Buy U.S. Savings Bonds Regularly on the Payroll Savings Plan

July 1966

Gentlemen:

Please be advised that the following families, including the children, are active in many of the "anti" organizations and protest marches. Sometimes they speak openly about their activities and sometimes in a subtle way but I suspect that these organizations are communist front. I believe it would be worth while to investigate these people and any others like them who are infiltrating every walk of life if we want to protect our country and keep it from falling into the hands of communists.

Some of the organizations are: Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc.; Student Peace Union; SANE; Web DuBois; Committee on Krebiozen, etc. Mr. Chaiken is known to have fought in the Lincoln Brigade, his sons are admirers of Fidel Castro and one of their yearbooks contains an autographed comment "from one subversive to another", and Mrs. Chaiken is a social worker. Since she comes in contact with so many people, some illiterate, etc. you can imagine how much "brainwashing" she can do.

We must not take this lightly. It's this kind of subtle activity and the apathy of the public that will overturn our government into the hands of the communists. Remember, "It can happen here."

Therefore, I urge you to investigate these people and their fellow cell mates. I am sure you will find it very rewarding. For the sake of saving Democracy, please do something about it.

Respectfully submitted,

Gentlemen:

Please be advised that the following families, including the children, are active in many of the "anti" organizations and protest marches. Sometimes they speak openly about their activities and sometimes in a subtle way but I suspect that these people are communists or subversives using some of these organizations as fronts. I believe it would be worth while for the safety of our country to investigate these people and their activities. There are so many people like them infiltrating every walk of life while the rest of us sit back apathetically believing "it can't happen here". Look at all the racial riots, which are only grass roots. More dangerous than these agitators are those who work and mingle with the minority groups and in a subtle way are "brainwashing" them against our country.

We must not take this lightly. It's this kind of subtle activity and the apathy of the public that will overturn our government (and God only knows how many have already infiltrated into government positions) right into the hands of the communists.

Some of the organizations they are associated with are: Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc.; Student Peace Union: SANE; Web DuBois; Committee on Kreebiozen, etc. Mr. Chaiken is known to have fought in the Lincoln Brigade, his sons are admirers of Fidel Castro and their yearbooks contain autographed comments "from one subversive to another". The Vagos took part in the protest ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ march against the Jamaica Savings Bank in reference to their mural. Mrs. Chaiken is a social worker and in her position comes in contact with many illiterates, minority, etc people on whom she can do a good job of brainwashing. Mrs. Friedman holds meetings, travels and does the paper work for these cell meetings.

I urge you to investigate these people and their fellow cell mates. I am sure you will find it very rewarding. For the sake of saving democracy, please do something to prevent these people from spreading their influence, especially on innocent people. For instance, one of the Surovell boys worked among the Quakers in Indiana last summer. This summer one of the Surovell boys is working for the Dept. of the Interior. These people also seem to have mutual friends located in strategic cities throughout the country.

RASHEED STOREY gave a long report which concluded the Friday night session.

The Saturday morning session, 1/22/72, opened at about 10:00 AM. BILL SCOTT was the chairman. He announced that the delegates to the convention have a right to speak for 7 minutes in plenary session alternates at the chairman's discretion and delegates from panels 5 minutes.

The Parliamentarians were announced as LOUIS WEINSTOCK and MARGARET PITTMAN.

FRANCES BORDOWSKY spoke on the ANGELA DAVIS Tag Days. She called for the delegates to go out into the Times Square area during the lunch hour with cannisters to get donations.

The lunch hour was changed from 12:30 PM to 1:30 PM.

Each of the six panels, the Black Liberation, Peace, Industrial Concentration and Labor, Youth, the Party and the Political Activities were assigned places to meet. Each delegation assigned their members to the panels and submitted their names to the Chairman of the convention and the panel leaders.

JOSE STEVENS gave the report on the Black Liberation Panel. He said that in the 1960's, the Black Liberation struggle got minor concessions. He said conditions have worsened. He said Nixonism has hit them most and unemployment is much worse. He said that 3 out of 5 between the age 18 to 26 are unemployed.

STEVENS said that Nixon had ardent the development of small Black business men but set back on socially-oriented programs.

STEVENS called the separatist black groups with nationalistic tendencies such as the Muslims, RNA and the Back to Africa group as misleaders and hustlers. He said that the ideological struggle should be the key concentration in the Black Community. STEVENS said that the struggle for leading roles in the trade unions is now in the fore front and the working class leadership of the Black Liberation struggle is going to decisive.

STEVENS said that black representation must be at the top of the agenda. He said there should be a black mayor in NYC in 1973.

STEVENS called for the following:

- 1- Accept section of the Draft Thesis for the National Convention
- 2- Expand the ANGELA DAVIS Committees into all organizations in the Black Community.
- 3- Entire party must mobilize behind the Harlem Education Center.
- 4- Bedford-Stuyvesant must be made a concentration area. Steps must be taken to open education and social community centers in Bedford-Stuyvesant and Coney Island. We must rebuild the party in these areas.

STEVENS said the party must welcome the SHIRLEY CHICHOLM candidacy and it should ease the drive in 1973 for a black mayoralty campaign.

LOU KALB gave a report on the Jewish Question. He said the Jewish Commission must deal with the "Rightists". He said that Jewish youth are being won over to Zionism, the JDL and etc.

AGNES WILLIS gave a preliminary report from the Credentials Committee. Other speakers were:

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor creases and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The left edge of the page is bound, showing the stitching or stitching holes of the book's binding. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light cream.

[REDACTED]

The World Congress of Peace Forces was held in Moscow on October 25-31, 1973. It was the broadest forum in the history of public movements uniting people belonging to 170 international and over 1,100 national organisations and movements in 145 countries.

Seven days of frank discussion in the spirit of a constructive dialogue, taking into account various attitudes, enabled us to make a comprehensive examination of urgent and difficult problems of the present day.

The World Congress has been an important milestone in the development of the efforts of the peoples for the defence and the building of peace. It has made an invaluable contribution towards greater understanding and cooperation among organisations holding very different political and other views. This will give fresh impetus to common action.

Much of what has taken place on the international scene recently fills us with hope and inspiration. There are signs, for the first time since the Second World War, that the threat of another disaster, much more terrible for its possible consequences, is beginning to recede. The concept of peaceful coexistence is winning more and more adherents in and outside governments. There is greater understanding that concern for world peace and security cannot be the affair solely of a small number of great powers. This understanding is prompting countries-big, medium and small, even if they belong to various blocs and groups or are not committed to coexistence more actively to the broad front of defence and to the significant turn from hostility, confrontation and estrangement to meaningful, social coexistence.

Yet much of what is happening today causes anxiety and worry. Relaxation in some areas is being replaced by explosions of tension and aggression in others, which inevitably make an ominous impact on international relations generally. The efforts to slow down the arms race are still encountering considerable resistance from the military-industrial complexes and from militarist, openly fascist and racist regimes. Despite the process of decolonisation, colonialism in various forms still denies to peoples their independence and their inherent right to be the undisputed masters in their own countries. Unilateral efforts are made to revive the cold war and thereby adversely affect the recent favourable changes in the international climate.

Together we have considered what can and must be done in this situation by the peace forces through the power of world opinion. We have come to the conclusion that it is necessary to take vigorous and concerted action, leaving aside all that divides us, to help foster the progress now underway towards peace and security. Drawing upon their fruitful work, the 14 Commissions of the Congress, drawing to the positive results of their discussions and conclusions and worked out a common approach to problems, whose successful solution, we are certain, will be the guarantee that the successes achieved in the 1970s will lead to a durable peace on our planet.

We attach paramount importance to the following problems.

PEACEFUL COEXISTENCE AND INTERNATIONAL SECURITY

Peace cannot be ensured without the world-wide acceptance and implementation of the principle of the peaceful coexistence of states, regardless of their social systems.

Peaceful coexistence is not simply an absence of war; it gives each nation the possibility of upholding its independence and sovereignty within inviolable frontiers and, on that basis, promote sustained cooperation, ensuring mutually and concerted action by nations in the interests of peace and social progress.

Peaceful coexistence does not signify reconciliation with injustice. On the contrary it presupposes that aggression is effectively checked and that the nations have the right to fight by all necessary means for their political and economic liberation and social progress, to freely determine their own destiny without any outside interference. For this reason it is in keeping with the interests and ethical laws of peoples about the principles that must underlie a just peace.

Peaceful coexistence rules out the use of force in the relations between countries and predetermines the truly peaceful character of the various means of settling disputes and differences. This is precisely what makes it the most dependable foundation of international security. Such a foundation cannot be provided by a "balance of fear", which is unstable and dangerous, for it preserves and justifies war preparations, sustains a military background for the settlement of international problems and aggravates the military confrontation between groups of countries.

The alternative to this, and it is a quite realistic alternative, is to create the political, economic, social, cultural and psychological guarantees of security. This is the only way to end the division of the world into opposing military and political blocs and to solve other cardinal aspects of military defence. On this road the United Nations can fulfil its role as an effective instrument of international security in full measure.

INDOCHINA

The victory of the Vietnamese people, recorded in the Paris Agreement, and the victory of the people of Laos, recorded in the Agreement and Protocol of Laos, are major successes of the patriotic forces, which compelled US imperialism to make substantial concessions, and closed the way to a just national settlement in that part of the world.

However, the common enemy of them all has not abandoned his designs; the war in Cambodia continues to rage with US assistance the Saigon administration and the reactionary forces of Laos are doing everything to delay the implementation of the signed agreements. It is necessary to work for the strict and scrupulous observance of the Paris and Vientiane agreements by all the parties.

The military operations against areas controlled by the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam must be completely terminated; the political prisoners held by the Saigon authorities must be released and turned over to the parties concerned.

Also, in view of the gravity of the present situation, it is necessary to demand in accordance with the principles and aims of the political programme of the United National Front and the Royal Government of National Unity of Cambodia that the USA and its satellites should immediately cease their acts of aggression and interference in the internal affairs of Cambodia.

The utmost support must be rendered to the peoples of Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam who, under different

THE MIDDLE EAST

The recent military explosion in the Middle East has shown with tragic impact the danger of the long absence of a peace settlement in that area due to Israel's continued persistent aggression, which is a danger to peace, and Israel's refusal to implement the UN resolutions and to the consequences of the continued occupation of Arab lands. It has confirmed also that such intransigence by Israel cannot yield success in the modern world. The latest decisions of the Security Council are based exactly on this, confirming, in fact, that in present international relations there must be no legitimization of annexation by force. These decisions show a realistic way to an immediate, just and complete settlement of the Middle East crisis. The basis of such a settlement is the immediate implementation of the Security Council resolutions of October 22, 23 and 25, 1973, the complete withdrawal of Israeli forces from all occupied Arab lands in conformity with the provisions of UN Security Council Resolution No. 242 and the basic principles of the UN Charter, as well as the full guarantee for the lawful rights of all the states and peoples of the region, and the right of the Arab people of Palestine to return to their homeland and to self-determination, in accordance with UN resolutions.

EUROPEAN SECURITY AND COOPERATION

The successes of détente in Europe dovetail with the general trend toward an improvement of international relations throughout the world. Similarly, opposition to European détente is closely linked with conflicts and tensions in other regions of the globe.

That is why it is so important to do everything to speed on and deepen the process of the development of European security and reject every attempt to slow down or compromise this process. This is so important to peace that it requires increasingly active efforts not only by governments but also by the peoples themselves and various public organizations on the European continent. In particular, efforts must be made to secure the signing, within a reasonable time and on the highest level, of the concluding documents of the Conference on European Security and Cooperation and also to set up a permanent body that would help foster the work that has been begun and guarantee its continuation.

Political détente, which today has received priority over military détente, is nonetheless closely related to the latter. Proceeding from this, efforts should be made to secure the speediest attainment of an agreement on ending the arms race in Europe and on reducing the numerical strength of national and foreign armed forces in Central Europe. However, at a time when the process of détente is expanding, certain circles are suggesting that the ECSC should be turned into a military bloc and that it should even be given its own nuclear arms. Such plans, if they are realized, would strike a heavy blow at détente. On the basis of political and military security, equal economic, scientific, technical and cultural cooperation — multilateral and bilateral — could make considerable headway. In particular, it would be possible to establish useful contacts and links between the different economic groups in Europe, not only between the USSR and the ECSC. As regards the expansion of economic and cultural exchanges, its purpose is to foster trade and trust between nations.

PEACE AND SECURITY IN ASIA

Peace and security in Asia is threatened primarily by the imperialist policies of aggression, subversion and by dividing Asians against Asians.

The peoples of Asia have recorded major successes against these policies. The nonalignment policy adopted by many Asian countries is a valuable contribution towards peace, security and cooperation in the region. This basically anti-imperialist policy, the heroic victory of the Vietnamese people against US imperialism, the emergence of Bangladesh, the Japanese people's antimilitarist movement and steps to secure durable peace in the Indian subcontinent are welcome efforts against imperialist conspiracies. As a result, a decisive shift in the balance of forces for peace and freedom has been achieved.

This settlement of a number of extremely dangerous conflicts and crises provoked by imperialism and its aggressive policies and interference puts into still bolder relief the seriousness and scale of Asia's unresolved problems, which hinder the stabilisation of international relations on that continent. The principal task today is to defeat by concerted efforts the manoeuvres of the imperialists, who are trying to subvert sovereignty in furtherance of their neo-colonialist aims.

The policy of creating a system of collective security in Asia, open to all Asian states, regardless of the social system, must be founded on the principles of peaceful coexistence in promoting the spirit of Bandung. It will unquestionably help to settle such important problems as the immediate elimination of still existing flashpoints of war and the undermining of the consequences of foreign aggression and interference. On this road it is necessary steadily to intensify the struggle to rid Asia and the Pacific region of nuclear tests, foreign military bases and military blocs. The earliest possible admission of the Republic of Bangladesh to the UN and the full normalization of the situation in South Asia, and the conversion of the Indian Ocean into a peace zone are essential elements of Asian security, the idea of which is receiving growing support and merits the closest consideration by the interested countries. Such a system could create the conditions for comprehensive Asian cooperation among Asian nations for their development and social progress.

The dialogue between the North and South Korea, begun on the initiative of the Korean People's Democratic Republic, was a further step towards the peaceful reunification of Korea on a democratic basis, without foreign interference. But obstacles were made by the South Korean authorities.

The governments and all the social forces in the Asian countries are faced with need of co-ordinating their approach to the problems of peace and security on that continent. In working out this approach it would be necessary to proceed from the universally recognized principles of peaceful coexistence and international security with due consideration for the submitted constructive ideas and principles.

DI ARMAMENTI

The atmosphere of distrust must be used for the practical settlement of the problem of ending the arms race and achieving disarmament. Developing countries early, the processes of international order and of disarmament must stimulate each other. From today to curb and limit the arms race it is necessary to go over to the practical reduction of armaments, and first and foremost, to outlawing weapons of mass annihilation, with the long-term aim of general and complete disarmament.

For this purpose it is necessary:

- that the treaties and agreements on disarmament already signed, and whose importance is self-evident, should be strictly fulfilled and that they should be strengthened by countries that have not yet signed or ratified them;
- that all the five nuclear powers should sign a pact on the non-use of force, containing the commitment to ban nuclear weapons in perpetuity, reduce their military spending, employ part of the released funds for aiding the peoples of the developing countries, ensure the termination of nuclear tests in all spheres, and take further practical steps to end the nuclear-missile race and the improvement of nuclear missiles, and to achieve disarmament;
- that the proposals for the creation of nuclear free zones, the dismantling of foreign military bases and a ban on the siting of nuclear weapons on foreign territory should be implemented in practice;
- that a World Disarmament Conference should be held as soon as possible with the success of the talks now under way in reducing armaments and armed forces in Europe should be ensured.

THE NATIONAL-LIBERATION MOVEMENT, — THE STRUGGLE AGAINST COLONIALISM AND RACISM

The peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America are fighting against colonialism, neo-colonialism, racism, and third, national oppression, and for national independence and peace.

The forces of national liberation are one of the main elements of the world-wide anti-imperialist movement, of today's universal peace.

The national-liberation movements laudably represent their peoples and countries.

The existence today of colonial and racist regimes built on terror and truly barbarian exploitation of millions of people, is a monstrous anachronism. These regimes have the full support of international imperialism, which seeks to preserve them by the most disgraceful mercenaries and undisguised oppression. Colonialism and racism intensify tension in various parts of the world.

Every possible support and aid must be rendered to the liberation movement of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples fighting against colonialism and racism, and for self-determination and national independence.

It is necessary to work for the full isolation of the colonialist, fascist and racist regimes in Portugal, South Africa, and Rhodesia.

It is necessary to work for the full national independence of peoples still languishing under the yoke of the United States, Britain, France, Holland, and Spain. All the peace forces must work for the complete and unconditional implementation of the many UN resolutions on the elimination of colonialism, apartheid and other forms of racism. These forces are also working for the fulfillment of the UN resolution on the Decade of Action to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination.

All the peace forces must work for the recognition of the Republic of Guinea-Bissau by all countries.

DEVELOPMENT AND ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE

The process of international détente creates better conditions for resolving the economic and social problems of the Third World countries. So long as these problems remain unresolved or are complicated by imperialist interference and exploitation, they may trigger off new international conflicts and create explosive situations.

It is intolerable that in the time of scientific and technical revolution, the legacy of colonialism and colonial social structures has not been overcome in a vast section of the globe, and that in many regions of the world there is still hunger, disease, economic and cultural backwardness, and poverty. Undoubtedly so, because all this is supported by the blackmail and pressure of international monopolies which, hand in glove with local reactionaries, support or install anti-popular and blatantly fascist regimes.

The perseverance and constructive efforts of the developing countries, fortified by effective international solidarity, could resolve their vital socio-economic problems and improve the living standards of hundreds of millions of people. This could be facilitated by a reduction of military budgets everywhere, on strict respect for the rights of peoples to own and control their natural resources, by greater economic, scientific and technical assistance to the developing countries without any political conditions.

PROTECTION OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Mankind is ever more strongly conscious of the dangers stemming from the deterioration and destruction of the environment. The peoples of the world have a vital stake in protecting the resources of the Earth, our common home. This task requires active and multilateral international co-operation and rational use of natural resources. A persevering and consistent drive to re-deploy part of the world's resources on measures for protecting and improving the ecological balance, the living and working conditions of all human beings, should be an organic part of these efforts.

It is necessary to work for the elimination of the extremely dangerous pollution of man's environment resulting from nuclear testing and the discharge of radioactive and toxic waste in rivers, seas and oceans.

COOPERATION IN THE FIELD OF EDUCATION AND CULTURE

International cultural cooperation and broader human contacts will be of great value in fortifying mutual understanding among peoples and nations and dispelling national prejudice and preconceived ideas. They will help combat the propagandists of military psychosis, fascism and militarist ideology, chauvinism and racism, and everything else that undermines the moral health of the individual. But this effect will only be achieved unless cooperation in this field is based on the democratic principles of sovereignty, no interference in internal affairs, and respect for the historical traditions and laws of every country.

In this context, it is possible and necessary to achieve greater and freer dissemination of information; better conditions for journalists to perform their professional duties; bilateral and multilateral agreements and conventions concerning the use of mass media for a broader exchange of spiritual values.

The forms of international cultural cooperation are varied. Important among them are cooperation in education and the cultivation in the rising generation of lofty moral ideas and respect for all peoples; broader exchange of books; more extensive and better practices in translating foreign languages; repatriation of tourism and easier travel to other countries for professional and personal reasons, and the like.

ECONOMIC, SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL COOPERATION

Economic, scientific and technical cooperation is not only a result, but also a condition of peaceful coexistence. It is growth is obstructed not by dysfunction in social systems, but by international terrorism, economic crises, and psychological warfare. The consolidation of the united situation will, as it progresses, give it more to impinge to the use in the interest of national economic and social progress of the international division of labour, of scientific, technical and economic industrial cooperation, especially in the case of large-scale international projects.

International economic cooperation should be based on the principles of equal rights, mutual benefit and the provision of the most favourable conditions for trade and other economic relations. Attempts to impose political and discriminatory conditions, and to interfere in the internal affairs of the other side, should be firmly excluded from international practice. The system of worldwide economic relations should conform with the interests of all concerned and, in particular, contribute to the economic independence of the developing countries.

Every step closer to real disarmament is a step closer to the peaceful reconversion of the economy, offering added opportunities for the development of the most effective export industries and the expansion of international efforts promoting scientific and technical progress.

SOCIAL PROGRESS AND HUMAN RIGHTS

To live and work in an environment of peace, freedom and social justice is the inalienable right of every human being. To this end, a climate of detente, peaceful coexistence and friendly cooperation are essential for promoting social progress and human rights.

Poverty, unemployment and gross violations of human rights are rife in the world, and it is working people who bear the brunt of restrictions on human rights. People cannot be genuinely free without possession of economic and social rights, and their real guarantee, any more than they can be free without their civil and political rights.

Those states and governments that have not yet signed or ratified the International Convention on Human Rights must do so to bring them into force. Adequate implementation machinery should be provided. The possibilities of existing organs, such as those within the UN, should be fully exploited.

The use of torture is on the increase and existing humanitarian conventions relating to armed conflicts are not only inadequate but often ignored. It is recognized that special measures be adopted by the United Nations to remedy these grave situations.

The right to life is inalienable for every person and should be protected by law; and states should move towards the total abolition of capital punishment. The right to life also raises the problem of the right to refuse to kill.

It is imperative to eradicate all forms of discrimination based on race, ethnicity, sex, language or religion.

Working conditions must be improved, when slave and forced labour must be abolished. Health and housing conditions must be improved. Education and employment systems of social security are under arbitrary attack, to be abolished and decent public education provided. The plight of migrant workers has to be solved.

Cooperation on many levels will be needed, for example, among nations within and without international organizations; among trade unions, youth, women's, religious and other public organizations; and among lawyers, economists, sociologists and other scientists.

In every country the citizen should have equal access to the fruits of social progress. All economic, social, civil, political and cultural rights must be secured for the poor and

COOPERATION BETWEEN INTERGOVERNMENTAL AND NON-GOVERNMENTAL ORGANISATIONS

It is especially important that the efforts now being taken on the government level to establish the principles of peaceful coexistence and on the NON-GOVERNMENTAL level to consolidate the detente and the greater growth to cooperation between various peace forums should also be continued in more vigorous cooperation between INGOs, governments and intergovernmental organisations, global, such as the UN, and regional, as the Organisation of African Unity, the Arab League etc.

Cooperation between the two groups of international organisations is one of the ways in which public opinion can participate in world affairs, which is of particular importance in the light of the objectively increasing role of social forces, which are united into different movements and organisations concerned with the fate of the world.

Non-governmental organisations can contribute to the efforts of intergovernmental organisations to solve the most important international political problems, such as settlement of international conflicts, setting up of security systems, promotion of disarmament, the struggle against colonialism and racism, the problems of economic and social development and the conservation of the natural environment, and implementing decisions of intergovernmental organisations by expressing as well as enlightening public opinion in support of the said function of UN and other intergovernmental organisations.

To be able to fulfil this purpose, the NGOs - not least the INGOs - should together study and define areas of common interest and action, especially in relation to the UN system.

CHILE

The fascist pitch in Chile has shown once again that the policy of the imperialist, reactionary forces poses a great danger for people taking the path of freedom and independent political and social development. The overthrow of the legitimate Popular Unity Government of Salvador Allende is a reminder that the international monopolies, and the forces of external and domestic reaction are prepared at any time to mount a counter-offensive, including an armed coup, to establish a military dictatorship and plunge the people into a bloodbath.

Chile's experience shows once again that the struggle for democratic social, for basic human rights, and for the strengthening of legality and the rule of law and order based on the will of the people, is closely bound up with an active policy of peace and equal cooperation in the international arena. The tragedy of Chile demonstrates once again that the forces which are against detente, against consolidating international security are the same forces which attempt to hinder the march of the people along the road of national liberation and social progress.

Now growing solidarity with the Chilean people, the struggle against terrorism and violence, the fight for the liberation of all oppressed and persecuted peoples, for the genuine rebirth of Chile is becoming a part of the movement for the consolidation of a universal, just and democratic peace. It is acquiring truly world-wide proportions.
