGE ARRESTS. Above: A. Slack, 41, an American chemist, who was arrested in New York on Thursday on a charge of conspiring to supply secret information to Russia. D. Greenglass (Helen), 28, a former N.C.A. in the U.S. ~~was~~ was accused last night of delivering atomic secrets to Russia.

ATOM ARRESTS

(Continued from P. 1, Col. 4)
relating to the national defence of the United States."

F.B.I. agents said to-day that when questioned about his alleged activities, Greenglass said he had believed that Russia, as a war-time ally, was entitled to the information.

Within an hour of the announcement of his arrest, Greenglass was arraigned in New York and detained pending the deposit of a bail of $100,000 ($25,000). During the arraignment Mr. Irving H. Saypol, the United States Attorney, said that Greenglass had told the F.B.I. that if he had not had a wife and two children he would have contemplated committing suicide or running away.

Greenglass was born in the United States. Like Gold and Slack, he faces a possible death penalty for spying in war-time.

FELONY CHARGE

The specific complaint against Dr. Weinbaum is that

"on or about September 23, 1949, at Los Angeles, while under oath before the Industrial Employment Review Board, he wilfully and fraudulently testified that he had never been a member of the Communist party when in fact he had held membership in the party name of Sydney Empson.

He was further accused of a similar offence when he signed a questionnaire concerning his employment with the jet propulsion laboratory.

According to the F.B.I., Dr. Weinbaum's employment with the jet propulsion laboratory ended last July. He has since been a research fellow in the chemistry department of the Institute of Technology.

In its announcement of Slack's arrest, the F.B.I. did not identify the explosive he was accused of transmitting to Gold. The general assumption, however, is that it was RDX manufactured at Kingsport, Tennessee, where Slack was employed.

RDX is mixed with TNT and is 80 per cent. more powerful than TNT. Defence department officials were quoted to-day as saying that what is actually secret about it is the American production process.

More Arrests In Red Spy Ring Are Indicated

F. B. I. Agents Press Hunt
'Round the Clock; Link to Canadian Ring Seen

By James E. Warner

WASHINGTON, June 11.—More spy arrests by the Federal Bureau of Investigation are imminent, but probably will not be made this week end, informed quarters believed tonight.

After the dramatic, rapid-fire arrests of David Greenglass, of New York City, and Alfred Dean Black, of Syracuse, earlier this week on charges of spying for Russia, the F. B. I. retreated into its traditional "no comment" silence today.

Neither the F. B. I. nor the Department of Justice would deny that more arrests are in the offing, which means that scores of agents are at round-the-clock work on this phase of Russian espionage in the United States.

This week's arrests—the second and third since F. B. I. men went to London to interview Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted atomic spy—highlighted the seriousness of the recent warning by F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover that Soviet espionage here is more dangerous than that of the Nazis ever was.

From what the F. B. I. has disclosed of its counter-espionage techniques, the week's arrests also indicated that the usefulness of Greenglass and Black as possible counter-espionage tools was at an end. Mr. Hoover has said flatly that arrests in such cases are made only as a matter of "last resort," after the suspect's contacts, information sources and communication methods have been thoroughly investigated.

Both Greenglass and Black are charged with passing or conspiring to pass military secrets to Harry Gold, of Philadelphia, arrested May 23 as a Soviet agent who had Dr. Fuchs as one of his sources of atomic information.

Mr. Hoover's statement that Black admitted having given Gold a sample of RDX, an explosive 20 per cent more powerful than TNT, aroused speculation that ultimately a link may be forged between the American atom and the sensational Canadian spy investigation of a royal commission in 1946.

Plans for a new process for producing RDX were worked out jointly by Americans and Canadians, and the royal commission reported that information concerning it had been transmitted to Russia by the spying it uncovered. Testimony was given at that time that there are many "very great possibilities" for research on this explosive.

All three men are American citizens, which underscores the Hoover's warning that while World War II had not yet ended

PAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

ASAC

CLASS

FROM

NY

DATED

JUN 1 8 1950

FORWARDED TO

F. B. I. DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUN 21 1950

N. Y. C.

ED 10

F. B. I. Gradually Untangling Web Of Intrigue Headed by Dr. Klaus

Gradually the web of intrigue and espionage of which Dr. Klaus Fuchs, British scientist, was the central figure, is being untangled and Moscow's agents are being brought to justice. The arrest at Syracuse of Alfred Dean Slack, 44 years old, an American chemist, and in Manhattan of David Greenglass, 28, an Army veteran, are other important developments in a conspiracy whose ramifications have not as yet been fully disclosed.

As the story stands at present, Dr. Fuchs, who stood high among the scientists of Britain and in the confidence of his government, was a key figure in the Soviet plot to gain possession of secret atomic information. He was in a perfect position to accomplish this purpose and served his Moscow masters faithfully and well. In the cell of a British prison he has talked freely with agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the arrest of Harry Gold in Philadelphia and of Slack have followed.

The role of Slack, it is charged, was that of obtaining possession of a sample of a powerful new explosive being manufactured at the Holston Ordnance Works in Kingsport, Tenn., where he was a supervisor, and turning it over to Gold; together with "highly classified information on the manufacturing process of the highly concentrated explosive."

Greenglass was a technical sergeant in an Army engineering detachment at the Los Alamos, N. M., A-bomb assembly plant. Working on "highly confidential matters," he is alleged to have turned over secret documents and information to Gold.

These exposures and arrests are important as notable accomplishments in the functioning of justice. It is unfortunate that the espionage conspiracy was so substantially successful and that Russia was able to make effective use of traitorous individuals for its own ends. For this success the laxity of Britain, which sent Dr. Fuchs to the United States with a clean bill of health, is largely responsible. Now, after the damage has been done, the conspiracy is being revealed and its principals are being rounded up for prosecution and punishment.

Presumably, too, the United States and Britain are going through a highly beneficial educational experience. They are learning a great deal about Soviet undercover operations involved, the methods and techniques followed and the purposes served. And they are learning the vital lesson of vigilance.

This lesson alone will prove to be of inestimable value. In the past there has been a certain laxity, a spirit of indifference or complacency of which the Soviet conspirators and their traitorous agents in the United States and Britain have taken full advantage. This spirit no longer exists. Soviet spies will find their tasks much more difficult from this time forward.

SAC
ASAC1
ASAC2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 11
CHIEF
NIGHT SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUN 20 1950

N. Y. C

ED TO

Ex-GI Of GI Chinese

By SID KLINE and DAN GILLMOR

Accused of conspiring to give Russia atomic secrets in 1945, stocky, dark-haired David Greenglass, 28, of 265 Livingston St., a machinist, was held in $100,000 bail Friday by U. S. Commissioner McDonald for hearing June 23.

His arrest by the FBI took place within 24 hours of that of Alfred Dean Slack, 44, a Syracuse chemist, seized on similar espionage charges. Both men, authorities indicated, were picked up on the basis of information obtained from Harry Gold, a Philadelphia chemist, who was arrested May 23, and is jailed in default of $100,000 bond.

All three men, authorities said, were accomplices of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, German-born British scientist now serving a 14-year term in England for giving Russia atomic secrets.

"He worked on the bomb itself," said U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol of Greenglass, at the latter's arraignment. "In 1945 he conveyed information on individuals employed at the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb project, and on technical processes on the atom bomb to Harry Gold."

He explained that he felt our government was not treating an ally, Russia, fairly."

In asking bail of $100,000, Saypol noted that a possible death penalty was involved, since information pertaining to the nation's defense allegedly was transmitted in wartime to a foreign power. Greenglass, at the time, was an Army technical sergeant.

McDonald overrode protests by Greenglass' counsel, O. John Rogge, that the "hysteria of the cold war" in this case, as in others, was destroying the Constitutional provision that "reasonable bail" be granted.

"We've lost our heads in this country," declared Rogge. "Fear and hysteria are wiping out another provision of the Constitution." Reasonable bail, said Rogge, would be $5,000. "I do not know whether this defendant can even raise that much."

TAC
AC1
AC2
DE1
SEC2
SEC3
SEC4
SEC5
SEC6
SEC7
SEC8
SEC9
SEC10
SEC11
SEC12

SEC SUPERVISOR
SEC CLERK
SEC UNIT

100-1336-B

F. B. I.
JUN 20 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO

Former GI Seized As Atom Spy

(Continued from Page 2)

to comment, during Rogge's plea for low bail, that he had "to fix the baby's formula."

His wife until Friday was in a hospital with severe burns suffered before the birth of a daughter a month ago. The Greenglasses also have a son, 3½.

At another point during the arraignment Greenglass shook his head disbelievingly when Saypol said Greenglass had told the FBI that after Gold's arrest he would have "run away or committed suicide" were it not for the fact that he had a family.

A native New Yorker and a graduate of Haaren High School, Greenglass married his wife, Ruth, in 1943. He got his Army discharge in 1946. The couple lived in a four-room cold water flat near the department goods store operated by the wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Pines, at 256 Rivington St. For a while Greenglass had his own machine shop on Houston St. at Pitt St. but he sold it about a year ago. Until Thursday he was a machinist for a Brooklyn firm.

Neighbors were incredulous of the charge against him. Joe Schall, an electrical contractor at 265 Rivington St., expressed the general sentiment in the area by declaring:

"It's something I just can't get over. I've known him very well since he's been here. I spoke to him many a time, and he never gave me any Communist talk. I'm sure he didn't do whatever he did out of being a Communist or for any unpatriotic reason."

MORE SPY RING ARRESTS SEEN

3 or 4 Expected to Be Seized in U. S., at Least 2 in Britain

Government officials predicted yesterday that half a dozen more participants in the alleged international spy ring that gave Russia this country's atomic secrets will be arrested soon.

It was expected there would be three or four more arrests in this country, and at least two more in England, according to Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), former chairman of the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

The latest person arrested, David Greenglass, 38, former Army sergeant, was held here in $100,000 bail to await a hearing Friday on his removal to Albuquerque, N. M.

LINKED TO HARRY GOLD.

Now a machinist in Brooklyn, Greenglass is charged with giving secret defense data to Harry Gold, Philadelphia biochemist indicted as a member of the ring.

U. S. Attorney Saypol quoted Greenglass as saying he gave the secrets to the ring because he thought the United States was not treating its ally, Russia, "fairly" in withholding the information.

Last Thursday the FBI arrested Alfred Dean Slack, 44, a paint chemist, in Syracuse, and accused him as being another link in the ring.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 11
CHIEF
NIGHT SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

FILE

CLASS

FOR BY

Journal Amer.

DATED JUN 18 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUN 20 1950

N. Y. C.

ED TO

~~SAY REDS SHIFT~~ A-SPY PATTERN

Espionage Arrests Seer Forcing Changed Methods

By JAMES LEE

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Top officials today believe Russia in 1945 had all the U. S. atomic secrets for development of a Red A-bomb and that the Soviet spy pattern since has changed completely.

Government experts say the roundup of Russian espionage agents which began with the arrest of British scientist Klaus Fuchs has bared Kremlin methods in the theft of the early atomic secrets.

The opinion is widespread that Soviet spies now are operating in the U. S. under entirely different instructions.

FBI men, Army, Navy and Air Force counter-intelligence agents, and other U. S. "cloak-and-dagger" specialists are solving secrets of the Soviet spy machine. G-Men, masquerading as devout "comrades" are working within the innermost councils of the Communist Party.

THREE NOW IN CUSTODY.

Fuchs' case ramifications were first marked by the arrest at Philadelphia last month of Harry Gold, who confessed he was a courier in speeding secrets stolen by Fuchs to Russian scientists.

New clarity was given to the espionage picture with the seizure in New York Friday of David Greenglass, ex-Army sergeant stationed at Los Alamos when the first A-bomb was detonated in the Spring of 1945.

Greenglass' arrest came only a few hours after Alfred Dean Slack, Syracuse, N. Y., chemist, was arrested on charges of having given to Gold a sample of a secret, super-powerful explosive.

The pattern shows that Gold was the "traveling man," who collected stolen data at widely separated points and disposed of it through the "John Doe" and "Richard Roe" named in the indictment returned against the mild-mannered Philadelphian by a New York Federal grand jury June 10.

Information in Washington is that "John Doe" was Anatoli Antonovich Yakovlev, former vice consul at the Soviet Consulate

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUN 18 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUN 20 1950

N. Y. C.

ED TO

More Atom Spy Arrests Expected

By Frank Ross and Kermit Jaediker

The FBI redoubled its efforts yesterday to track down the A-bomb spy ring, and more arrests were expected within a few days.

The latest suspect bagged, David Greenglass, the New York ex-GI who helped build the bomb at the Los Alamos, N. M., project, was a prisoner in the Federal House of Detention pending a hearing to remove him to New Mexico for prosecution. His family was reported striving to raise bail — $100,000—probably an impossible task.

On Friday, when Greenglass was arrested, authorities charged he had betrayed secrets of the A-ing will be held before a U. S. Commissioner next Friday, was charged with conspiring with a Soviet representative, as well as with Gold and others, to transmit atom data to Russia.

Slithered Through Screen.

The Government said Greenglass passed Gold information relating to national defense in 1945. A sidelight mystery of the case was how Greenglass, a former member of the Young Communist League, slithered through the government security screen to do atom bomb work at Los Alamos.

His wife, Ruth, 26, collapsed when she heard of his arrest. Mrs. Greenglass, ill as a result of severe burns suffered in February, returned to her home, 265 Rivington St., from a hospital the day her husband was jailed. Members of the family said yesterday she was too ill to visit him.

David Greenglass

Family trying to free him.

bomb's manufacture to Harry Gold, first American arrested in the spy plot.

Hush-hush Explosive.

The day before Greenglass was jailed, G-men arrested Alfred Dean Black, 44-year-old chemist, in Syracuse. They said he admitted giving Gold samples of the hush-hush high explosive, RDX. This is 60% more powerful than TNT. Gold is accused of turning over the sample and production secrets to a Russian who left the U. S. in 1944. Greenglass, whose removal hear-

SAC
ASAC1
ASAC2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 11
CHIEF

NIGHT SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

ccB.

15-1536-13

F. B. I.
JUN 20 1950
N. Y. O.
ED TO

6-20-50

FROM NY

DATED JUN 18 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

More Arrests Expected in A-Spy Probe

By BETSY LUCE

Additional arrests were anticipated Saturday in the government's sweeping investigation of the wartime theft and transfer to Soviet agents of national defense secrets.

Already three spy suspects have been netted.

The chain reaction was set off by disclosures to the FBI by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, naturalized British atomic scientist, who was convicted of espionage last February in London.

The arrest of Harry Gold, 38, came May 23 in Philadelphia, after he was charged with obtaining secret information from Fuchs while in this country and giving it to Russian agents.

Gold's arrest led to that of Alfred Dean Slack, 44, in Syracuse on Thursday.

Slack was accused of supplying Gold with highly secret data on RDX, an explosive 50 percent more powerful than TNT.

Slack then worked at Kingsport, Tenn., where the explosive was developed, and later at the Manhattan atomic project at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The third suspect, David Greenglass, 24, a machinist and former Army sergeant who worked on the A-bomb at Los Alamos, N. M., was picked up Thursday at his old home at 265 Livingston St., and placed under arrest Friday after questioning.

Greenglass is also accused of supplying Gold with information on the atomic bomb, which Gold in turn passed on to the Soviet agents.

Gold has confessed to the FBI his part in acting as go-between for classified data he obtained from various sources, and Russian agents. The FBI had no comment on further arrests.

Greenglass, who was quoted as telling the FBI he was a member of the Young Communist League in 1938, was held in Federal Detention Headquarters, 427 West St., in default of $100,000 bail.

The espionage complaint against him was filed in Albuquerque, N. Mex., and a hearing on his removal to that jurisdiction will be held next Friday by U. S. Commissioner McDonald.

He found guilty of being a war traitor.

Continued on Page 6

100-ASAC
ASAC
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20
SEC. 21
SEC. 22
SEC. 23
SEC. 24
SEC. 25
SEC. 26
SEC. 27
SEC. 28
SEC. 29
SEC. 30
SEC. 31
SEC. 32
SEC. 33
SEC. 34
SEC. 35
SEC. 36
SEC. 37
SEC. 38
SEC. 39
SEC. 40
SEC. 41
SEC. 42
SEC. 43
SEC. 44
SEC. 45
SEC. 46
SEC. 47
SEC. 48
SEC. 49
SEC. 50
SEC. 51
SEC. 52
SEC. 53
SEC. 54
SEC. 55
SEC. 56
SEC. 57
SEC. 58
SEC. 59
SEC. 60
SEC. 61
SEC. 62
SEC. 63
SEC. 64
SEC. 65
SEC. 66
SEC. 67
SEC. 68
SEC. 69
SEC. 70
SEC. 71
SEC. 72
SEC. 73
SEC. 74
SEC. 75
SEC. 76
SEC. 77
SEC. 78
SEC. 79
SEC. 80
SEC. 81
SEC. 82
SEC. 83
SEC. 84
SEC. 85
SEC. 86
SEC. 87
SEC. 88
SEC. 89
SEC. 90
SEC. 91
SEC. 92
SEC. 93
SEC. 94
SEC. 95
SEC. 96
SEC. 97
SEC. 98
SEC. 99
SEC. 100

600

TITLE

CLASS

FROM

NY

DATED

FORWARDED BY

JUN 1 8 1950

NY

F. B. I.
JUN 20 1950
N. Y. C.
11

DAVID GREENGLASS
in his G.I. uniform

More Arrests Expected

Continued from Page 3

time spy, he could receive the death sentence.

The complaint charged that Greenglass, while working at the Los Alamos project, "did, the U. S. then and there being at war, conspire, combine, confederate and agree with Harry Gold, Anatoli A. Yakovlev, alias John (Soviet agent who has since returned to Russia) and divers other persons" to deliver the documents to the Soviet.

"In or about the month of June or July, 1945," the complaint continued, "the defendant David Greenglass met and conferred with Harry Gold and at that time delivered to said Harry Gold information relating to the National Defense of the U. S."

According to FBI Agent Scheidt, Greenglass admitted: "I felt it was gross negligence on the part of the U. S. not to give Russia the information about the atom bomb because she was an ally."

Until his arrest, Greenglass worked as a machinist in Brooklyn, earning $75 to $100 a week, the FBI said.

The FBI said Greenglass was born at 64 Sherid St., in the lower East Side, where his mother, Mrs. Greenglass, 68, still lives. His father, Barnet, who came here from Russia and was naturalized in 1921, died in 1949.

His mother was bewildered at news of her son's arrest and reported confession. She said she "hardly heard from him" while he was with the Army at Los Alamos, and that when he did mention his Army experiences he joked that he was "pushing a wheelbarrow."

He was honorably discharged from the Army in February, 1946.

Greenglass's wife, the former Ruth Printz, who was brought home from Gouverneur Hospital the same day he was arrested, was not immediately told of what had happened.

She was seriously burned last February, while awaiting the birth of her second child, when a gas heater turned over in their flat. The baby was born a month ago, but Mrs. Greenglass returned to the hospital for further treatment of the burns.

Slack, too, is being held in $100,000 bail in Utica, pending his removal to Knoxville, Tenn., for trial.

In an unrelated case, the FBI arrested Dr. Sidney Weinbaum in Pasadena, Calif., on charges he concealed his membership in the Communist party. A Russian-born scientist, he worked for three years at the super-secret jet propulsion laboratory at the California Institute of Technology.

Price of Freedom's High

(NEWS photo by Ed Jackson)
David Greenglass, lower East Side machinist held on spy charges, leaves U. S. Courthouse in detective's custody.

ACCUSED of betraying atom bomb secrets to Russia, David Greenglass, 28, lower East Side machinist, will remain in high bail here until a federal grand jury in New Mexico can act on an espionage complaint against him, U. S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald decided yesterday. U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol told McDonald that the grand jury will convene July 6. O. John Rogge, attorney for Greenglass, made a second unsuccessful plea to have his client's bail reduced from the present $100,000.

SAC
ASAC
ASAC
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20

RECEIVED
JUN 26 1950
F. B. I.
N. Y. C.

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUN 24 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. 100-100000

F. B. I.

JUN 26 1950

N. Y. C.

ED TO

Greenglass A-Spy Hearing Is Postponed Until July 13

Because a Federal grand jury is convening in New Mexico July 6 to consider his case, the scheduled hearing yesterday in Federal Building of David Greenglass, 26, former GI worker on the atom bomb who was arrested last week by the FBI, was postponed until July 13. Greenglass is charged with conspiring to transmit atomic secrets to the Soviet Union in 1945.

Postponement was requested of U. S. Commissioner McDonald by U. S. Attorney Saypol. Commissioner McDonald also continued the $100,000 bail set for the former member of the Young Communists League and he was returned to his cell. The hearing was to be for removal of Greenglass to Albuquerque, N. M., where the complaint against him was originally filed.

Greenglass' attorney, O. John

Rogge, former head of the Criminal Division of the Justice Department, sought in vain to have his client's bail reduced. He argued that the high bail is tantamount to holding Greenglass without bail. McDonald replied:

"This charge amounts to a betrayal of the American Constitution and the defendant's own country. Now he is coming here asking for protection of that same Constitution."

SAC
ASAC1
ASAC2
REC-1
C. 2
C. 3
C. 4
C. 5
C. 6
C. 7
C. 8
C. 9
C. 10
C. 11
C. 12
C. 13
C. 14
C. 15
C. 16
C. 17
C. 18
C. 19
C. 20
C. 21
C. 22
C. 23
C. 24
C. 25
C. 26
C. 27
C. 28
C. 29
C. 30
C. 31
C. 32
C. 33
C. 34
C. 35
C. 36
C. 37
C. 38
C. 39
C. 40
C. 41
C. 42
C. 43
C. 44
C. 45
C. 46
C. 47
C. 48
C. 49
C. 50
C. 51
C. 52
C. 53
C. 54
C. 55
C. 56
C. 57
C. 58
C. 59
C. 60
C. 61
C. 62
C. 63
C. 64
C. 65
C. 66
C. 67
C. 68
C. 69
C. 70
C. 71
C. 72
C. 73
C. 74
C. 75
C. 76
C. 77
C. 78
C. 79
C. 80
C. 81
C. 82
C. 83
C. 84
C. 85
C. 86
C. 87
C. 88
C. 89
C. 90
C. 91
C. 92
C. 93
C. 94
C. 95
C. 96
C. 97
C. 98
C. 99
C. 100

TITLE

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUN 24 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

15-15336-13

F. B. I.
JUN 26 1950
N. Y. C.
FILED TO	FILED TO

HEARING DEFERRED IN ESPIONAGE CASE

Commissioner Rejects Plea to Reduce Bail of $100,000
Set for Greenglass

A removal hearing for David Greenglass, 28-year-old war veteran charged with feeding atomic secrets to a Soviet spy ring, was adjourned yesterday until July 13.

United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald granted the adjournment after United States Attorney Irving M. Saypol reported that a Federal grand jury would convene in New Mexico on July 6 to consider the charges. At the same time, the commissioner refused to reduce the $100,000 bail for Greenglass.

Greenglass, a former Young Communist League member, worked at the atomic bomb project in Los Alamos, N. M., in 1945 while he was in the Army. He now is a machinist and lives with his wife and two small children at 265 Rivington Street.

He is accused of handing over classified information on the atomic bomb to Harry Gold, Philadelphia biochemist recently indicted on charges of passing information from Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted British spy, to the Russian intelligence service.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SIC 1
SIC 2
SIC 3
SIC 4

SUPERVISOR
SIXTY-FOUR SIXTY-ONE

122B

1124

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUN 24 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

65-15336-B-1

F. B. I.
JUN 26 1950
N. Y. C.
ROUTED TO	FILE

Examination Plea Denied

O. John Rogge, Greenglass' attorney, informed the commissioner that he had subpoenaed the two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who arrested Greenglass. He said he had two requests. One was to examine the two agents. Commissioner McDonald declined. The other was to instruct the two agents to return for the next hearing. This was granted.

Mr. Rogge then said: "We still go by the Constitution that"— "Which Constitution?" Mr. Saypol interrupted.

Raising his voice, Mr. Rogge asked: "Do you have any doubts as to which Constitution I mean?"

"I do," Mr. Saypol replied.

"Will you express it," Mr. Rogge demanded.

Commissioner McDonald thereupon intervened. Mr. Rogge then urged that the bail be reduced because Greenglass was an American citizen and because, he charged, the high bail was a violation of Greenglass' Constitutional rights.

The Commissioner said he would not reduce the bail, adding that he still had doubts that he could set bail in a case that, upon conviction, was punishable by death.

Throughout the hearing the chunky prisoner was outwardly placid.

Syracuse Neighbors Aid Family of Alleged Spy

By The Associated Press.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 5—Neighbors of Mrs. Alfred Dean Slack, wife of the 44-year-old chemist held as a spy for Russia, have rallied to raise a fund to support her and her two children.

The Rev. Owen E. Rutledge, Methodist minister, and Charles H. Richard, a grocer, are directing the fund.

The fund will be used only for Mrs. Slack and the children, Joe, 4, and Tommy, 2, and not for her husband's defense, Mr. Rutledge said.

Mrs. Lewis Slack, sister-in-law of the accused man, said the family's income was cut off by the arrest. She said their home in the near-by town of Clay had been mortgaged and was still unfinished. She said it probably could not be sold or rented.

The chemist's wife is in Knoxville, Tenn., where he is in prison.

REVISOR
CLERK

TIME _____
CLASS _____
From _____ NY Time _____
DATED JUL 6 1950
FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

65-5326-10
F. B. I.
JUL 7 1950
N. Y. C.
TO 1658

Grand Jury Convenes In 'A' Spy Case

A federal grand jury, convened here this morning, was expected to conclude this afternoon its study of the case of David Greenglass, accused of conspiring to give U. S. atomic secrets to Russia. Only two known witnesses were waiting to testify when the jury recessed at noon.

Federal court attaches said unofficially, that they believed the grand jury might hand down its report in the Greenglass case late this afternoon or early tomorrow.

Greenglass 38, a technical sergeant in an Army engineering detachment at a Los Alamos A-bomb assembly plant during the war, was arrested by FBI agents at his lower east side New York home June 15.

He was formally charged at that time with turning over secret documents and information to Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist who has admitted delivering to Russian agents the atomic secrets stolen by Klaus Fuchs at the time Fuchs was a Los Alamos scientist.

Greenglass is being held in a New York prison but court attaches said it was likely that he will be brought here for arraignment hearing if the grand jury returns an indictment against him.

SAC
ASAC ASAC
SAC

CHIEF CLERK
UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

NEW MEXICO - SANTA FE NEW MEXICAN

DATED 7-6-50

FORWARDED DIVISION

15-15336-15
F. B. I.
JUL 12 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO	FILE

Four FBI agents, a present Los Alamos scientific laboratory official, a former Los Alamos employee, and three Albuquerque businessmen went before the jury this forenoon.

Still waiting to testify at noon were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Freeman, Albuquerque, Greenglass' landlords during the time he lived there.

The FBI agents who testified today included H. L. McConnell, Albuquerque, and Leo H. Frutkin, John W. Lewis and Richard Brennan, of the New York office.

Also before the grand jury today were Dr. Ralph Carlisle Smith, Los Alamos, associate director for classification and security for the Los Alamos scientific laboratory; Wendell Edward Warrhman, now employed by the J. & H. Label Processing Corp., of Maywood, N.J., and a former employee at Los Alamos; and three Albuquerque businessmen.

Paul H. Barnes, of the Albuquerque National bank, and R. R. Galusha, of the First National bank of Albuquerque, appeared this morning. Barnes represented R. S. Poague, for whom the subpoena had been issued.

Both Barnes and Galusha had been requested to bring records of any bank accounts in the name of Greenglass and his wife, Ruth.

Marc W. Neal, assistant manager of the Hilton hotel at Albuquerque, also appeared. He represented Manager Fletcher Brumit, who had been requested to produce any registration cards and other records concerning Harry Gold.

Although interest is focused on the Greenglass case before the grand

(Continued on Page Four)

Grand Jury Seated Here

(Continued From Page One)

Jury, U. S. District Judge Carl A. Hatch, Albuquerque, emphasized that this is a reconvened regular grand jury session and that it is expected to consider a number of other matters presented to it by U. S. District Attorney E. M. Grantham, Albuquerque.

Judge Hatch said he did not particularly know what will be presented to the grand jury for its consideration.

He said, however, that the district attorney usually has up to 75 matters for a grand jury session. These matters can include any offense under federal law.

The 21-man jury was impanelled Aug. 15, 1949, and was excused, subject to further call, Jan. 12, 1950.

Judge Hatch said he would not formally charge the jury today, since it was charged last August and has been in recess since January 12.

Milas L. Hurley, Tucumcari, is foreman of the 21 man grand jury panel. Other members are: Charles W. Alford, Causey, Elmer Burnett, Bellview, Scale Howe, Wagon Mound, J. P. Abbin, Albuquerque, Celso Turrietta, Albuquerque, Camilo E. Medina, Alcalde, Vance N. West, Albuquerque, Dan Taichert, 403 Don Gaspar, Santa Fe, Herman F. Fitzer, Logan, Charles L. McCulley, Albuquerque, Cleto Gallejos, El Porvenir, Jim Mahill, Mayhill, Blas R. Ortega, El Porvenir, Tomas J. Martinez, Mora, Will Shuster, Santa Fe, Tobias Espinosa, Tierra Amarilla, William L. Erb, Las Vegas, Paul Davis, Milnesand, William O. Bamberger, Magdalena, and W. J. Clemens, Santa Fe.

Jury Hears 7 In A-Spy Case

SANTA FE, N. M., July 6 (UP). —A federal grand jury hears evidence today on the government's charge that former army Sgt. David Greenglass passed atomic secrets to Russia.

Greenglass was seized in New York June 15, and charged with espionage. The U. S. District Court set his bond at $100,000.

A former member of the Young Communist League, Greenglass admitted that he gave secret information to Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist who has confessed delivering secrets to Russia.

Greenglass was stationed at the atomic research center at Los Alamos, N. M., in 1945, serving as a technical sergeant.

Everett M. Grantham, U. S. district attorney for New Mexico, completed evidence brought before the grand jury today. O. John Rogge of New York is defense attorney. About seven witnesses were to be called.

Government attorneys said Greenglass would be brought to New Mexico from New York for trial if he is indicted, unless he pleads guilty.

REVIEW CLERK INIT

TITLE

CLASS

FROM

NY

DATED JUL 6 1950

FORWARDED

DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUL 7 1950

N. Y. C.

ED TO

Jury at Santa Fe Returns A - Secrets Sale Indictment

SANTA FE, July 6 (AP)—A New Mexico federal grand jury today indicted David Greenglass, 28, of conspiring to deliver atomic secrets to Russia.

The indictment specifically mentions that the conspiracy took place during the time the United States was at war.

The indictment lists four specific overt acts:

1. That on or about June 3, 1945, Greenglass met with Harry Gold, a Philadelphia chemist who has admitted turning atomic secrets over to Russian agents, at Albuquerque and "at that time delivered to said Harry Gold information relating to the national defense of the United States."

2. That at that time, and also in Albuquerque, Greenglass received $500 from Gold.

3. That at that time Greenglass prepared and delivered a sketch of a "high explosive lens mold."

4. That at that time Greenglass prepared and delivered a statement to Gold about the Los Alamos, New Mexico, atomic project.

In addition to conspiring with Gold, the indictment also charges that Greenglass conspired with one Anatoli A. Yakovlev, "alias 'John' and divers other persons to the grand jury unknown."

The indictment charges that the conspiracy began about January 1, 1945, and continued "thereafter for a considerable period."

Former Sergeant

Greenglass, a technical sergeant in an Army engineering detachment at a Los Alamos A-bomb assembly plant during the war, was arrested June 15 by FBI agents at his lower East Side New York home.

Greenglass is currently being held in a New York jail in default of $100,000 bail.

After receiving today's indictment, Federal District Judge Carl

Continued on Page Seven

SAC
ASAC1
ALAC2
EC1

SUPERVISOR
CLERK
UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

NEW MEXICO - ALBUQUERQUE JOURNAL

DATED 7-7-50

FORWARDED

DIVISION

F. B. I.
JUL 12 1950
N. Y. C.
1	ED TO

Jury at Santa Fe Indicts Greenglass

Continued from Page One

A. Hatch, Albuquerque, refixed Greenglass' bail at that same $100,000 figure and ordered that Greenglass be returned to the custody of the New Mexico federal district.

Four FBI agents, a present Los Alamos scientific laboratory official, a former Los Alamos employe, and three Albuquerque businessmen testified before the grand jury in the Greenglass matter.

Landlords Excused

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Freeman, Albuquerque, identified as Greenglass' landlords when he lived at Albuquerque and commuted to Los Alamos, were subpoenaed but excused.

The FBI agents who testified today included H. L. McConnell, Albuquerque, and Leo H. Frutkin, John W. Lewis and Richard Brennan, of the New York office of the FBI.

Also before the grand jury today were Dr. Ralph Carlisle Smith, Los Alamos, associate director for classification and security for the Los Alamos scientific laboratory; Wendell Edward Marsham, now employed by the J. and H. Label Processing Corp. of Maywood, N. J., and a former employe at Los Alamos; and three Albuquerque businessmen.

Bank, Hotel Records

Paul H. Barnes, of the Albuquerque National Bank, and R. R. Galusha of the First National Bank in Albuquerque, appeared this morning. Barnes represented R. J. Poague, for whom the subpoena had been issued.

Both Barnes and Galusha had been requested to bring records of any bank accounts in the name of Greenglass and his wife, Ruth.

Marc W. Neal, assistant manager of the Hilton Hotel at Albuquerque, also appeared. He represented Manager Fletcher Brumit, who had been requested to produce any registration cards and other records concerning Harry Gold.

Back to Work

After returning the indictment against Greenglass, the jury went back to work on other matters before it. Court attaches said, unofficially, that the grand jury probably would consider at least a dozen cases, perhaps more.

Judge Hatch told the Associated Press this morning that he usually reconvenes the grand jury in September every year but that he hoped that this session could take up all matters necessary and be a substitute for the usual September call.

The 21-man grand jury reconvened today after being excused, subject to call, last January 12. It had originally been impanelled August 15, 1949.

Many Subpoenaed

Federal district clerk of court records showed that a number of Albuquerque and Las Cruces persons had been subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury today and tomorrow.

They included Paul Garcia and William Kelley, identified as deputy sheriffs at Albuquerque; Jack Janan, Fred Callagoe and Alfred Ravinsky, listed as Albuquerque police officials; and James Coraway, Glen McCarrell, Cedric Bradford, Joe Meeks, L. O. Mayfield and Carlos Salas, all of Las Cruces.

Subpoenas also had been issued for L. O. Thompson, listed as FBI police at Roswell; W. R. Wheeler, a Roswell police officer; Dennis Rutland, a deputy U.S. marshal at Deming; Mrs. M. R. Frutkin, Deming; and Frank W. Belko and George Hobbs, both identified as sheriff of Catron County and both of Roswell, N.M.; and Dr. George A. Leonard, listed as of the Veterans Administration at El Paso, Texas.

Dr. Leonard was instructed to bring with him all records of an examination made at Las Cruces, May 6, 1949, of a Wesley Eugene Byrd.

A subpoena was also issued for Byrd, his address was listed as Altapass, North Carolina.

Subpoenas also call for the appearance of Roosevelt Travis, listed as of the South-west Hotel, Tucson, and Earl Gentry, of Oxford, Miss.

GREENGLASS INDICTED AS ATOM SPY FOR REDS

SANTA FE, N. M., July 6 (AP)—A Federal grand jury today indicted David Greenglass, 28 years old, on a charge of conspiring to give atomic secrets to Russia.

The jury charged the former Los Alamos technician with four specific overt acts. It declared that: On June 8, 1945, Greenglass met in Albuquerque with Harry Gold. On that same date he received $500 from Harry Gold.

Greenglass made a sketch of a high-explosive lens mold. He prepared for Gold a statement of the Los Alamos atomic projects.

United States Judge Carl A. Hatch of Albuquerque set bail at $100,000—the same amount set for Greenglass after he was arrested in New York last month. Judge Hatch also ordered Greenglass brought from New York into the jurisdiction of the New Mexico Federal Court District.

Gold has been accused of having been an intermediary between a Soviet spy ring and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, imprisoned British scientist who confessed getting atomic secrets for the Russians.

Greenglass was a technician fifth class, equivalent to a corporal, at the Los Alamos base. Shortly before his discharge he was promoted to technician fourth class, roughly equivalent to a sergeant.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol said in New York at Greenglass' arraignment that the former Army man "worked on the bomb itself."

SA:
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20
SEC. 21
SEC. 22
SEC. 23
SEC. 24
SEC. 25
SEC. 26
SEC. 27
SEC. 28
SEC. 29
SEC. 30
SEC. 31
SEC. 32
SEC. 33
SEC. 34
SEC. 35
SEC. 36
SEC. 37
SEC. 38
SEC. 39
SEC. 40
SEC. 41
SEC. 42
SEC. 43
SEC. 44
SEC. 45
SEC. 46
SEC. 47
SEC. 48
SEC. 49
SEC. 50
SEC. 51
SEC. 52
SEC. 53
SEC. 54
SEC. 55
SEC. 56
SEC. 57
SEC. 58
SEC. 59
SEC. 60
SEC. 61
SEC. 62
SEC. 63
SEC. 64
SEC. 65
SEC. 66
SEC. 67
SEC. 68
SEC. 69
SEC. 70
SEC. 71
SEC. 72
SEC. 73
SEC. 74
SEC. 75
SEC. 76
SEC. 77
SEC. 78
SEC. 79
SEC. 80
SEC. 81
SEC. 82
SEC. 83
SEC. 84
SEC. 85
SEC. 86
SEC. 87
SEC. 88
SEC. 89
SEC. 90
SEC. 91
SEC. 92
SEC. 93
SEC. 94
SEC. 95
SEC. 96
SEC. 97
SEC. 98
SEC. 99
SEC. 100

SUPERVISOR
CITY CLERK
CHIEF CLERK

TITLE
CLASS
From NY
DATED JUL 7 1950
FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

7-15336-7
F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO.
Leica

Greenglass Indicted As Los Alamos Spy

New Yorker Is Continued in $100,000 Bail

SANTA FE, N. M., July 6 (AP).—

A Federal grand jury today indicted former Army technician David Greenglass, twenty-eight, of New York, on a charge of conspiring to give atomic secrets to Russia.

In a two-page true bill, the jurors charged the former Los Alamos technician with four specific overt acts: That on June 3, 1945, he met in Albuquerque with Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist arrested May 23 as an intermediary between a Soviet spy ring and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the convicted British scientist; that on that same date, Greenglass received $500 from Gold; that Greenglass made a sketch of a high explosive lens mold, and that he prepared for Gold a statement of the Los Alamos atomic project.

United States Judge Carl A. Hatch, of Albuquerque, set bail at $100,000—the same amount set for Greenglass after he was arrested June 15 in New York.

Greenglass's arrest in New York paralleled the seizure in Syracuse of Alfred Dean Slack, forty-four-year-old chemist whom the Federal Bureau of Investigation also linked with the Fuchs spy apparatus.

SAC
ASAC
ASAC
SEC
SEC
SEC
SEC
SEC

[Handwritten signature]

DIVISION
CLERK
UNIT

65-15554-15
F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
EL TO [Handwritten initials]

TITLE
CLASS

FROM Herold Tribune

DATE JUL 7 1950

RECEIVED

Orders Spy Trial In New Mexico For Greenglass

David Greenglass, 28, arrested at his lower East Side home on June 15 on charges of spying for the Soviet, today was ordered removed to the jurisdiction of the New Mexico Federal Court District at Santa Fe, where the alleged acts took place.

Removal was ordered by Federal Judge Hatch in Santa Fe after a Federal grand jury there indicted Greenglass for selling atomic secrets to Soviet agents in 1945 while working as a U. S. Army technical sergeant on the Los Alamos project. Judge Hatch ordered his bail of $100,000 continued.

$500 Payment Charged

However, U. S. Atty. Grantham of Santa Fe said that should Greenglass decide to plead guilty, he could be sentenced here.

The indictment, handed down yesterday in Santa Fe, revealed for the first time that Greenglass allegedly received $500 from Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist, "on or about June 3, 1945," in Albuquerque in return for atomic secrets.

If Greenglass stands trial and is convicted, he faces a possible death penalty.

Traces Back to Fuchs

The indictment charged Greenglass conspired with Gold and Anatoli Yakovlev, a Soviet agent, to furnish Russia with classified information.

Gold, now in custody of Federal authorities, has confessed that he delivered such secrets to Soviet agents. He was traced after FBI agents talked with Dr. Klaus Fuchs, atomic scientist convicted in Britain of spying for the Soviet. Gold admitted obtaining secrets from Fuchs.

DAVID GREENGLASS
In his G.I. uniform

TITLE

CLASS

From NY

Post Home News

DATE JUL 7 1950

FORWARDED BY : DIVISION

F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO	Lewis

Ex-Sergeant Indicted As Atom Spy for Reds

Santa Fe, N. M., July 6 (U.P.).—A federal grand jury today indicted former Army Sgt. David Greenglass, once a member of the Young Communist League, as a spy for the Soviet Union.

The jury returned a true bill on charges that Greenglass received $500 for turning over to Russia secret information taken from the Atomic Research Center at Los Alamos, N. M.

The grand jury heard nine persons, including four agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, testify that Greenglass delivered atomic secrets during June of 1945 to Harry Gold and Anatoli Yakovlev for transmission to the USSR.

The indictment charged that the former sergeant, who worked at the Los Alamos plant during the war, conspired with Gold and Yakovlev to deliver "documents, writings, sketches, notes and information relating to atomic energy and nuclear fission."

Set Bail at $100,000.

Gold, a Philadelphia chemist, had admitted to FBI agents he delivered to Russia the atomic secrets stolen by Dr. Klaus Fuchs of Britain and others.

Yakovlev was the Soviet vice consul in New York.

Judge Carl Hatch immediately set bond for Greenglass at $100,000. U. S. District Attorney Everett M. Grantham said he probably would be tried during the September term of court here. However, should Greenglass decide to plead guilty, he could do so in New York where he is being held in default of the same bond.

Grantham said today's jury action would not affect a "removal hearing" schedule in New York July 13.

SAC
ASAC
V. 100
V. 100

V. 100
V. 100
V. 100

V. 100

S. 100

SUPERVISOR
CLERK
V. 100 UNIT

TITLE
CLASS From NY News
DATED JUL 7 1950
FORWARDED BY DIVISION

65-15242-75
F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO	10

See 10

Greenglass Indicted In A-Secrets Case

Santa Fe, N. M., July 6 (P)—A Federal grand jury today indicted David Greenglass, 28, on a charge of conspiring to give atomic secrets to Russia. In a two-page true bill, the jurors charged the Brooklyn-born former Los Alamos Army technician with four specific overt acts.

U. S. Judge Carl A. Hatch of Albuquerque set bail at $100,000—the same amount set for Greenglass after he was arrested June 15 in New York. Greenglass is being held in a New York jail in default of bond. Judge Hatch also ordered Greenglass brought into the jurisdiction of the New Mexico Federal Court District.

The true bill charged Greenglass met Harry Gold in Albuquerque on June 3, 1945 and received $500 from him. Greenglass was said to have prepared for Gold a statement of the Los Alamos atomic project. Gold has been accused of being an intermediary between Soviet spy ring and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, imprisoned British scientist who confessed getting atomic secrets for Russia.

SAC
ASAC1
ASAC2
ASAC3
ASAC4
ASAC5

SUPERVISOR
CLERK INTELL

TITLE CLASS

From NY

Compass

DATED JUL 7 1950

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

64-15236-13
F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO Leiss

U.S. Jury Brands Greenglass Spy

SANTE FE, July 6 (UP)—A Federal grand jury today indicted former Army sergeant David Greenglass, once a member of the Young Communist League, as a spy for the Soviet Union.

The jury returned a true bill on charges that Greenglass received $500 for turning over to Russia secret information taken from the atomic research center at Los Alamos, N. M., where he worked during the war.

The jury heard nine persons, including four FBI agents, testify Greenglass delivered atomic secrets in June, 1945, to Harry Gold and Anatoli Yakovlev for transmission to the U. S. S. R.

Gold, a Philadelphia chemist, had admitted to FBI agents he delivered to Russia the atomic secrets stolen by Dr. Klaus Fuchs of Britain and others. Yakovlev was Soviet Vice Consul in New York.

Specifically the jury charged four overt acts, all of which it said occurred on or about June 3, 1945, in Albuquerque:

1. That Greenglass met and conferred with Harry Gold and delivered to him information relating to U. S. national defense;
2. That Greenglass received from Gold $500 in currency;
3. That Greenglass prepared a sketch of a "high explosive lens mold;"
4. That Greenglass prepared a statement concerning the Los Alamos project.

Judge Hatch immediately set bond for Greenglass at $100,000. U. S. District Attorney Grantham said he probably would be tried here in September. However, should Greenglass decide to plead guilty, he could do so in New York, where he is being held in default of the same bond.

Grantham said today's jury action would not affect a "renewal hearing" scheduled in New York July 13.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
FC 1
SEC 2
SEC 3
SEC 4
SEC 5
SEC 6
SEC 7
SEC 8
SEC 9
SEC 10
SEC 11
SEC 12
SEC 13
SEC 14
SEC 15
SEC 16
SEC 17
SEC 18
SEC 19
SEC 20
SEC 21
SEC 22
SEC 23
SEC 24
SEC 25
SEC 26
SEC 27
SEC 28
SEC 29
SEC 30
SEC 31
SEC 32
SEC 33
SEC 34
SEC 35
SEC 36
SEC 37
SEC 38
SEC 39
SEC 40
SEC 41
SEC 42
SEC 43
SEC 44
SEC 45
SEC 46
SEC 47
SEC 48
SEC 49
SEC 50
SEC 51
SEC 52
SEC 53
SEC 54
SEC 55
SEC 56
SEC 57
SEC 58
SEC 59
SEC 60
SEC 61
SEC 62
SEC 63
SEC 64
SEC 65
SEC 66
SEC 67
SEC 68
SEC 69
SEC 70
SEC 71
SEC 72
SEC 73
SEC 74
SEC 75
SEC 76
SEC 77
SEC 78
SEC 79
SEC 80
SEC 81
SEC 82
SEC 83
SEC 84
SEC 85
SEC 86
SEC 87
SEC 88
SEC 89
SEC 90
SEC 91
SEC 92
SEC 93
SEC 94
SEC 95
SEC 96
SEC 97
SEC 98
SEC 99
SEC 100

SUPERVISOR
CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUL 7 1950

FORWARDED BY

13100

6-70-30-10
F. B. I.
JUL 10 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO	FILE
Levis	101

Greenglass Faces Sentencing in N.Y. If He Admits Guilt

Santa Fe, N. M., July 7 (AP)—U. S. Attorney Everett M. Grantham said today that David Greenglass, indicted for selling atomic secrets to Russia for $500, probably would be tried in the September term of Federal Court here.

However, should Greenglass decide to plead guilty, he could be sentenced in New York where he is being held, Everett Grantham said.

He faces a possible sentence of death.

The former Young Communist League member was indicted by the Federal grand jury here yesterday.

In its indictment the jury charged the former Army sergeant, who worked at the Los Alamos atomic plant during the war, conspired to deliver to Russia "documents, writings, sketches, notes and information relating to atomic energy and nuclear fission."

940
940
940
940
940
940
940
940

REVISOR
CLERK
TR. UNIT

TITLE

CLASS

From NY

DATED JUL 7 1950

FORWARDED BY DIVISION

F. B. I.

JUL 10 1950

N. Y. C.

FD-30

Lewis

Atomic Spy Suspect Wins Delay, Hint He'

The possibility that alleged atomic spy David Greenglass has decided to tell what he knows about the relay of secret information to Russia was evidenced yesterday when U. S. Commissioner McDonald granted the ex-Army sergeant an adjournment of proceedings to move him to New Mexico for trial.

The hearing had been scheduled for this morning, but O. John Rogge, attorney for the 28-year-old defendant, won a postponement until Aug. 2, largely because of the support of U. S. Attorney Saypol.

Saypol, who said the former sergeant—a native New Yorker, of 265 Rivington St.—worked “on the atomic bomb itself” as a machinist, told the court:

“I do not feel it appropriate to state publicly the substance of discussions which have been going on, but I acquiesce in this application for adjournment.”

The court appearance followed the latest of a series of conferences between Rogge and Say-

Rogge said he has been talking with both his client and Saypol and would like to have “several more talks with my client here before removal proceedings are held.” His talks with the accused spy, he said, have been about “the general situation.”

Greenglass, once a member of the Young Communist League, was indicted in Santa Fe, N. M., charged with receiving $500 for turning over to Russia secret information obtained at the atomic research center at Los Alamos, N. M.

Four FBI agents testified before the Santa Fe that Greenglass delivered secrets to Harry Gold, told Yakovlev in June transmission to the S

Gold, a Philadelphia has admitted he delivered secrets stolen by Fuchs, convicted of espionage for the British. Yakovlev vice-consul in New York

Among the charges in the indictment is that Greenglass turned over a “high explosive mold” to Gold, along with

TITLE

CLASS

FROM NY

DATED JUL 13 1950

FORWARDED BY L. T. DIVISION

65-15437-10
F. B. I.
6 JUL 14 1950
N. Y. C.
ED TO Lewis

10B

Hint He's Ready to Talk fore the Santa Fe grand jury that Greenglass delivered atomic secrets to Harry Gold and Anatol Yakovlev in June, 1945, for transmission to the Soviet.

Gold, a Philadelphia chemist, has admitted he delivered to Russia secrets stolen by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted of espionage by the British. Yakovlev was Soviet vice-consul in New York.

Among the charges in the four-count indictment is the allegation that Greenglass turned over a sketch of a "high explosive lens mold" to Gold, along with a statement concerning the Los Alamos project, where he worked.

Greenglass has been held in the Federal House of Detention in lieu of $100,000 bail since his arrest here last month. He faces death as a wartime traitor if convicted.

193

36 B
3.1.
1950
18

Jewish Daily "Forward"

August 19, 1950, page 4, columns 3-6

In David Greenglass' Home -
A Talk with His Wife

By Louis Schaeffer

He was arrested for helping reveal atom secrets to Soviet agents. - His wife Ruth and his two small children. - She tells about her own life and about her acquaintance and marriage to David. - How he was drawn into the espionage net.

On the third floor of an old, very old tenement house, on thickly populated Livingston Street, in a railroad flat, which has not been painted for quite a few years, I spent a few hours last Saturday, speaking with a group of three young people. We were discussing a matter which touched the personal lives of these people profoundly, but through the questions and answers and remarks about their lives we touched upon, and, to a certain extent, understood a little better the most serious world problems which increasingly have important significance in our daily existence.

This flat is the home of David Greenglass, the young man who is now in federal prison on the charge of having given information to Soviet Russian spies about a certain part of the atom bomb, which was manufactured in the Los Alamos, New Mexico, army post, where he was a technical sergeant. The three young people with whom I spoke were Ruth, his wife, a young, unmarried sister of her's, and a fellow of about 30, the husband of another of Ruth's sisters.

During the past few weeks I had two short talks with Ruth Greenglass. It is difficult for Ruth, the mother of two children, - a talkative boy of four, who wants to be a cowboy, and a three month old girl, - to be able to devote a few hours to talk. In addition to having to take care of two children, she is busy visiting her husband twice a week in the Federal Penitentiary. In addition to that she has to see G. John Hopper, her husband's lawyer, practically every week. On top of that an F.B.I. man comes often to question her about a minute incident about herself, about her husband, or other people who are involved in the case. Ruth is also under indictment as an "accomplice" of her husband. Because she cooperated with the government from the very beginning she was not arrested, so that she can take care of her home and her children.

She agreed to see me in her home Saturday morning. Since I had stated, previously, that I wanted to have a lengthy talk, she arranged for

65-15336-B

FBI - NEW YORK
SEP 20 1950
9

her sister to take the two children to her mother. (She lives on Livingston Street also, across the street.)

I had many questions to ask Ruth, her sister and her brother-in-law: Soviet Russia, Communism, the feelings of this young American generation toward the United States in general and the particular feelings of American-Jewish youth?

All these questions are not new. We have all read and spoken about them for the past 30 years. But we are human; in the morning we may read a newspaper article about an earthquake or other catastrophe which killed thousands of people, and remain totally indifferent; but that same day we are terribly upset when we learn about a not very serious accident which happened to an acquaintance of ours. The same thing applies to worldly matters. All the problems about espionage, atom bombs, war, are very serious, but they sound at a distance; until it affects one of our own, our own environment.

Dr. Fuchs, the German-British chemist, was a sensational personality when it became known that he revealed to the Soviet Union the secrets of the American atom bomb. However, when through him there became involved Gold, of Philadelphia, Greenglass, of Rivington Street, Rosenberg, of Monroe Street, and many other Jewish names, the entire question of espionage and, ugly treachery, has come close to home. It has touched our family, our home, and our whole East Side.

Everything in American life stems from the East Side! From Theodore Roosevelt's times I remember the "Little Hungary" restaurant on Houston Street, (a few squares from the Greenglasses), where Roosevelt, as Police Commissioner, and later as President, used to eat. The new Smith Houses, (a few squares from Monroe Street where the Rosenbergs live), are an monument to this Irish boy who went from the Fulton Street Fish Market, where he worked, to the Governor's Mansion, in Albany.

Hollywood and Broadway are filled with producers, directors, writers and stars, who were born or raised on the East Side. Professors in the most important colleges, judges of the highest courts, owners of large businesses, scientists, labor leaders, famous lawyers, social leaders - all came from our East Side.

But do we know our East Side? Particularly those of us who have left the East Side. It is true the present East Side is not what it was. Chinese, Puerto Ricans, and Mexicans on the one hand, Italians and Negroes on the other hand, and Poles and Irish on the third hand are pushing out, or better stated, pushing together the Jewish population, but at least a quarter of a million Jewish people live there consisting of old immigrants, who remained living there for various reasons. But living there with them is a new generation of young American Jews who we know practically nothing about, and the Greenglasses, and the Rosenbergs, the Winces and many other names represent this new East Side type. What kind of people are they?

Concerning David Greenglass I can only repeat what I heard from others. The same thing goes for the Rosenbergs. But I met Ruth Greenglass a few times, and spoke with her for some time. My impression is that as a type of Jewish girl, aside from the misfortune into which she was drawn, we have no reason to be ashamed of her.

She was born at 111 Lewis Street. Her father is a real laborer; he came from Galicia and went to Scranton, where he worked as a coal miner. Coming to New York he obtained a job in a slaughterhouse in New Jersey. Later he obtained a job in New York. But he never earned too much money. His three children, two girls and a boy, were not raised in luxury. Ruth told me that the first dress that was bought for her was when she was 16 when she graduated from High School. She was a good student. Her English is excellent, and she can also speak French and German. She also speaks Hebrew.

This is not a type you find, or read about in other sections of New York. Even now, after all her difficulties, she does very good. She did not attend dance halls, did not linger in bars, did not run after crooners or band leaders, like the American "bobby soxers". She became interested in a young boy from the East Side who appealed to her because of his earnestness, quietness and mild character. His name was David Greenglass. In 1942, at the age of 18, she married him. David was a machinist. By studying, and reading many books on engineering he became a good machinist.

Shortly after their marriage David was drafted. Being a machinist he was placed in the technical part of the Army, and later he was transferred to a city by the name of Los Alamos, in New Mexico. There the Army was busy with some kind of important project. David did not know what this project was. But he was always a very capable worker, and he was a very devoted and punctual worker. In a short time he became a technical expert. As a result he was in charge of an entire section of the project. That was at the beginning of 1945. At that time no one had an inkling about the atom bomb or how long the war would last. From all signs it appeared David would remain in Los Alamos for a long time. After corresponding several times the pair came to the decision that Ruth should go to Los Alamos to live near David. Ruth lived in Los Alamos for over a year, between 1945 and 1946. During that period the secret of the atom bomb was revealed, the war ended, and all America rejoiced.

But not Ruth and David Greenglass. But in spite of the fact that David could have remained in Los Alamos at a good job, and that Ruth was to have her first child shortly, the pair decided to return to New York.

They discovered that they had been drawn into a frightful international net which extended from Moscow to Washington. Mild David did not want to confess; but young Ruth, with her strong character, made David look the truth in the face that they were drawn into the net through David's sister Ethel and her husband Julius Rosenberg.

Concerning this tragic chapter in a future article.

Translated by S. HYMAN W. FAINHOITZ

Jewish Daily "Forward"

August 29, 1950, page 4, columns 3-6

In David Greenglass' Home -
A Talk With His Wife

By Louis Schaefer

He was arrested for helping reveal atom secrets to Soviet agents. - His wife Ruth and his two small children. - She tells about her own life and about her acquaintance and marriage to David. - How he was drawn into the espionage net.

On the third floor of an old, very old tenement house, on thickly populated Livingston Street, in a railroad flat, which has not been painted for quite a few years, I spent a few hours last Saturday, speaking with a group of three young people. We were discussing a matter which touched the personal lives of these people profoundly, but through the questions and answers and remarks about their lives we touched upon, and, to a certain extent, understood a little better the most serious, world problems which increasingly have important significance in our daily existence.

This flat is the home of David Greenglass, the young man who is now in federal prison on the charge of having given information to Soviet Russian spies about a certain part of the atom bomb, which was manufactured in the Los Alamos, New Mexico, army post, where he was a technical sergeant. The three young people with whom I spoke were Ruth, his wife, a young, unmarried sister of her's, and a fellow of about 20, the husband of another of Ruth's sisters.

During the past few weeks I had two short talks with Ruth Greenglass. It is difficult for Ruth, the mother of two children, - a tentative boy of four, who wants to be a cowboy, and a three month old girl, - to be able to devote a few hours to talk. In addition to having to take care of two children, she is busy visiting her husband twice a week in the Federal Penitentiary. In addition to that she has to see G. John Rogge, her husband's lawyer, practically every week. On top of that an F.B.I. man comes often to question her about a minute incident about herself, about her husband, or other people who are involved in the case. Ruth is also under indictment as an "accomplice" of her husband. Because she cooperated with the government from the very beginning she was not arrested, so that she can take care of her home and her children.

She agreed to see me in her home Saturday morning. Since I had stated, previously, that I wanted to have a lengthy talk, she arranged for

65-15326-3
FBI - NEW YORK
AUG 29
[Signature]

her sister to take the two children to her mother. (He lives on Livingston Street also, across the street.)

I had many questions to ask both, her sister and her brother-in-law, Soviet Russia, communism, the feelings of this young American generation toward the United States in general and the particular feelings of American-Jewish youth.

All these questions are not new. We have all read and spoken about them for the past 30 years. But we are human; in the morning we may read a newspaper article about an earthquake or other catastrophe which killed thousands of people, and remain totally indifferent; but that same day we are terribly upset when we learn about a not very serious accident which happened to an acquaintance of ours. The same thing applies to worldly matters. All the problems about espionage, atom bomb, war, are very serious, but they sound at a distance; until it affects one of our own, our own environment.

Dr. Fuchs, the German-British chemist, was a sensational personality when it became known that he revealed to the Soviet Union the secrets of the American atom bomb. However, when through him there became involved Gold, of Philadelphia, Greenglass, of Rivington Street, Rosenberg, of Monroe Street, and many other Jewish names, the entire question of espionage and, ugly treachery, has come close to home. It has touched our family, our home, and our whole East Side.

Everything in American life stems from the East Side! From Theodore Roosevelt's times I remember the "Little Hungary" restaurant on Houston Street, (a few squares from the Greenglasses), where Roosevelt, as Police Commissioner, and later as President, used to eat. The new Smith Houses, (a few squares from Monroe Street where the Rosenbergs live), are an answer to this Irish boy who went from the Fulton Street Fish Market, where he worked, to the Governor's Mansion, in Albany.

Hollywood and Broadway are filled with producers, directors, writers and stars, who were born or raised on the East Side. Professors in the most important colleges, judges of the highest courts, owners of large businesses, scientists, labor leaders, famous lawyers, social leaders - all come from our East Side.

But do we know our East Side? Particularly those of us who have left the East Side. It is true the present East Side is not what it was. Chinese, Puerto Ricans, and Mexicans on the one hand, Italians and Negroes on the other hand, and Poles and Irish on the third hand are pushing out, or better stated, pushing together the Jewish population, but at least a quarter of a million Jewish people live there consisting of old immigrants, who remained living there for various reasons. But living there with them is a new generation of young American Jews who we know practically nothing about, and the Greenglasses, and the Rosenbergs, the Trineks and many other names represent this new East Side type. What kind of people are they?

Concerning David Greenglass I can only repeat what I heard from others. The same thing goes for the Rosenbergs. But I met Ruth Greenglass a few times, and spoke with her for some time. My impression is that as a type of Jewish girl, aside from the misfortune into which she was drawn, we have no reason to be ashamed of her.

She was born at 144 Lewis Street. Her father is a real laborer; he came from Galicia and went to Scranton, where he worked as a coal miner. Coming to New York he obtained a job in a slaughterhouse in New Jersey. Later he obtained a job in New York. But he never earned too much money. His three children, two girls and a boy, were not raised in luxury. Ruth told me that the first dress that was bought for her was when she was 16 when she graduated from High School. She was a good student. Her English is excellent, and she can also speak French and German. She also speaks Hebrew.

This is not a type you find, or read about in other sections of New York. Even now, after all her difficulties, she looks very good. She did not attend dance halls, did not linger in bars, did not run after crooners or band leaders, like the American "bobby soxers". She became interested in a young boy from the East Side who appealed to her because of his earnestness, quietness and wild character. His name was David Greenglass. In 1942, at the age of 18, she married him. David was a machinist. By studying, and reading many books on engineering he became a good machinist.

Shortly after their marriage David was drafted. Being a machinist he was placed in the technical part of the Army, and later he was transferred to a unit by the name of Los Alamos, in New Mexico. There the Army was busy with some kind of important project. David did not know what this project was. But he was always a very capable worker, and he was a very devoted and punctual worker. In a short time he became a technical sergeant. As sergeant he was in charge of an entire section of the project. That was at the beginning of 1945. At that time no one had an inkling about the atom bomb or how long the war would last. From all signs it appeared David would remain in Los Alamos for a long time. After corresponding several times the pair came to the decision that Ruth should go to Los Alamos to live near David. Ruth lived in Los Alamos for over a year, between 1945 and 1946. During that period the secret of the atom bomb was revealed, the war ended, and all America rejoiced.

But not Ruth and David Greenglass. But in spite of the fact that David could have remained in Los Alamos at a good job, and that Ruth was to have her first child shortly, the pair decided to return to New York.

They discovered that they had been drawn into a frightful international net which extended from Moscow to Washington. Mild David did not want to confess; but young Ruth, with her strong character, made David look the truth in the face that they were drawn into the net through David's sister Ethel and her husband Julius Rosenberg.

Concerning this tragic chapter in a future article.

Translated by SEYMOUR H. RAFFINOWITZ

Jewish Daily "Forward"

August 29, 1950, page 4, columns 3-6

In David Greenglass' Home -
A Talk With His Wife

By Louis Schaeffer

He was arrested for helping reveal atom secrets to Soviet agents. - His wife Ruth and his two small children. - She tells about her own life and about her acquaintance and marriage to David. - How he was drawn into the espionage net.

On the third floor of an old, very old tenement house, on thickly populated Rivington Street, in a railroad flat, which has not been painted for quite a few years, I spent a few hours last Saturday, speaking with a group of three young people. We were discussing a matter which touched the personal lives of these people profoundly, but through the questions and answers and remarks about their lives we touched upon, and, to a certain extent, understood a little better the most serious world problems which increasingly have important significance in our daily existence.

This flat is the home of David Greenglass, the young man who is now in federal prison on the charge of having given information to Soviet Russian spies about a certain part of the atom bomb, which was manufactured in the Los Alamos, New Mexico, army post, where he was a technical sergeant. The three young people with whom I spoke were Ruth, his wife, a young, unmarried sister of his, and a fellow of about 30, the husband of another of Ruth's sisters.

During the past few weeks I had two short talks with Ruth Greenglass. It is difficult for Ruth, the mother of two children, - a talkative boy of four, who wants to be a cowboy, and a three month old girl, - to be able to devote a few hours to talk. In addition to having to take care of two children, she is busy visiting her husband twice a week in the Federal Penitentiary. In addition to that she has to see O. John Rogge, her husband's lawyer, practically every week. On top of that an F.B.I. man comes often to question her about a minute incident about herself, about her husband, or other people who are involved in the case. Ruth is also under indictment as an "accomplice" of her husband. Because she cooperated with the government from the very beginning she was not arrested, so that she can take care of her home and her children.

She agreed to see me in her home Saturday morning. Since I had stated, previously, that I wanted to have a lengthy talk, she arranged for her sister to take the two children to her mother. (She lives on Livingston Street also, across the street.)

62-15386-12

FBI - NEW YORK
101

I had many questions to ask Ruth, her sister and her brother-in-law: Soviet Russia, communism, the feelings of this young American generation toward the United States in general and the particular feelings of American-Jewish youth.

All these questions are not new. We have all read and spoken about them for the past 30 years. But we are human; in the morning we may read a newspaper article about an earthquake or other catastrophe which killed thousands of people, and remain totally indifferent; but that same day we are terribly upset when we learn about a not very serious accident which happened to an acquaintance of ours. The same thing applies to worldly matters. All the problems about espionage, atom bombs, war, are very serious, but they sound at a distance; until it affects one of our own, our own environment.

Dr. Fuchs, the German-British chemist, was a sensational personality when it became known that he revealed to the Soviet Union the secrets of the American atom bomb. However, when through him there became involved Gold, of Philadelphia, Greenglass, of Rivington Street, Rosenberg, of Monroe Street, and many other Jewish names, the entire question of espionage and, ugly treachery, has come close to home. It has touched our family, our home, and our whole East Side.

Everything in American life stems from the East Side! From Theodore Roosevelt's times I remember the "Little Hungary" restaurant on Houston Street, (a few squares from the Greenglasses), where Roosevelt, as Police Commissioner, and later as President, used to eat. The new Smith Houses, (a few squares from Monroe Street where the Rosenbergs live), are a monument to this Irish boy who went from the Fulton Street Fish Market, where he worked, to the Governor's Mansion, in Albany.

Hollywood and Broadway are filled with producers, directors, writers and stars, who were born or raised on the East Side. Professors in the most important colleges, judges of the highest courts, owners of large businesses, scientists, labor leaders, famous lawyers, social leaders - all came from our East Side.

But do we know our East Side? Particularly those of us who have left the East Side. It is true the present East Side is not what it was. Chinese, Puerto Ricans, and Mexicans on the one hand, Italians and Negroes on the other hand, and Poles and Irish on the third hand are pushing out, or better stated, pushing together the Jewish population, but at least a quarter of a million Jewish people live there consisting of old immigrants, who remained living there for various reasons. But living there with them is a new generation of young American Jews who we know practically nothing about, and the Greenglasses, and the Rosenbergs, the Brinnes and many other names represent this new East Side type. What kind of people are they?

Concerning David Greenglass I can only repeat what I heard from others. The same thing goes for the Rosenbergs. But I met Ruth Greenglass a few times, and spoke with her for some time. My impression is that as a type of Jewish girl, aside from the misfortune into which she was drawn, we have no reason to be ashamed of her.

She was born at 144 Lewis Street. Her father is a real laborer; he came from Galicia and went to Scranton, where he worked as a coal miner. Coming to New York he obtained a job in a slaughterhouse in New Jersey. Later he obtained a job in New York. But he never earned too much money. His three children, two girls and a boy, were not raised in luxury. Ruth told me that the first dress that was bought for her was when she was 16 when she graduated from High School. She was a good student. Her English is excellent, and she can also speak French and German. She also speaks Hebrew.

This is not a type you find, or read about in other sections of New York. Even now, after all her difficulties, she looks very good. She did not attend dance halls, did not linger in bars, did not run after crooners or band leaders, like the American "bobby soxers". She became interested in a young boy from the East Side who appealed to her because of his earnestness, quietness and mild character. His name was David Greenglass. In 1942, at the age of 18, she married him. David was a machinist. By studying, and reading many books on engineering he became a good machinist.

Shortly after their marriage David was drafted. Being a machinist he was placed in the technical part of the Army, and later he was transferred to a city by the name of Los Alamos, in New Mexico. There the Army was busy with some kind of important project. David did not know what this project was. But he was always a very capable worker, and he was a very devoted and punctual worker. In a short time he became a technical sergeant. As sergeant he was in charge of an entire section of the project. That was at the beginning of 1945. At that time no one had an inkling about the atom bomb or how long the war would last. From all signs it appeared David would remain in Los Alamos for a long time. After corresponding several times the pair came to the decision that Ruth should go to Los Alamos to live near David. Ruth lived in Los Alamos for over a year, between 1945 and 1946. During that period the secret of the atom bomb was revealed, the war ended, and all America rejoiced.

But not Ruth and David Greenglass. Not in spite of the fact that David could have remained in Los Alamos at a good job and that Ruth was to have her first child shortly, the pair decided to return to New York.

They discovered that they had been drawn into a frightful international net which extended from Moscow to Washington. Mild David did not want to confess; but young Ruth, with her strong character, made David look the truth in the face that they were drawn into the net through David's sister Ethel and her husband Julius Rosenberg.

Concerning this tragic chapter in a future article.

Translated by SEYMOUR N. KAHN

The Jewish Daily "FORWARD"
August 30, 1950, page 4, columns 3-4-5-6

Mrs. Greenglass Relates How Her Husband Was Misled By His Brother-in-law Rosenberg

By Louis Schaeffer

She says Julius Rosenberg talked him into revealing atom secrets to Soviet agents. - How the communists, and their fellow travelers, obtained information about the bomb. - The role of the two spies Dr. Fuchs and Harry Gold. - The Greenglass family lived in fear of arrest for years. - A talk with Mrs. Ruth Greenglass.

At the beginning of the summer, when David Greenglass was arrested, I visited his mother's home, at 265 Lexington Street, at the corner of Sheriff Street. I spoke with his mother; I visited a barber shop and candy store near his home; and spoke with the neighbors. All raised the same question and shrugged their shoulders.

This question was: 'Did this quiet, mild young man reveal the secret of the atom bomb?' They added, "That's impossible." It is unbelievable.

But the sad truth is that David Greenglass, and a dozen other Greenglasses, either unwittingly, or with full realization of what they were doing, revealed the secrets about this important weapon thereby helping the Soviet Union to ignore the United Nations in every attempt to establish peace on earth.

This whole story became clear to me when I learned many particulars about the arrest of Rosenberg, Gold, Sobell and Greenglass. Many of these questions were answered in my talks with Ruth Greenglass, the 26 year old wife of indicted and arrested David Greenglass.

At the very beginning I should like to state that I am not defending the acts of Ruth and David Greenglass, or those of the other defendants. Ruth herself, and, as she tells me, David do not defend their acts. They realize, unfortunately too late, the frightful thing they did, and, under the conditions, they are doing what they can to at least partially make good on their frightful mistake.

When I asked Ruth how she felt when her husband was arrested for such serious crime she answered me:

"I was in the hospital then. But I know very few people will believe

65-15386-13
FBI - NEW YORK
AUG 31 1950

what I say. It was the first night in the past four years, since Dr. Gold's visit to my husband in Los Alamos, that I slept well. I can say the same thing about David."

As you know, Gold is the Jewish chemist from Philadelphia who was arrested on the charge of having provided Dr. Fuchs, the German-British expert, with information about various plants and laboratories in which the U.S. government was producing the atom bomb.

And now, in order to understand this tremendous conspiracy, perhaps the greatest in the world, it is necessary to recall several well known facts and dates.

The first time the people of the United States and of the world heard about an atom bomb was in the middle of July, 1945. That month it became known that the Army had experimented with a newly-invented atom bomb, in New Mexico, and that the experiment showed that the United States possessed one of the mightiest weapons the world ever had.

Three weeks later, on August 5th, after sufficient warning, the United States attacked the Japanese city Hiroshima with such frightful results that Japan surrendered unconditionally, and, less than one month later, on August 5th*, officially surrendered to General Mac Arthur, of the United States, on the battleship Missouri.

The world breathed freely. Immediately President Truman stated that the United States did not consider the atom bomb its own. To begin with, it was stated that the bomb was made with the participation of England and Canada; secondly, President Truman declared that it was the wish of the United States and England that the bomb become the property of the United Nations. Immediately a committee was appointed, headed by Bernard Baruch, to work out such a plan. This plan, known as the "Baruch Plan", was accepted by all nations with the exception of the Soviet Union and the Soviet-controlled countries. Everyone wondered why Russia was against the Plan, and could not understand the reasons for its refusal and obstinacy.

A short time later we started realizing these reasons: the Soviet Union had obtained information about the atom bomb and was working hard producing its own atom bombs.

Whereas everyone in the United States, with the exception of a few dozen experts and high government officials, did not have the slightest inkling about anything like an atom bomb, Soviet Russia found out about this secret through its spies. During the period when the top leaders of the U.S. government, and all the experts who worked on the project for over two years without being certain whether the bomb would work or not, the Soviet spies and the entire communist apparatus was busy trying to learn every bit of information about the bomb.

* Schaeffer's error

The whole story sounds fantastic, but follow the details and the dates and you will see that the whole story is correct.

In order to keep the secret of the atom bomb the directors of the project worked out a plan for the various parts of the bomb to be manufactured in as many different places as possible. This was done so that if the information about one plant were to leak out, by whatever means, it would have no significance. The best way to understand our government's plan of operation is to compare the project with a jig-saw puzzle. Those who helped their children put a jig-saw puzzle together will understand it easily. A jig-saw puzzle consists of sixty or seventy pieces of cardboard. No separate piece means anything. If you do not have the original picture (before it was cut up), you can spend hours without being able to put it together. Well, this was the plan of the directors of the atom bomb project - with the exception that instead of having fifty or sixty pieces of cardboard, the atom bomb jig-saw puzzle consisted of about 200 separate projects, divided among various states and cities in the U.S.

The plan was good. The project was kept secret from the Nazis and all our other enemies, with the exception of our "ally" Soviet Russia.

All Russia had to do was smell that the United States was making a secret weapon. The rest was easy with the aid of its own spies and with the assistance of the traitors who worked for a "holy" ideal in our country.

The American communist apparatus issued secret orders to all its trustworthy party members and fellow travelers to submit every bit of information about a certain secret military project. In this way with the aid of the Rosenbergs, the Golds, the Sobells, the Greenglasses and dozens of others, thankfully not Jewish names, separate, unimportant pieces of cardboard were put together - small parts of this tremendously important jig-saw puzzle - the atom bomb.

What Soviet Russia needed was one man who would have a concept of the entire picture of the atom bomb, and who would be able to take these small, unimportant pieces of cardboard, and put the jig-saw together. Such a man they found in the person of Dr. Fuchs who was working as an atomic expert for England and the United States.

Naturally many bits of information having no relation with the atom bomb were received in Dr. Fuchs' clearing office. Dr. Fuchs threw away the useless information. However, when he smelled that he had a bit of information which was part of the atom bomb, he gave orders for it to be investigated fully.

In this job he was assisted by experienced chemists and engineers. He did not know their names. He knew them only as Dr. J., Mr. J., number 40 or number 99.

On his orders these expert assistants were sent to the most distant places to investigate and squeeze out every bit of information possible related to the atom bomb.

The United States did not learn about the atom bomb until July 16, 1945. However, months before, a young man by the name of Gold, a chemist, arrived in the city of Los Alamos, New Mexico. Mr. Gold went there to see a technical sergeant in the U.S. Army, by the name of David Greenglass, who was in charge of some kind of peculiar project.

Gold came to see Greenglass on the recommendation (in secret) of Julius Rosenberg, his sister's husband, and an engineer in New York City. In order to be sure that Gold was the right person, and not an impersonating P.B.I. agent, according to plan, Gold brought half of the cover of an ordinary box, the second half of which had previously been sent to Greenglass. The cover was not cut evenly; it was cut with points so that the points of the two halves of the cover matched. He had several talks with Gold, and he gave him information about the work he was in charge of. Gold knew what to ask for because he was a chemist himself and he had certain instructions from Dr. Fuchs.

Today Greenglass understands what a frightful crime he committed. He is doing the only thing a person under these circumstances can do - helping the government discover the higher spies and to protect itself for the future against espionage and sabotage.

At that time, however, Greenglass was misled by his brother-in-law, who was considered the intellectual of the family, and by the false concept that Soviet Russia is our ally and has but one interest - to save the world.

On leaving Gold handed the Greenglasses a sealed envelope. When Greenglass opened this envelope at home, in the presence of his wife Ruth, he discovered that the envelope was full of ten and twenty dollar bills. The pair looked at each other and for the first time there ran through their minds the thought that something was not right. But it was too late.

Remember, this happened a few months before the people in the United States and throughout the world learned about the atom bomb.

Translated by SEYMOUR N. RAHNOVITZ

The Jewish Daily "FORWARD"

August 30, 1950, page 4, column 1-2

Mrs. Greenglass Relates How Her Husband Was Misled By His Brother-in-Law Concerning

By Louis Schaeffer

She says Julius Rosenberg talked her into revealing atom secrets to Soviet agents. - How she convinced her and their fellow travelers, obtained information about the bomb. - The role of the two spies Dr. Fuchs and Harry Gold. - The Greenglass family lived in fear of arrest for years. - A talk with Mrs. Ruth Greenglass.

At the beginning of the summer, when David Greenglass was arrested, I visited his mother's home, at 265 Livingston Street, at the corner of Sheriff Street. I spoke with his mother; I visited a barber shop and candy store near his home; and spoke with the neighbors. I raised the same question and shrugged their shoulders.

This question was: Did this quiet, mild young man reveal the secret of the atom bomb? They added, "That is possible." "It is unbelievable".

But the sad truth is that David Greenglass, and a dozen other Greenglasses, either unwittingly, or with full realization of what they were doing, revealed the secrets about this important weapon, thereby helping the Soviet Union to ignore the United Nations in every attempt to establish peace on earth.

This whole story became clear to me when I learned many particulars about the arrest of Rosenberg, Gold, Sobell and Greenglass. Many of these questions were answered in my talks with Ruth Greenglass, the 26 year old wife of indicted and arrested David Greenglass.

At the very beginning I should like to state that I am not defending the acts of Ruth and David Greenglass, or those of their defendants. Ruth herself, and, as she tells me, David do not defend their acts. They realize, unfortunately too late, the frightful thing they did, and, under the conditions, they are doing what they can to at least partially atone for their frightful mistake.

When I asked Ruth how she felt when her husband was arrested for such serious crime, she answered me:

"I was in the hospital then. But I know very few people will believe what I say. It was the first night in the past four years, since Mr. Gold's visit to my husband in Los Alamos, that I slept well. I can say the same thing about David."

FBI - NEW YORK

AUG 31 1950

As you know, Gold is the Jewish chemist from Philadelphia who was arrested on the charge of having provided Dr. Fuchs, the German-British expert, with information about various plants and laboratories in which the U.S. government was producing the atom bomb.

And now, in order to understand this tremendous conspiracy, perhaps the greatest in the world, it is necessary to recall several well known facts and dates.

The first time the people of the United States and of the world heard about an atom bomb was in the middle of July, 1945. That month it became known that the Army had experimented with a newly-invented atom bomb, in New Mexico, and that the experiment showed that the United States possessed one of the mightiest weapons the world ever had.

Three weeks later, on August 5th, after sufficient warning, the United States attacked the Japanese city Hiroshima with such frightful results that Japan surrendered unconditionally, and, less than one month later, August 5th*, officially surrendered to General Mac Arthur, of the United States, on the battleship Missouri.

The world breathed freely. Immediately President Truman stated that the United States did not consider the atom bomb its own. To begin with, it was stated that the bomb was made with the participation of England and Canada; secondly, President Truman declared that it was the wish of the United States and England that the bomb become the property of the United Nations. Immediately a committee was appointed, headed by Bernard Baruch, to work out such a plan. This plan, known as the "Baruch Plan", was accepted by all nations with the exception of the Soviet Union and the Soviet-controlled countries. Everyone wondered why Russia was against the Plan, and could not understand the reasons for its refusal and obstinacy.

A short time later we started realizing their reasons: the Soviet Union had obtained information about the atom bomb and was working hard producing its own atom bombs.

Whereas everyone in the United States, with the exception of a few dozen experts and high government officials, did not have the slightest inkling about anything like an atom bomb, Soviet Russia found out about this secret through its spies. During the period when the top leaders of the U.S. government, and all the experts who worked on the project for over two years without being certain whether the bomb would work or not, the Soviet spies and the entire communist apparatus was busy trying to learn every bit of information about the bomb.

* Schaeffer's error

The whole story sounds fantastic, but follow the details and the dates and you will see that the whole story is correct.

In order to keep the secret of the atom bomb the directors of the project worked out a plan for the various parts of the bomb to be manufactured in as many different places as possible. This was done so that if the information about one plant were to leak out, by whatever means, it would have no significance. The best way to understand our government's plan of operation is to compare the project with a jig-saw puzzle. Those who helped their children put a jig-saw puzzle together will understand it easily. A jig-saw puzzle consists of sixty or seventy pieces of cardboard. No separate piece means anything. If you do not have the original picture (before it was cut up), you can spend hours without being able to put it together. Well, this was the plan of the directors of the atom bomb project - with the exception that instead of having fifty or sixty pieces of cardboard, the atom bomb jig-saw puzzle consisted of about 200 separate projects, divided among various states and cities in the U.S.

The plan was good. The project was kept a secret from the Nazis and all our other enemies, with the exception of our "ally" Soviet Russia.

All Russia had to do was smell that the United States was making a secret weapon. The rest was easy with the aid of its own spies and with the assistance of the traitors who worked for a "holy" ideal in our country.

The American communist apparatus issued secret orders to all its trustworthy party members and fellow travelers to submit every bit of information about a certain secret military project. In this way, with the aid of the Rosenbergs, the Golds, the Sobells, the Greenglasses and dozens of others, thankfully not Jewish names, separate, unimportant pieces of cardboard were put together - small parts of this tremendously important jig-saw puzzle - the atom bomb.

What Soviet Russia needed was one man who would have a concept of the entire picture of the atom bomb, and who would be able to take these small, unimportant pieces of cardboard, and put the jig-saw together. Such a man they found in the person of Dr. Fuchs who was working as an atomic expert for England and the United States.

Naturally many bits of information having no relation with the atom bomb were received in Dr. Fuchs' clearing office. Dr. Fuchs threw away the useless information. However, when he smelled that he had a bit of information which was part of the atom bomb, he gave orders for it to be investigated fully.

In this job he was assisted by experienced chemists and engineers. He did not know their names. He knew them only as Mr. D., Mr. J., number 40 or number 99.

On his orders these expert assistants were sent to the most distant places to investigate and squeeze out every bit of information possible related to the atom bomb.

The United States did not learn about the box until July 19, 1945. However, months before, a young man by the name of Gold, a chemist, arrived in the city of Los Alamos, New Mexico. Dr. Gold went there to see a technical sergeant in the U.S. Army, by the name of David Greenglass, who was in charge of some kind of peculiar project.

Gold came to see Greenglass on the recommendation (in secret) of Julius Rosenberg, his sister's husband, and an engineer in New York City. In order to be sure that Gold was the right person, and not an impersonating F.B.I. agent, according to plan, Gold brought half of the cover of an ordinary box, the second half of which had previously been sent to Greenglass. The cover was not cut evenly; it was cut with points so that the points of the two halves of the cover matched. He had several talks with Gold, and he gave him information about the work he was in charge of. Gold knew what to ask for because he was a chemist himself and he had certain instructions from Dr. Fuchs.

Today Greenglass understands what a frightful crime he committed. He is doing the only thing a person under these circumstances can do - helping the government discover the higher spies and to protect itself for the future against espionage and sabotage.

At that time, however, Greenglass was misled by his brother-in-law, who was considered the intellectual of the family, and by the false concept that Soviet Russia is our ally and has but one interest - to save the world.

On leaving Gold handed the Greenglasses a sealed envelope. When Greenglass opened this envelope at home, in the presence of his wife Ruth, he discovered that the envelope was full of ten and twenty dollar bills. The pair looked at each other and for the first time there ran through their minds the thought that something was not right. But it was too late.

Remember, this happened a few months before the people in the United States and throughout the world learned about the atom bomb.

Translated by SEYMOUR M. RAHINOWITZ

The Jewish Daily "FORWARD",
August 30, 1950, page 4, columns 3-4-5-6

August 30, 1950, page 4, columns 3-4-5-6

Mrs. Greenglass Relates How Her Husband
Misled By His Brother-in-law Rose

By Louis Schaeffer

She says Julius Rosenberg talked him into revealing atom secrets to Soviet agents. - How the communists and their fellow travelers, obtained information about the Lab. - The role of the two spies Dr. Fuchs and Harry Gold. - The Greenglass family lived in fear of arrest or ears. A talk with Mrs. Ruth Greenglass.

At the beginning of the summer, 1941, I visited his mother's home, at 265 River on Street, Sheriff Street. I spoke with his mother; I visited store near his home; and spoke with the neighbors. question and shrugged their shoulders.

This question was: Did this outfit, called "The Club" reveal the secret of the atom bomb? They added, "The Club is not a club. It is unbelievable".

But the sad truth is that David Greenglass, like a million other Greenglasses, either unwittingly, or with full realization of what they were doing, revealed the secrets about this important weapon by helping the Soviet Union to ignore the United Nations in every effort to establish peace on earth.

This whole story became clear to me when I learned many particulars about the arrest of Rosenberg, Gold, Sobell and Greenglass. Many of these questions were answered in my talks with both Greenglass and the 26 year old wife of indicted and arrested David Greenglass.

At the very beginning I should like to state that I am not defending the acts of Ruth and David Greenglass, or those of herself, and, as she tells me, David do not defend in fact. They realize, unfortunately too late, the frightful thing they did, and, under the conditions, they are doing what they can to at least partially atone for their frightful mistake.

When I asked Ruth how she felt when her husband was arrested for such serious crime she answered me:

"I was in the hospital then. But I know my own people will believe what I say. It was the first night in the past four years, since Dr. Gold's visit to my husband in Los Alamos, that I slept well. I can say the same thing about David."

FBI - NEW YORK

708

As you know, Gold is the Jewish chemist from Philadelphia who was arrested on the charge of having provided Dr. Fuchs, the German-British expert, with information about various plants and laboratories in which the U.S. government was producing the atom bomb.

And now, in order to understand this tremendous conspiracy, perhaps the greatest in the world, it is necessary to recall several well known facts and dates.

The first time the people of the United States and of the world heard about an atom bomb was in the middle of July, 1945. That month it became known that the Army had experimented with a newly invented atom bomb, in New Mexico, and that the experiment showed that the United States possessed one of the mightiest weapons the world ever had.

Three weeks later, on August 5th, after sufficient warning, the United States attacked the Japanese city Hiroshima with such frightful results that Japan surrendered unconditionally, and, less than one month later, August 15th, officially surrendered to General MacArthur, of the United States, on the battleship Missouri.

The world breathed freely. Immediately President Truman stated that the United States did not consider the atom bomb its own. To begin with, it was stated that the bomb was made with the participation of England and Canada; secondly, President Truman declared that it was the wish of the United States and England that the bomb become the property of the United Nations. Immediately a committee was appointed, headed by Bernard Baruch, to work out such a plan. This plan, known as the "Baruch Plan", was accepted by all nations with the exception of the Soviet Union and the Soviet-controlled countries. Everyone wondered why Russia was against the Plan, and could not understand the reasons for its refusal and obstinacy.

A short time later we started realizing these reasons: the Soviet Union had obtained information about the atom bomb and was working hard producing its own atom bombs.

Whereas everyone in the United States, with the exception of a few dozen experts and high government officials, did not have the slightest inkling about anything like an atom bomb, Soviet Russia found out about this secret through its spies. During the period when the top leaders of the U.S. government, and all the experts who worked on the project for over two years without being certain whether the bomb would work or not, the Soviet spies and the entire communist apparatus was busy trying to learn every bit of information about the bomb.

Schaeffer's error

The whole story sounds fantastic, but follow the details and the dates and you will see that the whole story is correct.

In order to keep the secret of the atom bomb the directors of the project worked out a plan for the various parts of the bomb to be manufactured in as many different places as possible. This was done so that if the information about one plant were to leak out, by whatever means, it would have no significance. The best way to understand our government's plan of operation is to compare the project with a jig-saw puzzle. Those who helped their children put a jig-saw puzzle together will understand it easily. A jig-saw puzzle consists of sixty or seventy pieces of cardboard. No separate piece means anything. If you do not have the original picture (before it was cut up), you can spend hours without being able to put it together. Well, this was the plan of the directors of the atom bomb project - with the exception that instead of having fifty or sixty pieces of cardboard, the atom bomb jig-saw puzzle consisted of about 200 separate projects, divided among various states and cities in the U.S.

The plan was good. The project was kept a secret from the Nazis and all our other enemies, with the exception of our "ally" - Soviet Russia.

All Russia had to do was smell that the United States was making a secret weapon. The rest was easy with the aid of its own spies and with the assistance of the traitors who worked for a "holy" ideal in our country.

The American communist apparatus issued secret orders to all its trustworthy party members and fellow travelers to submit every bit of information about a certain secret military project. In this way, with the aid of the Rosenbergs, the Golds, the Sobells, the Greenglasses and dozens of others, thankfully not Jewish names, separate, unimportant pieces of cardboard were put together - small parts of this tremendously important jig-saw puzzle - the atom bomb.

What Soviet Russia needed was one man who would have a concept of the entire picture of the atom bomb, and who would be able to take these small, unimportant pieces of cardboard, and put the jig-saw together. Such a man they found in the person of Dr. Fuchs who was working as an atomic expert for England and the United States.

Naturally many bits of information bearing a relation with the atom bomb were received in Dr. Fuchs' clearing office. Dr. Fuchs threw away the useless information. However, when he realized that he had a bit of information which was part of the atom bomb, he gave orders for it to be investigated fully.

In this job he was assisted by experienced chemists and engineers. He did not know their names. He knew them only as Mr. J., number 40 or number 99.

On his orders these expert assistants were sent to the most distant places to investigate and squeeze out every bit of information possible related to the atom bomb.

The United States did not learn about the atom bomb until July 16, 1945. However, months before, a young man by the name of Gold, a chemist, arrived in the city of Los Alamos, New Mexico. Mr. Gold went there to see a technical sergeant in the U.S. Army, by the name of David Greenglass, who was in charge of some kind of peculiar project.

Gold came to see Greenglass on the recommendation (in secret) of Julius Rosenberg, his sister's husband, and an engineer in New York City. In order to be sure that Gold was the right person, an F.B.I. agent, according to plan, Gold brought half of a shoe box cover, the second half of which had previously been sent to Greenglass. The cover was not cut evenly; it was out with points so that the points of the two halves of the cover matched. He had covered it with Gold, and he gave him information about the work he was in charge of. Gold knew what to ask for because he was a chemist himself and he had received instructions from Dr. Fuchs.

Today Greenglass understands what his brother-in-law is doing. He is doing the only thing a person under such circumstances can do - helping the government discover the higher spies and to protect itself for the future against espionage and sabotage.

At that time, however, Greenglass was misled by his brother-in-law, who was considered the intellectual of the family, by the false concept that Soviet Russia is our ally and has been ordered to save the world.

On leaving Gold handed the Greenglasses a shoe box. Greenglass opened this envelope at home, in the presence of his wife Ruth, and he discovered that the envelope was full of ten and twenty dollar bills. The pair looked at each other and for the first time in their lives they saw through their minds the thought that something was not right. But it was too late.

Remember, this happened a few months before the people in the United States and throughout the world learned about the atom bomb.

Translated by SE HYMAN N. RAHINOWITZ

Jewish Daily "Forward"

September 2, 1950, page 6, column 1 through 8

"My Husband Was Misled, But He Is
No Traitor", says Ruth Greenglass

By Louis Schaeffer

Julius Rosenberg was mad at Greenglass for refusing to remain in the Los Alamos atom plant. - Ethel Rosenberg, David Greenglass' sister, was always an embittered communist. - Why is Rosenberg risking his life and his wife's freedom?

Before I relate the personal statements by Ruth Greenglass about her husband's actions relating to his revealing information about the atom bomb, I want to clarify a few points which appeared in an article in Wednesday's "Forward".

In that article I described how the Soviet representatives in the U.S. used Dr. Fuchs to sort, analyze and investigate all the bits of information which their spies and communist followers assembled from the dozens, and perhaps hundreds of places where the United States government produced the various parts of the bomb.

Some of my colleagues and acquaintances who read the article raised the question: But Dr. Fuchs was one of the top scientific specialists who worked on the atom bomb project for the United States and England, and he was a spy for Russia, so why did they need additional information?

This question can be answered by raising another question: If that is so, why did they need such scientists as Oppenheimer, Cornau and dozens of other specialists?

But there is a clear answer. This answer is also contained in many diplomatic and political maneuvers by which many could not understand previously.

Russia had the secret of the principle of the atom bomb, but not the technical details of how to make the bomb; but, principally, it was interested in having the bomb as soon as possible. Neither Fuchs nor any other individual scientist specialist who worked on the bomb had all the details. It was for the very reason that the job of making the bomb was assigned to several places in various corners of the United States.

In addition to that, Russia knew that in the various plants where

62-15336-B

FBI - NEW YORK
SEP 2 1950
1

they were making the different parts of the car, and covering improvements and changing them, then to its production. The manufacture of the atom bomb, aeroplanes, automobiles, radio and television. The aeroplanes fly and cars run, has been known for a long time, but every year or month brings new improvements. Recall the auto of 1950.

If Russia were satisfied with the present method, she would surely have waited; but Russia wanted to make it, and as a matter of fact, what faster method could the Soviet leader find than copying in the plants and laboratories of their ally - the United States?

And now a few words about another point.

In order to explain the role of David Greenglass in the international jig-saw puzzle of intrigue, in the background of the entire net of espionage which spread over the United States. Since the article on Greenglass came out, I got the impression that she was a very intelligent young woman and she is leading me into the involved situation into which she was dragged. But I gave her general information. As I pointed out in my first article, several people about this entire matter. I spoke with the assistant Attorney General, who is the lawyer for David Greenglass. I spoke with Irving Saypol, the U.S. Attorney who is conducting the Department of Justice cases against Rosenberg, Greenglass, and others.

A small part of my interview was about the "FORWARD". I spoke with other people also. Because of a few other cases which will be known, I can't reveal all the facts or point out the things which will come out in the very near future.

And now, a few more facts and as far as the blame is concerned.

Ruth throws all the blame for her husband and her wife Ethel - David's sister.

Naturally, she recognizes that David and Ethel are guilty. During her talk with me she said that we both spent days and nights talking about the fact that we are guilty; but we believe that we are innocent.

When I asked her why neither she nor her husband did not go to the F.B.I. immediately, she answered: "That is the trouble that troubled us. David realized that he took a false statement, but you must bear in mind that David's sister and her husband, Julius Rosenberg, were involved. In general it is difficult to be a stool-pigeon, particularly for a Jew. And when it comes to your own family

... it is very difficult to do that. It is like the principle of making a mistake, but every year 1950 and look at a...

... she would surely have waited; but Russia wanted to make it, and as a matter of fact, what faster method could the Soviet leader find than copying in the plants and laboratories of their ally - the United States?

... Gold and Rosenberg. In that article I gave the Soviet representatives mainly about Ruth Greenglass. Ruth is a very intelligent young woman and she is leading me into the involved situation into which she was dragged. But I gave her general information. As I pointed out in my first article, several people about this entire matter. I spoke with the assistant Attorney General, who is the lawyer for David Greenglass. I spoke with Irving Saypol, the U.S. Attorney who is conducting the Department of Justice cases against Rosenberg, Greenglass, and others.

... Gold and in the coming trials, naturally I can't reveal all the facts. All these things will come out in the very near future.

... Ruth Greenglass. She is the one who is throwing all the blame for her husband and her wife Ethel - David's sister.

... David and Ethel are guilty. During her talk with me she said that we both spent days and nights talking about the fact that we are guilty; but we believe that we are innocent.

... When I asked her why neither she nor her husband did not go to the F.B.I. immediately, she answered: "That is the trouble that troubled us. David realized that he took a false statement, but you must bear in mind that David's sister and her husband, Julius Rosenberg, were involved. In general it is difficult to be a stool-pigeon, particularly for a Jew. And when it comes to your own family the problem is even more difficult."

Then I asked Ruth why, if David did regret his acts, did the reporters for the English press print that he defended his acts on the ground that he believed in Soviet Russia and that he looked upon Soviet Russia as an ally?

"The reporters misrepresented that," cried out Ruth with anger. "It is true he said these words, but that was his explanation of how he felt five years ago, in 1945, when practically all Americans felt that way."

I admitted that sentiments in the United States, after the victory over the Germans at Stalingrad, were tremendously for Russia, but that that did not mean that all those who had a friendly feeling toward Russia was ready to reveal secrets.

Here Ruth became a little impatient with me.

"If you, who appears to be sympathetic to our side, do not understand it, how will the others look upon us," she said to me with pain in her voice.

I calmed her and explained that the reason I was raising the question was that I was certain the readers of the "FORWARD" would raise the question, and I begged her to continue.

"I remember that I stated, when I heard the news, in the hospital, that David was arrested, that I was astounded to discover that not only wasn't I shocked, but that a feeling of calm came over me. From that night on I have been sleeping peacefully. A few days later I saw David, and he told me that he had the same experience. I don't know whether we would ever have gone to the F.B.I. voluntarily, but when they came to us it was just like the fall of the second shoe." (An English expression about being in a very tense situation.)

"You can see that we both realized David committed a wrong in giving information to Gold from the fact that we both decided to leave Los Alamos, New Mexico, as soon as possible. After that the army wanted David to stay there at a good salary, but David explained that he must return to New York because of me and my non-Communist beliefs."

"Our brother-in-law, Rosenberg, was really angry at us for leaving the atom plant, and that was the beginning of our unfortunate differences, particularly between me and my sister-in-law."

Then I asked Ruth who, of the Rosenbergs, had the stronger character. I raised this question in the presence of her younger sister and the husband of her older sister. All three answered immediately that Etel is the dominant person.

Ruth expressed herself as follows:

"As I have said before, there was a time when my husband and I were partial toward communism. But we were never embittered or intolerant toward people who did not agree with us. But Ethel was quite different. She did not buy from a butcher or grocer unless he were an open sympathizer toward Soviet Russia. She considered everyone who was against communism her personal enemy."

I asked about Julius Rosenberg. I was especially interested in him because whereas Gold and Greenglass became witnesses for the government, Rosenberg denies the charges against him and his wife and because of this he is to be tried shortly. From all known facts he has absolutely no chance of going free. Gold, who went to see Greenglass in Los Alamos with Rosenberg's recommendation and secret sign (an irregularly cut cover of a desert box), is a witness against him. Greenglass confirms the charges. From what I hear Abe Sobell, who was caught in Mexico by the F.B.I., will also be a witness against Rosenberg. So how will he get out of it? Rosenberg's lawyer stated, in court, that he will prove at the trial that Greenglass fabricated the false accusation against his sister Ethel and her husband Julius in order to save his wife Ruth.

This sounds faulty. What is the reason Rosenberg is risking his life? Espionage in war time involves to death penalty.

The answer is "tovarich" Yakovlev, the assistant at the Soviet Embassy, who was the official director of the Soviet espionage ring in the United States. Rosenberg is risking his life and his wife's freedom because he doesn't want to confirm that an official employee of the Russian Embassy directed espionage in the United States.

Translated by SEYMOUR N. RADINOWITZ

Jewish Daily "Forward"

September 2, 1950, page 6, column 1 through 8

"My Husband Was Misled, But He Is
No Traitor", says Ruth Greenglass

By Louis Schaeffer

Julius Rosenberg was mad at Greenglass for refusing to remain in the Los Alamos atom plant. - Ethel Rosenberg, David Greenglass' sister, was always an embittered communist. - Why is Rosenberg risking his life and his wife's freedom?

Before I relate the personal statements by Ruth Greenglass about her husband's actions relating to his revealing information about the atom bomb, I want to clarify a few points which appeared in my article in Wednesday's "Forward".

In that article I described how the Soviet representatives in the U.S. used Dr. Fuchs to sort, analyze and investigate all the bits of information which their spies and communist followers assembled from the dozens, and perhaps hundreds of places where the United States government produced the various parts of the bomb.

Some of my colleagues and acquaintances who read the article raised the question: But Dr. Fuchs was one of the top scientific specialists who worked on the atom bomb project for the United States and England, and he was a spy for Russia, so why did they need additional information?

This question can be answered by raising another question: If that is so, why did they need such scientists as Oppenheimer, Tamm and dozens of other specialists?

But there is a clear answer. This answer is also contained in many diplomatic and political maneuvers by Soviet Russia which many could not understand previously.

Russia had the secret of the principle of the atom bomb, but not the technical details of how to make the bomb; but, principally, it was interested in having the bomb as soon as possible. Neither Fuchs nor any other individual scientist specialist who worked on the bomb had all the details. It was for the very reason that the job of making the bomb was assigned to several places in various corners of the United States.

In addition to that Russia knew that in the various plants where

65-15336-13

FBI - NEW YORK
SEP 2

8

they were making the different parts of the bomb, every day they were discovering improvements and changing their methods to improve and accelerate its production. The manufacture of the atom bomb is similar to that of aeroplanes, automobiles, radio and television. The principle of making aeroplanes fly and cars run has been known for a long time, but every week or month brings new improvements. Recall the auto of 1905 and look at a 1950 auto.

If Russia were satisfied with the secret alone she would surely have waited, but Russia wanted to make it, and as soon as possible. And what faster method could the Soviet leader find than spying in the plants and laboratories of their ally - the United States?

And now a few words about another point.

In order to explain the role of David Greenglass, Gold and Rosenberg in the international jig-saw puzzle of intrigue, in my 1st article I gave the background of the entire net of espionage which the Soviet representatives spread over the United States. Since the article was mainly about Ruth Greenglass some got the impression that I told me all about it. Ruth is a very intelligent young woman and she is learning more and more about the involved situation into which she was dragged. But she did not give me this general information. As I pointed out in my first article, I spoke with several people about this entire matter. I spoke with J. Edgar Hoover, the former assistant Attorney General, who is the lawyer for David and Ruth Greenglass; I spoke with Irving Saypol, the U.S. Attorney who is conducting the Department of Justice cases against Rosenberg, Greenglass, Sobell, Sokolov and others.

A small part of my interview with Saypol is published in the "FORWARD". I spoke with other people also. Because of the coming trials, and because of a few other cases which will be announced soon, naturally I can't reveal all the facts or point out who gave me those facts. All these things will come out in the very near future.

And now, a few more facts and remarks about Ruth Greenglass.

Ruth throws all the blame for her husband's actions on Julius Rosenberg and his wife Ethel - David's sister.

Naturally, she recognizes the fact that David and she, herself, are guilty. During her talk with me she said: "I don't know how to understand that we both spent days and nights talking about this, and yet recognized the fact that we are guilty; but we believe that we are not traitors."

When I asked her why neither she nor her husband advised the F.B.I. immediately, she answered: "That is the tragedy. That is what troubled us. David realized that he took a false step in giving Gold information, but you must bear in mind that David's sister and her husband, Julius Rosenberg, were involved. In general it is very difficult to be a stool-pigeon, particularly for a Jew. And when it concerns your own family the problem is even more difficult."

Then I asked Ruth why, if David did regret his act, did the reporters for the English press print that he defended his acts on the ground that he believed in Soviet Russia and that he looked upon Soviet Russia as an ally?

"The reporters misrepresented that," cried out Ruth with anger. "It is true he said these words, but that was his explanation of how he felt five years ago, in 1945, when practically all Americans felt that way."

I admitted that sentiments in the United States, after the victory over the Germans at Stalingrad, were tremendously for Russia, but that that did not mean that all those who had a friendly feeling toward Russia were ready to reveal secrets.

Here Ruth became a little impatient with me.

"If you, who appears to be sympathetic toward us, do not understand it, how will the others look upon us," she said to me with pain in her voice.

I calmed her and explained that the reason I was raising the question was that I was certain the readers of the "FORN-ED" would raise the question, and I begged her to continue.

"I remember that I stated, when I heard the news, in the hospital, that David was arrested, that I was astounded to discover that not only wasn't I shocked, but that a feeling of calm came over me. From that night on I have been sleeping peacefully. A few days later I saw David, and he told me that he had the same experience. I don't know whether we would ever have gone to the F.B.I. voluntarily, but when they came to us it was just like the fall of the second shoe." (An English expression about being in a very tense situation.)

"You can see that we both realized David committed a wrong in giving information to Gold from the fact that we both decided to leave Los Alamos, New Mexico, as soon as possible. After the war he may wanted David to stay there at a good salary, but David explained that he must return to New York because of me and my mother."

"Our brother-in-law, Rosenberg, was really angry at us for leaving the atom plant, and that was the beginning of our friendship, particularly between me and my sister-in-law."

Then I asked Ruth who, of the Rosenbergs, had the stronger character. I raised this question in the presence of her younger sister and the husband of her older sister. All three answered immediately that Ethel is the dominant person.

Ruth expressed herself as follows:

"As I have said before, there was a time when avil and I were partial toward communism. But we were never embittered or intolerant toward people who did not agree with us. But Ethel was quite different. She did not buy from a butcher or grocer unless he were an open sympathizer toward Soviet Russia. She considered everyone who was against communism her personal enemy."

I asked about Julius Rosenberg. I was especially interested in him because whereas Gold and Greenglass became witnesses for the government, Rosenberg denies the charges against him and his wife and because of this he is to be tried shortly. From all known facts he has absolutely no chance of going free. Gold, who went to see Greenglass in Los Alamos with Rosenberg's recommendation and secret sign (an irregularly cut cover of a desert box), is a witness against him. Greenglass confirms the charges. From what I hear Abe Sobell, who was caught in Mexico by the F. B. I., will also be a witness against Rosenberg. So how will he get out of it? Rosenberg's lawyer stated, in court, that he will prove at the trial that Greenglass fabricated the false accusation against his sister Ethel and her husband Julius in order to save his wife Ruth.

This sounds faulty. What is the reason Rosenberg is risking his life? Espionage in war time involves to death penalty.

The answer is "tovarish" Yakovlev, the assistant at the Soviet Embassy, who was the official director of the Soviet espionage ring in the United States. Rosenberg is risking his life and his wife's freedom because he doesn't want to confirm that an official employee of the Russian Embassy directed espionage in the United States.

Translated by SEYMOUR N. RABINOWITZ.

Jewish Daily "Forward"

September 2, 1950, page 6, column 1 through 8

"My Husband Was Misled, But He Is
No Traitor", says Ruth Greenglass

By Louis Schaeffer

Julius Rosenberg was mad at Greenglass for refusing to remain in the Los Alamos atom plant. - Ethel Rosenberg, David Greenglass' sister, was always an embittered communist. - Why is Rosenberg risking his life and his wife's freedom?

Before I relate the personal statements by Ruth Greenglass about her husband's actions relating to his revealing information about the atom bomb, I want to clarify a few points which appeared in my article in Wednesday's "Forward".

In that article I described how the Soviet representatives in the U.S. used Dr. Fuchs to sort, analyze and investigate all the bits of information which their spies and communist followers assembled from the dozens, and perhaps hundreds of places where the United States government produced the various parts of the bomb.

Some of my colleagues and acquaintances who read the article raised the question: But Dr. Fuchs was one of the top scientific specialists who worked on the atom bomb project for the United States and England, and he was a spy for Russia, so why did they need additional information?

This question can be answered by raising another question: If that is so, why did they need such scientists as Oppenheimer, Conant and dozens of other specialists?

But there is a clear answer. This answer is also contained in many diplomatic and political maneuvers by Soviet Russia which many could not understand previously.

Russia had the secret of the principle of the atom bomb, but not the technical details of how to make the bomb; but, principally, it was interested in having the bomb as soon as possible. Neither Fuchs nor any other individual scientist specialist who worked on the bomb had all the details. It was for the very reason that the job of making the bomb was assigned to several places in various corners of the United States.

In addition to that Russia knew that in the various plants where 62-4336-12

FBI - NEW YORK
10 11

they were making the different parts of the bomb, every day they were discovering improvements and changing their methods to improve and accelerate its production. The manufacture of the atom bomb is similar to that of aeroplanes, automobiles, radio and television. The principle of making aeroplanes fly and cars run has been known for a long time, but every week or month brings new improvements. Recall the auto of 1905 and look at a 1950 auto.

If Russia were satisfied with the secret alone she would surely have waited; but Russia wanted to make it, and as soon as possible. And what faster method could the Soviet leader find than spying in the plants and laboratories of their ally - the United States?

And now a few words about another point.

In order to explain the role of David Greenglass, Gold and Rosenberg in the international jig-saw puzzle of intrigue, in my last article I gave the background of the entire net of espionage which the Soviet representatives spread over the United States. Since the article was mainly about Ruth Greenglass some got the impression that she told me all about it. Ruth is a very intelligent young woman and she is learning more and more about the involved situation into which she was dragged. But she did not give me this general information. As I pointed out in my first article, I spoke with several people about this entire matter. I spoke with J. Ronge, the former assistant Attorney General, who is the lawyer for David and Ruth Greenglass; I spoke with Irving Saypol, the U.S. Attorney who is conducting the Department of Justice cases against Rosenberg, Greenglass, Sobell, Makower and others.

A small part of my interview with Saypol was published in the "FORWARD". I spoke with other people also. Because of the coming trials, and because of a few other cases which will be announced soon, naturally I can't reveal all the facts or point out who gave me those facts. All these things will come out in the very near future.

And now, a few more facts and remarks about Ruth Greenglass.

Ruth throws all the blame for her husband's actions on Julius Rosenberg and his wife Ethel - David's sister.

Naturally, she recognizes the fact that David and she, herself, are guilty. During her talk with me she said: "I got you to understand that we both spent days and nights talking about this, and we recognized the fact that we are guilty; but we believe that we are not traitors."

When I asked her why neither she nor her husband advised the F.B.I. immediately, she answered: "That is the tragedy. That is what troubled us. David realized that he took a false step in giving Gold information, but you must bear in mind that David's sister and her husband, Julius Rosenberg, were involved. In general it is very difficult to be a stool-pigeon, particularly for a Jew. And when it concerns your own family the problem is even more difficult."

Then I asked Ruth why, if David did regret his acts, did the reporters for the English press print that he defended his acts on the ground that he believed in Soviet Russia and that he looked upon Soviet Russia as an ally?

"The reporters misrepresented that," cried out Ruth with anger. "It is true he said these words, but that was his explanation of how he felt five years ago, in 1945, when practically all Americans felt that way."

I admitted that sentiments in the United States, after the victory over the Germans at Stalingrad, were tremendously for Russia, but that that did not mean that all those who had a friendly feeling toward Russia were ready to reveal secrets.

Here Ruth became a little impatient with me.

"If you, who appears to be sympathetic toward me, do not understand it, how will the others look upon me?" she said to me with pain in her voice.

I calmed her and explained that the reason I was raising the question was that I was certain the readers of the "WORKER" would raise the question, and I begged her to continue.

"I remember that I stated, when I heard the news, in the hospital, that David was arrested, that I was astounded to discover that not only wasn't I shocked, but that a feeling of calm came over me. From that night on I have been sleeping peacefully. A few days later I saw David, and he told me that he had the same experience. I don't know whether he would ever have gone to the F.B.I. voluntarily, but when they came to us it was just like the fall of the second shoe." (An English expression about being in a very tense situation.)

"You can see that we both realized David committed a wrong in giving information to Gold from the fact that we both decided to leave Los Alamos, New Mexico, as soon as possible. After the war he very much wanted David to stay there at a good salary, but David explained that he must return to New York because of me and my unborn baby."

"Our brother-in-law, Rosenberg, was really angry at us for leaving the atom plant, and that was the beginning of our unbridledness, particularly between me and my sister-in-law."

Then I asked Ruth who, of the Rosenbergs, had the stronger character. I raised this question in the presence of her younger sister and the husband of her older sister. All three answered immediately that Etel is the dominant person.

Ruth expressed herself as follows:

"As I have said before, there was a time when David and I were partial toward communism. But we were never embittered or intolerant toward people who did not agree with us. But Ethel was quite different. She did not buy from a butcher or grocer unless he were an open sympathizer toward Soviet Russia. She considered everyone who was against communism her personal enemy."

I asked about Julius Rosenberg. I was especially interested in him because whereas Gold and Greenglass became witnesses for the government, Rosenberg denies the charges against him and his wife and because of this he is to be tried shortly. From all known facts he has absolutely no chance of going free. Gold, who went to see Greenglass in Los Alamos with Rosenberg's recommendation and secret sign (an irregularly cut cover of a desert box), is a witness against him. Greenglass confirms the charges. From what I hear Abe Sobell, who was caught in Mexico by the F. I., will also be a witness against Rosenberg. So how will he get out of it? Rosenberg's lawyer stated, in court, that he will prove at the trial that Greenglass fabricated the false accusation against his sister Ethel and her husband Julius in order to save his wife Ruth.

This sounds faulty. What is the reason Rosenberg is risking his life? Espionage in war time involves to death penalty.

The answer is "tovarich" Yakovlev, the assistant to the Soviet Ambassador, who was the official director of the Soviet espionage ring in the United States. Rosenberg is risking his life and his wife's freedom because he doesn't want to confirm that an official employee of the Russian Embassy directed espionage in the United States.

Translated by SEYMUR N. RABINOWITZ

Greenglass Guilty In Atom Espionage

Chunky David Greenglass, who as an Army sergeant worked on the atomic bomb at Los Alamos, yesterday pleaded guilty in Federal Court of war-time conspiracy to convey secret information to Russia.

Greenglass originally was indicted in New Mexico, but was named in a superseding indictment here last week with four others, including Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former Russian vice-consul in New York.

Conviction on the charge carries a possible death sentence, but it was expected Greenglass would turn government witness and thereby escape the death penalty sometimes meted out to war-time traitors.

Named along with the ex-GI and Yakovlev were Greenglass' brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, 33, an electrical engineer, of 10 Monroe St., his wife, Ethel, 35, journed until Nov. 13 at the request of his attorney.

One of the acts charged to Greenglass was that on Jan. 12, 1945, he gave "a paper" containing sketches of experiments conducted at the Los Alamos project to Rosenberg within the jurisdiction of the Southern District of New York, the basis for the superseding action which prevented his being extradited to Sante Fe for trial there.

Greenglass, a former member of the Young Communist League, has been held in lieu of $100,000 bail since his arrest last July.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20
SEC. 21
SEC. 22
SEC. 23
SEC. 24
SEC. 25
SEC. 26
SEC. 27
SEC. 28
SEC. 29
SEC. 30
SEC. 31
SEC. 32
SEC. 33
SEC. 34
SEC. 35
SEC. 36
SEC. 37
SEC. 38
SEC. 39
SEC. 40
SEC. 41
SEC. 42
SEC. 43
SEC. 44
SEC. 45
SEC. 46
SEC. 47
SEC. 48
SEC. 49
SEC. 50
SEC. 51
SEC. 52
SEC. 53
SEC. 54
SEC. 55
SEC. 56
SEC. 57
SEC. 58
SEC. 59
SEC. 60
SEC. 61
SEC. 62
SEC. 63
SEC. 64
SEC. 65
SEC. 66
SEC. 67
SEC. 68
SEC. 69
SEC. 70
SEC. 71
SEC. 72
SEC. 73
SEC. 74
SEC. 75
SEC. 76
SEC. 77
SEC. 78
SEC. 79
SEC. 80
SEC. 81
SEC. 82
SEC. 83
SEC. 84
SEC. 85
SEC. 86
SEC. 87
SEC. 88
SEC. 89
SEC. 90
SEC. 91
SEC. 92
SEC. 93
SEC. 94
SEC. 95
SEC. 96
SEC. 97
SEC. 98
SEC. 99
SEC. 100
SEC. 101
SEC. 102
SEC. 103
SEC. 104
SEC. 105
SEC. 106
SEC. 107
SEC. 108
SEC. 109
SEC. 110
SEC. 111
SEC. 112
SEC. 113
SEC. 114
SEC. 115
SEC. 116
SEC. 117
SEC. 118
SEC. 119
SEC. 120
SEC. 121
SEC. 122
SEC. 123
SEC. 124
SEC. 125
SEC. 126
SEC. 127
SEC. 128
SEC. 129
SEC. 130
SEC. 131
SEC. 132
SEC. 133
SEC. 134
SEC. 135
SEC. 136
SEC. 137
SEC. 138
SEC. 139
SEC. 140
SEC. 141
SEC. 142
SEC. 143
SEC. 144
SEC. 145
SEC. 146
SEC. 147
SEC. 148
SEC. 149
SEC. 150
SEC. 151
SEC. 152
SEC. 153
SEC. 154
SEC. 155
SEC. 156
SEC. 157
SEC. 158
SEC. 159
SEC. 160
SEC. 161
SEC. 162
SEC. 163
SEC. 164
SEC. 165
SEC. 166
SEC. 167
SEC. 168
SEC. 169
SEC. 170
SEC. 171
SEC. 172
SEC. 173
SEC. 174
SEC. 175
SEC. 176
SEC. 177
SEC. 178
SEC. 179
SEC. 180
SEC. 181
SEC. 182
SEC. 183
SEC. 184
SEC. 185
SEC. 186
SEC. 187
SEC. 188
SEC. 189
SEC. 190
SEC. 191
SEC. 192
SEC. 193
SEC. 194
SEC. 195
SEC. 196
SEC. 197
SEC. 198
SEC. 199
SEC. 200
SEC. 201
SEC. 202
SEC. 203
SEC. 204
SEC. 205
SEC. 206
SEC. 207
SEC. 208
SEC. 209
SEC. 210
SEC. 211
SEC. 212
SEC. 213
SEC. 214
SEC. 215
SEC. 216
SEC. 217
SEC. 218
SEC. 219
SEC. 220
SEC. 221
SEC. 222
SEC. 223
SEC. 224
SEC. 225
SEC. 226
SEC. 227
SEC. 228
SEC. 229
SEC. 230
SEC. 231
SEC. 232
SEC. 233
SEC. 234
SEC. 235
SEC. 236
SEC. 237
SEC. 238
SEC. 239
SEC. 240
SEC. 241
SEC. 242
SEC. 243
SEC. 244
SEC. 245
SEC. 246
SEC. 247
SEC. 248
SEC. 249
SEC. 250
SEC. 251
SEC. 252
SEC. 253
SEC. 254
SEC. 255
SEC. 256
SEC. 257
SEC. 258
SEC. 259
SEC. 260
SEC. 261
SEC. 262
SEC. 263
SEC. 264
SEC. 265
SEC. 266
SEC. 267
SEC. 268
SEC. 269
SEC. 270
SEC. 271
SEC. 272
SEC. 273
SEC. 274
SEC. 275
SEC. 276
SEC. 277
SEC. 278
SEC. 279
SEC. 280
SEC. 281
SEC. 282
SEC. 283
SEC. 284
SEC. 285
SEC. 286
SEC. 287
SEC. 288
SEC. 289
SEC. 290
SEC. 291
SEC. 292
SEC. 293
SEC. 294
SEC. 295
SEC. 296
SEC. 297
SEC. 298
SEC. 299
SEC. 300
SEC. 301
SEC. 302
SEC. 303
SEC. 304
SEC. 305
SEC. 306
SEC. 307
SEC. 308
SEC. 309
SEC. 310
SEC. 311
SEC. 312
SEC. 313
SEC. 314
SEC. 315
SEC. 316
SEC. 317
SEC. 318
SEC. 319
SEC. 320
SEC. 321
SEC. 322
SEC. 323
SEC. 324
SEC. 325
SEC. 326
SEC. 327
SEC. 328
SEC. 329
SEC. 330
SEC. 331
SEC. 332
SEC. 333
SEC. 334
SEC. 335
SEC. 336
SEC. 337
SEC. 338
SEC. 339
SEC. 340
SEC. 341
SEC. 342
SEC. 343
SEC. 344
SEC. 345
SEC. 346
SEC. 347
SEC. 348
SEC. 349
SEC. 350
SEC. 351
SEC. 352
SEC. 353
SEC. 354
SEC. 355
SEC. 356
SEC. 357
SEC. 358
SEC. 359
SEC. 360
SEC. 361
SEC. 362
SEC. 363
SEC. 364
SEC. 365
SEC. 366
SEC. 367
SEC. 368
SEC. 369
SEC. 370
SEC. 371
SEC. 372
SEC. 373
SEC. 374
SEC. 375
SEC. 376
SEC. 377
SEC. 378
SEC. 379
SEC. 380
SEC. 381
SEC. 382
SEC. 383
SEC. 384
SEC. 385
SEC. 386
SEC. 387
SEC. 388
SEC. 389
SEC. 390
SEC. 391
SEC. 392
SEC. 393
SEC. 394
SEC. 395
SEC. 396
SEC. 397
SEC. 398
SEC. 399
SEC. 400
SEC. 401
SEC. 402
SEC. 403
SEC. 404
SEC. 405
SEC. 406
SEC. 407
SEC. 408
SEC. 409
SEC. 410
SEC. 411
SEC. 412
SEC. 413
SEC. 414
SEC. 415
SEC. 416
SEC. 417
SEC. 418
SEC. 419
SEC. 420
SEC. 421
SEC. 422
SEC. 423
SEC. 424
SEC. 425
SEC. 426
SEC. 427
SEC. 428
SEC. 429
SEC. 430
SEC. 431
SEC. 432
SEC. 433
SEC. 434
SEC. 435
SEC. 436
SEC. 437
SEC. 438
SEC. 439
SEC. 440
SEC. 441
SEC. 442
SEC. 443
SEC. 444
SEC. 445
SEC. 446
SEC. 447
SEC. 448
SEC. 449
SEC. 450
SEC. 451
SEC. 452
SEC. 453
SEC. 454
SEC. 455
SEC. 456
SEC. 457
SEC. 458
SEC. 459
SEC. 460
SEC. 461
SEC. 462
SEC. 463
SEC. 464
SEC. 465
SEC. 466
SEC. 467
SEC. 468
SEC. 469
SEC. 470
SEC. 471
SEC. 472
SEC. 473
SEC. 474
SEC. 475
SEC. 476
SEC. 477
SEC. 478
SEC. 479
SEC. 480
SEC. 481
SEC. 482
SEC. 483
SEC. 484
SEC. 485
SEC. 486
SEC. 487
SEC. 488
SEC. 489
SEC. 490
SEC. 491
SEC. 492
SEC. 493
SEC. 494
SEC. 495
SEC. 496
SEC. 497
SEC. 498
SEC. 499
SEC. 500
SEC. 501
SEC. 502
SEC. 503
SEC. 504
SEC. 505
SEC. 506
SEC. 507
SEC. 508
SEC. 509
SEC. 510
SEC. 511
SEC. 512
SEC. 513
SEC. 514
SEC. 515
SEC. 516
SEC. 517
SEC. 518
SEC. 519
SEC. 520
SEC. 521
SEC. 522
SEC. 523
SEC. 524
SEC. 525
SEC. 526
SEC. 527
SEC. 528
SEC. 529
SEC. 530
SEC. 531
SEC. 532
SEC. 533
SEC. 534
SEC. 535
SEC. 536
SEC. 537
SEC. 538
SEC. 539
SEC. 540
SEC. 541
SEC. 542
SEC. 543
SEC. 544
SEC. 545
SEC. 546
SEC. 547
SEC. 548
SEC. 549
SEC. 550
SEC. 551
SEC. 552
SEC. 553
SEC. 554
SEC. 555
SEC. 556
SEC. 557
SEC. 558
SEC. 559
SEC. 560
SEC. 561
SEC. 562
SEC. 563
SEC. 564
SEC. 565
SEC. 566
SEC. 567
SEC. 568
SEC. 569
SEC. 570
SEC. 571
SEC. 572
SEC. 573
SEC. 574
SEC. 575
SEC. 576
SEC. 577
SEC. 578
SEC. 579
SEC. 580
SEC. 581
SEC. 582
SEC. 583
SEC. 584
SEC. 585
SEC. 586
SEC. 587
SEC. 588
SEC. 589
SEC. 590
SEC. 591
SEC. 592
SEC. 593
SEC. 594
SEC. 595
SEC. 596
SEC. 597
SEC. 598
SEC. 599
SEC. 600
SEC. 601
SEC. 602
SEC. 603
SEC. 604
SEC. 605
SEC. 606
SEC. 607
SEC. 608
SEC. 609
SEC. 610
SEC. 611
SEC. 612
SEC. 613
SEC. 614
SEC. 615
SEC. 616
SEC. 617
SEC. 618
SEC. 619
SEC. 620
SEC. 621
SEC. 622
SEC. 623
SEC. 624
SEC. 625
SEC. 626
SEC. 627
SEC. 628
SEC. 629
SEC. 630
SEC. 631
SEC. 632
SEC. 633
SEC. 634
SEC. 635
SEC. 636
SEC. 637
SEC. 638
SEC. 639
SEC. 640
SEC. 641
SEC. 642
SEC. 643
SEC. 644
SEC. 645
SEC. 646
SEC. 647
SEC. 648
SEC. 649
SEC. 650
SEC. 651
SEC. 652
SEC. 653
SEC. 654
SEC. 655
SEC. 656
SEC. 657
SEC. 658
SEC. 659
SEC. 660
SEC. 661
SEC. 662
SEC. 663
SEC. 664
SEC. 665
SEC. 666
SEC. 667
SEC. 668
SEC. 669
SEC. 670
SEC. 671
SEC. 672
SEC. 673
SEC. 674
SEC. 675
SEC. 676
SEC. 677
SEC. 678
SEC. 679
SEC. 680
SEC. 681
SEC. 682
SEC. 683
SEC. 684
SEC. 685
SEC. 686
SEC. 687
SEC. 688
SEC. 689
SEC. 690
SEC. 691
SEC. 692
SEC. 693
SEC. 694
SEC. 695
SEC. 696
SEC. 697
SEC. 698
SEC. 699
SEC. 700
SEC. 701
SEC. 702
SEC. 703
SEC. 704
SEC. 705
SEC. 706
SEC. 707
SEC. 708
SEC. 709
SEC. 710
SEC. 711
SEC. 712
SEC. 713
SEC. 714
SEC. 715
SEC. 716
SEC. 717
SEC. 718
SEC. 719
SEC. 720
SEC. 721
SEC. 722
SEC. 723
SEC. 724
SEC. 725
SEC. 726
SEC. 727
SEC. 728
SEC. 729
SEC. 730
SEC. 731
SEC. 732
SEC. 733
SEC. 734
SEC. 735
SEC. 736
SEC. 737
SEC. 738
SEC. 739
SEC. 740
SEC. 741
SEC. 742
SEC. 743
SEC. 744
SEC. 745
SEC. 746
SEC. 747
SEC. 748
SEC. 749
SEC. 750
SEC. 751
SEC. 752
SEC. 753
SEC. 754
SEC. 755
SEC. 756
SEC. 757
SEC. 758
SEC. 759
SEC. 760
SEC. 761
SEC. 762
SEC. 763
SEC. 764
SEC. 765
SEC. 766
SEC. 767
SEC. 768
SEC. 769
SEC. 770
SEC. 771
SEC. 772
SEC. 773
SEC. 774
SEC. 775
SEC. 776
SEC. 777
SEC. 778
SEC. 779
SEC. 780
SEC. 781
SEC. 782
SEC. 783
SEC. 784
SEC. 785
SEC. 786
SEC. 787
SEC. 788
SEC. 789
SEC. 790
SEC. 791
SEC. 792
SEC. 793
SEC. 794
SEC. 795
SEC. 796
SEC. 797
SEC. 798
SEC. 799
SEC. 800
SEC. 801
SEC. 802
SEC. 803
SEC. 804
SEC. 805
SEC. 806
SEC. 807
SEC. 808
SEC. 809
SEC. 810
SEC. 811
SEC. 812
SEC. 813
SEC. 814
SEC. 815
SEC. 816
SEC. 817
SEC. 818
SEC. 819
SEC. 820
SEC. 821
SEC. 822
SEC. 823
SEC. 824
SEC. 825
SEC. 826
SEC. 827
SEC. 828
SEC. 829
SEC. 830
SEC. 831
SEC. 832
SEC. 833
SEC. 834
SEC. 835
SEC. 836
SEC. 837
SEC. 838
SEC. 839
SEC. 840
SEC. 841
SEC. 842
SEC. 843
SEC. 844
SEC. 845
SEC. 846
SEC. 847
SEC. 848
SEC. 849
SEC. 850
SEC. 851
SEC. 852
SEC. 853
SEC. 854
SEC. 855
SEC. 856
SEC. 857
SEC. 858
SEC. 859
SEC. 860
SEC. 861
SEC. 862
SEC. 863
SEC. 864
SEC. 865
SEC. 866
SEC. 867
SEC. 868
SEC. 869
SEC. 870
SEC. 871
SEC. 872
SEC. 873
SEC. 874
SEC. 875
SEC. 876
SEC. 877
SEC. 878
SEC. 879
SEC. 880
SEC. 881
SEC. 882
SEC. 883
SEC. 884
SEC. 885
SEC. 886
SEC. 887
SEC. 888
SEC. 889
SEC. 890
SEC. 891
SEC. 892
SEC. 893
SEC. 894
SEC. 895
SEC. 896
SEC. 897
SEC. 898
SEC. 899
SEC. 900
SEC. 901
SEC. 902
SEC. 903
SEC. 904
SEC. 905
SEC. 906
SEC. 907
SEC. 908
SEC. 909
SEC. 910
SEC. 911
SEC. 912
SEC. 913
SEC. 914
SEC. 915
SEC. 916
SEC. 917
SEC. 918
SEC. 919
SEC. 920
SEC. 921
SEC. 922
SEC. 923
SEC. 924
SEC. 925
SEC. 926
SEC. 927
SEC. 928
SEC. 929
SEC. 930
SEC. 931
SEC. 932
SEC. 933
SEC. 934
SEC. 935
SEC. 936
SEC. 937
SEC. 938
SEC. 939
SEC. 940
SEC. 941
SEC. 942
SEC. 943
SEC. 944
SEC. 945
SEC. 946
SEC. 947
SEC. 948
SEC. 949
SEC. 950
SEC. 951
SEC. 952
SEC. 953
SEC. 954
SEC. 955
SEC. 956
SEC. 957
SEC. 958
SEC. 959
SEC. 960
SEC. 961
SEC. 962
SEC. 963
SEC. 964
SEC. 965
SEC. 966
SEC. 967
SEC. 968
SEC. 969
SEC. 970
SEC. 971
SEC. 972
SEC. 973
SEC. 974
SEC. 975
SEC. 976
SEC. 977
SEC. 978
SEC. 979
SEC. 980
SEC. 981
SEC. 982
SEC. 983
SEC. 984
SEC. 985
SEC. 986
SEC. 987
SEC. 988
SEC. 989
SEC. 990
SEC. 991
SEC. 992
SEC. 993
SEC. 994
SEC. 995
SEC. 996
SEC. 997
SEC. 998
SEC. 999
SEC. 1000
SEC. 1001
SEC. 1002
SEC. 1003
SEC. 1004
SEC. 1005
SEC. 1006
SEC. 1007
SEC. 1008
SEC. 1009
SEC. 1010
SEC. 1011
SEC. 1012
SEC. 1013
SEC. 1014
SEC. 1015
SEC. 1016
SEC. 1017
SEC. 1018
SEC. 1019
SEC. 1020
SEC. 1021
SEC. 1022
SEC. 1023
SEC. 1024
SEC. 1025
SEC. 1026
SEC. 1027
SEC. 1028
SEC. 1029
SEC. 1030
SEC. 1031
SEC. 1032
SEC. 1033
SEC. 1034
SEC. 1035
SEC. 1036
SEC. 1037
SEC. 1038
SEC. 1039
SEC. 1040
SEC. 1041
SEC. 1042
SEC. 1043
SEC. 1044
SEC. 1045
SEC. 1046
SEC. 1047
SEC. 1048
SEC. 1049
SEC. 1050
SEC. 1051
SEC. 1052
SEC. 1053
SEC. 1054
SEC. 1055
SEC. 1056
SEC. 1057
SEC. 1058
SEC. 1059
SEC. 1060
SEC. 1061
SEC. 1062
SEC. 1063
SEC. 1064
SEC. 1065
SEC. 1066
SEC. 1067
SEC. 1068
SEC. 1069
SEC. 1070
SEC. 1071
SEC. 1072
SEC. 1073
SEC. 1074
SEC. 1075
SEC. 1076
SEC. 1077
SEC. 1078
SEC. 1079
SEC. 1080
SEC. 1081
SEC. 1082
SEC. 1083
SEC. 1084
SEC. 1085
SEC. 1086
SEC. 1087
SEC. 1088
SEC. 1089
SEC. 1090
SEC. 1091
SEC. 1092
SEC. 1093
SEC. 1094
SEC. 1095
SEC. 1096
SEC. 1097
SEC. 1098
SEC. 1099
SEC. 1100
SEC. 1101
SEC. 1102
SEC. 1103
SEC. 1104
SEC. 1105
SEC. 1106
SEC. 1107
SEC. 1108
SEC. 1109
SEC. 1110
SEC. 1111
SEC. 1112
SEC. 1113
SEC. 1114
SEC. 1115
SEC. 1116
SEC. 1117
SEC. 1118
SEC. 1119
SEC. 1120
SEC. 1121
SEC. 1122
SEC. 1123
SEC. 1124
SEC. 1125
SEC. 1126
SEC. 1127
SEC. 1128
SEC. 1129
SEC. 1130
SEC. 1131
SEC. 1132
SEC. 1133
SEC. 1134
SEC. 1135
SEC. 1136
SEC. 1137
SEC. 1138
SEC. 1139
SEC. 1140
SEC. 1141
SEC. 1142
SEC. 1143
SEC. 1144
SEC. 1145
SEC. 1146
SEC. 1147
SEC. 1148
SEC. 1149
SEC. 1150
SEC. 1151
SEC. 1152
SEC. 1153
SEC. 1154
SEC. 1155
SEC. 1156
SEC. 1157
SEC. 1158
SEC. 1159
SEC. 1160
SEC. 1161
SEC. 1162
SEC. 1163
SEC. 1164
SEC. 1165
SEC. 1166
SEC. 1167
SEC. 1168
SEC. 1169
SEC. 1170
SEC. 1171
SEC. 1172
SEC. 1173
SEC. 1174
SEC. 1175
SEC. 1176
SEC. 1177
SEC. 1178
SEC. 1179
SEC. 1180
SEC. 1181
SEC. 1182
SEC. 1183
SEC. 1184
SEC. 1185
SEC. 1186
SEC. 1187
SEC. 1188
SEC. 1189
SEC. 1190
SEC. 1191
SEC. 1192
SEC. 1193
SEC. 1194
SEC. 1195
SEC. 1196
SEC. 1197
SEC. 1198
SEC. 1199
SEC. 1200
SEC. 1201
SEC. 1202
SEC. 1203
SEC. 1204
SEC. 1205
SEC. 1206
SEC. 1207
SEC. 1208
SEC. 1209
SEC. 1210
SEC. 1211
SEC. 1212
SEC. 1213
SEC. 1214
SEC. 1215
SEC. 1216
SEC. 1217
SEC. 1218
SEC. 1219
SEC. 1220
SEC. 1221
SEC. 1222
SEC. 1223
SEC. 1224
SEC. 1225
SEC. 1226
SEC. 1227
SEC. 1228
SEC. 1229
SEC. 1230
SEC. 1231
SEC. 1232
SEC. 1233
SEC. 1234
SEC. 1235
SEC. 1236
SEC. 1237
SEC. 1238
SEC. 1239
SEC. 1240
SEC. 1241
SEC. 1242
SEC. 1243
SEC. 1244
SEC. 1245
SEC. 1246
SEC. 1247
SEC. 1248
SEC. 1249
SEC. 1250
SEC. 1251
SEC. 1252
SEC. 1253
SEC. 1254
SEC. 1255
SEC. 1256
SEC. 1257
SEC. 1258
SEC. 1259
SEC. 1260
SEC. 1261
SEC. 1262
SEC. 1263
SEC. 1264
SEC. 1265
SEC. 1266
SEC. 1267
SEC. 1268
SEC. 1269
SEC. 1270
SEC. 1271
SEC. 1272
SEC. 1273
SEC. 1274
SEC. 1275
SEC. 1276
SEC. 1277
SEC. 1278
SEC. 1279
SEC. 1280
SEC. 1281
SEC. 1282
SEC. 1283
SEC. 1284
SEC. 1285
SEC. 1286
SEC. 1287
SEC. 1288
SEC. 1289
SEC. 1290
SEC. 1291
SEC. 1292
SEC. 1293
SEC. 1294
SEC. 1295
SEC. 1296
SEC. 1297
SEC. 1298
SEC. 1299
SEC. 1300
SEC. 1301
SEC. 1302
SEC. 1303
SEC. 1304
SEC. 1305
SEC. 1306
SEC. 1307
SEC. 1308
SEC. 1309
SEC. 1310
SEC. 1311
SEC. 1312
SEC. 1313
SEC. 1314
SEC. 1315
SEC. 1316
SEC. 1317
SEC. 1318
SEC. 1319
SEC. 1320
SEC. 1321
SEC. 1322
SEC. 1323
SEC. 1324
SEC. 1325
SEC. 1326
SEC. 1327
SEC. 1328
SEC. 1329
SEC. 1330
SEC. 1331
SEC. 1332
SEC. 1333
SEC. 1334
SEC. 1335
SEC. 1336
SEC. 1337
SEC. 1338
SEC. 1339
SEC. 1340
SEC. 1341
SEC. 1342
SEC. 1343
SEC. 1344
SEC. 1345
SEC. 1346
SEC. 1347
SEC. 1348
SEC. 1349
SEC. 1350
SEC. 1351
SEC. 1352
SEC. 1353
SEC. 1354
SEC. 1355
SEC. 1356
SEC. 1357
SEC. 1358
SEC. 1359
SEC. 1360
SEC. 1361
SEC. 1362
SEC. 1363
SEC. 1364
SEC. 1365
SEC. 1366
SEC. 1367
SEC. 1368
SEC. 1369
SEC. 1370
SEC. 1371
SEC. 1372
SEC. 1373
SEC. 1374
SEC. 1375
SEC. 1376
SEC. 1377
SEC. 1378
SEC. 1379
SEC. 1380
SEC. 1381
SEC. 1382
SEC. 1383
SEC. 1384
SEC. 1385
SEC. 1386
SEC. 1387
SEC. 1388
SEC. 1389
SEC. 1390
SEC. 1391
SEC. 1392
SEC. 1393
SEC. 1394
SEC. 1395
SEC. 1396
SEC. 1397
SEC. 1398
SEC. 1399
SEC. 1400
SEC. 1401
SEC. 1402
SEC. 1403
SEC. 1404
SEC. 1405
SEC. 1406
SEC. 1407
SEC. 1408
SEC. 1409
SEC. 1410
SEC. 1411
SEC. 1412
SEC. 1413
SEC. 1414
SEC. 1415
SEC. 1416
SEC. 1417
SEC. 1418
SEC. 1419
SEC. 1420
SEC. 1421
SEC. 1422
SEC. 1423
SEC. 1424
SEC. 1425
SEC. 1426
SEC. 1427
SEC. 1428

Greenglass Gave Russia Secrets

David Greenglass, a former U. S. Army sergeant who worked on the atom bomb, pleaded guilty in Federal Court yesterday to a charge of conspiring to convey secret government information to Russia in time of war.

Defense attorney O. John Rogge said Greenglass was prepared to "give what is his best recollection" of operations of the spy ring in which he was involved. This was taken to indicate that he would turn government witness. If so, he may testify against his own sister.

Greenglass is the third American to plead guilty recently to wartime spying for Russia. The first was Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist. The second was Alfred Dean Slack, sentenced to 15 years.

The 28-year-old Greenglass, a New York machinist who was drafted into the Army in April, 1943, and assigned to work on the A-bomb project at Los Alamos, N. M., from 1944 until his discharge in 1946, is under indictment with four others, including Anatoli Yakovlev, former Russian Vice-Consul here, who is now believed to be in Russia.

Greenglass allegedly turned over secrets to Gold, self-described go-between for Soviet agents and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, British atomic physicist. The others named with Greenglass in the indictment are Mr. and Mrs. Julius Rosenberg and Morton Sobell, all of New York. Mrs. Rosenberg is Greenglass' sister.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2

SEC 1
SEC 2

SEC 3
SEC 4

SEC 5
SEC 6

SEC 7
SEC 8

SEC 9
SEC 10

SEC 11
SEC 12

SEC 13
SEC 14

SEC 15
SEC 16

SEC 17
SEC 18

SEC 19
SEC 20

SEC 21
SEC 22

SEC 23
SEC 24

SEC 25
SEC 26

SEC 27
SEC 28

SEC 29
SEC 30

SEC 31
SEC 32

SEC 33
SEC 34

SEC 35
SEC 36

SEC 37
SEC 38

SEC 39
SEC 40

SEC 41
SEC 42

SEC 43
SEC 44

SEC 45
SEC 46

SEC 47
SEC 48

SEC 49
SEC 50

SEC 51
SEC 52

SEC 53
SEC 54

SEC 55
SEC 56

SEC 57
SEC 58

SEC 59
SEC 60

SEC 61
SEC 62

TITLE

CLASS

From

NY

DATE

OCT 19 1950

F. B. I.

OCT 20 1950

N. Y.

110

100-15336-24

Ex-Army Man Pleads Guilty as Spy for Russia

Greenglass, Named as One of 6 in Plot, May Testify for U.S., Escape Death Penalty

David Greenglass, twenty-eight, pleaded guilty yesterday in United States District Court to conspiring to transmit secret government defense information to Russia during the war.

The former Army sergeant, who worked at the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic-bomb installation, faces a possible death sentence, although, in the light of his plea yesterday, it was indicated in court he would turn government witness to escape the penalty. Greenglass originally was indicted in New Mexico but was named in a superseding indictment here.

Judge William Bondy postponed sentencing until Dec. 4. Greenglass's attorney, O. John Rogge, (Continued on page 23, column 1)

SAC
ASAC
ASAC
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3

SI
DEPT.
NIGHT L. (VISO)
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

CCB

TITLE

CLASS

FROM BY

DATE FILE

Herald Tribune

OCT 19 1950

F. B. I.

OCT 20 1950

N. Y.

109

65-1346-14

F. B. I.
OCT 20 1950
N. Y.
109

James, O.

Spy for Russia

(Continued from page one)

said that his client stood ready "to give what is his best recollection," when other members of the spy ring he is charged with operating in are brought to trial.

Greenglass, a machinist, was arrested June 16. He is under indictment with four other persons who are accused of conspiring with each other and with Harry Gold, confessed atomic spy for Russia, to deliver documentary information "relating to the national defense of the United States" to Russia.

The others are Julius Rosenberg, thirty-two, and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Greenglass Rosenberg, thirty-five (who is a sister of David Greenglass), Morton Sobell, thirty-three, and Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former Russian vice-consul in New York, now believed to be in Russia.

The Rosenbergs pleaded not guilty at their arraignment Monday. Judge Bondy will set the date of their trial Dec. 4. Sobell is scheduled to enter his plea that day.

Two other persons are named as co-conspirators but not as co-defendants in the indictment. The two are Gold, of Philadelphia, and Greenglass's wife, Mrs. Ruth Greenglass, twenty-six.

At the arraignment yesterday, the court clerk read the charge against Greenglass, who stood with head bowed before the court, and responded "guilty," when the clerk asked him if he wished to plead guilty or innocent.

The five named in the indictment have been linked to the Dr. Klaus Fuchs case. Fuchs, now imprisoned in England, used Gold, a former Philadelphia research chemist, as his key contact when he was shuttling atomic data from the United States to Russia. Gold relayed material to two agents whom he knew as "Sam" and "John"—both now disappeared, presumably behind the Iron Curtain.

Greenglass, according to the F. B. I., supplied information about the bomb to Gold while he was at Los Alamos. The F. B. I. says Rosenberg recruited Greenglass to supply the information. Rosenberg supplied Greenglass with a torn box-top, the F. B. I. said, and gave the other half to Gold, who used it to identify himself to Greenglass at Albuquerque, N. M., in 1945.

Former Sergeant Pleads Guilty in Russian Spy Plot

By NORMA ABRAMS

David Greenglass, 28, pudgy former Army sergeant—who, through an amazing security slipup, was permitted to work on the A-bomb at Los Alamos, David Greenglass (right) is escorted from Federal Court en route to The Tombs by Deputy Marshal Eugene Fitzgerald, after pleading guilty of conspiracy to convey U.S. defense secrets to Russia.

TITLE
CLASS FROM FY DATE
FBI

N. M., though he had been a member of the Young Communist League—placed his life in the hands of a federal judge yesterday.

With one barely audible word, he pleaded guilty to conspiring to convey U. S. defense secrets in wartime to Soviet Russia. The penalty could be death—if Judge William Bondy chooses to impose it.

Nobody expects any such extreme sentence, however, for it was indicated the ex-GI is ready to be a government witness against his co-defendants, including his sister, Ethel Rosenberg, and his brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, 32-year-old engineer, of 10 Monroe St.

Saypol Asks Delay

U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol asked that further action regarding Greenglass be put over until Dec. 4, saying "other matters" of importance required attention first. Greenglass' counsel, O. John Rogers, consented.

"My client is not going to add a second mistake to his first one," said Rogers. "He is not abandoning his case, but he is ready to give an indication of what transpired, as he recalls the events."

Judge Bondy granted the postponement. Meanwhile, Greenglass remains in jail in default of $100,000 bail. Likewise, held in default of the same sum are his co-defendants, Julius Rosenberg and Morton Sobell, 33-year-old radar expert, 164 17 7th Ave., Flushing, Queens. Judge Bondy set Mrs. Rosenberg's bond to $50,000 last Monday, at which time she and her husband pleaded innocent.

A fifth person named in the indictment, but long missing from this country, is Anatole A. Yakovlev, former Soviet vice consul in New York.

Also named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, are Greenglass' 26-year-old wife, Ruth, and Harry Gold, Philadelphia businessman, whose arrest preceded all the spy ring roundup.

Gold has pleaded guilty to an other indictment and is a future sentence.

RECEIVED
ASST. ATTY. GEN.
FBI
NOV 20 1950
N.Y.
TO FBI

NOV 20 1950
F. B. I.
N. Y.
TO FBI

Confessed A-Spy To Tell on Pals

Plump, round-faced David Greenglass, 28, today faced a possible death sentence for conspiring to give atom secrets to Russia.

The former Army sergeant, who pleaded guilty yesterday in U.S. District Court, was not expected, however, to get the death penalty.

His lawyer, O. John Rogge, said he was willing "to give what is his best recollection" about other members of the spy ring he is accused of working with. These include his sister, Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, 35, and his brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, 32. Others are Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former Russian vice consul in New York (now believed in Russia) and Morton Sobell, 33.

If Greenglass' testimony is good enough, he presumably will get a softer sentence than the chair.

Greenglass, though he had been a member of the Young Communist League, worked on the atom bomb at Los Alamos, N. Mex., during the war. The indictment charged that he conspired to transmit information to Harry Gold of Philadelphia, another confessed atom spy for Russia. The group was linked in the indictment to Dr. Klaus Fuchs, now imprisoned in England.

Je

RECEIVED COMMUNITY CLERK FBI UNIT

CCB

65-15336-14

F. B. I.
OCT 20 1950
N. Y.
STO

Scors

World Telegram & Sun
DATE OCT 19 1950
FROM

EX-SOLDIER GUILTY IN SPY RING CASE

Greenglass Admits to Passing On Defense Information to Russian Espionage Gang

A 28-year-old former Army sergeant pleaded guilty yesterday in Federal court to passing vital defense information to a Russian atom spy ring in wartime.

The confessed spy, David Greenglass of 265 Rivington Street, will be sentenced Dec. 4. Although he faces a maximum penalty of death, it appeared Greenglass would mitigate his penalty by turning Government witness against three alleged conspirators, including his sister and her husband.

Greenglass admitted that when he was in the Army in 1945, assigned to the Los Alamos atom bomb project, he supplied Harry Gold, confessed Soviet atom spy, with sketches and documents affecting the national defense of the United States.

Arrested Last July

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents arrested Greenglass, a machinist, last July when it was said he was preparing to flee to a Soviet satellite country. The Government charged that Greenglass' brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, 33, electrical engineer, of 10 Monroe Street, gave him $5,000 for the flight. Rosenberg is alleged to have recruited Greenglass into the Soviet spy apparatus.

Last week the Federal grand jury returned a superseding espionage indictment naming Greenglass, Rosenberg, his wife, Ethel, 35; Morton Sobell, 33, electronics and radar expert, of 184-17 Seventy-third Avenue, Flushing, Queens, and Anatoli H. Yakovlev, former Russian vice consul in New York, as members of the atom spy ring.

Yakovlev left this country in 1918 and is believed to be in Russia. The Rosenbergs and Sobell have pleaded not guilty and are being held in high bail pending their trial.

Named as Co-Conspirators

Greenglass' wife, Ruth, 24, and Gold were named as co-conspirators in the indictment but not as defendants. Mrs. Greenglass, mother of two small children, is also believed to be cooperating with the Government.

Yesterday Greenglass was brought before Federal Judge William Bondy to plead to the indictment. United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol told the court that defense counsel, O. John Rogge, wished to consult with the defendant.

The pleading was adjourned for a half hour. Then Greenglass, a chunky man, stood before the bench, head bowed and hands clasped in front of him. The court clerk, David P. Sweeney, read the indictment and asked Greenglass how he pleaded.

Greenglass raised his head and in a firm voice answered: "Guilty." Mrs. Greenglass, who was seated in the first row of the spectator's bench, lowered her eyes until her husband was left alone.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC.

SEC.
SEC.
SEC.
SEC. 1
SEC. 10
NIGHT SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

CLB

15-15336-10

F. B. I.
OCT 20 1950
N. Y.
770

TITLE CLASS

FROM TO OCT 19 1950

Times

Chief Asst. U.S. Atty. Lane said the new indictment extends the period of the alleged conspiracy five months longer than the old charges—from June 6, 1944, to June 16, 1950. Greenglass, of 265 Rivington St., also pleaded guilty to the former indictment. He is expected to testify for the government. All four defendants are in custody, the men under $100,000 bail, and Mrs. Rosenberg under $50,000.

CLASS

FEB 3 1951

2-8

6-15326-2

Fig. 1.

ГЕВ 6 1951

N.Y.

510

Horizon

Spy Greenglass to Hear Fate Testimony Doomed Sister, Hu

By MALCOLM LOGAN

David Greenglass, the confessed A-Bomb spy whose testimony for the go to doom his sister and brother-in-law to the electric chair, awaited sentence Judge Irving R. Kaufman at 2 p.m. today.

Theoretically, the 29-year-old machinist of 265 Rivington St. faces the c which Judge Kaufman imposed on Julius and Ethel Rosenberg yesterday, f

DAVID GREENGLASS
To Be Sentenced Today

guilty to the same charge conspiracy for

But the third defendant, Morton Sobell, was given instead of death, an opportunity to escape with a short

Leniency to Be Asked

Possibly to spare Greenglass the ordeal of seeing his sister condemned to die, U. S. Atty. Saypol yesterday had his sentencing deferred until today.

O. John Rogge, Greenglass' lawyer, was to be present to ask the judge for leniency. He stressed in a brief courtroom discussion yesterday the fact that Greenglass had asked the government and had not committed "a second offense" by denying his guilt.

Judge Kaufman replied there were "some things I have in mind" and that it "required a great deal of courage" for Greenglass to testify against his sister.

Was Young Communist

Greenglass was born and lived all his life in the lower East Side. He attended P.S. 4 and H.S. 125 and at 17 became a machinist, following his father's trade. For a time he studied at night at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute but he did not complete his studies there.

He was married in 1912 to Ruth Dine, whom he had known since his life. They have two children. Another time friend of his was born in 1912 and died in 1951.

Why was he... born... brother... to his... joined... because... that he... Communist... into the...

Greenglass Hears His Fate Today

Continued from Page 5
qualms about turning spy because of his radical philosophy.

Transfer to Sing Sing

Rosenberg, who will be 33 on May 12, and his wife, 35, were sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison the week of May 21.

Rosenberg spent last night in the Federal House of Detention, 11th and West Sts., and Mrs. Rosenberg at the Women's House of Detention, 10th St. and Avenue of the Americas. U. S. Marshal William A. Carroll said he hoped to transfer them to Sing Sing today, but Warden Wilfred DeLoach said he would have to seek legal advice before arranging details of their stay.

The Rosenbergs' lawyer said he would appeal immediately to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and, if the conviction is upheld there, to the U. S. Supreme Court. Presumably the appeals would defer the execution date beyond May 21.

First to Die as Spies

If they are executed, they would be the first American citizens in the history of U. S. jurisprudence to die for wartime espionage. They would also be the first Federal prisoners to die at Sing Sing. U. S. Attorney Saypol, the prosecutor, said the law provides for execution of the death sentence to be carried out under the laws of the state where conviction is obtained.

Mrs. Rosenberg would be the second woman in U. S. history to die under Federal law. The Mary Surrat was executed for her part in the assassination plot against President Lincoln.

Elderly Mrs. Tessie Green, mother of Mrs. Rosenberg and David Greenglass, husband and co-protector, she would visit her daughter, barricaded in her apartment flat at 61 Sheridan St. on the Lower East Side, Mrs. Greenglass said she had not expected the death sentence.

Neighbors Agree

Neighbors of the Rosenbergs, who lived at 1 Monroe St., Kew-Forest Village, said they believed the death sentence was justified in view of the enormity of the crime.

The doomed couple showed no grief or remorse. After hearing the sentence, and while waiting in separate cells in the Federal Court House to be driven away in a prisoners' van, Mrs. Rosenberg burst into song. "The Time Has Come from 'Madame Butterfly.' " From her husband was heard singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Judge Prayed for Guidance

Kaufman, visibly moved by the task, visited his synagogue three times to seek guidance before imposing the sentence.

Should the appeals fail, the death sentence could be commuted only by President Truman.

In accordance with Federal custom, the Rosenbergs would die at sunrise, instead of 11 a. m., the usual hour of execution at Sing Sing.

Greenglass Starts 15-Year Spy Term

David Greenglass, confessed spy whose testimony helped convict his sister and brother-in-law, today started serving 15 years, the price of his own part in the betrayal of his country.

Standing in the same Manhattan courtroom where Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were sentenced to death, Greenglass heard Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman pronounce the jail sentence recommended by U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol and declare it "a just sentence, neither light nor heavy."

The 15-year term was far heavier than the three-to-five years asked by Greenglass' counsel, O. John Rogge, who told the court his client "should be praised, not punished," and declared leniency would cause other offenders to come forward and expose espionage.

Greenglass will be eligible for parole consideration after five years. Attorneys for the Rosenbergs yesterday filed a notice of appeal, asking a new trial.

5-3
5-101
5-1
5-2
5-3
5-4
5-5
5-6
5-7
5-8
5-9
5-10

DIVISION OF CLERK
New York

15	7	15
F. B. I.
APR 7 1951
N. Y. C.
20	10	10

APR 7 1951
RECORDED BY R. J. [unclear]

Spy Sentence For Greenglass Set at 15 Years

Court Lowers Term From 30 for Aid to Prosecution;
Can Get Parole by 1956

By Blaine Littell

Following the government's recommendation, Judge Irving R. Kaufman sentenced David Greenglass yesterday to fifteen years in prison.

The confessed spy for Soviet Russia received less than the maximum prison term of thirty years prescribed by the espionage law in "consideration" of his aid in "apprehending and bringing to justice the arch criminals of this nefarious scheme"—his sister and his brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg.

The Rosenbergs were sentenced to death Thursday by Judge Kaufman after a jury, which had heard Greenglass testify against them, found them guilty of conspiring to steal American military secrets for the Soviet Union during World War II. Morton Sobell, a third defendant, also was found guilty. Implicated to a lesser degree than the Rosenbergs, he was sentenced to thirty years in prison.

Admitted His Guilt

Greenglass, a twenty-nine-year-old machinist and father of two children, readily admitted on the witness stand in United States District Courthouse during the three-week trial that he had drawn up plans of the Nagasaki-type atom bomb while on duty as an Army sergeant at the Los Alamos, N. M., project. As one of the chief government witnesses, he further testified he had turned over this information to Julius Rosenberg and that his sister, Ethel, had typed it before it was passed on to Soviet agents.

Yesterday, Greenglass turned his eyes to the ground as his sentence was pronounced. During the trial, he had smiled almost continuously while on the witness stand. He did not smile yesterday. He listened to Judge Kaufman's statement before sentencing with his hands clasped behind him. Afterwards, when United States marshals led him from the crowded courtroom, he seemed to be walking in a trance.

In the front row of the spectators' section, his wife, Ruth, who also had testified for the government, leaned forward with her face below the wooden barricade and cried. She was named co-conspirator, but not defendant in the espionage indictment against her husband, the Rosenbergs and Sobell. Mr. and Mrs. Greenglass live at 265 Rivington

CCB

APR 7 1951

RECEIVED BY H. T. DIVISION

APR 9 1951

N. Y.

Street. Their children are Stephen, four, and Barbara, ten months.

According to Irving H. Saypol, United States Attorney and government prosecutor in the trial of the spies, Greenglass will be eligible for parole after serving five years, or one-third, of his sentence. He will continue to be lodged in the Tombs at 100 Centre Street until Federal authorities in Washington decide in which Federal penitentiary he will serve out his sentence.

Judge Is "Realistic"

In his statement before sentencing Greenglass, Judge Kaufman termed as "loathesome" the defendant's role in the Russian espionage ring.

"You have at least not added to your sins by committing the crime of perjury," he said. "I realize the courage that was required for you to give your testimony . . . I have to be realistic in a situation such as this and I recognize that despite my own inclination to be more severe on your sentence due to the revolting nature of your offense, I must subordinate my own feelings."

"Our national security is more important than my personal feeling on the subject and, indeed, more important than the punishment of any single individual. By your assistance in this case you have helped us strike a death blow to the trafficking in our military secrets to the advantage of a foreign nation."

Judge Kaufman added that the "unconverging of other espionage rings, which I am certain exist, depends to a great extent upon the testimony of those members of the ring who recant and seek to atone for their sins in some measure." The judge said that persons like Greenglass "were in effect enlisting in the Russian 'Foreign Legion' but noted that 'you, however, found your way back before the curtain fell on your life'."

Pleads for Light Sentence

In pleading for a light sentence for his client, O. John Rogge pointed out that a light sentence for Greenglass might induce other less fanatic members of espionage rings, such as the Greenglasses, to come forward and assist the government.

He described Greenglass as a "fuzzy thinker" who never really wanted to spy for Russia and said his client "should be praised, not punished" for his damaging testimony against the Rosenbergs.

Almost at the same time that Mr. Rogge pleaded for David Greenglass, attorneys for the Rosenbergs filed an appeal from the sentence and verdict with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The notice of the appeal, filed by Emanuel H. Bloch, stated that the defense wanted to appeal from an order denying the Rosenbergs' motion for a new trial and an arrest of judgment.

Greenglass Is Given 15 Years For Part In Atomic Spy Ring

By Anthony Marino and Neal Patterson

David Greenglass, 28, the former atom project sergeant who turned traitor, but later confessed and gave evidence which caused his sister and brother-in-law to be condemned to the electric chair as A-bomb spies for Russia, learned the price of his betrayal of country yesterday. It was 15 years.

Greenglass paled as he heard the sentence from Federal Judge Irving Kaufman in the same courtroom where Mrs. Ethel Greenglass Rosenberg, 35, and Julius Rosenberg, 32, were doomed the previous day.

His wife, Ruth, slumped forward in her chair in the first row of spectators, buried her face in her hands and wept.

Counsel Makes Plan.

Greenglass' punishment was far heavier than the three-to-five-year term pleaded for by his counsel, O. John Rogge, who told the court Greenglass "should be praised, not punished." Rogge also argued that leniency would cause other penit-ent offenders to come forward and expose espionage and that "if the Government wants help, it must give help."

Nevertheless, Greenglass has a chance of going free in five years. He becomes eligible for parole consideration after serving one-third of his term—and Judge Kaufman, in his sentence, incorporated no recommendation against parole, as he did Thursday in handing Morton Sobell, a Rosenberg accomplice, 30 years.

Depends on Conduct.

Also, even if parole authorities should refuse to release him after five years, he would become automatically eligible for parole after 10 years, if his conduct has been good. Federal rules provide a remission of 10 days for each month of good behavior.

Greenglass, who testified at the trial that while at the Los Alamos, N. M., atom project he had been persuaded to transmit bomb information to the Rosenbergs and that

(Continued on page 46, col. 5)

David Greenglass leaves court with U. S. deputy marshal after hearing judge impose 15-year jail sentence. (NEWS foto by Ed Jackson)

[illegible]

Q. 17

TITLE

CLATS

Free to :

N y

DATE APR 7 1951

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DISTRICT

F. B. I.

APR 9 1951

14

15-Year Term To Greenglass As A-Traitor

(Continued from page 3)

he later gave them further information, including drawings, at their Manhattan apartment, was led before Judge Kaufman at 2 P.M.

Saypol Suggests Mercy

U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol told the court the ex-sergeant's offense was "grave beyond possibility of doubt" and that the death sentence given the Rosenbergs also "could readily have been his," but that Greenglass merited mercy.

"This case could not have been proven without the information supplied by such persons as Max Elitcher, Harry Gold, Ruth Greenglass and the defendant David Greenglass," Saypol continued. He recommended 15 years.

In accepting the prosecutor's recommendation, Kaufman told Greenglass his acts had been "loathesome," but that recognition must be given for his help in bringing to justice "the arch criminals in this nefarious scheme, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg."

"You have at least not added to your sins by committing the crime of perjury," said the judge. "I realize the courage that was required for you to give your testimony."

Cites National Security.

"Our national security is more important than my personal feeling on the subject and more important than the punishment of any single individual. By your assist-

Judge Going On Vacation

Federal Judge Irving Kaufman, who presided for three weeks over America's first atom spy trial and spent a practically sleepless week before deciding on the death sentence for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg will board a plane this morning for a vacation at Palm Beach, Fla.

ance in this case you have helped us strike a death blow to the trafficking in our military secrets to the advantage of a foreign nation.

"You, like so many other foolish men and women, believed that Soviet Russia was Utopia. You learned that when you enlisted in what you believed was a cause for the liberation of men you were in effect enlisting in the Russian Foreign Legion. However, you found your way back before the curtain fell on your life. You repented and brought to justice those who enlisted you in this cause."

Deputy marshals took Greenglass back to City Prison pending orders from Washington for his commitment to a federal institution.

Woman Screams at Her.

As Greenglass' wife started to leave the Federal Building in a taxi, a woman ran to the curb and began berating her. "Come out and I'll tear you to pieces," the woman screamed at Mrs. Greenglass cowered in the cab.

A young student, his arms filled with books, asked the woman to stop. "She's had a hard ordeal," he said of Mrs. Greenglass.

The woman turned and slapped the youth's face. "I was born in Austria, but I'm proud to be an American," she cried. Mrs. Greenglass' cab slid away during the diversion.

Emanuel H. Bloch, counsel for the Rosenbergs, filed a notice of appeal with the court yesterday, asking arrest of judgment and a new trial. The Rosenbergs and Sobell remained in local prisons yesterday. Marshal William A. Carroll is waiting word from Washington on his request for permission to take the Rosenbergs to Sing Sing, which has full facilities for safeguarding the condemned. If their appeals fail.

Atom-Spy Greenglass Given 15 Years

By GEORGE GRADY and WILFRED ALEXANDER

David Greenglass, 29, confessed spy, was let off with a 15-year sentence yesterday because he cooperated in exposing a Russian ring that stole U. S. atomic secrets. His brother-in-law and sister, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, had been sentenced to death 24 hours earlier as members of the conspiracy.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman said the 15-year penalty—recommended by U.S. Attorney Saypol—is “a just sentence, neither light nor heavy.”

Kaufman described the ex-Army sergeant's role in the plot as "loathsome" and "contemptible," but credited Greenglass with "helping us strike a death-blow to the trafficking of our military secrets by foreign agents."

Shoied Courage

The judge told the chunky defendant he realizes it took courage to testify against his own sister and her husband, to whom he referred as "the arch-criminals in this nefarious scheme," and added:

"You, at least, did not add to your sins by committing the additional crime of perjury."

Greenglass took his sentence calmly, as he had met the news of his sister's death penalty.

"She was stubborn," he reportedly told jailers. "She had the same chance to get off that I did."

The ex-GI's pretty wife, Ruth, collapsed against the rail in front of her first-row seat and was unable to talk to reporters.

Later, on leaving the courthouse after a brief visit with her husband, Mrs. Greenglass narrowly escaped a brush with a

Continued on Page 6

TITLE

CLASS

Fr. 24NY

DATED APR 7 1951

SECRET

2 76 234 211
F. B. I.
APR 9 1961
N. Y.
36 61-

15-Year Term To Greenglass

Continued from Page 1

woman, increased at testimony during the trial, who shouted "you Communist!" and threatened to "tear you to pieces if I get you out of that taxi."

The cab pulled away before she could get the door open, but not before she slapped a young student who told her to "let that woman alone." The aroused patriot identified herself as Mrs. Margaret Weeks, of 326 E. 113th St., a native of Hungary, now a naturalized American.

Greenglass' lawyer, O. John Rogge, had pleaded for a lighter sentence for the Government's star witness, whose testimony also had brought a 30-year sentence to radar expert Morton Sobell, a fourth member of the ring.

Rogge told the court that a penalty of more than five years might discourage other "fuzzy-thinking fanatics" from recanting and helping clean up "the whole story about espionage here."

Judge Kaufman was not moved by Rogge's 36-minute plea.

He made no mention of parole in Greenglass' case, however, as he had in recommending that Sobell be denied any parole.

The absence of such a pronouncement makes Greenglass eligible to apply for parole at the end of five years. The gravity of his offense probably will influence the Parole Board against acting favorably at that time, but with 10 days off each month for good behavior, he could be free in about 11 years.

While Greenglass was being sentenced, attorneys for the Rosenbergs filed an appeal with the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Authorities at Sing Sing disclosed Federal officials have inquired about facilities for Mrs. Rosenberg there, and have been told it is necessary to employ four matrons to guard a woman in the Death House.

The government man seemed surprised when informed it cost $13,000 for extra personnel while lonely hearts killer Martha Hester was there for 18 months pending execution.

Mr. & Mrs. Greenglass, who will live in the City Women's House of Detention while her husband is in the Federal House of Detention at Greenglass and Sobell are in Tombs Prison.

Greenglass, who will live in two children, 14 months in the Bronx, N. Y., placed under the supervision of a probation officer.

He testified his wife and he were in a conspiracy to commit espionage.

He testified he and his wife were in a machine shop in the Bronx, N. Y., in November, 1941, where he was working as a machinist.

He said he and his wife were in a machine shop in the Bronx, N. Y., in November, 1941, where he was working as a machinist.

They were in a machine shop in the Bronx, N. Y., in November, 1941, where he was working as a machinist.

They were in a machine shop in the Bronx, N. Y., in November, 1941, where he was working as a machinist.

Greenglass Gets 15 Years; Judge Recognizes Spy's Aid

By WILLIAM R. CONKLIN

Standing on the spot where his sister, Ethel, received the death penalty Thursday for Soviet spying, David Greenglass, confessed atomic spy, was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment yesterday for his part in the spy plot.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who sentenced Ethel Greenglass Rosenberg and her husband, Julius, to death, imposed the sentence on Greenglass. Morton Sobell, fourth member of the spy ring, is under a thirty-year sentence by the same judge. Anatoli A. Yakovlev, former Soviet Vice Consul here and a fifth defendant, has been a fugitive since he left New York five years ago.

United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol, who recommended the fifteen-year term, said the earlier sentence met his views on punishment. Outside the court Mr. Saypol said Greenglass could be eligible for parole after serving five years. If he is not paroled, the prosecutor said, Greenglass could earn sufficient time off for good behavior to win release in about ten years.

Before imposing sentence on Greenglass, Judge Kaufman heard a thirty-six minute plea for a light sentence from O. John Rogge, former assistant Attorney General. The lawyer argued that Greenglass deserved "a pat on the back" instead of a stiff sentence for his courage in testifying against his relatives.

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20
SEC. 21
SEC. 22
SEC. 23
SEC. 24
SEC. 25
SEC. 26
SEC. 27
SEC. 28
SEC. 29
SEC. 30
SEC. 31
SEC. 32
SEC. 33
SEC. 34
SEC. 35
SEC. 36
SEC. 37
SEC. 38
SEC. 39
SEC. 40
SEC. 41
SEC. 42
SEC. 43
SEC. 44
SEC. 45
SEC. 46
SEC. 47
SEC. 48
SEC. 49
SEC. 50
SEC. 51
SEC. 52
SEC. 53
SEC. 54
SEC. 55
SEC. 56
SEC. 57
SEC. 58
SEC. 59
SEC. 60
SEC. 61
SEC. 62
SEC. 63
SEC. 64
SEC. 65
SEC. 66
SEC. 67
SEC. 68
SEC. 69
SEC. 70
SEC. 71
SEC. 72
SEC. 73
SEC. 74
SEC. 75
SEC. 76
SEC. 77
SEC. 78
SEC. 79
SEC. 80
SEC. 81
SEC. 82
SEC. 83
SEC. 84
SEC. 85
SEC. 86
SEC. 87
SEC. 88
SEC. 89
SEC. 90
SEC. 91
SEC. 92
SEC. 93
SEC. 94
SEC. 95
SEC. 96
SEC. 97
SEC. 98
SEC. 99
SEC. 100

CCB

TITLE
CLASS FROM TO DATE
APR 7 1951
RECORDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

100-1-1-1-1
F. B. I.
APR 9 1951
N. Y.

7

Mr. Rogge repeated his "pat on the back" recommendation four times. Greenglass had testified at the trial that he sent $4,000 to Mr. Rogge from the $5,000 given to him by Rosenberg to flee abroad.

Judge Kaufman conceded that Greenglass, by testifying for the Government, had clinched the case against Ethel and Julius Rosenberg for conspiracy to commit wartime espionage for the Soviet Union.

The judge recalled, however, that Greenglass had given Julius Rosenberg a sketch and a twelve-page description of the atom bomb in January, 1945, for transmission to Russia. That information, coming eight months before the A-bomb was dropped on Hiroshima, was of perjury. I confessed and told a complete story in this case and it has been of great assistance to the Government. I prize the courage that was required for you to give your testimony.

Continued on Page 6, Column 6

"It is obvious", the 40-year-old jurist continued, "that the Government gave due consideration to your assistance in their recommendation; I have to be realistic in a situation such as this, and I recognize that despite my own inclination to be more severe on your sentence due to the revolting nature of your offense, I must acknowledge my own feelings."

More important than my personal feeling on the subject, and, indeed, more important than the punishment of any single individual. By your assistance in this case you have helped us strike a death blow to the trafficking in our military secrets to the advantage of a foreign nation.

"The uncovering of other espionage rings, which I am certain exist, depends to a great extent upon the testimony of those members of the ring who repent, and who, in doing so, are in a position to help the Government."

"I am sure that you, who were the first to repent, and who were the first to help the Government, will be the first to help the Government in the future."

"However, you found your way back before the curtain fell on your life. You repented and brought to justice those who enlisted you in this cause. Justice does not seek revenge. Justice seeks justice; a punishment in balance with the gravity of your offense, as against your aid to the Government. I shall, therefore, follow the Government recom-to City 1 room. 1350 block. R. wife went back to their cold-war flat at 265 Rivington Street on the lower East Side.

While Greenberg was being sentenced, attorneys for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg filed a notice of appeal with the United States Court of Appeals. Emanuel Bloch took the appeal from Judge Kaufman's sentence that the Rosenbergs die in the electric chair at Sing Sing in the week beginning on Monday, May 21. The attorney also appealed Judge Kaufman's denial of a defense motion to arrest judgment and grant a new trial.

Mr. Bloch expects to argue that Judge Kaufman erred in admitting testimony on the Rosenbergs' Communist party affiliations to show the motive for their acts. The defense also objected to testimony by Elizabeth Bentley that she conversed by telephone with a "Julius" in 1942, since the alleged conspiracy did not begin until two years later.

With the sentencing of Greenberg, the Federal Government ended a spy conspiracy that it charged began on June 6, 1944, and continued until June 16, 1950. Dr. Klaus Fuchs, a top British atomic scientist, is accused of passing British atomic secrets to the United States. His contact here was Harry Gold, who in turn led to Yakovlev, the Greenberg, the Rosenbergs and Sobell.

Within a few weeks Mr. Saypol will try William Forst, 32-year-old Columbia University physicist, on a four-count perjury indictment. One count is based on his denial that he knew the Rosenbergs or Sobell, though the two men were his classmates in City College in 1938. Meantime, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is following other leads on wartime espionage.

Greenglass Gets 15 Years as Spy; Judge Recognizes Aid to U.S. Case crucial in the Government's case.

Continued From Page 1

As another factor, testimony by Harry Gold at the trial implicated David and Ruth Greenglass, his wife, as active participants in the plot. Gold, serving a thirty-year sentence for his part, testified that he paid Greenglass $500 for A-bomb information in Albuquerque, N. M., in June, 1945. Greenglass was then an Army technical sergeant assigned to the Los Alamos atom bomb research station near Albuquerque.

When Mr. Rogge said "fuzzy thinking" about Russia was common here in 1945, Judge Kaufman broke in to say:

"Let's get one thing clear. Russia did not come to our aid. We came to Russia's aid. Your argument is confusing to me, and I hope you are not trying to condone the actions of Greenglass. No American had the right to determine for himself how much aid should be given to Russia."

"Let David Greenglass have a square deal," the attorney said. "Let's give him a pat on the back and encourage others to come forward and tell the whole story of espionage. Fanatics with rebellion in their hearts are going to betray this country no matter what the sentence is. They may even laugh at it. But if the Government wants help, it must give help. Any sentence of over five years would be so severe as to discourage anyone else from coming forward with information."

Judge Stresses Fairness

"You have stressed a light sentence," Judge Kaufman replied deliberately. "I like to think that I never impose either a light sentence or a heavy sentence, but rather a just sentence within the framework of the facts in this case."

Leveling a stern gaze at the 29-year-old defendant, Judge Kaufman said:

"The fact that I am about to show you some consideration does not mean that I condone your acts or minimize them in any respect. They were loathesome. I must, however, recognize the help given by you in apprehending and bringing to justice the arch-criminals in this nefarious scheme, Julius Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel Rosenberg. You have at least not added to your sins by committing the crime of perjury. You confessed and told a complete story in this case and it has been of great assistance to the Government. I realize the testimony that was required for you."

David Greenglass leaving Federal Court after being sentenced yesterday.

The New York Times

commendation and sentence you to fifteen years in jail."

As the last words fell, Ruth Greenglass almost toppled from her front-row seat on the left of the courtroom. After a stiffening shudder, the defendant's 27-year-old wife dropped her bare head forward to the rail and gripped hard with her right hand to steady herself.

As a Government witness she had said she expected that she and her husband would be punished, but hoped they would not be. The Greenglasses are parents of a boy, 4½, and a 10-month infant. Neither child had been born when the spy conspiracy began in June, 1944.

Greenglass stood on the same spot in the courtroom where his sister had been sentenced last Thursday. Aside from a sharp forward jutting of his head, he showed no emotion at the sentence. He wore a double-breasted brown suit, a white shirt and a brown and white tie, and stood with hands clasped behind his back. His wife was twenty feet away from him.

After Greenglass was removed to City Prison at 3:30 o'clock his wife went back to their cold-water flat at 265 Rivington Street on the lower East Side.

While Greenglass was being sentenced, attorneys for Julius and Ethel Rosenberg filed a notice of appeal.

Greenglass Let Off With 15 Years for Aid in Spy Case

David Greenglass, 29, whose testimony as the government's star witness produced death sentences for his sister and her husband, was sentenced to a 15-year prison term in Federal Court Friday. He had pleaded guilty of espionage conspiracy, the charge on which Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were doomed Thursday and their co-defendant, Morton Sobell, received a 30-year sentence. Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman followed the recommendation of U. S. Attorney Irving Saypol in imposing the 15-year penalty on Greenglass, brother of Mrs. Rosenberg. The prosecutor recommended "tolerance for penitence, contriteness, remorse and belated truth."

Judge Kaufman, who also sentenced the Rosenbergs and Sobell, said he considered 15 years "a just sentence."

"You helped us strike a death blow to the trafficking of our military secrets by foreign agents," he told Greenglass, who stood with his hands clasped behind his back and showed no emotion.

The judge termed Greenglass' activities "loathesome" and "contemptible," but said recognition must be given his later aid to the government.

Greenglass had testified that while an Army sergeant assigned to the Los Alamos project he stole atom bomb secrets and turned them over to the Rosenbergs for transmission to Russia.

While he was being sentenced, counsel for the Rosenbergs filed an appeal from their verdict and death sentences in the U. S. Court of Appeals.

Rogge Urges 'Praise'

Greenglass' attorney, O. John Rogge, pleaded for a lesser sentence and told the court that his client "should be praised, not punished."

"Let's give him a pat on the back," Rogge said, "so that it will be an encouragement for others to come forward to aid investigative agencies. If the government wants help, let's give help."

"I am sure that the full story will be known to the government," Rogge said, "and the government should encourage people to come forward and tell the story."

The attorney argued that "any sentence in excess of five years would defeat the purpose of the act."

JAC
ASAC1
ASAC2
ATC.1
ATC.2
ATC.3
ATC.4
SEC. 1
SEC. 2
SEC. 3
SEC. 4
SEC. 5
SEC. 6
SEC. 7
SEC. 8
SEC. 9
SEC. 10
SEC. 11
SEC. 12
SEC. 13
SEC. 14
SEC. 15
SEC. 16
SEC. 17
SEC. 18
SEC. 19
SEC. 20
SEC. 21
SEC. 22
SEC. 23
SEC. 24
SEC. 25
SEC. 26
SEC. 27
SEC. 28
SEC. 29
SEC. 30
SEC. 31
SEC. 32
SEC. 33
SEC. 34
SEC. 35
SEC. 36
SEC. 37
SEC. 38
SEC. 39
SEC. 40
SEC. 41
SEC. 42
SEC. 43
SEC. 44
SEC. 45
SEC. 46
SEC. 47
SEC. 48
SEC. 49
SEC. 50
SEC. 51
SEC. 52
SEC. 53
SEC. 54
SEC. 55
SEC. 56
SEC. 57
SEC. 58
SEC. 59
SEC. 60
SEC. 61
SEC. 62
SEC. 63
SEC. 64
SEC. 65
SEC. 66
SEC. 67
SEC. 68
SEC. 69
SEC. 70
SEC. 71
SEC. 72
SEC. 73
SEC. 74
SEC. 75
SEC. 76
SEC. 77
SEC. 78
SEC. 79
SEC. 80
SEC. 81
SEC. 82
SEC. 83
SEC. 84
SEC. 85
SEC. 86
SEC. 87
SEC. 88
SEC. 89
SEC. 90
SEC. 91
SEC. 92
SEC. 93
SEC. 94
SEC. 95
SEC. 96
SEC. 97
SEC. 98
SEC. 99
SEC. 100

F. E. I.
APR 11 1951
F. Y. C.
510	11/11/51

Greenglass Up For A-Spy Sentence

Related news on Page 13.

Former Army Sergeant David Greenglass, 28, comes up for sentencing today for his part in the Soviet A-bomb spy conspiracy.

The pudgy confessed traitor was star witness against his sister and brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, who were given the death penalty yesterday for betraying atomic secrets to Russia in wartime.

Greenglass' fate will be pronounced by Federal Judge Irving Kaufman, who imposed extreme sentences on the Rosenbergs and sentenced a co-conspirator, Morton Sobell, 33, to prison for 30 years.

The ex-GI's help to the government in piling up evidence used at the trial of Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg and Sobell was expected to be weighed in his favor when sentence is passed.

It was Greenglass who first implicated the Rosenbergs. He testified they talked him into stealing atomic secrets for the Russians while he was an Army technician at the Los Alamos, N. Mex., atomic plant in 1945.

Greenglass admitted he passed secret information to Harry Gold, principal Philadelphia chemist and principal American contact of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British scientist. Both were netted in the spy roundup and sent to prison.

TITLE

CLASS

From NY

DATED

APR 2 1951

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

FBI - NEW YORK
APR 2 1951

Hint Mercy for Informers:

U. S. Hunts Others In Red Spy Ring

RETREAT UNDER FIRE . . . Beset by a heckler, Mrs. RUTH GREENGLASS hides behind magazine in taxi as she leaves the U. S. Court House after hearing her husband, David, tool of atomic spies, sentenced to 15 years.

Journal-American Photo by Ed Rickard

By HOWARD RUSHMORE

With two atomic spies on their way to the electric chair and two others sentenced to prison, the Government today turned its efforts to arrests of other members of the Communist espionage network.

David Greenglass, 29, a former Army sergeant at Los Alamos, escaped a long jail sentence and possibly death when Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman sentenced him to 15 years.

Pointing out he did this only because of Greenglass' cooperation with the government, Kaufman stressed that Greenglass' testimony had been a help to national security.

The government hopes other spies may come forward and reveal their accomplices and U. S. officials are now recommending that the government should not be too lenient on the

FRI. NEW YORK
APR 23 1951

...was predicated on this assumption.

Greenglass will begin serving his sentence next week while his sister, Ethel Rosenberg, 35, and her husband, Julius, 32, fight to escape the electric chair.

AWAITS JAIL RULING.

Greenglass was the chief witness against his relatives in the trial which ended last week.

A notice of appeal, requesting arrest of judgment and a new trial, already was filed in behalf of the Rosenbergs by their attorney, Emanuel H. Bloch. They and radar expert Martin Sobell, who got 30 years for a lesser part in the spy plot, remained in local prisons.

The Rosenbergs are due to be transferred to Sing Sing Prison at Ossining, where they would be executed if their appeals fail.

Greenglass, who allegedly got $500 for some of the most vital secrets of the billion-dollar Atomic Bomb, was held in the Tombs pending decision by Federal authorities on the penitentiary where he is to serve.

He is eligible for parole after 30 years. His wife, Rosa,

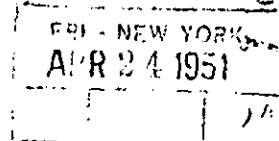

BITTER ... I'll fear you to pieces. I was born in Austria and I'm proud to be an American."

mother of a boy 6½ and a 4-months infant, returned to her cold-water flat at 365 West 113th st.—under fire.

A woman who identified herself as Mrs. Margaret Werber, 328 E. 113th st., an Austrian native now a naturalized citizen, ran up to the cab in which Mrs. Greenglass was leaving the Federal Building.

Spy Greenglass Given 15 Years

David Greenglass, confessed atom spy whose testimony helped doom his sister and brother-in-law, was sentenced today to 15 years in prison.

Journal American

APR 6 1951

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

The House Un-American Activities Committee will invade Broadway and investigate the New York theater influences . . . The bidding for the rights to Gen. MacArthur's memoirs—on a capital gains basis similar to Eisenhower's—now has passed the million-dollar mark. It would include all book, magazine and movie rights. Some publishers are pooling their offers, each hoping to get a percentage of the final deal . . . David Greenglass, who turned government witness in the atom spy case, and his wife, have sold their story to a Sunday newspaper. Ex-GI Greenglass will tell how he was recruited to reveal the atom bomb secret.

Donald Kingsley, head of the Intl. Refugee Organization, returns from Europe today with two I.R.O. children he found abroad. They're Czech youngsters, and Kingsley has adopted them . . . The toughest timing break of the year came to Charles E. Wilson's assistant, Thompson, who waited until the appropriate moment to announce his resignation and list the reasons. On the release date of the Thompson story, MacArthur was recalled . . . Last week Lady Astor met Paul Gallico, and mistook him for Paul Jarrico, the writer who appeared before the House Un-American Activities Committee. Gallico is encountering much of this name confusion, particularly because so many people heard of "Paul Jarrico" only via the radio.

William O. Douglas Jr., now is a member of the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve . . . Beatrice Lillie flies back from London April 29, to meet some TV deadlines . . . Senators Taft and Douglas were chosen to appear in the debate, at the A.S.N.E. meeting in Washington, because each had selected the other as the man he'd like most to debate against. Publisher Jack Knight was selected as moderator because his Illinois paper supported Douglas and his Ohio paper supported Taft, in their respective campaigns for reelection . . . Chief Justice Fred Vinson joined the President aboard the White House yacht last weekend.

In the movie to be made in N. Y. by the Council of the Living Theater, Gregory Peck will play the role of a young hopeful aided in a stage career by Katharine Cornell. It was that way in real life too: Miss Cornell gave Peck his start with an understudy's role in "Doctor's Dilemma" . . . Some of the entertainment industry figures subpoenaed to appear in Washington will not be called at the open hearings. At the private sessions they convinced the committee of their innocence . . . Truman, Barkley and Bill Boyle have decided the '52 convention will be held either in Philadelphia or Chicago.

TITLE

CLASS

FILED BY Paul & House News

APR 23 1951

FILED BY N. Y. DIVISION

F. B. I.

APR 24 1951

N. Y.

10

[Signature]

The front-pages here on Sunday reported that Arthur MacArthur, attending his first big-league game in his first week in America, had received a glove, autographed baseball, Giant cap and jacket, and had become a Giant fan. But this wasn't his first big-league outfit. When I visited the MacArthurs in Tokyo, I left a St. Louis Cardinal baseball for the boy. Mrs. MacArthur told me that she herself is a Cleveland fan, because she'd been a Tris Speaker admirer. When I returned I mentioned this to Speaker, who sent Mrs. MacArthur an autographed baseball, and to Arthur MacArthur a Cleveland Indian uniform complete with spikes.

The Duke of Wellington, now visiting here, was so anxious to see "Guys & Dolls" that he said he'd be willing to sit on the steps. Cy Feuer, co-producer of the show, sent words: "We'll arrange it—but on condition that the Duke doesn't wear his sword." . . . Lester Markel, the Sunday Times editor, was asked about the rumor that the N. Y. Times would start printing a Broadway column. "It's true," he said. "And it will be written, of course, by Dr. James B. Conant" . . . During her appearance in Dallas, Margaret Truman visited the Neiman-Marcus store, where models in new gowns were paraded. Miss Truman selected no gown. She ordered the smock the models wore between gown trials.

David Lilienthal, ex-head of the Atomic Energy Commission, saw Mike DiSalle at a party in Washington and expressed no sympathy for the Price Stabilizer. "After you leave office, you realize that the hot spot is a great place," said Lilienthal. "There's always excitement. It's good, even if you're the target—as long as you feel you're doing the right thing" . . . Among the thousands of suggestions to the Price Stabilizer, incidentally, was one from the dean of a college who advised: "Why not just paste the ceiling prices in every store. Sure it's simple, but the simple things usually are the best." Mr. DiSalle wrote a reply: "You're wrong. And, by the way, are simple students usually the best ones?"

Alexander F. Jones, the new president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, said yesterday: "Old newspapermen don't fade away. They get stuffy and become editors" . . . Lewis, the stage producer, walked by the new UN Building and referred to it as "Homburg Heaven" . . . Veteran courtroom observers predict that the attempt by Ethel Rosenberg, the atom bomb spy, to be transferred from the death house at Sing Sing will fail. It is true that her husband and co-defendant hasn't been sent to the Death House yet—but in order to return Mrs. Rosenberg to N. Y., at least 30 prisoners first would have to be moved from the Women's House of Detention to isolate her as prescribed by the rules governing doomed prisoners.

Rudy Halley has been vacationing at a retreat near Hollywood, Fla. . . . Hungary's original demands, in exchange for Vogeler's release, included electronics equipment from Westinghouse and RCA . . . Maurice Chevallier, who was refused admission to the U.S.A. because he signed the Stockholm Peace Petition, will deny Red sympathies and explain that he didn't quite understand the petition—because it was headed: "Are You for Peace or for War?" Chevallier also will state that the same petition was signed by the Queen Mother of Belgium and by many French stars, including one who recently made a triumphant visit to N. Y.

By Leonard Lyons

SAC 1
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SEC 1
SEC 2
SEC 3
SEC 4
SEC 5
SEC 6
SEC 7
SEC 8
SEC 9
SEC 11
SEC 12
CHIEF SUPERVISOR
PROPERTY CLERK
TRAINING UNIT

ccB.

John Osborne, editor of Life's editorial page, is moving to Washington for the Luce publications. He will be replaced here by the man he succeeded, Jack Jessup . . . Sylvia Sidney will tour the country in Clifford Odets' hit of last season, "Country Girl," as soon as the producers find a leading man to meet her approval . . . Gen. Tony Biddle, now in Paris as a member of SHAPE staff, serves as Gen. Eisenhower's official Military Diplomat. Mary Lawrence, wife of Col. Jock Lawrence, heard Gen. Biddle ask: "What kind of uniform should I wear as Military Diplomat?" She suggested: "A green official blouse, and striped trousers."

King Farouk of Egypt was at the gambling casinos in Cannes last week, contrary to the reports that he had stopped his spree. At the high-stake chemin-defer table the King of Egypt was asked by one of the players what he thought would happen to the world in the next few years . . . "I believe that soon there will be only five Kings left in the whole world," replied Farouk. "The King of Hearts, the King of Spades, the King of Clubs, the King of Diamonds—and, maybe, the King of England."

Buddy Hackett, the comic, insists that when he sought the help of a psychoanalyst to cure him of his inferiority complex, the psychoanalyst told him: "You have no complex. You really ARE inferior" . . . Grace Hayes, owner of the Red Rooster nightclub in Las Vegas—the only club in town where there's no gambling—faces condemnation of her property, which is needed to effect a widening of the street. She's dissatisfied with the condemnation fee suggested, and so threatens to sit on the doorstep with a rifle, to shoot any deputies who try to take her place away from her. David Greenglass, the top-butchery-math-bast-

ARCHED.....INDEXED.....
 RIALIZED.....FILED.....
 SEP 12 1951
 FBI - NEW YORK

CLASS

From NY Post & Times
DATED SEP 10 1991

FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIV

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SCL 1
SCL 2
SCL 3
SCL 4
SCL 5
SCL 6
SCL 7
SCL 8
SCL 9
SCL 10
SCL 11
SCL 12
SCL 13
SCL 14
SCL 15
SCL 16
SCL 17
SCL 18
SCL 19
SCL 20
SCL 21
SCL 22
SCL 23
SCL 24
SCL 25
SCL 26
SCL 27
SCL 28
SCL 29
SCL 30
SCL 31
SCL 32
SCL 33
SCL 34
SCL 35
SCL 36
SCL 37
SCL 38
SCL 39
SCL 40
SCL 41
SCL 42
SCL 43
SCL 44
SCL 45
SCL 46
SCL 47
SCL 48
SCL 49
SCL 50
SCL 51
SCL 52
SCL 53
SCL 54
SCL 55
SCL 56
SCL 57
SCL 58
SCL 59
SCL 60
SCL 61
SCL 62
SCL 63
SCL 64
SCL 65
SCL 66
SCL 67
SCL 68
SCL 69
SCL 70
SCL 71
SCL 72
SCL 73
SCL 74
SCL 75
SCL 76
SCL 77
SCL 78
SCL 79
SCL 80
SCL 81
SCL 82
SCL 83
SCL 84
SCL 85
SCL 86
SCL 87
SCL 88
SCL 89
SCL 90
SCL 91
SCL 92
SCL 93
SCL 94
SCL 95
SCL 96
SCL 97
SCL 98
SCL 99
SCL 100

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

Ex-Sgt. David Greenglass, the Atom Bomb spy whose testimony helped convict his sister and brother-in-law, soon may be moved from the Federal prison, so that his testimony can be used in a new Red investigation . . . One of the world's foremost scientists—a Nobel Prize winner—who was invited to come to America to attend a dinner in N. Y. this month, had to cancel the trip because he was unable to get an American visa. The State Dept. insists he has a questionable political record . . . Baron Gottfried Von Cramm will be on the German Davis Cup team again. His entry will be protested because of his record.

Both Rocky Compitello, the middleweight, and Jack Appel, the referee he knocked down and kicked last week (the boxer later was freed when Appel refused to press an assault charge against him) will lose their licenses. Bob Christenberry, the Boxing Commissioner, feels that in refusing to take strong action Appel was inviting attacks against other referees. Billy Rose is negotiating to re-open his Diamond Horseshoe nightclub again . . . Hallmark is releasing two more paintings by Winston Churchill for its Christmas card trade. One is a Holy Land scene painted in '36, the other a drawing-room interior painted in '25.

The Aga Khan is expected to arrive in this country within the next few days. Because of his control of the purse strings, he's the only one empowered to make a final disposition of the Rita Hayworth-Aly Khan estrangement . . . Miss Hayworth, incidentally, negotiated a final settlement of her U. S. income tax matters, for $15,000. The original problem evolved around the disallowance of a tax loss on her investment in "Orson Welles' musical, "Around the World." Miss Hayworth's tax settlement automatically places a $15,000 limit on Welles' liability, which means he can return here without any difficulties.

Bob Blaikie, the insurgent Democratic district leader who beat Tammany three years' running, he supported CDR, the Mayor and now Rudy Halley—has been fighting Frank Costello's influence in Tammany. Costello soon will be tried in the Federal Court here. Mrs. Blaikie was on the Grand Jury which indicted him . . . When producer-director-writer Joshua Logan heard that Rosalind Russell had read over 100 new plays in seeking one in which to return to Broadway, he told her: "For stars like you, plays aren't found; they're written" . . . Robin Morgan, the 16-year-old who plays the role of Dagmar Hansen in TV's "I Remember Mama," visited the UN Building where a Scandinavian official asked her, "Are you Norwegian by birth?" The young actress told him: "No. Only by television."

The counsel for the convicted Communist leaders, sentenced for contempt of court arising out of their behavior before Judge Medina, still are unable to find a distinguished lawyer to represent them before the U. S. Supreme Court. There are so few able, available lawyers willing, in these times, to represent people who have anything to do with Communists, that a novel scene may be presented at the forthcoming trial of the newest batch of indicted Red leaders: One of them told a prominent member of the N. Y. bar that in all likelihood they'll use no lawyer at all, and serve as their own counsel.

62-15326-13 SEARCHED SERIALIZED INDEXED FILED
JAN 19 1954
FBI - NEW YORK
JST

TITLE
CLASS FROM NY
DATE NOV 19 1954
FORWARD DIVISION

SAC
ASAC 1
ASAC 2
SIC 1
SIC 2
SIC 3
SIC 4
SIC 5
SIC 6
SIC 7
SIC 8
SIC 9
SIC 10
SIC 11
SIC 12

SUPV
CLERK
UNIT

David Greenglass, who was sentenced to a prison term after he testified against the Atom Bomb spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, is doing draftsmanship in prison and has invented a "Shower Valet." The drawings are all finished, but he can't patent it as yet because he hasn't the money . . . When Betty Hutton opens at the Palace Theater it will be for a four-week run . . . O. John Rogge, who is suing his former client, the Civil Rights Congress' Bail Fund, can't serve the subpoenas on the directors, Hammett, Patterson, Green and Hutton. Rogge therefore will give the documents to the Marshal.

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
FEB 28 1952
FBI - NEW YORK

Handwritten signature: H. J. [unclear]

CLIPPING FROM THE N.Y. POST

DATED FEB 27 1952
FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

GREENGLASS DATA OLD, ROGGE SAYS

Lawyer Denies Atom Spy, Who Will Testify Friday, Gave 'Important Information'

By EDWARD RANZAL

O. John Rogge, counsel for David Greenglass, denied yesterday the contention of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's subcommittee that the confessed atom-spy had supplied "important information on espionage in the radar field."

Mr. Rogge said that Greenglass had been cooperative when questioned last Thursday by staff members of the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations at the Federal Prison at Lewisburg, Pa. He added, however, that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had covered in great detail every subject explored by the subcommittee and the full story had previously been told to the F. B. I.

Nonetheless, Francis P. Carr, executive director of the subcommittee, announced yesterday that Greenglass would testify on Friday at a closed session at the United States Court House, Foley Square.

Senator McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican who heads the subcommittee, will be on hand here today to continue the subcommittee's investigation of espionage and Communist activities in the Army's Signal Corps.

Trail Led to Greenglass

Greenglass, now serving fifteen years for his part in a wartime atom-spy plot, is the brother of the executed spy, Ethel Rosenberg. He testified against his sister and brother-in-law, Julius Rosenberg, who also was executed for atomic spying.

In Senator McCarthy's investigation of the Fort Monmouth, N. J., radar laboratories, Rosenberg's name cropped up so frequently that the subcommittee has indicated that Rosenberg organized an espionage ring there. Rosenberg was employed at Fort Monmouth for several years during World War II.

Thus, the subcommittee's espionage trail led again to Greenglass.

There were three points in which the subcommittee was most interested. Reference to each can be found in Greenglass' direct testimony at the Rosenberg trial.

Greenglass was asked what he knew about Joel Barr. At the trial he said that Rosenberg had told him that Barr, who also had worked at Fort Monmouth, was an important member of Rosenberg's espionage ring. Rosenberg said he told Greenglass that Barr fled the country by obtaining a passport for Belgium in 1948.

8 More Are Questioned

Greenglass also repeated for the subcommittee the story told by Rosenberg that the latter had stolen a proximity fuse while Rosenberg was working for the Emerson Radio and Phonograph Corporation. The fuse, a one-time military secret, was used to explode artillery shells.

The last point covered the period after Greenglass' release from the Army. The prisoner had a job with the Arma Corporation, manufacturers of classified material. Rosenberg asked Greenglass to supply statistics to the ring, according to the testimony, and Greenglass refused.

Meanwhile, eight more witnesses were questioned yesterday by Roy M. Cohn, chief counsel for the subcommittee.

In another espionage investigation, Harry Gold, also a confessed atom spy now serving thirty years, supplied the Senate Internal Security subcommittee with a second, sworn affidavit in four days.

In it, he further linked Alexander Sventchinsky, former American radio broadcaster for the Russian section at United Nations headquarters, with a Soviet spy ring.

CLIPPING FROM THE N.Y. TIMES

N. Y.

DATED NOV 3 - 1958
FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

Late City

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
NOV 3 1958
FBI - NEW YORK

Greenglass Told M'Carthy Nothing New, Says Lawyer

O. John Rogge, counsel for convicted atom spy David Greenglass, said today he was sure Greenglass had given Sen. McCarthy's subcommittee no more information than he had previously given the FBI.

McCarthy investigators talked to Greenglass in the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., last Thursday in connection with their investigation of alleged espionage activities in radar laboratories at Fort Monmouth, N. J. McCarthy had said Greenglass had supplied "important information on espionage in the radar field."

But Rogge said Greenglass told him the committee had gotten nothing new of any material substance from him. It was all, he said, what Greenglass had told the FBI many months ago.

ORIGINAL FROM THE N. Y. NY POST

NOV 3 - 1953

DATED FORWARDED

SEARCHED.....	INDEXED.....
SERIALIZED.....	FILED.....
NOV 3 - 1953
FBI - NEW YORK

Heata

Mac Must Quiz Greenglass in Jail As Brownell Sets Prison Rules

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy must go to a Federal prison if he wants to question convicted atomic spy David Greenglass.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. laid down a set of new rules yesterday providing that Congressional committees must go to the prison where a convict is held if they want to question him.

McCarthy had hoped to bring Greenglass before his permanent investigating subcommittee in New York for questioning about security leaks in the Army's radar program.

The Wisconsin senator also had said he wanted to interview Greenglass next week, but another of Brownell's rules provides that a written application to see the prisoners must be made 10 days before the date of the interview.

McCarthy had no immediate comment on the Justice Department regulations as he wound up a series of closed hearings in New York yesterday into possible espionage at the Fort Monmouth, N. J., signal corps laboratory where the Army develops top secret radar defense equipment. Open hearings will begin here next Thursday.

The rules provide that a member of the committee, not just a staff assistant, must be present at the interview. Two of McCarthy's aides interviewed Greenglass at the Lewisburg, Pa., prison last week.

Brownell ruled that the application to interview a prisoner must state that the committee has approved the request by vote, and must tell the purpose and subjects of the interview.

The committee must have a member at the questioning and a stenographic transcript must be supplied afterwards to the Attorney General.

7 Speculation
CLIPPING FROM THE N.Y. BROOKLYN EAGLE

NOV 6 - 1953

15-1-3 GB

SEARCHED.....	INDEXED.....
SERIALIZED.....	FILED.....
/ NOV 6 - 1953
FBI - NEW YORK

Will Tell Spy Role:

Rosenberg Kin At Probe Today

Greenglass Helped Send Pair to Chair

By IRWIN SAFCHIK

WASHINGTON, April 27 (NS). — Atom spy David Greenglass, 34, who helped send his sister and brother-in-law to the electric chair, was called by Senate investigators today to tell of his role in the Rosenberg espionage ring.

The former mechanic, now serving a 15-year sentence at the Lewisburg, Pa., Federal Penitentiary, was the brother of Ethel Rosenberg, executed along with her husband Julius in 1953 following a trial at which Greenglass was a key government witness.

In today's appearance before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, Greenglass was expected to follow the lead of Harry Gold, another convicted atom spy, in telling all about his career in espionage work.

Gold testified for nearly three hours before the subcommittee yesterday — with Greenglass seated only two chairs away

CLIPPING FROM THE

N.Y. JOURNAL AMERICAN

R. I.

D. TEL.

FORWARDED BY

F. H. Blynn afternoon

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
APR 27 1956
FBI — NEW YORK
File ready by	RN

62-1536-4

Senators Hear Greenglass:

Rosenbergs Labeled Hypocritical Martyrs

By IRWIN SAFCHIK

WASHINGTON, April 27 (INS)—Convicted atom spy David Greenglass said Friday that Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were "hypocrites" who deliberately "martyred" themselves for the Soviet cause.

Emotionally, he told the Senate Internal Security sub-

David Greenglass (right) confers with Harry Gold during hearing. committee that he "still has affection" for the Rosenbergs, his sister and brother-in-law, though his testimony helped send them to the electric chair.

"It's a hard thing to be called a murderer," Greenglass said, "but to martyr yourself deliberately for a completely erroneous cause is the most hypocritical and ridiculous thing you could do."

CLIPPING FROM THE Mirror

DA ED. 4/28/56
NEW YORK DIVISION
3-22
Final Edition

SEARCHED.....	INDEXED.....
SERIALIZED.....	FILED.....
APR 30 1956
FBI - NEW YORK
Tracy

HE SAID HIS aged mother refused to mourn for her daughter when Ethel and Julius were executed for espionage in 1953. He explained that Mrs. Greenglass had implored Ethel to "think of her children" and admit her crimes, but Ethel refused.

The stocky, bespectacled, 34-year-old witness recently lost a plea for parole from the 15-year term he is serving at the Lewisburg, Pa., Federal penitentiary for his role in the spy ring.

Describing his unhappy career as a Red agent, Greenglass repeated much of the testimony which led to the conviction of the Rosenbergs.

HE SAID HE became a spy while in the Army in 1944 at the urging of Julius Rosenberg, his "mentor," and tried later to "get out from under the tangled web" of his "crumbled" beliefs. He was never a member of the Communist party.

Greenglass and Harry Gold, another key figure in the Rosenberg ring and now serving a 30-year term at Lewisburg, were lauded by Sen. Jenner (R.-Ind.) for "great courage" in testifying. Gold testified Thursday and attended Friday's hearing.

Subcommittee counsel Robert Morris said their testimony was "in refreshing contrast" to that of some other witnesses and will aid the Senate group in its work. Morris added: "If many more people like this came forward, it would not be long before the Soviet underground would be smashed."

He said Rosenberg was "paymaster" for Reds in American colleges and masterminded the Soviet ring assigned to learn the secret of the atomic bomb which the U. S. was developing during World War II.

He said Julius and Ethel tried to the end to hide their activities, disregarding the effect their execution would have on their two children and other loved ones.

GREENGLASS declared: "I finally made my decision and testified. These were my flesh and blood and I felt affection for them and still feel affection."

"But at any time that these people would have wanted not to be martyred, they could just as easily have put their hand out and said, 'Stop!'"

ROSENBERGS HELD FUTILE 'MARTYRS'

Greenglass Says Atom Spies Died for 'Erroneous Cause' of World Communism

WASHINGTON, April 27 (UP)—David Greenglass said today that his sister and brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, had deliberately become martyrs for the "completely erroneous" cause of world communism.

The 34-year-old former Army machinist, who is serving a fifteen-year prison term for slipping atomic secrets to the Rosenberg spy ring, told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that such martyrdom was "the most hypocritical thing a person can do."

He said that he had at times been sorry he gave the testimony that helped to send the Rosenbergs to the electric chair in 1953.

"These were my flesh and blood," he added. "I felt affection for them."

Mother's Plea at Sing Sing

He declared that the Rosenbergs "could have stopped me at any time if they had told their story," but that they had "refused."

He said that he had told to the Federal Bureau of Investigation "the whole story" of his spy activities upon his arrest in 1950. He added that their mother had visited his sister in Sing Sing Prison and begged her to follow his example.

"You're not my mother," he quoted his sister as replying. "Leave. I don't want anything more to do with you. You're as bad as Dave."

He told the subcommittee that his mother afterward disowned Ethel, declaring "she's no daughter of mine." He added that when Ethel was executed his mother refused to go through Shiva, the traditional Jewish mourning service.

The story by Greenglass carried a repetition of the remorse and repentance expressed yesterday by his fellow-spy, Harry Gold, who received a 30-year sentence, is also in the Federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa. Greenglass, short, stocky former foreman of the atomic laboratory at Los Alamos, N. M., told the subcommittee how Julius Rosenberg became his "mentor" in communism and recruited him as a spy.

Gave Secrets to Courier

He testified that in June, 1945, he gave Gold, courier for the ring, diagrams of the high-explosive lens molds that were the heart of one type of atomic bomb. He said that he also furnished a list of twenty or twenty-five possible spy recruits among scientists at Los Alamos.

He declared that his belief in communism began to crumble in 1945 when he realized that he was stealing for "devastation on a tremendous scale."

"There came a point where I couldn't overrule what was staring me in the face," he went on. "Every pellet I had had to be an example—I realized I had to run. I tried every way I could to get out from under this entangling web."

After he left the army, he testified, Julius Rosenberg urged him to attend college. He quoted Rosenberg as saying that the Russians would help pay his expenses to increase his contacts among atomic scientists. He said that Rosenberg had told him he was helping several such students.

He told the Senators that when "things were getting hot" Rosenberg twice suggested that he leave the country. He added that Rosenberg once told him they both would "just take off and go if it gets too hot."

Greenglass said that he believed in communism and had been a member of the Young Communist League, but had never joined the Communist party because he could not accept party discipline.

"I'd rather lie in bed on Sunday morning than be up at 7 o'clock shoving Daily Workers under people's doors," he commented.

CLIPPING FROM THE Times

4-28-56

Lat City
p. 5

SEARCHED.....	INDEXED.....
SERIALIZED.....	FILED.....
APR 30 1956
FBI - NEW YORK
Kradsky

65-4930

Mother Disowned Them

Greenglass Hits Rosenbergs As 'Hypocritical' Martyrs

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Apr. 27.—Convicted atom spy David Greenglass said today that his sister and brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, deliberately became martyrs for the "completely erroneous" cause of world communism.

The thirty-four-year-old former Army machinist told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that such martyrdom is "the most hypocritical thing a person can do."

Greenglass, now serving a fifteen-year prison term for giving atomic secrets to the Rosenberg spy ring, said he has at times been sorry he gave the testimony that helped to send the Rosenbergs to the electric chair in 1953.

"These were my flesh and blood . . . I felt affection for them," he said haltingly. But he added that the Rosenbergs "could have stopped me at any time if they had told their story . . . but they refused."

Greenglass, who said he told the F. B. I. "the whole story" of his spy activities upon his arrest in 1950, told how his mother visited Ethel in Sing Sing Prison and begged her to follow his example.

"You're not my mother," he quoted his sister as replying. "Leave. I don't want anything more to do with you. You're as bad as Dave."

He said that his mother afterward disowned Ethel, de-

Continued on page 4, column 5

CLIPPING FROM THE

N. Y. Herald Tribune

DATED 4/28/56
FORWARDED BY N. Y. DIVISION

Page 1
Lat. City Edition

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
APR 30 1956
FBI - NEW YORK
Shade by TRC

61-173-6

Rosenbergs

(Continued from page one)

declaring "She's no daughter of mine." He added that when Etibel was executed, his mother refused to go through "shiva," the traditional Jewish mourning.

"Greenglass' story was a repetition of the remorse and repentance expressed yesterday by his fellow spy, Harold Gold. Gold, who received a thirty-year sentence, also is serving his term in Lewisburg, Pa., Federal prison.

His "Mentor" as Red

Greenglass, short, stocky former foreman of the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic laboratory, told the subcommittee how Julius Rosenberg became his "mentor" in communism and recruited him as a spy.

He said that in June, 1945, he gave Gold, courier for the ring, diagrams of the high-explosive lens moulds that were the heart of one type atomic bomb. He said he also furnished a list of twenty or twenty-five possible spy recruits among scientists at Los Alamos.

He said his belief in communism began to crumble in 1945 when he realized that he was stealing secrets for "devastation on a tremendous scale."

"There came a point where I couldn't overrule what was staring me in the face," he said. "Every belief I had had to be re-examined. I realized I had to run. I tried every way I could to get out from under this entangling web."

Urged To Be Student

He said after he left the Army, Julius Rosenberg urged him to attend college. He quoted Rosenberg as saying the Russians would help pay his expenses in order to increase his contacts among atomic scientists. He said Rosenberg told him he was helping several such students.

He said that when "things were getting hot" Rosenberg twice suggested he leave the country. He said that Rosenberg once told him they both would "just take off and go if it gets too hot."

Greenglass said he believed in communism and was a member of the Young Communist League. But he said he never joined the Communist party itself because he could not accept party discipline.

"I'd rather lie in bed on Sunday morning than be up at 7 o'clock shoving 'Daily Workers' under people's door," he said.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.

The U.S. Parole Board says it will give "full review" to the parole application of David Greenglass, convicted for atom spy activities during World War II.

The board made that announcement yesterday after a hearing on the application. Greenglass has served eight years of a 15-year sentence on his admission that he was a member of the Rosenberg spy ring. The board has turned down Greenglass parole requests three times in the past.

Greenglass, was the chief witness against his sister, Ethel Rosenberg, who with her husband, Julius, was convicted of espionage for Russia. They were executed in 1953.

Robert Morris, counsel for the Senate internal security subcommittee, appeared at yesterday's parole board hearing to urge clemency for Greenglass. He said the convicted spy had earned parole by cooperating with the Senate committee and other federal agencies.

Greenglass is being held at Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Penitentiary.

RECEIVED FROM THE World Telegram & Sun

RECEIVED

1/10/58

14

TON VISION

62-36-B

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
JAN 10 1958
FBI - NEW YORK

Guthrie

MRS. GREENGLASS DIES

Mother of Ethel Rosenberg,
Executed in 1952 as Spy

Mrs. Tessie Greenglass of 64
Sheriff Street, mother of Mrs.
Ethel Rosenberg, who was executed in 1953 as a spy, died on Friday at LeRoy Hospital. Her age was 75. She was the widow of ~~Barnet~~ Greenglass.

Mrs. Rosenberg's husband,
Julius, was executed with her for the same crime.

Surviving Mrs. Greenglass are two sons, Bernard and David, the latter of whom is serving a fifteen-year sentence in Federal prison for complicity in the espionage case.

CLERK OF COURT

K. V. [Signature]
FBI - [Signature]
DATED 2-9-53
FILE 26
X FOR
FBI

65-15736-Sub B

SEARCHED	INDEXED
SERIALIZED	FILED
FEB 15 1953
FBI - NEW YORK
[Signature]

Executed Son's Mother Is Dead

Mrs. Tessie Greenglass, 75, of 64 Sheriff St., mother of executed atom spy Ethel Rosenberg and of David Greenglass, now serving 15 years for conspiracy to give the Russians secret information during World War II, died last Friday in Leroy Hospital and was buried Sunday, it became known yesterday. Private services were held in the Brettschneider funeral home, 49 E. Seventh St.

N.Y. DAILY NEWS
7/4/58
Page 30
COL 4

INDEX

61-153-1-12
7-1
10
910R

Greenglass Loses Fourth Parole Plea

By the United Press.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The United States Parole Board refused today to free David Greenglass, a member of the Rosenberg atom spy ring.

Greenglass, who has served eight years of his 15-year sentence at the Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Penitentiary, became eligible for parole April 5, 1956. Three previous applications have been rejected.

He testified against his sister, Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, who subsequently was executed with her husband, Julius, as atom spies. Last January, Robert Morris, Sounsel of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, asked the Parole Board to release Greenglass because the prisoner had been cooperating with United States intelligence agencies.

CLIPPING FROM THE

H. Brooklyn Daily Eagle

EDT Transcript

DAT 3/21/56

FILE

RECEIVED BY

X RECORDED BY DIVISION

65-15336 Sub

*
GUTHRIE H.S.

Greenglass Parole Denied

WASHINGTON, Mar. 21 (AP).—The Federal Parole Board refused today for the fourth time to free atom spy David Greenglass.

Greenglass, who has served seven years of a fifteen-year sentence at Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary, was a member of the Rosenberg atom spy ring. He helped send his sister and brother-in-law—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg—to the electric chair by testifying against them.

Greenglass became eligible for parole April 5, 1956. Robert Morris, counsel for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, asked the parole board in January to free Greenglass because he had been co-operating with United States intelligence agencies.

CLIPPING FROM THE

N. Y. Times

EDITION 1

DATE 3/21/57

PAGE 1

FILE 100-15336

X BY NY DIVISION

65-15336 Sub B

X
GUTHRIE 1/13

Greenglass Plea Denied

WASHINGTON, March 21 (UP).—The U. S. Parole Board refused today for the fourth time to free atom spy David Greenglass.

Greenglass, who has served seven years of a 15-year sentence at Lewisburg Penitentiary, was a member of the Rosenberg atom spy ring.

HE HELPED send his sister and brother-in-law—Julius and Ethel Rosenberg—to the electric chair by testifying against them.

Greenglass became eligible for parole April 5, 1956. In all he has made four applications for parole.

Robert Morris, counsel for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, asked the parole board in January to free Greenglass because he had been cooperating with U. S. Intelligence agencies.

U. S. PAROLE BOARD
DATE 3/21/57
BY [signature]
WASHINGTON DIVISION

65-15336-542
GUTHRIE